GRENFELL TEA AND EXHIBITION

1,311 ARTICLES SHOWN

Miss Ethel G. Muir, Volunteer Worker, Tells of Labrador Mission—Mrs. E. T. Barrows and Mrs. Anna Stewart Preside at Tea.

The annual tea and exhibition of articles for 1914 under the auspices of the Plainfield section of the Grenfell Needlework Guild, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. Percy Hamilton Stewart, on Watchung avenue, and was one of the most successful affairs of early spring. There was exhibited in all 1,311 articles consisting of undergarments, hoods, helmets, mufflers, stockings, trousers, flannel shirts, gloves, mittens, bedding, towels and hospital supplies, as against 896 last year, which testified to the interest which this work has aroused in Plainfield.

Miss Ethel G. Muir, of Briarcliff Manor, who has spent three summers in volunteer work in Labrador, addressed the members of the Guild at 4 o'clock, giving in a most interesting and entertaining manner something of her experiences in the small settlements on the Coast, where the children and many of the men and women can neither read or write and all are living in need.

Miss Muir spoke emphatically of the lack of even the simplest means of education among the people of these smaller settlements, and of the difficulties of procuring clothing and supplies of any kind and urged the supporters of Dr. Grenfell to continue their work of ministering to the wants of their neighbors on the Northeastern coast of this continent. The collection of garments of the Plainfield section will be packed and shipped by freight to Boston immediately, whence they are sent by boat to Dr. Grenfell, arriving there sometime during the late summer or early autumn. During the serving of tea, Mrs. Anna Stewart and Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows presided at the tea tables. The directors asisting Mrs. Percy H. Stewart are as follows:

Mrs. B vanD. Hedges, Miss Eva Browne, Mrs. Richard Boardman, Miss Helen Harman, Miss Margaret Mead, Mrs. Maybury B. Mellor, Mrs. S. Durell Lounsbury, Mrs. Duncan W. Taylor, Mrs. William M. Wherry, Jr., Mrs. John S. Zelie, Mrs. Anna Stewart, Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna, Mrs. A. A. Tilney, Mrs. C. Boardman Tyler, Mrs. John P. Stevens, Mrs. William G. Cooke, Mrs. Alfred Streuli, Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, Mrs. Henry C White, Mrs. W. A. Conner, Mrs. Frank W. French, Mrs. Thomas M. Day, Miss Katherine A. Sargent, Miss Helent Lowden and Mlle. Gobrielle Meyer, of New York city, and Mrs. Celia Y. Hilbrook, of Bound Brook.

The work of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell on the Labrador coast, brings to one's imagination a suggestion of his activities as they have been developing there during the twenty years of his labors. It was for the purpose of contributing something to this splendid work that the American-Labrador Branch of the Needlework Guild of America was formed, of which the Plainfield section is a branch. It was to furnish clothing to the poorly clad and suffering men, women and children, to carry a degree of comfort to them in their wind swept and barren land, and to supply the hospitals and hospital ships with necessities which it was impossible to obtain in Labrador. The following quoted from one of Dr. Grenfell's leaflets gives one an idea of the scope of the work which he is doing:

"The name of Dr. Grenfell has become a household word through the United States during the last few years. Someone has recently described him as 'the most picturesque figure in the modern world.' This is no phrase barren of meaning, for the story of the doctor's life on the desolate Northern coast is representative of the International Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen reads like one of the old Greek hero tales. He has had his labors to perform no less than the fabled Hercules.

"When Dr. Grenfell came to Labrador for the first time in 1892 he found disease widespread and heart sickening, while unspeakable poverty and hopelessness were the portion of the dwellers in this Northern land. To fight these foes he has labored untiringly for twenty years with telling results shown by the establishment of five hospitals—oasis of relief in a desert of suffering—which annually treat thousands of fishermen and their families; and in the organization of eight co-operative stores which have put an effective stop to the truck system by means of which the traders formerly despoiled the

FLOWER AND FRUIT GUILD IS ORGANIZED

Local Branch Established and Joseph Harper Chosen President.

An enthusiastic gathering of people met at the Friends' meeting-house, last night, and formally organized a local branch of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild, which will have the greater portion of its work to do within the limits of this city and the borough. Joseph Harper presided, while the devotional exercises were conducted by W. D. Williams. Harry Pennoyer acted as secretary of the meeting.

Mrs. Albert G. Negley, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of the Grace Episcopal church, were in attendance and gave encouraging words to the new society.

The following officers were elected for a term of one year: President, Joseph Harper; first vice president, W. D. Williams; second vice president, Robert Love; third vice president, Mrs. Egbert H. Mumford; fourth vice president, Mrs. L. M Case; secretary, Mrs. Albert G. Negley.

A committee composed of the vice presidents will draw up the constitution and by-laws and present them for adoption at the next meeting to be held at the meeting-house on Tuesday evening, April 14. The standing committees will also be appointed at that time. Plans for organizing the school children of the city and borough into auxiliary societies were discussed at length, but no definite action taken. Several new members added their names to the charter roll, which will be held open for some time until all the churches are represented on it.

MISS JANET E. RICHARDS TO DISCUSS FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Miss Janet Richards, of Washington, will come to Plainfield tomorrow afternoon to give a special talk on "Foreign Affairs," at the Hartridge Auditorium, at 3:30 o'clock. As is well known, Miss Richards has just finished her course of ten talks on "Current Events," in this city but tomorrow, unless there is something of vital moment in this country to be reported, she will confine herself to history as it is being made at the present moment in foreign countries.

The crisis in England over Home Rule for Ireland will be uppermost in Miss Richards' mind, it is certain, and in this connection she has promised to devote a few moments to a review of David Lloyd George's program for social uplift.

JUST A LITTLE SCARE.

Tenants on the second floor of the Depew buildnig on North avenue, which was damaged to the extent of $3,500 by fire and water yesterday afternoon, notified fire headquarters at noon today that smoke was coming from the ruins. The chemical engine was sent to the scene, but it was found that the smoke was nothing more than steam coming from the wet timbers.

SCHOOL CONCERT A PLEASING AFFAIR

A pleasing program of music was presented last night at the Bryant School, by the pupils of that institution. So successful was the affair from an artistic point of view that it will be repeated on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Among the numbers which were exceptionally well given were the "Flower Song" and the "Patriotic Song," by the first grade boys, and the selections given by four colored boys, and a chorus of colored girls. YOUNG LOVE THE THEME OF SHELDON'S "ROMANCE"

It were no possible to give a more fitting title to the play by Edward Sheldon, "Romance," which Charles Dilylingham will give with a picked cast at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday afternoon and evening. True the title is one that might be given to nine plays in every ten ;for at least nine plays in every ten have their theme founded in romance of one kind or another.

It may be added that, as a mere title, "Romance" is not especially attractive, because romance is the quality which the average man and woman seek when they go to the theatre. But a knowledge of the story and incidents of Sheldon's play makes it clear that no other title would fit it nearly so well as "Romance." Romance runs through it from the rise of the curtain to the final fall.

Thirty friends of Thomas Heron, of Monroe avenue, tendered him a surprise party at his home, last night, in honor of his twenty-first birthday. The affair was arranged by George Leighs and James Doig and proved enjoyable in every way. TEMPLE SHOLEM BALL A SUCCESS

Success marked the first concert and ball under the auspices of Temple Sholem, in the Park Club auditorium last night, and 300 guests enjoyed the program of entertainment provided by the committee of active workers. The interior of the Park Club was transformed into a scene of gayety by the elaborate decorative scheme and brilliant costumes worn by the women added to the interior splendor.

Talent from this city and New York provided the excellent program of music given during the first part of the evening and a number of unusually fine vocal and instrumental numbers were rendered by the entertainers. During the dancing which followed, the first half of the program, an exhibition dance was executed by Miss Rae Preger and Edmund LaPorte. They gave a number of the most intricate steps in the hesitation and their work was the cause for much favorable comment on the part of the guests. Both are local dancers.

The program included the following numbers: Piano solos by Walter Silbert, of this city; soprano solo by Miss Edna F. Freudenburg, of New York; vocal duet, by Miss Ruth Livingston and Barnard Marx, of New York; violin solo, by Samuel Silbert, of this city, accompanied by Joseph Silbert on the piano; soprano solo, Mrs. William Heath, of this city; baritone solo, by Barnard Marx, of New York; piano solo, by Miss Ruth Livingston; contralto solo, by Miss Ruth Kamm, of Newark, accompanied by Miss Mae Preger on the piano.

They called help and entered and found a note in which their father had written that he had been ill a long time and desired to die.

The boys then recalled that their father had sent their mother away in the morning to call upon friends and had told them when they went to school that if he did not see them again to be good to their mother.

BOILER EXPLODED WRECKING ENGINE

OCCURRED AT FANWOOD

Two members of the crew of an eastbound freight train that passed the Fanwood station at 4:20 o'clock this morning, narrowly escaped death when the fire box of the engine exploded when the train was about one-fourth of a mile west of the Fanwood cut. The fireman had been engaged in coaling the fire and the supposition is that a powerful explosive substance was mixed in with the fuel.

The explosion wrecked the boiler and cab of the engine and hurled the fireman and engineer to the ground. These were the only two members of the crew in the immediate vicinity of the engine when the accident occurred and the other train hands escaped uninjured. Livingston Houck, the fireman, was scalded and cut about the face and body and is confined in Muhlenberg Hospital, where it is said that he will recover. Jacob Baehr, the engineer, was less seriously injured and after having his wounds dressed at the institution insisted upon returning to his home in Philadelphia.

Escaping steam and gas burned both of the victims and the fireman was hit in the mouth by a piece of iron pipe which knocked out his front teeth. They were carried to the home of H. P. Robinson nearby and first aid treatment was given by Dr. F. W. Westcott, after which the patients were conveyed to the hospital in the ambulance.

The explosion was a terrific one and aroused the people of Fanwood who flocked to the tracks expecting to see a horrible catastrophe. Many fled from their home in night attire, visions of earthquakes and other horrors flashing through their minds when the eruption was heard. The wreckage was strewn over the eastbound tracks, pieces of rails being ripped from their moorings and a number of ties destroyed by the fire that followed the explosion.

As the commuting service sets in early from this city and points west many were delayed in reaching their places of business this morning. Many theories have been advanced for the cause of the accident, but the fact that dynamite was probably mixed in with the fuel is the one most generally accepted hereabouts. Railroad men assert that the heavy grade at this point is a tremendous tax on any locomotive and when a "pusher" is not employed to aid freights in climbing the hill every ounce of steam possible must be put on to reach the crest. It may be that the enginner had too great a pressure of steam on and this caused the explosion.

STYLE SR RELIABILITY

Concerning Rothberg's—A Foreword

We have no hesitancy in saying that this business was started for the purpose of making money. Nor have we any hesitancy in saying that it has succeeded.

But we also wish to say that the successful business should make other things besides money—it should make loyal, life-long friends.

And if it doesn't, then in our opinion it hasn't succeeded, no matter how much money it has amassed.

Money isn't the final test of honesty and fair dealing. But loyal, life-long customers are.

Combining success with honor is not to be admired, but to be expected, and rightly understood, one cannot be achieved without the other.

Had the Rothberg store been built on deceit and misrepresentation, it would have been a moral failure, no matter how great would be the volume of business.

If we misrepresented our goods, or had more than "one price for an article" or resorted to petty schemes to take advantage, it would not be a deception on our customers, but on ourselves.

Our pre-eminence in selling "Most Things Men Wear" is not only the result of our customer's understanding of clothing, but of their faith in Rothberg's.

They knew what Rothberg's stands for—what it has ever stood for—and they know that we would rather retire from business than violate one whit of that confidence.

TELLS ON THE KIDNEYS.

Plainfield People Have Found This To Be True.

The strain of overwork tells on weakened kidneys. The hurry and worry of business men, the heavy lifting and stooping of workmen, the women's household cares, tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they can no longer filter the poison from the blood and the whole body suffers from the waste matter that accumulates. Weakened kidneys need quick assistance. Doan's Kidney Pills are prepared especially for weakened kidneys; tired, worn out backs have proven their merit in thousands of such cases. Convincing proof of their worth in a Plainfield citizen's statement.

Mrs. C. B. Coriell, 60 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I suffered from kidney disorder for years and the principal symptom was a severe backache. Since I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, I have taken them off and on and they have always acted like magic, giving me prompt relief."

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Church and stage is the eterna theme of Edward Sheldon's "Ro mance," which is to be acted in th Plainfield theatre, Saturday after noon and evening. It seems very fat in the day to write a play having do with the ages-old conflict betwee the church and the stage. Yet, th most successful of modern love-plays Edward Sheldon's "Romance," deal with just that theme—although deals with it not in the old manne of preaching the arguments of the Church against the theatre, and the theatre against the Church, but by means of an illustration from our own life and our own times contrasted with the life and times of a generation ago. This play, "Romance," which holds fresh records for attendance in the two largest American cities, New York and Chicago, will be shown here by a company under the management of Charles Dillingham. Nothing need to be added to that simple announcement; for Mr. Dillingham's name spells "merit."

SERMON AND SONGS WIN MANY

Revival at Park Avenue Baptist Church Shows Marked Interest.

SEVERAL CONVERSIONS

The special services being held at the Park Avenue Baptist church under the direction of Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor, in which he is assisted by Prof. B. P. Stout, the gospel singer of Pasedena, Cal., continues in interest, last night's meeting being largely attended and productive of results.

Professor Stout opened the meeting with the singing of "The Lost Chord," which was followed with several songs by the chorus choir under the direction of William N. Runyon. Mr. and Mrs. Stout sang a duet "I'm Happy in Him," with much feeling. Mrs. Stout has a mezzo soprano voice of marked sweetness. Another impressive song was "The Three R's."—ruin, redemption and regeneration—which was written by Dwight L. Moody's life-long friend, Major Whittle. The entire plan of salvation is contained in the song.

Rev. Mr. Maguire preached an impressive sermon from the text found in Acts 24:25: "Felix trembled, and answered, go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee." In part he said:

"Felix had sent for Paul, whom he wished to hear concerning the faith in Christ; and we can picture this magnificent man of God, ambassador from the courts of heaven, follower of the Nazarene Prophet, as he fearlessly stands in the presence of the Roman Governor, and preaches to him in all Christian boldness. His sermon, like many of the sermons of today, had three heads. First, righteousness. Oh, God knows we need a revival of righteousness in these times. Second, temperance. Now we see the countenance of Felix undergo sudden changes, and his knees knock together in great fear, for Felix is living in sin; and as Paul continues to talk to him of his sin, Felix turns pale and his teeth chatter. Third, Paul straightens up and preaches to him on the judgment to come. And we read, the man trembled. Would to God we did more trembling. The conscience of Felix is aroused—he is about to open his lips—let us draw near and listen. Will he pray the prayer of the Publican, Lord be merciful to me, a sinner? If he does, forgiveness is at hand and the peace that passeth understanding. Life on one hand, death on the other. Heaven or hell! His opportunity is right here to seize life eternal. Oh, that the spirit of God that convicted Felix, might convict you tonight. But we hear him answer Paul, go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee. Why did Felix refuse to become a Christian? There were three reasons:

"First, Felix did not want to give up his sins, and in this respect he is like a good many people right here in our own fair city. Felix knew perfectly well that when he became a Christian, he would have to send Drusilla away, and this he was not willing to do. There are hundreds of men and women in Plainfield who would be Christians today were it not for their pet sins. Felix loved sin and for this reason refused Paul's offer of eternal life. Drusilla blocked the way to heaven for Felix. What blocks your way to heaven? You would have been a Christian long ago, only something blocks the way. Moody used to tell about a man in the soap business whose soap was said to be the best article in the market for cleaning clothes; but said the man, if I become a Christian I must label my soap, 'It rots the clothes.' Another story is told of a milkman who was known to water the milk; he attended church and one day sat under a sermon during which the spirit of God convicted him of sin; but he argued, if I become a Christian I must give up putting water in the milk. A little drop of water literally kept this man out of heaven. Felix, too, would have to give up Drusilla. What is your Drusilla? Men and women of today think that God winks at sin.

"Second, Felix put off this great question of eternal salvation because he was too busy to give it attention. In like manner people today are too busy making money to look after their soul's salvation; they are careful to insure their lives, their furniture and their property—even their jewelry, but they haven't time for their souls. Ah, Felix, death is coming some day—what about your soul? Your marble palace will crumble into dust, and where will you spend eternity?

"Third, Felix sent Paul back because he wanted enjoy the pleasures of the world a little longer. To his mind religion was a melancholy affair—what a great mistake he made! The child of God is the happiest being on earth. But Felix intended some day to give this matter serious attention—some day before he died; his was not a positive refusal, but rather a postponement. But listen, friends! We have no record that Felix ever decided for Jesus; his supreme opportunity he had thrown away. A very brilliant artist was engaged to paint the portrait of Queen Victoria; the Queen kept her appointment with the artist, bue he was so busy with other matters that he did not reach his studio until after she had departed. When the artist realized his awful mistake, he cried, 'I've lost the opportunity of life!' Oh men and women, you are losing the opportunity of your lives when the spirit of God convicts you of sin, and you pay no heed."

Following the sermon Prof. Stout sang "Is It Nothing to You?" This song deeply impressed every one, and after an earnest prayer and appeal for the unconverted to turn to this Saviour who had given His life for them upon Calvary, five in the audience took Jesus at His word when He said, he that believeth on the Lord Jesus Christ hath everlasting life, and expressed their desire to become His followers.

This evening Prof. Stout will sing several songs, and the chorus choir led by William N. Runyon will render some of the songs which this gospel singer used in his evangelistic work with "Gypsey" Smith.

Those in Plainfield who remember the tragic death of the singer, P. P. Bliss, and his wife, which occurred in the frightful railroad accident at Ashtabula, Ohio, some years ago, will be interested in the song which Prof Stout will sing this evening, entitled "The Singer." This song is the story of that awful catastrophe, and will recall to many in this city the sorrow that the entire country felt when the terrible wreck occurred.

REVIVAL SERVICES TO BE HELD AT HOPE CHAPEL

A series of evangelistic services will be inaugurated tomorrow evening, and will be continued every night, excepting Saturdays, through

R. M. Honeyman.

Easter Sunday, April 12, at Hope chapel. R. M. Honeyman, who will address these meetings, was for some time the secretary of the Bowery Branch of the Y. M. C. A. and comes to this city with the reputation of being one of the most able speakers turned out by that organization. A chorus choir of young people is being planned to serve throughout the entire series of meetings.

On Sunday afternoons, Mr. Honeyman will speak before meetings at the Y. M. C. A. Hall. These meetings will be held at 4:15 o'clock, in order not to conflict with Sunday-school sessions in this city. The topic announced for Sunday afternoon, April 5, is "The Passing of the Bowery." An afternoon service at the hall is also planned for Easter Sunday.

"WHAT'S A MAN GOING TO DO?" SAYS TUTTLE

Washington, April 1.—Congressman Tuttle, of the Fifth New Jersey District, is going to climb a tree. Ask him why and he'll tell you this: "What's a man going to do any way. Here I am getting hell from some of my Irish-American constituents for voting against free tolls. One of my good friends, up Boonton way writes me that I am selling out to Great Britain. In the same mail I got a letter from some 'A. P. A.'s' telling me, in connection with my recommendation of Eugene Burke for postmaster at Morristown, that they are getting sick over so many Irish-American Democrats getting federal appointments and if I don't assert my 'American patriotism,' as they call it, they'll send me up the Salt River. I ask you, what's a fellow going to do when he is up against that?"

ADOPTS STANDARD CARAT.

London, April 1—As a result of years of agitation on the part of the jewelry trade the principal countries of the world now have a standard unit for weighing precious stones. The 200-milligram carat, which was officially accepted by the United States government last year after its adoption by France and other countries today came into force in Great Britain. The reform is regarded as of the utmost importance in the jewelry trade. Heretofore, with a different standard carat in use in the various countries it has been a difficult problem for jewelers to figure the true value of stones.

TIME TO CLEAN UP.

Now that the winter weather is past, and April has come with its showers, the thought of cleaning up, and preparing for the long season of weather when out of door life is predominant, comes upon every one. There is plenty of work of this kind to be done here in Plainfield, and there is hardly a back yard that has not some rubbish or dirt that should be removed to make the neighborhood more beautiful. Especially is this true in the business section of the city, where there are many backyards that are a disgrace to the city.

There are places here where no effort has been made to do any cleaning up for years. We learn about the campaigns in other cities, and how successful they are, but the Plainfield people seem to be content to let things go on in the same old way and as a result there are many spots which are far from pleasing to the sight of our residents, to say nothing of "the stranger within our gates."

In other cities the procedure to make clean-up days or weeks successful is for the mayor to issue a proclamation setting aside certain periods of time during which the work is to be done, and this is followed by conferences of the city health, schools and civic organization officials at which plans for the campaign are mapped out. Circulars are issued by the Health Board, as was the case in the anti-fly campaign last year, and the boy scouts, or the police if necessary, distribute them to every house in the city. A mass meeting is usually held, and the newspapers do all in their power to spread the doctrine of cleaning up. When the actual time selected arrives everybody is imbued with the spirit of the period.

Richmond, Va., had a clean up day last year. All of the things told of above were done, and when the time for the actual work came lectures on cleanliness were substituted for certain other study in the public schools and a school holiday was given on the day designated by the street cleaning head to clean up certain sections. Cleanliness and sanitation were "preached" into the children's minds and, through them, to their parents. Each child was given a report card to tell what he was accomplishing. Boy Scouts attacked the vacant lots.

Altogether everybody in Richmond observed clean-up time. The change was remarkable; the city actually cleaned up. Best of all, however, there was a new civic pride born and a strong "Keep-Clean" ordinance has already been passed to make the results of the clean-up days permanent.

While perhaps a clean-up day is not practical for Plainfield, our people can at least look to their back yards and vacant lots, and see that conditions are much improved during the next few weeks.

THE CITY TREES.

Plainfield has always been fortunate in the beautiful shade trees which line the streets, and which are to be found surrounding nearly every home in the city. We know of no place in New Jersey better favored in this respect, but are we doing enough as a city and as citizens to assure future generations similar natural advantages? Every year we see big trees being removed, that have become landmarks, to make room for houses or because they have failed to survive the rigors of the weather, which younger trees seem to be able to stand.

The work of planting and caring for the trees should not be left to the shade tree commission alone. In these days of high taxes, they are very much limited in the work which they are able to do, and the duty rests upon the property holders to a large extent. The planting of young trees is not expensive, and with reasonable care, provided they are left alone by the mischievious small boys, it is only a very few years before they serve a very useful purpose, both for shade and beauty. The spirit manifested by a resident of Bradford avenue, as described in a letter to the Daily Press last night is one that many could imitate, and such good citizens as he is should receive every encouragement from the authorities and those living nearby. The police should also do their part to help protect trees, when a property owner takes the trouble to set them out.

Communities everywhere are awakening to the necessity of shade trees along the thoroughfares. Maples, elms and others are being planted with city aid, and whenever possible under a guarantee of city preservation and protection. In some places arbor clubs are lending bountiful assistance and cities already are reaping the reward in protection form the sun's torrid rays in the summer and the heavy winds of winter. Arbor days are observed with greater interest and more generally than ever. We of Plainfield can do no greater service to the future generations than to see to it that plenty of trees are planted for their protection.

With all due respect to our contemporary, nobody should seriously consider the suggestion to remodel the West Second street fire house into a city hall, without first doing some tall thinking. Taking it for granted it be a good thing to move the apparatus there up to headquarters, the structure is in such a bad state of repair it would hardly pay to do anything with it. A city hall is surely one municipal building that should be built to withstand the ravages of time and it would be a hard job doing this with the West Second street house as a basis. Anyway, the Council has dropped the city hall proposition for this year, so the whole discussion is nothing more than a squall in a percolator.

The manufacturers of a well known brand of cigarettes are putting coupons in the boxes good for pocket editions of Shakespeare's works. Now if only saloons would give out checks with each "hooker" redeemable for Emerson's essays, and poker decks held certificates exchangeable for Tennyson's sonnets, the pessimists would admit the country is not degenerating.

Looks as though Kentucky would either have to change her name, or else be like "Hamlet" with "Hamlet" left out. She voted herself dry recently and now the last of the Hatfield-McCoy feudists is no more, passing away in bed without the aid of a bullet. About all that is left of the state of many colonels is the blue graves and memories of other days.

The news columns report another candidate in the field for the Plainfield post office job. If this thing keeps up the rest of the country will be pertinently asking if there is anybody in town who has regular employment.

Perhaps if some of the municipal departmental hats had bricks under them like the innocent looking lids that reposed on the sidewalks today, a few of the chronic kickers hereabouts would hold off a little.

BANK STOCK BILL PASSES SENATE

Immediately Sent to Fielder, Who Signs It.

EXPRESSES HIS GRATITUDE

Governor Causes Stir When He Sends Special Letter to Each Democrat In Both Houses Urging Them to Keep Party Pledges—Legislature Adjourns For the Week.

Trenton, N. J., April 1.—With Senators Edge of Atlantic, Read of Camden and Mathis of Ocean, all Republicans, the only ones to oppose it, the bank stock taxing bill was passed by the senate, with twenty votes for it. A short time later the governor signed it and made a statement expressing his gratitude.

An attack upon the governor was made by Emerson L. Richards of Atlantic county, Republican floor leader in the assembly, when he issued a statement commenting upon the passage of the bank stock taxing bill.

"The insincerity of Governor Fielder is at last apparent," he said. "After issuing a veritable avalanche of proclamations and manifestos that would have done credit to a Mexican insurrectionist, in which he charged Republicans with being in league with certain notorious Democratic bosses, we find that it was the governor himself who was in agreement with the very men he condemned. On last Thursday James R. Nugent, the Democratic boss, stated that as a result of a conference with the governor they had agreed upon a bank tax bill. The very bill that was agreed upon last Thursday was enacted into law by the Fielder-Nugent forces, and now the alliance between the two Jims is patent to all."

Mr. Richards then went on to say that the bill contains a joker in that by simply acquiring real estate a bank may evade paying the tax entirely. He said that right here in Trenton a number of small banks will either pay no tax or very much less than they do now.

Fearful that he cannot keep the Democratic senators and assemblymen in line on the rest of his legislative program, Governor Fielder caused a stir when he sent a special letter to each Democrat in both houses.

In it he urged the Democratic members to keep the faith with the people who elected them and to fulfill their party pledges and called their attention to the promised measures not yet enacted.

In order that the appropriations committee may have opportunity to complete its work, the legislature adjourned for the week. It will reconvene next Monday evening and expects to reach final adjournment on the following Thursday.

The members of the present board are Miss Harriet P. Spinning of South Orange, president; Mrs. Howell C. Stull, secretary; James Baker of Jersey City, treasurer, and Albert M. Bailey of Hackensack; Theodore D. Gottlieb of Newark and Robert M. Andrews, Mrs. Howard C. Warren and Miss Sarah P. Conover of Princeton.

FRUIT ALL ROUND, NONE TO EAT

Longing For Manhattan, Boy Beats Way From Florida.

Rosefle, N. J., April 1.—Benjamin Wicham, fourteen years old, who traveled here from Jacksonville, Fla., in a fruit car, told in court of being for two and a half days without anything to eat or drink. Fruit was all about him, but was out of reach.

His parents made their home in Florida a year ago, but Benjamin longed for Manhattan and so decided to beat his way back in a fruit car. He was found by a railway detective at this place and turned over to his uncle, Charles Wicham of New York.

THE FORUM.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

In asking you to give space to the following quotations, I beg to say that I have hesitated long before doing so, as it is most distasteful to me to increase the publicity of such utterances.

I do so in justice to Mrs. A. J. George (for some of her statements regarding feminism have been questioned) and also to uphold my own assertions of some weeks since in the anti-suffrage column of the Daily Press.

Neither Mrs. George nor I would have been willing to show as plainly the tenets of feminism, as did Miss LaFollette, in the feminist speech quoted here from the report of it in the New York Times:

"The Right of a Woman to Keep Her Own Home," was discussed by Miss Fola LaFollette.

"Should a man keep his name?" asked Miss LaFollette, adding that the question was no more absurd than the one that formed her subject. "If a woman is to change her name simply as an acknowledgment that she loves a man and has married him, why should not the same sacrifice be made by him toward her? The ready acceptance of the custom of a woman's retaining her maiden name plus the name of her husband, may be taken as a token of how in a very few years we may expect to see woman in marrige keeping their own maiden name intact.

"What about the children? Let them combine the names of their father and of their mother, thus linking them more closely to each or let hat matter be settled by each individual father and mother."

Miss LaFollette urged the abandonment of the title "Mrs.," saying that it was unnecessary to label spinster and matron; that if a woman was single or married or had children or none, husband or none, was her concern and on one else's. Society didn't ask a man first of all whether he was married and had children or not; and what was good for the gander was good for the goose, she asserted.

"If Miss is the form of address for woman before marriage,' she said, "let it be so after marriage, too. Let the term acquire a larger social significance, when women keep their own name, a woman will not have to explain her children by wearing the name of a perfectly good legitimate husband who's at home."

Miss LaFollette lives up to her utterances in that she does not bear her husband's name, but is it possible a woman so prominent in any great movement, fails to realize the significance of what her remarks must convey.

It is inconceivable, of course, and yet they most plainly express that which we—the antis—see behind the feminist movement. We are told, however, that we "misread our own false meanings into the words of the feminists."

In conclusion I refer your readers suffrage and anti, to "Bondwomen," by Dora Marsden, for the doctrine of feminism.

Thanking you in advance,
Yours truly,
R. A. LAWRENCE.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Is it the duty of the Board of Education of the City of Plainfield to find ways and means of educating the children of our city? If so, I inquire of them if they are fulfilling that duty in the east end of our city?

In the section bounded by Netherwood avenue, George street, Emerson avenue and East Front street, there are at least fifty children of the proper age to enter kindergarten. The nearest school to these children is the Lincoln School, three-quarters of a mile from their homes, which must necessarily be traveled along the Second street car line, and their mothers will not send them such a long distance.

The Lincoln School is already over-crowded. Where is the Board of Education going to accommodate the eligible children I refer to? In other cities temporary schools are established to meet conditions. I advocate the immediate establishment of a temporary school for the children of the extreme east end while a permanent school is being discussed, legalized and built.

If my proposition is not feasible or advisable I should like to be informed to that effect by the board. If, on the other hand, it meets with its approval, actions will speak louder than words in this matter.

It is more important to the mothers of small children to minimize the dangers to their children while going to and returning from school than to have an expensive swimming pool installed by the board whereby the child may learn "to save his own life, if through any chance, he should be thrown into the water."

FEAR EXPRESSED FOR ROOSEVELT'S SAFETY

Message From Peru Says Iquitos Is Alarmed.

Buenos Aires, April 1.—A message from Lima, Peru, says that alarm is felt for the safety of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, according to advices received from Iquitos.

The receipt of the foregoing message caused much speculation as to whether Colonel Roosevelt was in some new danger or whether the telegram was simply a reflex of the reports that came from South America on March 23, when the division of his expedition led by Anthony Fiala met with a mishap. Friends of Colonel Roosevelt here who were told of the receipt of the message were of the opinion that it was the result of rumors that had arisen over a week ago.

Iquitos, from which, according to the message, word was sent to Lima about the alarm for the colonel, is in the remote northeastern arm of Peru and is about 500 miles as the crow flies from Lima, the capital. Iquitos is about 900 miles from Manaos, to which place Colonel Roosevelt was making his way when last heard from.

After the receipt of the messages from South America which told of the accident to the Fiala section of the expedition Secretary Sherwood of the American Museum of Natural History received the following message from United States Consul Pickerell at Para, Brazil:

"Roosevelt all right. Arriving at Manaos by way of Tapogio river."

There was doubt as to whether the party "arriving at Manaos" was that of the colonel or the one led by Fiala. Mr. Sherwood was of the opinion that it referred to the Fiala party because Colonel Roosevelt was believed to be exploring the Dudi Duvida river (River of Doubt).

From the plans of Colonel Roosevelt and the nature of the country he intended to pierce it was said by his friends that they would not worry about him if they did not hear from him in a month. The country through which he intended to pass had never before been explored.

PASS TOLLS REPEAL IN THE HOUSE

Victory For the President by 86.

52 DEMOCRATS OPPOSE

Speaker Clark Denies Any Personal Issue.

NO BREACH IN THE PARTY

Repeal Has the Support of 25 Republicans and 2 Progressives — Wilson Still Master of Party.

The Panama tolls repeal bill passed the house by a majority of 86, with a sweeping victory for President Wilson. The following tabulation shows just how party lines were riven in the vote:

For the bill:		Against the bill:
Democrats	221	Democrats	52
Republicans	25	Republicans	95
Progressives	2	Progressives	15
Total	248	Total	162

Washington, April 1.—By the good round majority of 86—248 to 162—the house of representatives passed the Sims bill to repeal the provision of the Panama canal act granting exemption from the payment of canal tolls to American vessels engaged in the coastwise trade.

President Wilson thus carried the day over Champ Clark and the other big congress leaders by the impressive majority of 86.

The repeal bill now goes to the senate, where the contest will be very close. Probably a month's debate will be necessary in that body with the likelihood of bitterness and rancor in the Democratic party becoming daily more pronounced.

Friends of the president acknowledged that the bill now has a margin of only two votes in the upper branch of the national legislature.

President Wilson's victory in the house was gained after further wounds had been inflicted upon the body of the Democratic organization.

Speaker Champ Clark delivered one of the most remarkable speeches that has been heard in congress in many years. While attempting to gloss over his personal controversy with the president Mr. Clark attacked the attitude of the administration unsparingly.

In effect he accused the president of being a repudiator of the Democratic platform and of prosposing an un-American surrender to Great Britain.

President Wilson emerges from the first engagement in the tolls battle more certainly master of his party than ever before.

In opposition to the most powerful leaders in congress he has caused the house not only to reverse itself on the tolls question, but to repudiate a plank of the Democratic platform.

Clark Makes Denial.

Speaker Clark, closing the debate against the repeal, disappointed those who expected him to attack President Wilson. He disclaimed any personal issue with the president, declared he believed Mr. Wilson was actuated by the highest patriotic motives and that there was no breach in the Democratic party. He argued at length against the president's contention and declared that "the amazing request of the president for the repeal, like the peace of God, passeth all understanding." He disclaimed any personal issue between the president and himself.

Speaker Clark said: "We want war with no nation, but rather than surrender our right to complete sovereignty over every square foot of our globe encircling domain we will cheerfully and courageously face a world in arms." He attacked the attitude of the house Democrats who have led the president's fight for the toll exemption repeal. Referring to published declarations that his opposition to the president was "the opening gun of his fight for the nomination in 1916," the speaker declared he had told all to whom he had spoken about the 1916 situation that if the president's administration were a success Mr. Wilson would be re-elected, and if it were a failure "the nomination would not be worth having." As to his own future the speaker insisted he could be happy without the presidency, the speakership or even with retirement to private life should his constituency so determine.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed, nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.—Adv.

M'GRAW TO LEAD PLAINFIELD TEAM

WEEKLY EXHIBITIONS

Regular Lineup of New York Giants Will Perform on Parker Field Each Saturday Afternoon—Will Oppose Big League Aggregations.

Announcement was made public today that John J. McGraw, veteran baseball manager who is the central figure in the National League's championship race each year, would manage a Saturday afternoon baseball team in Plainfield during the coming season. McGraw will bring a team of Giantlets captained by Christy Mathewson to this city each week and Parker Field will be used for the games which will be played against all of the National and American League clubs.

Ernest Dorflinger has turned over all of his baseball holdings in Plainfield to the New York manager and McGraw intends to launch a big revival stunt in Plainfield this year. The New York club is backing the project and a huge stadium will be erected on Parker Field to cater to the thousands of fans who will no doubt attend McGraw's exhibition games.

This sets aside the rumors that have been circulated during the spring months regarding the dropping of the diamond sport here this season and assures local fans of first class exhibitions on Parker Field each Saturday afternoon. Matty will do the pitching each week and the rest of the team will lineup as follows: Wiltse and Merkle, first base; Doyle, second base; Fletcher, shortstop; Snodgrass, third base; Burns, McCormick and Murray, outfielders. The admission charged will be fifty cents and one dollar and rain checks will be provided with each pasteboard.

Now that you have waded through this startling bit of information gentle reader, take a peak at the date on the top of this page and you will see the genuine reason for it all.

"RUS" CONROY HOME FOR A WEEK'S EASTER VACATION

Russell Conroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Conroy, of Fairview avenue, who is at present a student in the University of Vermont, is spending a week with his parents.

Conroy graduated from the borough High School in 1910 and went to Pennington as a preparatory for the present institution which he is attending. This year he had a regular berth on the class basketball team at forward and is trying for third base on the baseball team. The school supports no varsity teams. It is now closed for the spring vacation.

SMALLEY PUTTING ON LAST TOUCHES

North Plainfield High School Nine Will Open Its Season Next Saturday.

MATERIAL IS AVAILABLE

Several New Stars Have Come to Light—Burner Shifted from Second to Short—Conroy, Townley and Fetherston Show Up Well.

The first real tryouts for positions on the North Plainfield High School baseball team were held yesterday afternoon on the Cricket Field. Twenty-five candidates reported but this number will be lowered after the first thinning out. Both infield and outfield practice was held and in the former many changes were made. The field was still a bit soggy but sound enough for a snappy workout. Burner was shifted from his old position, second base, to short, and Conroy took his place. Both were very fast in action, but Conroy was hindered by a sore leg. Van Mater showed up well on first and "Wren" Townley was at his old station, third base.

Little Frank Fetherstone, the smallest boy in the High School, proved himself equal to the hot ones around second base and accepted many difficult chances. Hebert and Day were also put on first base.

The outfield squad was kept busy running down high flies from the bat of Tommy Mullin. Nine men reported, including the pitchers. Batting practice was also taken up for the first time and all four pitchers were used against the slugging squad. Smalley did the bulk of the backstop work and was relieved by Newkirk and Marsh. After the regular practice, Mr. Greene took charge of the players and more running work was done. This instruction has already done the players a lot of good and is certain to make them faster in the games.

The contractor, who is working on Hyde Oval, thinks that the field will be in condition for the opener next Saturday, but if not the Cricket Field or Crescent Oval will be used. The team will practice on the former for a few days.

WITH THE BOXERS

Now that Sam McVey has returned to Paris it is likely his next bout will be with Joe Jeannette.

Young Shugrue declares he will not make the journey to Australia unless he gets three round-trip tickets and $1,000 advance money.

Ray Campbell, one of the new crop of California lightweights, has arrived in Boston to tackle some of the speedy scrappers of New England.

If the Wisconsin Boxing Commission takes the ban off Packey McFarland, the Milwaukee promoters will make an effort to bring McFarland and Mike Gibbons together.

Dick Burge, manager for Bandsman Blake, lost a considerable sum when Bombardier Wells defeated Blake recently. Burge figured the Bandsman a sure winner and had backed him heavily.

FEDS INCORPORATE.

DOUGLAS DEFEATS EGLINTAN FOR CUP

LOSER GETS A MEDAL

Winner of Championship Last Year Plainly off Form Last Night and Opponent had Little Trouble in Asserting Superiority.

The final game in the billiard tournament for the silver loving cup open to members of the Plainfield Association Football Club was played last night, at the clubhouse on South Second street, between B. Eglintan and T. B. Douglas before a large crowd of members who watched with interest the progress of the title match. Eglintan won the cup last season but was forced to relinquish his claim last night, when Douglas won out. Eglintan will receive a gold medal when he turns the cup over to his rival of last night.

Eglintan opened the title match last night with a twenty-one, while Douglas drew fourteen. During the first 100 play was practically even, both players putting up a clever exhibition of cue manipulation and executing some fine shots. In the second 100 Douglass succeeded in getting some large tallies which put him way ahead of his opponent. Eglintan was plainly experiencing hard luck in this 100 and Douglas took advantage of every opportunity to take the lead.

In the third 100 play was a direct repetition of that in the second and Douglass made his score, in three trips to the table with breaks of 44, 22 and 35 unfinished consecutively. Eglintan's hoodoo trailed him in this series as before and he had the misfortune not to score on several times at the table. The final score was Douglas 200, Eglintan 26. The game was for 200 points but both men were behind scratch, Douglas owing 125 and Eglintan 120.

The high scores were:

Eglintan—21, 13, 45, 14, 14, 19.

Douglas—14, 17, 29, 16, 15, 41, 45, 44, 22, 35 (unfinished).

Douglas played in brilliant form from the very outset while Eglintan, although making good in the first 100, fell away considerably in the balance of the game. Eglintan gave away six in misses while Douglas made but one gift on a miss. Eglintan went to the table nine times without scoring, while Douglas passed up but three opportunities of this nature. The prizes will be presented Friday night at a social event to be held in the club rooms.

POLO GROUNDS THE PLACE.

It was practically decided at a meeting of the representatives of the two academies at the Army and Navy Club, yesterday morning, that the annual Army-Navy football game on November 28 next will once more be played at the Polo Grounds. The members of the committee delegated to settle the question resumed their discussion after a lengthy conference at the Hotel Astor the night before, and left town without issuing any definite announcement.

COCHRAN YACHT NAMED.

The third of the yachts to be candidates for the honor of defending America's Cup against Shamrock IV will be called Vanitie, according to the announcement made by Alexander Smith Cochran yesterday. The yacht was designed by William Gardner & Co., naval architects, of 1 Broadway, New oYrk, and is being constructed by Lawley & Son, of Neponset, Mass.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Now that the Plainfield High School factulty has demonstrated its basketball ability and the seniors are satisfied that the teachers are their superiors in sport as well as in intellectuality, we can turn our attention to other matters of vital interest at this period of the year in that institution. Already several different factions are promoting baseball teams, tennis teams, minstrel shows, field hockey teams and track teams and the P. H. S. student will find plenty to occupy his attention during the Spring months intervening between now and the annual summer recess. This spring promises to be one of the busiest season of scholastic sport endeavor in the history of the institution sporting the red and blue and we are at a loss to see where all the material for so many different combinations will come from.

This is one time of the year when North Plainfield High School cohorts lie in ambush and were it not for an occasional stray social event the borough students would be entirely forgotten. To be sure, N. P. H. S. has a right to a rest after capturing that interscholastic league title and the one over in Somerset county, but the sporting world is little more than a maze of gloom with the Canadians eliminated. During the present school term North Plainfield has been the life of the sporting area and this sudden retirement from the limelight is being keenly felt on all sides. No, Smalley has nothing to say regarding baseball. He's just awaiting his opportunity to deliver the goods.

George Townley's departure for the Springfield Training School last Sunday afternoon, while it came as a severe blow to North Plainfield's baseball prospects, was not entirely unlooked for as Captain Smalley had been informed of certain scouts who were on his pitcher's trail. Although we will all miss George when the baseball season blows around his move was a wise one and we look forward to seeing him make good in collegiate baseball circles as he has certainly done in scholastic competition. Townley is popular at Springfield and the course he is now taking is one for which he is cut out.

Trout season opens today in this State. Don't believe all your friends tell you about the finny tribe from now on.

This is the first day in two weeks that we have not received a letter from one of Bob Fitzsimmon's admirers condemning the Boxing Commish. Must be afraid we won't take them seriously on April Fool's day.

Health note—Kenneth Mair, the Holy Cross football guard, has refused to sign a contract for next season because he has been told that the gridiron sport produces cancer trouble. Call a suicide hack, Hank.

Little ironies of the day—The groundhog has been loose eleven days and the weather is still unfit for baseball.

"I have instructed my umpires to enforce every letter of the playing rules," says President Gilmore, of the Federal League. "The league will be run on a business-like basis on the field and rowdyism will not be tolerated for a moment."—All this in a $2,500,000 organization.

TROUT STREAMS

Flounders are biting all along the bays of Long Island Sound. City Island, North Beach, Cow Bay, Oyster Bay and Sands Point are the best places to fish for them.

Schwind, of Jamaica Bay, reports plenty of flounders at the Raunt where he keeps rowboats ready for the handline fishermen. The grounds are but a short distance from his boathouse.

Bergen Beach has broken into the limelight with an announcement that flounders are biting in the waters adjacent thereto and that rowboats and bait can be had at Borgel's.

At daylight this morning the cocks welcomed the opening of the 1914 trout season in New Jersey. Long before the hour, hundreds of anglers were on their way to favorite streams with lunch and tackle. Let us hope that the weather will be fair, so as to avoid April fooling those who have become rusty waiting during the long winter months for this opening day. Our barometer says "showers, followed by snow flurries, from the first to the third of April," but that makes misfaks like the rest of us.

Don't forget to read the tips on trout fishing in this paper, and don't be afraid to let us know the result of your fishing trips, as many of the fraternity that can't get away until their summer vacation rolls around will be very much interested in what you have to say.

The salt water fishing was a little slow last season. If we remember rightly, and according to out data the weakfishing didn't amount to much until August. It was held as a general impression that it was a very poor season. Still, the impression must have been in error, as reports show that the commercial fisheries caught more fish than have been known in years. The greatest increase is shown in the coast nets, where the pollution does not affect the fishing. This pollution question is becoming very serious, and unless the authorities get busy in the immediate future there won't be a living thing in the bays. We have had the entire matters up with the United States government engineers, but they have refused to act, as the pollution does not in any manner interfere with navigation. Realizing the importance of good fishing in Raritan Bay and Sandy Hook Bay, we have decided to interest a few propertyholders along the shore in a movement looking toward inducing the State Board of Health to act.

There are plenty of codfish along the shore and they will stay with us until the middle of April. The handline fishermen as far south as Cape May are catching quite a few of them, and the Seabright fishermen would get plenty if it wasn't for the rough weather. It does not pay to risk one's life at deep-sea fishing and then have the fish trust rob you of the money that the fish bring in the market.

The weather off shore is still mussed up so that it is not always pleasant to go out fishing, although a few boats go out from Sheepshead Bay. It will take several days of west winds to hold down the ocean, and if that kind of a wind sticks to us for a while the fishing boats will pick up plenty of fish.

The weather man has promised clear weather for today, but the warning sounded by the writer about the high water in the streams is now being exploited in the news columns. The best streams are in the southern part of the State today, although, as was explained there are few in the north that can be fished. Worms the plentiful, hooks are cheap, leaders are abundant, and if the weather is fine the average angler will take a chance at the high water.

LOCAL BOY WILL REPORT TO MACK

Jim Nash to Train With World's Champions During the Spring Training.

PLAYING ON SHIBE PARK

First Real Workouts Scheduled for This Afternoon—Will be Coached by Mack Until He Finishes His Collegiate Course.

James Nash, the Plainfield athlete who is now attending the Temple University in Philadelphia, will report to Connie Mack at Shibe Park in Philadelphia, this afternoon, where he will be given a course in tutoring by the veteran baseball pilot. Nash came to Mack's attention last fall and was told to come to the Philadelphia ball park when the team returned from the South this spring. It is the Athletic manager's intention to hold the Plainfield ball player and train him during the spring months while he is going to the Philadelphia school. Nash will be put through a course in fielding and batting and is expected to pick up considerably under the watchful eye of this expert.

The world's champions made their first appearance on Shibe Park yesterday afternoon with the University of Pennsylvania team as opponents and won an exhibition games by a score of 14 to 4. The Mackmen will inaugurate in a few weeks of preliminary training on the home ball park and will conduct morning and afternoon drills during the next three weeks. Nash is at present trying out for the Temple University aggregation, but will devote the larger portion of his time to the Philadelphia workouts.

The New Brunswick High School basketball players brought their season to a close Saturday afternoon, when they traveled to Summit and met defeat for the fifth time this season. During the season the Brunswick youths scored 522 points against their opponents' 418. North Plainfield High School is credited with one of the Brunswick defeats, the boroughites having trimmed the Middlesex county five by a score of 30 to 23. Plainfield High School was beaten by a count of 33 to 21 in the next to the last game of the season.

MAIR REFUSES TO SIGN A CONTRACT

Holy Cross Guard Claims That Football Causes Cancer—Not Ready to Die.

Manager "Doc" Doyle, of the Holy Cross football team, was treated to one of the rude jolts that are handed out to him annually by his warriors yesterday afternoon, when he presented a contract to Kenneth Mair for the necessary signature and "Hank" flatly refused to have anything to do with the piece of parchment. Doyle immediately instituted an investigation to find out the cause for this action and after plying the holdout with queries for a half hour or more he gave the thing up as a bad job. In the course of the cross examination Doyle inquired whether Mair intended to join another team, whether money was the cause, and if there was anything personal in the turndown, but got little or no satisfaction.

Mair remained non-committal for sometime but finally loosened up and related to Doyle his tale of woe. Mair claims that he fell upon an article in a Western newspaper several days ago which told a story of a former football star who had died as the result of a cancerous growth. The news item, according to Mair, claimed that football playing was the indirect cause for the warrior's death despite the fact that he lived twenty years after playing his last contest.

Mair therefore concluded that he was too delicate and that he was far too precious to run any risk of getting a cancer and has decided to burn up his gridiron togs and quit the game, thereby relieving Manager Doyle and his former teammates of any obligations to furnish flowers for the last parade.

BASEBALL NOTES

Bob Unglaub, former Boston-Washington first baseman, has signed to manage the Fargo team in the Northern League.

The Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League, has sold Buck O'Brien, the old Red Sox flinger, to the Indianapolis American Association club.

Arnold Hauser is still suffering from nervous prostration and it is not likely he will be able to join the St Louis Cardinals until mid-summer.

Manager Bill Carrigan, of the Red Sox, believes that in Everett Scott, the St. Paul sensation of last season, he has found a classy understudy for Shortstop Heine Wagner.

Jay Kirke is performing brilliantly for the Cleveland American League team. Few big leaguers have had anything on the former Boston Brave outfielder this spring.

Charley Somers, owner of the Cleveland Nape, has offered Joe Jackson a substantial bonus this year for hitting about .400, .375 and .350. Joe's marks for the past four years have been .378, .408, .395 and .373.

Manager Herzog, of the Cincinnati Reds, has had a hard time getting his outfield together this spring. Marsans was late in reporting and Bates is still kept at home by his wife's serious illness.

Collins, Baker and McInnes, of the Athletics, are still there with the wagon tongue. In one of the recent games against the Cubs the trio of star Mackmen made nine hits among them.

The way Pitcher Doc White mowed down his former pals of the White Sox, at Venice, Cal., the other day, must have made Jimmy Callahan wish that Doc was still on the Sox payroll.

Jake Daubert, of the Brooklyn Superbas, who is the premier first sackman of the National League, ventures the prediction that the Superbas will be in the race for the pennant from the start.

Anyway, Bill Dahlen has it on most of the former big league managers. The Brooklyn players gave their ex-boss a chest of silver, whereas most managers are decorated with tinware when they are dropped.

The Federal League moguls seem to be willing to go the limit to secure two or three big league pitchers, judging from some of the offers they are reported to have made recently. With good pitching material the Feds figure they can put up a rattling good pennant race.

BRUGGY TO CATCH.

Frank Bruggy, one of Plainfield's representatives in the New England League, will try for the catching berth on the Lawrence club of that organization this spring, according to an announcement made yesterday afternoon. Bruggy has been performing in the left field garden for Manager Pieper, but has decided that behind the bat is a better place for him to exhibit his skill. He formerly caught for Charlie Newhouse's Bound Brook aggregation. Albin Carlstrom and Flick Luyster are teammates of Bruggy's.

MR. HIGGINS SAYS HE'D LIKE TO KNOW

Did Them Two New Yorkers Flimflam Him or Get Lost in a Piscataway Forest?

Michael Higgins, the popular taxicab driver and presiding elder of the North avenue congregation of cabmen, has engaged the services of the Jehu Vigilance Committee to aid him in running down two New Yorkers who either deliberately buncoed him out of five hours of his time or else got lost somewhere in the wilds of Piscataway township. He asks his friends to suspend their indignation until he secures confirmation on one way or the other.

The strangers blew into town at 10:45 Sunday morning and engaged Higgins to move them to South Plainfield. Arriving at the Lehigh Valley station, there, they paid him up to that point and then told him to wait until they returned, explaining the roads where they were going were too soft for auto travel. They then disappeared in the direction of the Samptown navy yard.

Higgins was only too glad to wait and be paid for it, as it doesn't cost anything for gasolene and tires. He lingered around for one hour and as his fares did not show up he snuggled down for another sixty minutes. This was followed by a third hour and by that time the taxicab man was beginning to get sore. He was on the verge of leaving when the chef of a portable dining room used by telegraph linemen rebuilding when the blizzard destroyed, took pity on him and handed out a cup of coffee and a roll. Higgins wanted to pay for them but the chef said no, it was the Western Union's treat, anyway and besides, he said, misery loved company and he was sad to see someone beside himself Robinson Crusoing in the lonesome burg.

Higgins got a new lease of life by the elaborate meal and anchored for another two hours, buoyed up by the thought of easy money. He might have been in the village yet, but for the keen observation of a railroad employe. The conductor of the New York local, stopping at the station at noon, noticed the quiescent chauffeur. At that time the latter was silently counting the shingles in the depot roof. When the same trainman returned at 4 o'clock with the Bound Brook accommodation, the inanimate figure was still there. He confided to the station agent his belief that the man was dead. The latter official hurried out to investigate. When he touched the motionless Higgins and found he was very much alive but terribly grouchy, he became sarcastic. He remarked to the Plainfielder that if he was there for the purpose of getting his spring supply of coal by making faces at the engineers he had better adjourn as the locomotive men had to account for every lump of anthracite placed in their tenders. He also muttered something about auto bandits and not liking the stranger's looks.

Higgins is some bearcat at returto himself and what he told that there station agent would make your hair curl. Before he cranked up he shot out that it was easy to see that his presence wasn't wanted, therefore he would go home. Returning to Plainfield he was dumbfounded to hear from a colleague that two men looking like the ones he had patiently waited for, had been seen walking into town early in the afternoon, via Clinton avenue. There is some doubt as to the truth of this, however, and the taxicab owner clings to the belief that the men got mired somewhere near Samptown. That's why he asks his friends to hold off until the investigating committee reports.

ASKS COURT TO RULE DEAD HIS WIFE, ABSENT 23 YEARS

New Brunswick, April 2.—Application has been made to Surrogate Daniel W. Clayton, by Louis Pellegrino, of 289 Washington street, Perth Amboy, to have his wife, Sadie Pellegrino, declared dead.

The petitioner, through Emil Streulau, of Perth Amboy, sets forth that his wife has been missing for twenty-three years and all efforts to locate her have failed. The couple were married in 1887 and lived together at Perth Amboy for a little more than two years.

Prior to her disappearance, Mrs Pellegrino was a frequent inmate of the county jail, according to the husband's statement. She had been committed to the jail for drunkenness "more than 1,000 times," the affidavit declares.

DEFEATED ASPIRANT TO BE ASSISTANT TO POSTMASTER

Oxford, April 1.—Clark Smith, of Oxford, who was a candidate for the local postmastership and was defeated in his aspirations when it was decided to appoint Edward Sharps, will be assistant to the latter.

Mr. Sharps has asked Mr. Smith to take the position of assistant postmaster, and the latter has resigned the position he has held here for nine years as delivery clerk for the Washington Steam Laundry. He will begin his new duties about April 15, when the new postmaster will take charge. There were a number of candidates for the office and it was generally understood the real contest was between Mr. Sharps and Mr. Smith. Congressman A. C. Hart on March 21 notified Mr. Sharps he would be the next postmaster in Oxford.

MANIFESTS NO DISRESPECT FOR JEWS, SAYS DR. BALLARD

Ocean Grove, April 1.—His attention directed to a letter of the Young Men's Hebrew Association of Asbury Park, whose members "indignantly protest" against some of the recently published statements as tending to create racial differences and prejudices, Rev. Dr. Aaron E. Ballard president of the Ocean Grove Camp-meeting Association said:

"No disrespect at all is intended toward the Jews in the matter of religion, except the fact that under a borough government in Ocean Grove no Jew could be elected to the management of a Christian resort. For a number of Jews I know I have the highest respect, have eaten at their tables and enjoyed their social fellowship, just as I have of some members of the borough association, whom I believe to be entirely inappropriate to manage a Christian resort whose religious services should be alone controlled by Christian men responsible to some Christian organization. I repeat my explanation that no disrespect to a Jew as a Jew is intended. Numbers of them, as I have said, command my highest respect."

PUBLIC MONUMENT SOUGHT FOR BISHOP SCARBOROUGH

Spotswood, April 1.—It has been proposed to erect a monument over the grave of Bishop John Scarborough, who was buried at Trenton two weeks ago. A committee of three prominent members of the diocese has been named to receive contributions from the general public. The announcement of the fund in contemplation has been read in all the Protestant Episcopal churches of this State. William D'Olier, of Burlington, is chairman of the committee, assisted by Augustus A. De Voe, of Spotswood, and Bayard Stockton, of Trenton.

The following letter has been circulated throughout the diocese by the committee:

"In testimony of the affectionate regard of the diocese, it is proposed to erect a suitable monument over the grave of Bishop Scarborough by general subscription of the people he loved so well and for whom he had led a life of sacrifice for nearly forty years. The undersigned have been requested to act as a committee to collect the money contributed for this purpose, and will be glad to receive and acknowledge any sum, however small, so that all may have a part in this tribute to the memory of one who has endeared himself to the whole people by his loving labors and tender sympathies."

NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

Many an artistic home owes its individuality to attractive stenciled draperies and covers. These may be of inexpensive materials such as Russian crash, commonly known as dish-towel linen, denim, craft's canvas, mercerized poplin or any of the loosely woven plain colored drapery materials. In the dining-room, for instance the curtains might be of crash, the between-meals-runner and sideboard-cover of linen and the lamp-shade and candle-shades of Japanese grass cloth, all stenciled in shades of blue and green or blue and brown with the designs from pattern 14352. Explicit directions for stenciling are given on the pattern envelope so that no amateur in this craft need be afraid to undertake the work.

Transfer pattern 14352, which includes seven conventional stencil designs, can be supplied to readers on receipt of price, 15 cents.

Some Cookery Suggestions

THE PORULAR BANANA.

BREAKFAST MENU.
Steamed Apples, Maple Sauce.
Cereal With Cream.
Poached Eggs. Ham Toast.
Coffee.

BANANAS, being cheap and wholesome and praised for their food values, the fruit should be more popular than it is. Several delicious ways of serving it are described here.

Banana and Pineapple.

Banana Meringue.—Place in a dish several bananas peeled and cut lengthwise, then across. Pour over them lemon and pineapple juice, one part of lemon to two parts of pineapple. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and bake for one-half hour. Take from the oven, cover with meringue and brown delicately in a cool oven.

Bananas In Gelatin.—Dissolve one box of gelatin in a cup of water. Scald a quart of milk and add two cups of sugar. Thin the gelatin with some of the hot milk. Strain and let simmer ten minutes; pour into a bowl to cool. Peel five bananas, break into pieces and stir into the mixture when it begins to set. Serve with whipped cream flavored with vanilla.

Served on Sponge Cakes.

Banana Fluff.—Slice six large bananas, sprinkling them with sugar and grated cocoanut, and then mash them to a pulp. Fold in the well beaten whites of two eggs. Turn into the freezer, turning the crank about five minutes; then add a half pint of whipped cream; the juice of one orange may be used. Freeze very hard and pack in small molds and serve on small squares of sponge cake that have been spread with red currant or bar le duc jelly.

Chartreuse of Banana.—Peel six bananas and cut into disks. Prepare some lemon jelly and dip the banana slices into this. Arrange them on the sides and bottom of a mold and sprinkle pistachio nuts between the banana rounds. When the jelly is about to set fold in a quarter pint of whipped cream. Add the remainder of the bananas sliced. Pour into the mold and when thoroughly set turn out on a glass dish.

Grandpa Liked Ben's New Raincoat.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Raincoat For the April Showers.

DADDY had come in looking very wet and bedraggled, for he had been caught in an April shower.

"You know," said daddy, "we never know when these showers will come. Once there was a little boy named Ben who didn't believe in such things.

"He said: 'I think it is perfectly ridiculous. It rains just as much in all the other seasons—spring, summer and autumn months—as it does in April, only poor April gets the blame for it all. I've always felt sorry for April. Yes, I have. It's a much abused month.'

"Now, the reason Ben was talking like this and so much about the weather was that his granddaddy had given him $5. When he gave it to him he said:

"'I think this will buy you a nice raincoat. You will need one this month.'

"Ben had an umbrella and rubbers and a heavy coat he usually wore when it rained, although it would not keep out all the rain. He really did need a raincoat. There was no doubt about it. But there was something else he wanted far more than a raincoat. He could get that with the $5."

"What was that?" asked Jack.

"Guess," replied daddy.

"A knife with lots of blades in it?" suggested Jack.

"No," said daddy. "Try again."

"A nice boat to sail on a pond perhaps?"

"No," said daddy. "Mercy me, I've never known you to use up your three guesses! Try once more. You must surely guess this time. Now, if it had been Evelyn I am sure she would have guessed it the first time."

"Jack will guess it this time, I'm certain," said Evelyn.

Jack thought for a moment. Then suddenly he said: "I know. I have it. An express cart."

"You're right," said daddy. "Well, Ben wanted that much more than a raincoat.

"The very next day he went to school, and the sun was shining brightly. But on his way home a real April shower came up. Ben realized then that there were such things as April showers. He hurried to the nearest shop where he could get a raincoat.

"He knew he had done the right thing. But, oh, how he longed for an express cart!

"His granddaddy was delighted when he saw Ben's new raincoat and said:

"'I am glad that my little grandson did as I asked and got a raincoat. And now you may have an express cart, for a little bird whispered in my ear that you wanted one.'

"'Oh, how wonderful of you, granddaddy!' said Ben."

TRY A PRESS WANT AD

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER VIII.

SHE looked at me attentively. "You know more than you are telling me, Mrs. Pitman," she said. "You—do you think Jennie Brice is dead and that Mr. Howell knows—who did it?"

"I think she is dead, and I think possibly Mr. Howell suspects who did it. He does not know, or he would have told the police."

"You do not think he was—was in love with Jennie Brice, do you?"

"I'm certain of that," I said. "He is very much in love with a foolish girl, who ought to have more faith in him than she has."

She colored a little and smiled at that, but the next moment she was sitting forward, tense and questioning again.

"If that is true, Mrs. Pitman," she said, "who was the veiled woman he met that Monday morning at daylight and took across the bridge to Pittsburgh? I believe it was Jennie Brice. If it was not, who was it?"

"I don't believe he took any woman across the bridge at that hour. Who says he did?"

"Uncle Jim saw him. He had been playing cards all night at one of the clubs and was walking home. He says he met Mr. Howell face to face and spoke to him. The woman was tall and veiled. Uncle Jim sent for him a day or two later, and he refused to explain. Then they forbade him the house. Mamma objected to him anyhow, and he only came on sufferance. He is a college man of good family, but without any money at all save what he earns. And now"—

I had had some young newspaper men with me, and I knew what they got. They were nice boys, but they made $15 a week. I'm afraid I smiled a little as I looked around the room, with its gray grass cloth walls, its toilet table spread with ivory and gold and the maid in attendance in her black dress and white apron, collar and cuffs. Even the little nightgown Lida was wearing would have taken a week's salary or more. She saw my smile.

"It was to be his chance," she said. "If he made good he was to have something better. My Uncle Jim owns the paper, and he promised me to help him. But"—

So Jim was running a newspaper! That was a curious career for Jim to choose—Jim, who was twice expelled from school and who could never write a letter without a dictionary beside him! I had a pang when I heard his name again after all the years, for I had written to Jim from Oklahoma after Mr. Pitman died asking for money to bury him and had never even had a reply.

"And you haven't seen him since?"

"Once. I—didn't hear from him, and I called him up. We—we met in the park. He said everything was all right, but he couldn't tell me just then. The next day he resigned from the paper and went away. Mrs. Pitman, it's driving me crazy, for they have found a body, and they think it is hers. If it is and he was with her"—

"Don't be a foolish girl," I protested. "If he was with Jennie Brice she is still living, and if he was not with Jennie Brice"—

"If it was not Jennie Brice then I have a right to know who it was," she declared. "He was not like himself when I met him. He said such queer things—he talked about an onyx clock and said he had been made a fool of and that no matter what came out I was always to remember that he had done what he did for the best and that—that he cared for me more than for anything in this world or the next."

"That wasn't so foolish!" I couldn't help it. I leaned over and drew her nightgown up over her bare white shoulder. "You won't help anything or anybody by taking cold, my dear," I said. "Call your maid and have her put a dressing gown around you."

I left soon after. There was little I could do. But I comforted her as best I could and said good night. My heart was heavy as I went downstairs. Fortwist things as I might, it was clear that in some way the Howell boy was mixed up in the Brice case. Poor little troubled Lida! Poor distracted boy!

I had a curious experience downstairs. I had reached the foot of the staircase and was turning to go back and along the hall to the side entrance when I came face to face with Isaac, the old colored man who had driven the family carriage when I was a child and whom I had seen at intervals since I came back pottering around Alma's house. The old man was bent and feeble. He came slowly down the hall with a bunch of keys in his hand. I had seen him do the same thing many times.

He stopped when he saw me, and I shrank back from the light, but he had seen me. "Miss Bess!" he said. "Foh Gawd's sake, Miss Bess!"

"You are making a mistake, my friend," I said, quivering; "I am not Miss Bess!"

He came close to me and stared into my face. And from that he looked at my cloth gloves, at my coat, and he shook his white head. "I sure thought you was Miss Bess," he said and made no further effort to detain me. He led the way back to the door, where the machine waited, his head shaking with the palsy of age, muttering as he went. He opened the door with his best manner and stood aside.

"Good night, ma'am," he quavered.

I had tears in my eyes. I tried to keep them back. "Good night," I said. "Good night, Ikkie."

It had slipped out, my baby name for old Isaac!

"Miss Bess!" he cried. "Oh, praise Gawd, it's Miss Bess again!"

He caught my arm and pulled me back into the hall, and there he held me, crying over me, muttering praises for my return, begging me to come back, recalling little tender things out of the past that almost killed me to hear again.

But I had made my bed and must lie in it. I forced him to swear silence about my visit; I made him promise not to reveal my identity to Lida; and I told him—heaven forgive me—that I was well and prosperous and happy.

Dear old Isaac! I would not let him come to see me, but the next day there came a basket with six bottles of wine and an old daguerreotype of my mother that had been his treasure. Nor was that basket the last.

The coroner held an inquest over the headless body the next day, Tuesday. Mr. Graves telephoned me in the morning and I went to the morgue with him.

I do not like the morgue, although some of my neighbors pay it weekly visits. It is by way of excursion, like nickelodeons or watching the circus put up its tents. I have heard them threaten the children that if they misbehaved they would not be taken to the morgue that week!

I failed to identify the body. How could I? It had been a tall woman, probably five feet eight, and I thought the nails looked like those of Jennie Brice. The thumb nail of one was broken short off. I told Mr. Graves about her speaking of a broken nail, but he shrugged his shoulders and said nothing.

There was a curious scar over the heart and he was making a sketch of it. It reached from the center of the chest for about six inches across the left breast, a narrow thin line that one could hardly see. It was shaped like this:

I felt sure that Jennie Brice had had no such scar, and Mr. Graves thought as I did. Temple Hope, called to the inquest, said she had never heard of one, and Mr. Ladley himself, at the inquest, swore that his wife had had nothing of the sort. I was watching him, and I did not think he was lying. And yet the hand was very like Jennie Brice's. It was all bewildering.

"You are making a mistake; I am not 'Miss Bess!'"

Mr. Ladley's testimony at the inquest was disappointing. He was cool and collected; said he had no reason to believe that his wife was dead and less reason to think she had been drowned; she had left him in a rage, and if she found out that by hiding she was putting him in an unpleasant position she would probably hide indefinitely.

To the disappointment of everybody, the identity of the woman remained a mystery. No one with such a scar was missing. A small woman of my own age, a Mrs. Murray, whose daughter, a stenographer, had disappeared, attended the inquest. But her daughter had had no such scar and had worn her nails short because of using the typewriter. Alice Murray was the missing girl's name. Her mother sat beside me and cried most of the time.

One thing was brought out at the inquest—the body had been thrown into the river after death. There was no water in the lungs. The verdict was "death by the hands of some person or persons unknown."

Mr. Holcombe was not satisfied. In some way or other he had got permission to attend the autopsy and had brought away a tracing of the scar. All the way home in the street car he stared at the drawing, holding first one eye shut and then the other. But, like the coroner, he got nowhere. He folded the paper and put it in his notebook.

"None the less, Mrs. Pitman," he said, "that is the body of Jennie Brice. Her husband killed her, probably by strangling her. He took the body out in the boat and dropped it into the swollen river above the Ninth street bridge."

"Why do you think he strangled her?"

"There was no mark on the body and no poison was found."

"Then, if he strangled her, where did the blood come from?"

"I didn't limit myself to strangulation," he said irritably. "He may have cut her throat."

"Or brained her with my onyx clock," I added with a sigh. For I missed the clock more and more.

He went down in his pockets and brought up a key. "I'd forgotten this," he said. "It shows you were right—that the clock was there when the Ladleys took the room. I found this in the yard this morning."

It was when I got home from the inquest that I found old Isaac's basket waiting. I am not a crying woman, but I could hardly see my mother's picture for tears. Well, after all, that is not the Brice story. I am not writing the sordid tragedy of my life.

That was on Tuesday. Jennie Brice had been missing nine days. In all that time, although she was cast for the piece at the theater that week, no one there had heard from her. Her relatives had had no word. She had gone away, if she had gone, on a cold March night, in a striped black and white dress with a red collar and a red and black hat, without her fur coat, which she had worn all winter. She had gone very early in the morning or during the night. How had she gone? Mr. Ladley said he had rowed her to Federal street at half after 6 and had brought the boat back. After they had quarreled violently all night, and when she was leaving him, wouldn't he have allowed her to take herself away? Besides, the police had found no trace of her on an early train. And then at daylight, between 5 and 6, my own brother had seen a woman with Mr. Howell, a woman who might have been Jennie Brice. But if it was, why did not Mr. Howell say so?

Mr. Ladley claimed she was hiding in revenge. But Jennie Brice was not that sort of woman. There was something big about her, something that is found often in large women—a lack of spite. She was not petty or malicious. Her faults, like her virtues, were for all to see.

In spite of the failure to identify the body Mr. Ladley was arrested that night, Tuesday, and this time it was for murder. I know now that the police were taking long chances. They had no strong motive for the crime. As Mr. Holcombe said, they had provocation, but not motive, which is different. They had opportunity, and they had a lot of straggling links of clews, which in the total made a fair chain of circumstantial evidence. But that was all.

That is the way the case stood on Tuesday night, March 13.

Mr. Ladley was taken away at 9 o'clock. He was perfectly cool, asked me to help him pack a suit case and whistled while it was being done. He requested to be allowed to walk to the jail and went quietly, with a detective on one side and, I think, a sheriff's officer on the other.

Just before he left he asked for a word or two with me, and when he paid his bill up to date and gave me an extra dollar for taking care of Peter I was almost overcome. He took the manuscript of his play with him, and I remember his asking if he could have any typing done in the jail. I had never seen a man arrested for murder before, but I think he was probably the coolest suspect the officers had ever seen. They hardly knew what to make of it.

Mr. Reynolds and I had a cup of tea after all the excitement and were sitting at the dining room table drinking it when the bell rang. It was Mr. Howell. He half staggered into the hall when I opened the door and was for going into the parlor bedroom without a word.

"Mr. Ladley's gone, if you want him," I said. I thought his face cleared.

"Gone!" he said. "Where?"

"To jail."

He did not reply at once. He stood there, tapping the palm of one hand with the forefinger of the other. He was dirty and unshaven. His clothes looked as if he had been sleeping in them.

"So they've got him!" he muttered finally, and turning, was about to go out the front door without another word, but I caught his arm.

"You're sick, Mr. Howell," I said. "You'd better not go out just yet."

"Oh, I'm all right." He shook his handkerchief out and wiped his face. I saw that his hands were shaking.

"Come back and have a cup of tea and a slice of homemade bread."

He hesitated and looked at his watch. "I'll do it, Mrs. Pitman," he said. "I suppose I'd better throw a little fuel into this engine of mine. It's been going hard for several days."

He ate like a wolf. I cut half a loaf into slices for him, and he drank the rest of the tea. Mr. Reynolds creaked up to bed and left him still eating, and me still cutting and spreading. Now that I had a chance to see him I was shocked. The rims of his eyes were red, his collar black and his hair hung over his forehead. But when he finally sat back and looked at me his color was better.

"So they've canned him!" he said.

"Time enough, too," said I.

He leaned forward and put both his elbows on the table. "Mrs. Pitman," he said earnestly, "I don't like him any more than you do. But he never killed that woman."

"Somebody killed her."

"How do you know? How do you know she's dead?"

Well, I didn't, of course—I only felt it.

"The police haven't even proved a crime. They can't hold a man for a supposititious murder."

"Perhaps they can't, but they're doing it," I retorted. "If the woman's alive she won't let him hang."

"I'm not so sure of that," he said heavily and got up. He looked in the little mirror over the sideboard and brushed back his hair. "I look bad enough," he said, "but I feel worse. Well, you've saved my life, Mrs. Pitman. Thank you."

"How is my—how is Miss Harvey?" I asked, as we started out. He turned and smiled at me in his boyish way.

"The best ever!" he said. "I haven't seen her for days, and it seems like centuries. She—she is the only girl in the world for me, Mrs. Pitman, although I"— He stopped and drew a long breath. "She is beautiful, isn't she?"

"Very beautiful," I answered. "Her mother was always"—

"Her mother!" He looked at me curiously.

"I knew her mother years ago," I said, putting the best face on my mistake that I could.

"Then I'll remember you to her, if she ever allows me to see her again. Just now I'm persona non grata."

"If you'll do the kindly thing, Mr. Howell," I said, "you'll forget me to her."

He looked into my eyes and then thrust out his hand.

"All right," he said. "I'll not ask any questions. I guess there are some curious stories hidden in these old houses."

Peter hobbled to the front door with him. He had not gone so far as the parlor once while Mr. Ladley was in the house.

They had had a sale of spring flowers at the store that day, and Mr. Reynolds had brought me a pot of white tulips. That night I hung my mother's picture over the mantel in the dining room and put the tulips beneath it. It gave me a feeling of comfort; I had never seen my mother's grave or put flowers on it.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE in the U. S. SENATE—A REVIEW.

Now that the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States to give the ballot to women has failed of the needful two-thirds majority in the National Senate at Washington, it may be of interest and possibly some value, to review the course of the measure in our highest law-making body, whether we opposed or approved it, or were merely "on the fence," as so many of us are said to be.

How the Solons Voted.

Before discussing the debates, let me first present the statistics of the final vote taken on the afternoon of March 19th, when sixty-nine senators out of a total of ninety-six responded to the roll-call. Prior to voting on the main question, two amendments were voted down, namely, one affecting the fifteenth amendment of the Constitution as to the colored vote, and the other to limit equal suffrage to the white women only. Neither of these was taken seriously, but, as will appear later, the question of the colored vote in the South had much to do with the failure to get the two-thirds majority.

Total votes cast	69
In favor	35
Against	34

A majorityy of 1, but lacking 11 to carry.

The vote by sections was as follows: In favor, North and West, 32, South, 3. Against, North and West, 16; South, 18.

Seven northern absentees were reported in favor and one from the South. Three northern and three southern absentees against, making the total 43 in favor and 40 against, with 13 not stated.

By party lines, the total stood as follows: In favor, Republicans, 27; Democrats, 17; total, 44. Against, Republicans, 14; Democrats, 26; total, 40.

Of the 26 Democrats voting against, 21 were from the South, and of the Republicans thus voting one was from the South. Senator Martine, of this State, voted against as expected, but Senator Hughes voted in favor, so New Jersey was on both sides of the fence, Mr. Hughes apparently taking the same view as the State Legislature, while the Plainfield Senator went with the minority, independently of the opinion of the body which elected him. In this connection it may be mentioned that Mr. Martine was one of the very few who opposed the amendment on the merits of woman suffrage.

Senators Lodge and Weeks, of Massachusetts, both voted against the measure, but since that date the Legislature of the Old Bay State voted almost unanimously in favor of women suffrage. It will be remembered that Mrs. George, who recently spoke here against equal suffrage, hailed from Massachusetts. It is evident that her efforts to make us out socialists, anarchists, and militants had little weight where she is best known.

Woman Suffrage and States' Rights.

The progress of the debate developed two questions on which the southern Senators were nearly unanimous, and their views were also adopted by northern senators who are consistent advocates of woman suffrage, notably Senator Borah from Idoha. The first question was whether Congress should submit to the States such an amendment of the Constitution, or whether the States themselves should deal directly with the question and amend their own Constitutions. The second question raised by Borah, in case the amendment carried, was, would the colored women of the South be permitted to vote, or would they be disfranchised like the colored men of the South? On these subjects Senators were treading on delicate ground, little concerned with the question of woman suffrage, but it should be recorded that nothing was said on either side to disturb the prevailing good feeling. The Senate is a most dignified and orderly body. As to this second question, how would it do to let the colored woman vote and not the colored man You can answer that even if you live in the North.

As to the first Constitutional question, there is considerable room for argument, and the lawyers on both sides hammered it to their hearts' content, but Mr. Martine being, as he said, "a plain man" and a farmer, thanked God he was not a lawyer, and let the legal question alone. The question seemed to be, can three-quarters of the States compel the other quarter against their will to give the vote to women? I will not weary your readers by quoting the lengthy arguments, but draw attention to the fact that between March 4 and 19, seventeen speeches were delivered in favor of the amendment, and nine were made against it. Senator Bryan, of Florida, and Senator Martine, were the only opponents who attempted to argue the question on its merits, the latter stating that he opposed it on principle—on what "principle" he did not explain.

Absence of Defamation.

The most remarkable fact disclosed by reading the speeches is that not one of the speakers charged the supporters of the movement for the ballot as being femininists, socialists, or anarchists. Not one of that august body of statesmen expressed that opinion, or was ready to adopt as his own the libelous charges of that character which we so frequently see in the vaporings of our less scrupulous opponents. Can it be hoped that the cultured and refined among them will learn the obvious lesson?

Personally, I am not prepared to say whether the national method or the State method is the better in disposing of this important question, but from a careful reading of all the speeches mentioned, it is obvious from the kindly way in which the subject was received and handled by all but Senators Bryan and Martine, that had there been no negro vote involved, the amendment would have received the necessary two-thirds majority.

Facts of the Debate.

In conclusion, I will endeavor to summarize the facts which may be fairly deduced from the debate, viz.:

1. That as a whole the Senate will deal fairly with the subject.

2. That all the Senators from suffrage States endorsed woman suffrage on its merits, including Mr. Borah, of Idaho, who opposed the measure solely on account of the negro question.

3. That the only Senators who adopted the usual anti arguments against equal suffrage, and the women who advocate it, were Senators Bryan and Martine.

4. That the written testimony of fifteen Colorado district court judges was submitted to the effect that in all their experience on the bench no proceedings for divorce had ever come before them as a result of domestic trouble caused by disagreements growing out of politics. This State, like other western States, has a large number of divorces, but the undisputed evidence of those judges disposes of the claim that they are due to suffrage.

5. That the principal value of the women's votes, as might be expected, is for the protection of the children, the home, the public health and all questions of sanitation, pure morals, and temperance, which affect those interests.

6. That no suffrage State desires to take the ballot away from women. That southern Senators are not likely to favor equal suffrage in the South until the color problem is out of the way. And finally, the movement is in the most encouraging condition with every prospect of complete success at no distant day.

Very truly yours,
ALEX. MILLAR.

Raincoats Made to Measure

For Men, Women and Children

Prices 35 per Cent. Below Those Charged for Ready-Made Coats in This Locality.

Rainproof Balmacaan Coats $15 and up

We are now in a position to make raincoats to measure for man, woman or child at prices considerably lower than those charged by ready-to-wear stores. We can put at your disposal our present assortment of 70 different water proofed cloths, and our 30 different models; a much larger assortment and variety than you can find elsewhere. Our coats from raw material to finished product practically come into existence at the time our customer gets the same. Thus unlike the ready-to-wear coats which hang on the store keepers' racks for months before being sold. Ours is fresh from the fire at time you get it. Whereas the ready-made coat, in most instances, has nearly outlived its usefulness when the wearer get its. Then, too, the workmanship and design embodied in our coats are of the highest possible rank.

QUIZ EDUCATION BODY ON 3 R'S

President Jeffery of Board of Trade Submits Questions About Present Methods.

ANSWERS WILL BE MADE

Board of Education Seeks Publicity In All Its Affairs Through Local Civic Body—Jeffery Questions Regarding Elemental Teaching.

Representing the Plainfield Board of Trade and at the invitation of President William S. Tyler, of the Board of Education, William Jeffery, president, and Leslie R. Fort, chairman of the educational committee of the civic body, yesterday submitted a list of questions regarding the local schools to Mr. Tyler and Dr. H. M. Maxson, supervising principal of the local schools.

The Board of Education members have felt for some time that enough publicity has not been given to their work, and the reasons for what they have done have not been understood by the general public. They have therefore, decided to seek a means of presenting the needs of the local schools to the public at large, and as an outlet for such presentation have invited the Board of Trade committee to aid them. It is the desire of the school body to answer every question which may be put to them regarding the schools, and they feel that many of the things that have been criticised in the past have been because the people have not fully understood local needs.

The list of questions prepared by Mr. Jeffery as a result of an investigation on his part as to how the average student is fitted for business life when he leaves the school, and which to answer will be made in a few days is as follows:

1. Can the eighth grade grammar school children read properly, spell correctly, write legibly and figure accurately?

2.—Total number of children in public schools? In 1906; in 1913. A—Primary. B—Grammar. C—High School.

3.—What proportion of primary school pupils go through grammar school?

4.—What proportion of grammar school pupils attend the high school?

5.—What percentage of pupils entering high school graduate? In 1906; in 1913.

6.—What percentage entering high school from St. Mary's parochial school, graduate?

8.—Teachers—number? In 1906; in 1913.

9.—Teachers—salaries? Amount in 1906; in 1913.

10.—Cost of high school education per pupil?

11.—What proportion of pupils time is devoted to studying in school spelling, reading, writing and arithmetic? A—Primary. B—Grammar. C—High school.

12.—What proportion of pupils' time is taken up with geography, history, other things? A—Primary. B—Grammar. C—High school.

13.—What are the "Other Things?"

14.—State Boards of County Superintendents' requirements for annual examinations?

MAY APPOINT SCHMIDT.

According to rumor circulating about the borough, this morning, the name of Raymond Schmidt, of Summit avenue, will be submitted to the Common Council at its meeting tomorrow night, as the appointee to the Fire Department of North Plainfield, the nomination to be made by Mayor Robert Clark, Jr. Mr. Schmidt will succeed William D. Hogan, resigned, who has served for the past four years in the department. Attempts to verify this report this morning proved unavailing. There are three other applicants for the position.

SELECTION OF ENGINEER HELD UP

Local Man Favored to Supervise Construction of Sewer.

NO DECISION REACHED

No Action Taken as to Purchase of Land for Right of Way—Joint Sewer Commission to Meet Again April 8.

The question of selecting an engineer to supervise the work of construction of the proposed trunk sanitary sewer for Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen, with disposal works on the Darling form in Piscataway township, occupied the attention of the joint sewage commission at its meeting, last night, but no decision was reached. While there seemed to be a sort of understanding that George W. Fuller, the sanitary engineer, who drafted the plans for the sewer, would get the job, some members of the commission now take a different view.

There seems to be a feeling that if a competent local man could be secured he should be given the job in preference to an outsider, and yet, a man who is well informed in such matters said today that he thought it was too big a job for any local man. He explained this assertion by saying that the work would require a man who had had experience in large construction work of this character. It has been said that there is no one in the city who would be willing to take the job.

It was expected that some progress would be made last night in the matter of securing land for right of way of the trunk line, but the commissioners did not get that far, and as the body adjourned to meet next Wednesday night it is thought that something will be done towards securing the necessary land for the right of way.

Judging from the present progress in the sewer work it is barely possible that the work may be started this year. In the opinion of those familiar with the matter it will take the best part of two seasons to complete the contract of building the line and disposal works, unless arrangements are made to have some big concern take the contract and erect the disposal works at the same time the line is being constructed.

The length of the trunk line from the Plainfield sewage disposal works is three miles. This includes a distance of about three thousand feet from the beds to the point of juncture with the main trunk line in North Plainfield. The work of excavation will probably not be difficult, as there are no heavy grades to overcome. The only thing that might result in slow progress would be encountering soft marshy ground with a presence of a large quantity of water.

Another thing that might delay the work is the possibility of the Borough of Middlesex securing an injunction. This, however, is not likely to hold, the construction up very long, it is believed, for the reason that the plans have the sanction of the State Board of Health, and as a rule the courts are inclined to sustain, rather than decide against that State body.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLER SHOWS RECEIPT FOR $83 SHORTAGE

Charged with the embezzlement of $213 from the Brotherhood Realty Company, for which he was formerly employed as Collector, Harry Cohen was arraigned for hearing before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, and entered a plea of not guilty to the charges preferred. Isaac Kunzman, whose father has been hired as successor to Cohen following the latter's discharge, appeared as complainant and alleged that the defendant failed to turn in an accounting for $213 said to have been collected for rents.

Cohen produced receipts for a missing $83 signed by Jacob Fass, president of the company, and for which he claims he was never given credit. The $83 check, Cohen claims, was turned over to the company. Upon the suggestion of Harry Dreier, treasurer of the company, the court postponed the case for one week and in the meantime Cohen was instructed to settle up for all but the $83 in dispute.

CALL EXTENDED TO REV. RALSTON

Netherwood Reformed Church Invites Him to Become Its Pastor.

WILL PROBABLY ACCEPT

Reports at Annual Meeting Shows Church to Be in Fine Condition—Rev. C. W. F. Attlee's Work is Praised.

The annual meeting of the Netherwood Reformed church was held, last night, at which Rev. Edwin Ralston, of Piermont, N. Y., former pastor of the Second Reformed church, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was extended a call to occupy the pulpit of the local institution, succeeding Rev. Royal A. Stout.

Mr. Ralston was pastor of his former charge for eleven years, serving the church in a very successful manner. He resigned the pastorate at that place a year ago by mutual agreement with the pastor of the First Reformed church of the same city. He is said to be an excellent preacher and has been much in demand by churches in the vicinity of New York city. Mr. Ralston is married and has two daughters, one a graduate of Vassar, while the other is a teacher at that place. His son is now a senior at Amherst College. It is expected that he will accept the call of the local church.

Netherwood church, according to the reports presented at its meeting is in a splendid condition, with all debts paid and a substantial balance on hand. The Sunday-school, considering the size of the church, will compare favorably with any in the county.

Rev. C. W. F. Attlee, of this city, who has been acting as supply since the departure of Rev. Royal A. Stout, to accept a call to the Green Hill Presbyterian church, of Philadelphia, has accomplished much during his connection with that organization. His work and preaching has been greatly appreciated by the congregation. As a result of which, several young people are now waiting the arrival of the new pastor to join the church.

The Newark Classis of the Reformed Church will act upon the call of the Rev. Ralston at its meeting on April 15.

CITY'S NEW LIGHTING SYSTEM A REALITY

Business Section Now Well Illuminated by Tungsten Lamps.

Plainfield's new lighting system for the business section is now a reality, the new 350-candle power Tungsten lamps being used last night for the first time. Twenty-four of the twenty-seven ordered by the Common Council were used and everyone who visited the business district last night expressed themselves as being well pleased with the change. Everybody agreed that the new lights were a decided improvement, although a number of people expressed the opinion that there should be more lamps.

The early part of the evening was not favorable from a weather point of view to show the lamps off to the best advantages as the conditions were somewhat foggy. Later in the evening the atmosphere cleared and the lights showed much better. The new lamps are located on Front street, Watchung, North and Park avenues, taking in the principal points. They are about 250 feet apart.

The twenty-seven lamps are about all that the councilmanic light committee felt justified in recommending at the present time, but later on, perhaps, another year or so, an additional number may be ordered. The new lights are now in regular service and will be used every night in place of the small incandescent lamps which were in service for so many years.

BOYS' ESCAPADE ENDS SERIOUSLY

Clarence Higgins Falls From Moving Freight Train and Has Leg Mangled.

WILL AMPUTATE LIMB

Physicians at the Hospital Abandon Hope of Saving Boy's Foot Crushed by Wheels of Car—Windup of a Visit to Westfield.

A schoolboys' escapade was brought to a horrible climax shortly after noon, today, when Clarence Higgins, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Higgins, of 14 Stone street, North Plainfield, had his left foot so badly mangled in an attempt to get off a moving freight train that the limb had to be amputated in Muhlenberg Hospital an hour later. Higgins, in company with Clifford Dow, son of Mrs. Minnie B. Dow, of 12 Stone street, went to Westfield, this morning, via the side-door Pullman route, playing truant from their classes in the North Plainfield public schools.

The two companions wandered around Westfield during the morning hours and "hopped" a freight at 12:30 o'clock traveling westward. When the train reached the Richmond street bridge it was speeding along at a fairly fast clip and Dow remonstrated with his chum about leaping off. Higgins would not listen, however, and telling Dow that he had to be home at 1 o'clock he climbed to the bottom step of the ladder on the side of the car and apparently jumped.

Dow leaned over the top of the car just in time to see his companion's body dangle in the air and noticed that Higgins was still clinging to the handle. So fast was the train traveling that Higgins could not regain his feet or let go and his left leg finally become lodged under one of the wheels and he fell to the tracks in a semi-conscious condition. The injured youth had presence of mind enough to push his body far enough out to escape the wheels as he fell and the body rolled down the bank. Dow got off the car as soon as he could and rushed down the track at the same time calling to other persons who happened to be in the immediate vicinity. By the time the body was brought to the level of the tracks again the injured youth had partially regained consciousness and began to converse in a hysterical way with his companion who was bending over him. He begged to be taken home, but someone telephoned police headquarters and he was conveyed to the hospital in the ambulance.

He was placed on the operating table immediately upon reaching the institution and although every effort was made by Dr. William H. Murray, the physician who took charge of the case, to save the limb the hospital authorities said this afternoon that amputation would be necessary. Although the injured youth suffered intensely while on the way to the hospital he displayed remarkable nerve and his only thoughts were for his parents.

Dow, who was with the Higgins boy, disappeared from the scene of the accident while his campanion was lying near the train on a stretcher and was overtaken by a Daily Press reporter as he was speeding with all possible haste to his home in the borough. The youth was considerably frightened after the catastrophe and made a full confession of the prontless morning's sojourn in Westfield. Both of the boys attend the Somerset School and are well known in North Plainfield, where they live with their parents. Both are active in athletics and "playing hookie" was one of the pranks in which they frequently indulged.

MANY HOTELS DESTROYED BY ST. AUGUSTINE FIRE

St. Augustine, Fla., April 2—Fire today threatens the entire city. Martial law has been proclaimed and the militia has orders to shoot any one on sight who is discovered looting. So far as is known no lives have been lost. The flames already have destroyed practically the entire water front of the city.

Many yachts and other vessels have been destroyed or badly damaged. Spreading inland, the flames have destroyed several hotels and others are threatened. The hotels were emptied of their occupants before the flames reached them. Every available truck in the city is at work removing valuables from the threatened parts of the city. Hundreds already have been made homeless. The fire is fanned by a high breeze and the firemen have not yet been able to check its progress.

HOPE CHAPEL HAD A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The annual meeting of the society of Hope Memorial chapel was held, last evening, with the pastor, Rev. F. L. Greene, acting as moderator, and Frank Rimmer as stated clerk of the organization. The reports of the twelve organizatnons which carry on the institutional work of the church were read, all of which showed that the work is in a flourishing condition. The report of the pastor showed that seventeen were added to the roll of the church during the past year. The total amount raised during the year was about $2,500.

The Sunday-school, which was for many years the largest in Union county, shows a membership of 721, including the home department. The benevolent offering of this organization amounted to $130.

The Young Men's Association, which cares for the athletic work of the chapel, showed a great increase in interest as shown by the members. The receipts of the baseball and basketball seasons of the teams aggregated close to $200. The benevolent offerings of all the organizations of the church amounted to $340.

Frank Rimmer and Thomas Hendry were elected to the board of trustees for a term of three years, the latter to succeed himself. Walter I. Firstbrook was re-elected as church treasurer. The church offerings of the past year amounted to $1,325. The societies of the chapel outside of the Sunday-school have a membership of 300, most of whom are young people of the West End.

CHARITY BALL TO BE CHARACTER DANCE

City Officials and Other Prominent Personages to Attend Big Social Event.

Rapid progress marks the arrangements for the coming Charity Ball, to be held in Columbus Auditorium on Easter Monday night. All committees are working to make the success of this year's affair exceed all previous efforts.

The function, this year, will be in the form of a character dance. The young people are already secretively planning surprises on their friends by the ingenuity of their costumes which, with the aid of rouge, false hair and whiskers, will battle a "Sherlock Holmes."

The costumes will be gaudy, dignified, grotesque and beautiful. Some will represent different nations, others caricatures, historic characters dating back to the earlier centuries. From the courts of kings will come cavaliers and knights; from the byways, the tramp, rube and clown. Not the most inconspicuous will be the humble (?) suffragette, who will take the stump and win many a votary to the cause of women's suffrage. The oriental, the soldier and sailor, the jockey, the twentieth century girl, the Puritan maid and the Colonial Dame will mingle together in the happy Bohemian crowd.

The affair will be significant from last year by the absence of mask of any kind. No covering in the way of mask, wire face, etc., of any kind will be allowed, as the committee wishes this ball to be fancy dress, with the aid only of cosmetics and such adornments as are used in a theatrical make-up.

The orchestra this year will be composed of nine stringed instruments, under the able direction of Professor Brogan, of Elizabeth. His services have been procured at an almost prohibitive expenditure, but the committee can assure the older people that the renditions of this orchestra alone will be well worth the price of admission, while the younger people need no suggestion of the added charm this string orchestra will lend to the fascination of dancing. For the old time jigs and reels no better musicians can be found than those who will render the catchy airs of the old country.

A committee has been appointed to provide, at a great expense, beautiful and costly souvenirs to be given for the best costumes.

The guests of the Holy Name Society this year will include, besides all the city officials, many of the prominent men in all walks of life, both from our own city and the adjacent towns.

Refreshments will be in abundance and no one will go unserved as was the case last year, owing to the fact that it was a physical impossibility for the refreshment committee to serve the crowd attendant at the ball. The refreshment committee assures everyone that they have profited by their experience, however, and no difficulty will be encountered in that direction.

Tickets have been well distributed

ADVANTAGES OF CO-OPERATION

O. A. Charles, Pres't of National Home Trade League, Tells Merchants Faults.

HEART TO HEART TALK

One Result Was Passage of Resolution Endorsing $1,500 City Appriation for Recreation Committee.

O. A. Charles, of Muncie, Indiana, president of the National Home Trade League, and known as "the apostle of the small town," had a heart to heart talk with the leadin merchants of the city in Sebring's Auditorium last night. He told them a lot of things about the way they conduct their business, explained the fallacy of having so many civic organizations in the city, and advocated the establishment here of what he termed the "ideal plan" for getting the greatest good out of a civic organization. Mr. Charles is in town at the invitation of the Business Men's Association and the "People's Forum," and will address a meeting of the Forum tonight at the Washington School, to which the general public has been invited. His subject will be "The Deserted Village." Richard Henry Depew will act as chairman of tonight's meeting.

At last night's gathering, Mr. Charles, after a few preliminary remarks said that ninety-nine per cent. of men are merchants, as all have something to sell. He says that the people in many small cities and towns do not realize the value of the local business man to the town, and that many of the business men themselves begin to believe that they are to an extent parasites. He said that when everyone did not put their shoulders to the wheel there was a lack of civic spirit, and that he had come to tell of some of the things that had been done elsewhere, and to show how Plainfield could better conditions materially.

"In Plainfield, as in every other small place, I know that I am safe in saying that a dozen men are the real leaders in all local work. The average retail merchant is but a cog in the wheel which makes business successful, but a few leaders actually do the work." The speaker said that the co-operative plan of merchandising was not a success anywhere, although some people seem to think that it will be, and that the whole success of business depends upon the merchants.

"I have heard the complaint made since I arrived here today that too much business goes to New York and Newark. That is the result of lack of proper service on the part of your retail merchants. They alone are to blame." He then told how one of the biggest mail order houses in the country was started because the head of the concern while a traveling salesman in country towns noticed how slack the merchants were in their business methods. He also told how he went into a local store yesterday when he came to town and was unknown, and how he walked the whole length of the store before he was approached by a clerk, although he passed three or four of them. "The average consumer is sensitive about such matters," said the speaker, "and that is what is driving thousands to thumbing over mail order catalogues. The natural inclination is to buy from the man nearest home, but poor store service including inefficiency in merchandising and selling drives the man out of town, where the mail order houses spend more money to sell their goods than they do for the goods themselves."

Mr. Charles then said that every merchant with brains enough to buy goods has brains enough to sell them. The lack of salesmanship is entirely in the hands of the bosses who do not properly train their employes. "Put your brains into the selling—any man can make good goods.

"In order to properly solve the merchandising problem every merchant must get under the load, and the only way to do that is through organization. Although I understand you have numerous organizations in this city, too many I should say, all of the work seems to fall on the same men. Too much organization really means lack of organization. What you should do is combine all of the various civic bodies here, no matter of what character to do all the work. You can continue with five or six such bodies until the crack of doom and will not solve the problem. The Merchants' Association, for example, is a class organization, as are all the others, and they have built a stone wall around themselves, and everything you do for the merchants' benefit is misunderstood. Bring all these bodies into one cohesive one, even if you have to start

Concerning Rothberg's—A Foreword

We have no hesitancy in saying that this business was started for the purpose of making money. Nor have we any hesitancy in saying that it has succeeded.

But we also wish to say that the successful business should make other things besides money—it should make loyal, life-long friends.

And if it doesn't, then in our opinion it hasn't succeeded, no matter how much money it has amassed.

Money isn't the final test of honesty and fair dealing. But loyal, life-long customers are.

Combining success with honor is not to be admired, but to be expected, and rightly understood, one cannot be achieved without the other.

Had the Rothberg store been built on deceit and misrepresentation, it would have been a moral failure, no matter how great would be the volume of business.

If we misrepresented our goods, or had more than "one price for an article" or resorted to petty schemes to take advantage, it would not be a deception on our customers, but on ourselves.

Our pre-eminence in selling "Most Things Men Wear" is not only the result of our customer's understanding of clothing, but of their faith in Rothberg's.

They know what Rothberg's stands for—what it has ever stood for—and they know that we would rather retire from business than violate one whit of that confidence.

Somerville

Indications are that the tenth anniversary dinner of the Somerville Athletic Association, to be held in the Second Reformed chapel this evening, will be a pronounced success and the most largely attended affair of its nature in the history of the association. Addresses will be made by Mayor William V. Steele, Assemblyman Beekman, Dr. Austin Scott and others. The entertainment will be by Montanelli's Venetian Quartet.

Another of the borough's leading business men has announced his retirement from business. T. I. Honeyman, who for a number of years has been engaged with his son, George, in the furniture business, has disposed of his holdings to the latter, who will continue the business under the firm name of Honeyman & Co. Recently the business was moved from the Thomas building to the store formerly occupied by William E. Maxwell. Before entering the furniture business, Mr. Honeyman was a hardware dealer and proprietor of the business now conducted by Seltzer & Sons. For a number of years Mr. Honeyman also conducted a grocery opposite the court house.

Mrs. George F. Marsh, aged 59 years, died yesterday morning at the Somerset Hospital, after a long illness from dropsy. She is survived by a husband and one son, George F., Jr. She was a sister of T. I. Honeyman and Mrs. James Tester, of this place, and C. L. Honeyman, of North Branch. The funeral services will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon, and the Rev. Roy E. Vail will officiate. Interment will be in the new cemetery at this place.

John Carberry, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Carberry, was quite badly injured by a fall yesterday morning from the athletic apparatus on the High Street School grounds. He fell while exercising on the rings. He was taken to his home on South street, and a physician summoned, and this morning was quite some better.

There will be a big time at the meeting of Central Hook and Ladder Company this evening. After the meeting the members will go to the engine house on Maple street, where they will be entertained by the members of Somerville Engine Company.

Plains & Fanwood.

The April meeting of the Fanwood Borough Council was held in the Fanwood firehouse last evening, with Mayor Hoar presiding. A communication was received from Thomas Hardgraves and James Reilly asking for an additional light on Woodland avenue where they reside, and was referred to the committee on light, fire and water, with power to act. A letter from H. J. MacNamee, of Farley avenue, was read, asking that the brook running through North avenue be cleaned out and this was referred to the committee on streets and sidewalks. It was decided to recognize no official paper for the present. Borough Collector Charles Sheelen was present and put before the Council the proposition of new tax maps as required by the law of 1913. A letter was read from F. A. O'Connor, chairman of the Board of Equalization of Taxes, inclosing a copy of the law. Mr. Sheelen was appointed a committee of one to consult with Surveyor F. A. Dunram to ascertain the approximate cost of the making of tax maps with available data. Frank Palmer was present and suggested that about three miles of the main roads of the borough be repaired similar to South avenue. The auditing and finance committee reported a surplus of $2,841.61 in the treasury. The committee on rules, regulations and licenses had no report while the committee on lights, water and fire reported that H. C. Lockwood had asked to have an additional street opened on North avenue opposite Farley avenue, and John Gimber petitioned for a light on Midway avenue between Russell road and Hunter avenue. The committee also presented a letter from Fire Chief Sheelen asking for two hundred feet of new hose, making a thousand feet of good hose possessed by the company. He also asked that a fire hydrant be placed at the corner of Midway and Forest avenues and the goose-necked pipe at the corner of LaGrande avenue and Rahway road be replaced by a hydrant. The committee was given power to act on the matter of fire hydrants and lights and to report about fire hose at the next meeting. The committee on poor and police reported that the repairs on the town hall were practically finished. The plastering of the police court will be done in warmer weather. The following bills were read and ordered paid: Police, John Logan, $75; labor on streets, Thomas Delnero, $4; labor on streets, William Linden, $29.17; printing in Courier-News, $10.31; Plainfield Union Water Company, for rental of fire hydrants, $93.75. There being no further business the meeting adjourned at 10:30 to meet again the first Wednesday in May.

The funeral of George Glover, who died suddenly Tuesday morning, was held at his late home on North avenue, this morning at 11 o'clock. The services were private, only the immediate family and near relatives being present. The floral tributes included several pieces, one being from Westfield Lodge, F. and A. M., of which he was a member. At the time of his death Mr. Glover was employed with the American Refining Company as an expert accountant. Besides a wife he is survived by two daughters, one of whom is married. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, Plainfield.

FIGHT ON TOLLS OPENS IN SENATE

Wilson Is Confronted With a Long Delay.

MAY FIGHT SEN. O'GORMAN

President Is Determined That His Measure Shall Not Be Held Up—New York Senator Calls Members to Meet Next Tuesday.

Washington, April 2.—The Panama canal tolls repeal bill is now in the custody of the senate committee on interoceanic canals, of which Senator O'Gorman of New York is chairman. The bill was "messaged" over from the house to the senate, and immediately the fight was taken up in the latter body.

The developments of the first day in the upper branch indicated that the debate is to be as bitter there as it has been in the house. Senator Jones of Washington, Republican, took up the attack on the president, characterizing the repeal proposal as an effort to "preserve peace by purchase."

Efforts were put forward by administration leaders in the senate to take Senator Jones off his feet. He was called to order by Senator Hitchcock on the ground that he was not discussing the matter before the senate, but the vice president held that he was in order.

"Shortly after the present occupant of the chair came in he looked about for some precedent to compel senators to confine their speeches to matters before the senate, but he discovered that the uniform practice of the senate had been that a senator might talk about any matter as long as he likes, whether it is before the senate or not," said Vice President Marshall. "I must say that the chair was disappointed at making that discovery."

Senator Hoke Smith and Senator Hitchcock tried to interpose various inquiries, points of order, parliamentary questions, etc., to shut off the senator from Washington, but were unable to get the vice president to uphold them. Senator Jones finally demanded the floor in his own right and cut off interruptions by refusing to yield to anybody, and the vice president sustained him.

Finally, after some debate, the message was sent, by agreement and without resistence, to the committee on interoceanic canals.

Ultimatum From White House.

An ultimatum went forth from the White House to the committee. It was that unless that body promptly reports the repeal bill the administration forces in the senate, with an estimated majority of 16, will summarily force the committee's hand.

Senator O'Gorman of New York, chairman of the committee, said he would not call the members together until next Tuesday. This is a week to a day from the date of the passage of the repeal bill in the house. In view of the conceded fact that the measure will probably be held in committee for a week or ten days, there was great dissatisfaction expressed by administration senators because of the prospective delay in getting the bill back into the senate from committee.

President Wilson has decided, after conferring with his advisers, that the rules of the senate shall not be permitted to delay immediate action on the measure on which he has set his heart. The decks were being cleared for a fight that for farreaching effect will far eclipse that which ended in the house Tuesday night. There was no hesitancy in admitting at the White House that the entire future foreign policy of the administration depends on the outcome of the present fight.

One of the first arrivals at the White House was Senator Owen of Oklahoma. He will be the administration's mouthpiece on the floor of the senate in the tolls fight. It was through him that the administration's ultimatum was conveyed to the senate and to Senator O'Gorman. For one week this committee will be permitted to debate the Sims measure and decide on its course of action. Then it must report to the senate. If it does not, Senator Owen declared on leaving the White House, he will personally force the issue and move instructions to the committee to present the bill to the senate.

CIRCUS RIDER KILLED.

Miss Ella Hackett Falls From a Trapeze in Garden.

New York, April 2.—Miss Ella Hackett, nineteen years old, an expert horsewoman and trapeze performer with the Barnum & Bailey circus, was killed by falling from a trapeze on which she was practicing revolving swings. Only a few employees were in the arena of Madison Square Garden when the accident happened.

For the past three days during rehearsals she has been trying to perfect a thrilling trapeze act. She was so sure of her strength and agility that she had not requested a net under the trapeze.

Her sister, Miss Sarah Hackett, an aerialist in the show, and William La Monte, a wire walker, were also taking part in the rehearsal. They had warned the girl to use a "mechanic," a circus word meaning a safety rope, but she refused. She sustained a broken neck.

TORREON FIGHT IS STILL RAGING

Villa Admits Federals Have Northern Part.

HUERTA SPEAKS IN SENATE

Only a Mild and Brief Reference to the United States In Long Address—Has Been Invited In Preliminary Work For The Hague Conference.

El Paso, Tex., April 2.—"In answer to your message, I wish to reply that although we have taken a part of the city of Torreon, the struggle has not yet been concluded. I hope that tonight we will obtain a complete triumph, of which I will notify you."

This message was received from General Pancho Villa in Juarez and is the first definite news from the rebel commander now investing Torreon that had been received since Monday night.

It set at rest the various reports that have been prevalent since yesterday afternoon that Torreon had fallen into rebel hands, that the rebels had been defeated and driven back, that Villa had been killed, etc.

Fighting Continues.

Juarez was apprised during the afternoon that fighting continued at Torreon, but the message was the first one direct from Villa. He did not say a word about Maolevio Herrera's command, which was sent last night to intercept federal re-enforcements supposed to be coming to Torreon. A message this morning, unofficial, said the command had met the federal re-enforcements at San Pedro and had blown up their train, killing hundreds.

Other messages received this afternoon, official, but not from Villa, stated that the rebels held the Salvador hotel, the Garcia warehouse and several other buildings in the heart of Torreon. The Salvador hotel is a five story rock building and affords the rebels an excellent fortification.

A private telegram received from Vice Consul George C. Carothers, with Villa at Torreon, denied the reported execution of British Vice Consul H. S. Cunard Cummins by federals at Torreon, where the vice consul had gone presumably as the emissary of Villa to treat with General Velasco for an armistice. The message stated that Cummins had returned to the rebel lines safely and added that all foreigners were safe. The message was filed at 6 o'clock Tuesday night.

Huerta In Senate.

Mexico City, April 2.—The Mexican congress convened after having been adjourned several months following the last presidential election on Oct. 2, 1913. General Huerta read a long message to the senators and deputies, which covered thirty-odd pages of typewriting.

Of all these pages only two were devoted to the relations existing between Mexico and the United States and only one contained a reference to the war department. In discussing the Mexican-American relations the provisional president said:

"Our international relations are most cordial with the principal powers of the world. While it is true that some American governments have not recognized the constitutional government ad interim of the republic, the majority of these have maintained diplomatic representatives in Mexico and none of them has completely severed its relations with this republic.

"The United States of America has been good enough to invite me through his excellency President Wilson to cooperate in organizing the preliminary work for the approaching peace conference at The Hague."

BENNETT MUCH WORSE.

His Personal Physician Called From Paris to Bedside.

London, April 2.—A Cairo special from the Central News states that the condition of James Gordon Bennett, who has been seriously ill here for several days, was much worse. His personal physician, Dr. Robin, who was summoned from Paris, arrived there and joined the other two physicians already in attendance on Mr. Bennett.

USE OF THE STREETS.

Residents of West Seventh street have sent a petition to Mayor Percy H. Stewart urging him to take steps to force the Plainfield Transit Company to run its auto buses to South Plainfield through some other thoroughfare. This, if done, will work a hardship on these who own and patronize the line and will benefit a chosen few. The buses were formerly run to South Plainfield through Plainfield avenue, but that street, between Fourth and Seventh streets, is at present in such a bad state of repair, that is is practically out of the question to continue to use this route. Complaining property owners of West Seventh street contend that continued use of this street by the transit concern will ultimately result in the establishment of a street car line with tracks on that thoroughfare and have urged that immediate measures be taken to force the bus owners to "keep off."

A trolley line is an entirely different matter and we fail to see why any automobile should be forced to keep off of any street. To request the company to discontinue running vehicles on West Seventh street would result in one of the other streets being brought into use or possibly the abandonment of this mode of travel which brings thousands of dollars to Plainfield annually. This latter condition would also prove a great inconvenience to the patrons who live on the outskirts of the town and in South Plainfield who now do a large proportion of their trading with Plainfield merchants.

RAILROAD INEQUALITIES.

According to the evidence of Lewis D. Brandeis, counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the rate case now pending, it appears that New Jersey, particularly Jersey City and other cities on the west side of the river, are at a disadvantage so far as the merchants or industries are concerned. Jersey City and Weehawken pay for service that the Erie Railroad renders them just as much as the merchant or industry in New York city or Brooklyn pays, although there is the added expense of getting the freight to and from those places to the railroad yards.

It may be that the railroads lose money by the extra cost of lighterage across the Hudson and New York Bay. From ten to thirty days' storage is allowed the New York or Brooklyn merchant or shipper while only three days is allowed in Jersey City and Weehawken. It seems high time for the commerce boards or authorities to see to it that New Jersey business men receive just benefit on account of geographical location and splendid railroad facilities or for the merchants of Hudson county to wake up and take advantage of their situation, by making it the wholesale market place, rather than Manhattan.

Mr. Brandeis points out that freight charges are eaten up by lighterage. He shows that the Pennsylvania railroad makes shipments from Girard Point, Philadelphia, to Marcus Hook, at a freight rate of twenty cents per gross ton, but has to pay the Girard Point Storage Company for taking freight from the ship's side and loading it into cars at Girard Point exactly twenty cents per gross ton, leaving not one cent for the railroad's hauling services to Marcus Hook.

It may be found that in other cases the railroad companies are doing extra and expensive service for which they receive no pay, and are making some places pay more for service in order to even up the profits.

In addition to the privilege of free storage for ten days given the New York and Brooklyn industries they also enjoy the right of having their freight unloaded and later loaded at the carrier's expense, which is not given the merchant or industry in Jersey City or Weehawken.

It certainly is the heighth of absurdity when the Public Service Corporation sends a higher electric light bill for March to a consumer than in February, when that consumer was without service for a full week following the blizzard, and did not burn as much light during the past month because the days are longer. Perhaps the company wants the dear public to help make up its losses, which came to it because of an inexcusable condition which no one but the light company was responsible for. Had there been an emergency plant here, or the wires from the generating stations in Cranford or Metuchen been under ground, there would have been no loss.

Governor Fielder's great success in forcing the passage of the bank tax law through the Legislature at Trenton gives him still stronger leadership of the Democratic party in the State, and he is deserving of hearty congratulations for his downing of the Nugent leadership, even in Essex county, the Assemblymen from which were supposed to be merely the tools of the "boss who drinks alone." The Governor has proven that no mistake was made by President Wilson when he threw his support to Mr. Fielder.

No subject has been more discussed than the public schools during the past few months. Wherever there is a gathering of local people no matter what may be the reason, the chances are ten to one that the schools are talked about. On Saturday night the contributed editorial will tell of one phase of the school question, and a very serious one at that, and in it the needs of Plainfield will be set forth in an authoritative manner.

Now that rough and rowdy old March has pased, didn't it live up to the old adage about coming in like a lion?

HAMLET WAS NOT INSANE IN BORO CLASS DEBATE

"Hamlet was not insane" was the verdict given by the judges in a debate held by the senior class of the North Plainfield High School, yesterday morning, during the class recitation. The debate was the best that has been given in the school this year and many points of interest to the English students were brought out.

The affirmative side was upheld by Franklin Lowe and Lester Chandler and their opponents were Miss Mary Martin and Attwood Giddings. The verdict was unanimous for the negative. The judges were Miss Aline Giddes, Principal Albert Earley and Robert McGunnell of the senior class.

ELIZABETH COUPLE SURPRISED

Elizabeth, April 1—John J. Gettings, superintendent of the Central division of the Public Service Railway, who, with Mrs. Gettings, recently returned from a wedding tour, were given a surprise reception at their home, 323 Stiles street, Tuesday night by officials of the Public Service from various parts of the State. The party went to the Gettings home in a special car, announcing their arrival with a display of fireworks. They presented Mr. and Mrs. Gettings a parlor lamp and hailrack, extending best wishes, after which supper was served. Among those present were: George J. Roberts, one of the vice-presidents of the company; N. W. Bolan, general superintendent; J. W. Brown, assistant general superintendent; General Edwin W. Hine, John L. O'Toole, R. A. Danforth, H. A. Donecker, J. L. Downs, William J. Ramsey, Willard S. Muchmore, F. L. Williams, L. T Burnham, George Stone, F. A. Bailey, George Luhr, William E. Titus, Thomas Burke, Fred Southard, Martin Schreiber, M. R. Boylan and Martin White.

ADVANTAGES OF CO-OPERATION

the wrecking crew first in order to accomplish it. Plainfield is no different from any other town, and you can do here just what has been done in Boston, St. Louis and Rochester."

The speaker then described what he termed the "ideal plan" to bring about this result. "Everyone admits that the greatest thing on earth is organization. What are the next in order? I think that transportation comes second, production third and distribution or marketing fourth." One of the most important features of making the work successful in any town is to see that the people have a fit place to live, following that with the city beautiful plan with parks and trees, and last, but not least, plenty of amusement for the young people. The lack of the latter, said Mr. Charles, is driving the young men and women away from the smaller towns to the cities. He concluded his remarks by saying that there ought to be a local organization, such as he had described of at least a thousand members in Plainfield.

President Jeffery of the Board of Trade made a few remarks, including some regarding what he considers the defects of the local educational system, and predicted that there would be a stampede of members to the Board of Trade when the people realize what that body is doing for the whole people.

Samuel Rothberg started the liveliest discussion of the evening when he said that there was no time like the present for that stampede, and told of the work which the Public Recreation Committee is doing along the lines which had been discussed by Mr. Charles for the entertainment of the young people. The committee was organized, he said, because they believed that the people had a lot of money invested in schools, which could be made useful at other times than when teaching the children. He told how the public dance halls with their evils, had been driven out of town when the recreation committee started the free dancing in the Washington School, where the conditions were ideal for all concerned, and his address, which was so well delivered that it was received with much enthusiasm, brought forth a resolution from Mr. Jeffery that the Merchants' Association go on record as favoring a $1,500 appropriation by the City Council to carry on the work.

Others who spoke about the need of Plainfield in the way of organizations were J. J. Varley, Herman Schwed, H. C. DeMott and Harry Marshall, who also spoke of the splendid work of the Recreation Committee.

Prior to the meeting an informal dinner was held with Mr. Charles at the Queen City Hotel at which President A. E. Force, of the Business Men's Association, President F. G. Thomas of the Somerville Merchants' Association, and the following were present: M. C. VanArsdale, Hyman Adelberg, H. C. DeMott, Samuel Rothberg, L. R. Fort, William Jeffrey, J. J. Varley, George Griffin, Jacob A. Fass, A. H. Osmun, Herman Schwed, E. A. Laing, Kenneth Stuart, Stephen S. Haff, John Johnston, Richard Parrott, Harry DeMeza, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Herbert Schuldenfrei, E. Baker, Harry W. Marshall, Robert Hyman and P. W. Cofield, the latter of Allentown, Pa.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Charles Dillingham, whose special production of "Romance" is to be given at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday afternoon and evening, says that never before in a managerial career covering more than twenty active years has he known a more difficult task than he faced when he undertook to make up the cast of this play. The characters call for specialists in the acting; they call for players who are versed in the art of modern realistic acting, and at the same time know and can practice the art of what might be termed perfervid romance. Moreover, two of the characters, although they speak throughout in clear English, must possess intimate knowledge of the purest Italian, so closely are the types studied by the playwright. One of these characters is a brilliant, beautiful young Italian singer—the toast of fashionable New York, and the idol of the patrons of grand opera. The other is her old companion, herself an ex-singer and broken, disappointed woman, not old, but lacking the spark, although retaining a keen memory of the triumphs that were hers when she sang the great roles of Verdi and the other Italian maestros. The chief man's part, also, must be acted by a specialist—a specialist in drawing fine distinctions. This part, the Rev. Thomas Armstrong, is a stately old bishop in the epilogue and the prologue; in acts I, II and III he is a handsome, perfervid, zealous young rector, caught in the ineffable charm of the brilliant, beautiful Italian singer, against whom he struggles in his effort to be true to his vows as a clergyman and as a man sworn to uphold to the letter the word of God.

HUNGRY RABBITS AND MICE DAMAGED MONMOUTH TREES

Red Bank, April 2.—When the last of the snow disappeared from the fields of Monmouth county this week many farmers discovered that hundreds of their fruit trees had been damaged by rabbits and field mice, which, driven by hunger, had nibbled the bark off trees.

Frederick Lerch, who has a fruit farm of 126 acres near Scobeyville, says he will lose a large number of trees on this account. Other large losers are Aaron Armstrong, of Shrewsbury; J. Hull McLean, of Tinton Falls, and John Fenton and J. Holmes Conover, of Lincroft.

In an effort to save the damaged trees the farmers have resorted to a simple grafting method, placing a narrow piece of bark over the affected part of the tree, connecting the portions not distrubed by the mice and rabbits. All the exposed part of the wood is not covered. The sap runs under the bark graft and in time the bark is expected to grow over the bare wood.

Great Palace of Education as Seen From a Lagoon and Superb Panel For Palace of Fine Arts, Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

HUNDREDS of thousands of rare trees, plants and shrubs, brought from distant portions of the globe, are being used to adorn the vast grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition which will open in San Francisco on February 20, 1915. Even today an idea may be gained of the picturesque effect of water, flowers, trees, contrasting with great domes and peristyles. In the Exposition hothouses are more than 500 tree ferns brought from Australia. These are from twenty to forty feet in height. Rhododendrons have been brought from West Virginia and England, bulbs from Holland and banana plants from Central America. The grounds will present the appearance of a semitropical paradise.

The photograph above shows the huge Palace of Education as viewed from the lagoon before the Palace of Fine Arts. The great size of the structure may be inferred from the fact that the huge dome (in the center of the picture) is 160 feet above the floors of the building. The photograph below shows one of the exquisite panels for the Palace of Fine Arts by Bruno L. Zimm. The landscaping of the Exposition will present one of the most striking effects. It is planned that the grounds shall not be for a single day without their vast blaze of floral color. The flowers will be set in great massed banks, and plants whose blossoming season is past will be replaced by others.

MISS JESSIE WOOD.

Missing Girl Reappears With Story of Kidnaping.

GIRL RETURNS WITH STORY OF KIDNAPING

Dislike For School, However, the Real Reason.

Ridgefield, N. J., April 2.—Jessie Wood, the sixteen-year-old girl who disappeared from her home here, returned as mysteriously as she had left. She told two stories to explain her going away.

The first was a lurid tale of kidnaping in an automobile by three men, who took her to New York, where she escaped. But after being questioned by her parents she said that because of her dislike for school in her home town she had run away and intended to go to Chicago.

Her dissatisfaction with school here dates back to last fall, when she told her parents that she wished to go to high school in New York. They refused her and as a result she shirked her studies, she says, and absented herself from school often to spend the day with a girl friend.

This girl, whose name is known to the family, but is being withheld, Jessie says, encouraged her in her plan of running away. She helped her to make a dress and hat and last Thursday sent her a suitcase. When she left home on Tuesday night she slipped out while her mother was in the kitchen, thus avoiding questions about the suitcase.

She took a train to New York at the Ridgefield Park station and went to the Grand Central station, where she spent the night in the woman's waiting room. When she saw the paper and read the story of her disappearance, Jessie says she realized how her parents would worry and gave up her intention of going west. After hesitating between fear and desire of returning home she came back and concocted the kidnaping story.

BROTHERS CLOSE OILCLOTH PLANT

To Temporarily Tie Up Business at Salem.

THEY CHARGE CONSPIRACY

Alleged In Proceedings Instituted For Appointment of Receiver That Associates Employed Detectives to Arrest Bimbergs In Order to Seize Upon Company's Assets.

Trenton, N. J., April 2.—Alleging that their arrest in this city last Friday was part of a conspiracy by associates in business, Louis J. Bimberg and his brother, Alexander J. Bimberg, of White Plains, obtained an order from Judge Rellstab of the United States district court temporarily tying up the business of the American Oilcloth company, whose factory is in Salem, N. J.

At the time of filing the bill the Bimbergs were still in the Salem county jail in default of $60,000 bail each, charged with counseling the burning of the factory.

It is charged in the proceedings instituted for the appointment of a receiver for the company that William C. Springer and John B. Campbell employed detectives to arrest the Bimbergs in order to obtain an opportunity to seize upon the assets of the company.

In an affidavit by Milton M. Goldsmith of New York, attorney for the company, it is alleged that Mr. Springer, in seizing the business of the oilcloth company, was to foster a plan of the Texas Oil company to forcibly remove the Bimbergs from the former concern. Mr. Goldsmith also charged that the Texas Oil company was at the back of the conspiracy, it having contracted to furnish more than $1,000,000 worth of raw materials to the American Oilcloth company.

Mr. Goldsmith alleges, further, that Mr. Campbell, acting for the Texas Oil company, so manufactured the output of the oilcloth company that between $30,000 and $40,000 of its product was not marketable and had to be disposed of at public auction at a great sacrifice.

The application for a receiver will be heard in Newark next Tuesday. The company is alleged to have assets of $500,000 and liabilities of $200,000. It is set forth in the bill that the business transacted last year amounted to $700,000.

IDLE MAN CAN'T EVEN DIE.

Out of Jail, Leaps Before Train, Is Saved, Imprisoned Again.

Kearny, N. J., April 2.—The Lackawanna railroad's Buffalo express was flying west across the marshes when at Sandford's Crossing a young man threw himself upon the rails. Patrick Collins, gateman, dragged him struggling to the side of the track just as the train roared past. Collins sat upon the man until the police arrived.

In the police court the prisoner said he was Carl Alderman, twenty-eight years old, a bookkeeper, of Chicago. He said he had gone to New York two weeks ago looking for a job and had been arrested for loitering. It was the first time he had been in custody, and after the magistrate sent him to the Blackwell's island penitentiary for ten days he didn't want to live any longer.

Recorder Leonard A. Wimmer sent Alderman to the Hudson county jail for thirty days.

COURTS TO PASS ON BANK TAX

Interests Affected Will Test Its Constitutionality.

Jersey City, N. J., April 2.—William J. Field, secretary of the New Jersey Bankers' association, gave out a statement in this city declaring that the new bank stock law signed by Governor Fielder is to be attacked in the courts. He said he believes the association will test the constitutionality of the act and if it does not the Commercial Trust company of this city, of which he is secretary, will do so.

The act will be attacked on three grounds. First, that it is of faulty classification, that it is not proper to classify bank stock by itself; second, that the bill did not originate in the assembly as required by the state constitution, and third, that the law does not provide for the taxing of bank stock at its true value as required by the state constitution.

LYNCH, LONG "DEAD," DIES.

End Comes to Man Who Already Had Funeral.

Summit, N. J., April 2.—Thomas Lynch, who was supposed to be the man killed by a Lackawanna railroad train at Berkeley Heights several weeks ago, but appeared to chide his friends after the funeral, is dead. He was in the last stages of tuberculosis when he returned to Summit to deny that he was dead and was sent to the Bonnie Burn sanitarium at New Providence township, where he died. He was forty-seven years old.

Lynch left the sanitarium several months ago because he didn't like the "cold air and chill treatment." The man who was struck by a train at Berkeley Heights in every way resembled Lynch. He was buried under the name of Thomas Lynch.

California Women to Organize,

Woman's Board of Panama-Pacific International Exposition Making Elaborate Plans to Welcome "The World and His Wife" at San Francisco In 1915.

ONE of the most important departments of the Woman's Board of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition concerns itself with the organization of the women of California. It is hoped above all else that the women of the state will view the world's gathering of 1915, all the preparations for it and every phase of its aftermath from the larger outlook—the one that takes definite cognizance of the fact that the Exposition exploits the Western Coast, of which San Francisco is but a part; the one that recognizes not the individual, but the general good, which, in turn, must benefit the individual.

Toward that realization the Woman's Board is spreading this universal idea through the state by the organization which is now almost completed. Each county is treated as a unit, the plan of organization being as simple as possible. Then, as a whole, the women of the state will stand back of every movement that makes for the success of the Exposition.

With the work of and for 1915 done, the Woman's Board advocates permanent organization for years to come to get every possible benefit by welcoming and keeping its new settlers.

Because the city and county government are one, the problem of organization differs somewhat from that of its sister counties. In the other counties the work is divided into geographical districts, each with a chairman responsible to the county chairman. This method of organization could not obtain in San Francisco because of the compactness of the population and because the city and county are coextensive. Therefore the women of the "home county" have proceeded upon a somewhat different plan of formation, but are governed by the general plan in the administration of their affairs.

Three leading benefits accrue to members of the county auxiliaries. Firstly, they share in the patriotic pleasure and duty of dispensing the state's hospitality, which is world famous. They will, in turn, assist in the receiving lines at the levees, assemblies, receptions and balls which will make memorable the social phase of the Exposition.

Secondly, they will have the privilege of the Auxiliary tea and rest rooms in the California Host Building, the especial domain of the Woman's Board.

Thirdly, they experience the exquisite fervor of preparation, the sensation dear to the heart of woman, with her housewifely instincts. The Woman's Board, as a unit, will furnish, equip and administer the California Host Building.

Mrs. Ernest S. Simpson of the Woman's Board is chairman of the Organization Committee, and Mrs. E. C. Wright is chairman of the San Francisco Auxiliary. To augment the membership of her organization, she proceeds along the same lines as other county chairmen. The result is a balanced, well rounded, many sided body that is truly representative of San Francisco womanhood. From these and from the other auxiliaries will be chosen the women who will serve on the juries of awards, it being the intention of the Directors of the Exposition to avail themselves of the services of women where their experience and judgment will have a distinct value.

When a woman becomes a member of the county auxiliary Mrs. Wright ascertains where her interests lie and what are her talents, tastes and attainments, with the view of intelligently selecting hostesses to act for the various conventions which will attend the Exposition. If a woman incline toward science rather than art, then she will be chosen to assist at the receptions incident to the scientific conventions and vice versa. The San Francisco Auxiliary stands as the hostess auxiliary to all the fifty-seven other counties of the state, meeting and entertaining women from the interior when they come to the Exposition City during the time of preparation. In turn, the women of this great group of counties have combined to extend the hospitality of the West to "The World and His Wife" when they visit California in 1915 and to work side by side with the men in the preparation for the Exposition.

DUTCHER DEFENDED HIS AMATEUR TITLE

Plainfield Club Swinger Won His Second A. A. U. Championship Last Night.

Ray W. Dutcher, of this city successfully defended his title of amateur club swinging champion of the United States in the annual all-around championship held under the aupscise of the Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Union in the New York Turn Verein Hall, last night. Dutcher defeated a large field of challengers in easy style, scoring twenty-seven points with the Indian clubs. A. Wilson, of the Swiss Turn Verein, was second with 24¾ points, and J. L. McLeod, unattached, and F. Meyer, Anchor A. C. tied for third, with twenty-four points.

Dutcher held the intercollegate club swinging championship until this year, when he was defeated in the intercollegiates held in New Haven last Thursday night. He has held the amateur title for two successive years. The local athlete is a senior in New York University and competed in all last night's events under the colors of the New York A. C., of which he is a member.

N. P. H. S. MANAGER INSULTED BY CLASS TEAM'S CHALLENGE

Certain managers and athletes in the Battin High School, of Elizabeth, seem to think that the athletic abilities of the Borough High School have decreased within the last year and one of the class teams has sent a challenge to Manager Beckman. The Sophomore class team claim that they have an exceedingly strong team and the manager stated that the team had defeated some of the fastest nines in the vicinity last year.

The local manager tried to book a game with the first team of that institution but was unable to make satisfactory arrangements. Last year the boroughites were beaten in the ninth inning by the Elizabeth boys and the present manager that sent the letter played on the team. He evidently though that the "Canadians" were out of this class and tried to shove a class team over on them this year.

GOOD BASKETBALL GAMES ON THE PROGRAM TONIGHT

Two basketball games of unusual interest to certain Plainfield lovers of the indoor sport will be staged on the Saengerbund Hall court tonight, when the Imperials, of Orange, and the Plainfield All Star combinations take the floor in the main attraction, and the Holy Cross and Nonpareils meet in the preliminary.

The big game has excited considerable interest hereabouts and will probably be one of the hard variety wherein every point is a matter for keen contention. The Imperials are a colored aggregation hailing from Orange and have made good records during past seasons against such teams as Howard University and quintets about Greater New York and Brooklyn.

THEY'RE AT IT AGAIN.

Paris, April 2—Another fight between Georges Carpentier, the French champion, and Joe Jeannette, the colored American fighter, to be held a month hence, is being arranged. Carpentier's backers are so dissatisfied with the verdict for Jeannette in the recent meeting of the men that they are willing to put up another big purse.

BEATTY'S RECORD MAY BE EQUALLED

New Phenom Unearthed by Former Leal School and Y. M. C. A. Star.

Russell Lawrence Beatty, the Leal School graduate, who is captain of the Columbia University track team this spring, has unearthed a real find for his aggregation in C. B. Olmstead, a big weight tosser from California. In practice yesterday the new phenom tossed the sixteen pound shot 45 feet 8 inches, almost rivalling the work of Beatty, the present holder of the intercollegiate shotput record.

The Columbia captain is taking a particular interest in his new protege and expects to make a champion out of him this spring.

Olmstead is not new to the weights but his development in the last two months has been so rapid that he is looked on as a sure point winner in the intercollegiates this spring.

He scored in the junior championship indoor meet last fall in the 12-pound shot. Since then he has devoted himself to practice with the 16-pound ball and has gradually been increasing the length of his tries until his record heave yesterday. Berne Wefers thinks that by the end of next month Olmstead will be putting the shot close to 48 feet.

RUBE WADDELL LOSES FIGHT WITH GREAT WHITE PLAGUE

San Antonio, Texas, April 2—George Edward Waddell—known and ridiculed as Rube, yet loved by baseball fans—died here last night of tuberculosis. The former great left hander, who pitched the Philadelphia Athletics to two pennants in 1902 and 1905, still holds the big league record for strikeouts, sixteen, made in 1908 while twirling for the St Louis Browns against his old mates. He was probably the most eccentric pitcher in the history of the game and was the hero of many queer exploits on the diamond.

Waddell had been ill for several months, and had come here from St Paul, where he last worked as a pitcher for the American Association His mother was at the bedside.

CHANGE OF DATE.

Manager Charles Beckman, of the North Plainfield High School team has changed the date of the second game of the season that was to be played in New Brunswick next Wednesday until the following day. With the present weather conditions it is a question whether the scheduled game will be played day after tomorrow. The team has had very little practice and with the rain it is doubtful whether the field can be put into shape now. The game will either be postponed or played on the Cricket Field provided that permission can be secured for the latter. Twelve pair of new baseball stockings arrived today and will be given to the regulars immediately. The suits will also be given out in a few days.

MANY TEAMS ENTERED.

Atlantic City, April 2—There are one hundred and twelve five-men teams entered in the eighth annual tournament of the National Bowling Association, which begins next Wednesday at Columbia Hall. Besides this, there are two hundred and ninety-five two-men teams and five hundred and ninety-five individual entries. Included in the list are three entries from Elizabeth and two from New Brunswick.

"CHAMPION SNOWBALL M," DIES SUDDENLY

Prize Winning Toy Poodle Considered Best in the Country.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moore, of this city, are mourning the loss of one of their champion dogs, "Champion Snowball M," considered the best toy poodle in this country at the time of her show ring career, having defeated all dogs and bitches, making her a champion in less than a year, being winner of nineteen first prizes. Mr. Moore has had many tempting offers to sell "Snowball," being offered $300 for her at the Atlantic City Dog Show but this was refused as the dog was a great pet with Mr. and Mrs. Moore.

Not only as a prize dog was she valued, but she was a very intelligent dog, performing many clever tricks. She was the mother of the famous little winner, "The Little Elk," which Mr. Moore had the misfortune to lose awhile ago. She was the winner of the $5 gold piece for the best toy dog in the Plainfield show, and was also grandmother to the well-known little dog "Tip Toes," which weighed less than four pounds, and three years old in February last, winning seventeen first prizes to his credit with a gold medal for the best dog at Sheepshead Bay; also a silver cup for best of all breeds at the same show. This little dog needs only one more point for a championship. "Champion Snowball M" would have been six years old on April 17.

ROD AND REEL

The weather man handed the fishermen an April fool joke yesterday, when he turned on the cold water faucet after the bright sunshine of Tuesday.

A cold snap of a few days is due about Saturday, and if it comes there will be a lull in the freshets. Otherwise we are in for a delay as far as fishing is concerned.

All fishing thoughts are put aside these days and will be until after the Legislature closes so far as we are concerned. Up to date we don't know of the passage of any bill that will hurt fishing or hunting, and hope to render just as good a report when the session is over. A few sucker bills passed but the rod anglers are beginning to realize that it is a mistake to protect them.

The ice has left the Shrewsbury River and the clamdiggers are busy working the beds. They frequently put out a drop line while working and when the little bell rings they pull in a fat, juicy flounder, which has been attracted by the stirring up of the river bottom.

Charley Demming came up from Somerset county last night, with a pretty catch of brook trout and a smile on his face that was worth seeing. He had twelve beauties, and could have done better, but he thought the limit in a day was a dozen. He also refused to mention the stream he fished, but a friend said Charley had bought an excursion ticket to Glen Gardner early in the morning.

Everybody couldn't take our trip and go down into South Jersey for trout yesterday, but those who did and got an early start caught fish. The streams are normal below Manawan, as the frost left the ground three weeks ago, and the last of the snow disappeared shortly after it settled. The streams in the north are in very bad shape and will be for a week or ten days

Just glancing over that schedule of football games through which the Plainfield High School eleven will have to wade next year we note a couple of formidable opponents in the list of elect. After dodging the Chattel High School team with the aid of the weather man last fall negotiations were entered into whereby the locals and shore youths will be brought together on two occasions next season. Many are anxious to ascertain the relative strength of these aggregations and the promised encounters will no doubt be a pair of the most interesting on the red and blue card.

We note that North Plainfield is still among the missing on that P. H. S. football schedule. Will the borough youths never get up enough courage to stage a revival of the gridiron sport in the Canadian territory? Ever since the popular fall sport was dropped three years ago there has been none who would take a chance on trying to establish it once more. The material in the school at the present time would form the nucleus for a light but fast team and we see no reason why the N. P. H. S. athletes should not place a team on the gridiron next season.

The double header of basketball on the card for tonight promises to furnish some good entertainment for those who take a trip across the pond to Saengerbund Hall during the evening. The colored aggregation from Orange, which is slated to meet the locals, bears a good reputation on the basketball court and the All Star quintet from this burg will be forced to the limit in order to keep on even terms. The novelty of the contest has attracted widespread interest and many are planning to give the contending forces the "once over" during the evening.

Glancing over the Spalding Baseball Guide for 1914 we note the following inscription after the Marconi Wireless Company's baseball team, "Champions of New Jersey." Whaddaya mean wireless champions?

Indignant because we refuse to publish a ton and a half of trash condemning the New York State Boxing Commission to lower regions and because their "sore-headed" attacks found a resting place in the waste basket, certain sideline admirers of the veteran Robert are up in arms and threaten to begin a night watch behind some big tree in the wee small hours of the morning sometime in the near future. Yea bo, we're going to have war.

We should worry about our admirers in the Fitzsimmon's camp. The Ruby Cornishman happens to be the leading feature in a burlesque show in Indianapolis at the present time and his supporters will probably lie in ambush until their model fighter returns to his village haunts.

Members of the American committee for the Olympic championships, at a meeting the other night, put themselves on record as not being opposed to women's athletics. Some of the suffragettes have evidently been doing some campaigning since the last session.

The American committee, however, decided to vote against women competing in the Olympic championships for men. This latter vote will probably be overruled in other countries, however, as in Continental Europe women in one-piece bathing suits are not considered immodest.

"Rushing" a hill is an unknown experience to the Indian rider. "A twist of the wrist" silently gives the command to the motor for more power. And the power is there. It responds instantly. The rider feels that peculiar "bite"—a thrilling, assuring sensation of the answering motor!—and then the speed deftly picks up—picks up—picks up—without a moment's hesitation. The steepest grade offers no trouble to the Indian-mounted man.

Rough roads, too, mean nothing to the Indian tourist. With his machine fitted with footboards and that incomparable, inimitable comfort feature, the Cradle Spring Frame, shocks and jars are dispelled. Indian riding is smooth riding whatever the condition of the highway.

KING'S DAUGHTERS PLAN SUMMER WORK

Diet Kitchen and Playground Equipment is Considered at Monthly Meeting.

The executive committee of the City Union of King's Daughters transacted a considerable amount of important business at the regular monthly meeting in the Day Nursery, this morning. Mrs. Charles A. Reed, the president, was in the chair.

Reports showed that 243 children had been cared for at the nursery during March. This is a smaller number than usual but the decrease is explained by the fact that mumps and other ailments had been quite prevalent.

It was decided to expend what money is now available for equipping the playground in the rear of the nursery, the land having been donated by T. J. Mumford. The fund is not nearly sufficient to complete the work, however, and the Union hopes some public spirited citizen will make a needed donation. Plans for the summer were discussed at some length and it was agreed that the diet kitchen should be opened as soon as the weather made it necessary. Wednesday, May 6, was fixed upon as the date for the annual meeting of the Union. It will be held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church during the hours from 3 to 5 in the afternoon. Each circle will be allowed two minutes in which to make a report of its work. Nine circles responded to the roll call this morning.

CAN NOW APPROPRIATE $50,000 TO ASSIST HOSPITALS

Trenton, April 2.—House Bill Number 100, by Mr. Leonard, of Union county, permitting Boards of Freeholders to appropriate not exceeding $50,000 to assist in maintaining hospitals, has just been signed by Governor Fielder. The bill provides that the sum so appropriated shall be included in the annual tax levy of the county and shall be applied to the support of such patients as may be sent to any hospital or hospitals supported by private charity and located in the county.

The new law does not apply to hospitals connected with county almshouses, nor to county tuberculosis hospitals. To receive the benefits from the appropriation, patients must be residents of the county at the time of being sent to the hospital.

The entire interior of the store will be remodeled, while a gallery will be erected for the use of the new tenants. Upon completion, it will be occupied by Mathushek & Son, piano manufacturers, for whom Albert E. Willard is the local representative.

The cost of the alterations, when completed, will be in the neighborhood of $1,700. F. T. McInerny has the contract for the mason work, while Wright & Hammer will do the carpenter work.

GAVE INTERESTING TALK ON "OUR SLAVIC IMMIGRANTS"

A large and interested audience attended the illustrated lecture delivered by Rev. Kenneth D. Miller in the Crescent Avenue church, last night, and heard a talk on "Our Slavic Immigrants." The speaker compared them as they are here and as they are found in their native countries and showed the remarkable changes that are wrought in the lives of the foreigners after their arrival here. Mr. Miller spent a year in Bohemia in the interests of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions and made a special study of the habits and customs of the natives.

He discussed the lives of the immigrants as led in the crowded tenement districts of New York city and showed many interesting streopticon views of typical scenes in the congested sections. He also showed many historic views taken in foreign countries and primitive vehicles of commerce used by the natives. He outlined many features discovered while engaged in settlement work and dealt principally with the good and bad points of the Slavs as a race.

NEW BRUNSWICK DOG SAVES MASTER AS HIS HOME BURNS

New Brunswick, April 2—The scratching and barking of his Scotch collie at his bedroom door awakened Samuel Wegner and enabled him to escape from his burning house Tuesday night. The family was away and Wegner was alone in the house.

An overheated stove started the fire. Neighbors saved a little of the furniture, but the house was destroyed with a loss of $3,000.

SCHUMANN-HEINK'S SON TO BE MARRIED SOON

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink has announced the engagement of her son, Henry Schumann-Heink, of Paterson, to Miss Elsie Straumann, daughter of Mrs. Jacob Straumann, also of Paterson. They are to be married the coming summer.

He speaks eight languages, has a rich baritone voice and often has appeared in amateur theatricals.

TWENTY-FIVE GAMBLERS HELD UP IN MERCHANTS' CLUB

New York, April 2.—Five bandits, two of them masked, and all with revolvers, are being sought today by Inspector Faurot in an investigation he is making into a report that they held up twenty-five gamblers in the Merchants' Club, in New York, in which "Beansy" Rosenfeld, formerly a partner of Herman Rosenthal, is reputed to be interested, and robbed them of $5,000 in cash and jewelry. The Merchants' Club occupies a three story brownstone house in East Seventeenth street.

Feeling safe from surprise by the police or a call for help, because poker games were said to be in progress in the rooms, the bandits spent twenty minutes there in search for the men and the house attendant looking after the "bank roll." Only one man, whose identity has not been disclosed, defied the robbers. He refused to throw up his hands like the others and submit to search. He saved $250, which he carried, and a gold watch.

Of the loot obtained more than $2,000 was in cash. Seven hundred dollars was taken from the cashier. The rest was in watches, chains, stickpins and lodge pins. "Beansy" is reported today to be making efforts to recover the jewelry for the members. It is said, too, that he will compensate the men for their losses.

CHILDREN'S FAIR FOR MUHLENBERG

Sixth Annual Event to Be Given at Hartridge Auditorium Saturday.

The pupils of the Hartridge School will give then annual fair for Muhlenberg Hospital, Saturday afternoon in the school auditorium from 4 to 6 o'clock. The fair was started by the pupils six years ago and the proceeds were turned over to the hospital to be held as the nucleus of a fund for building a children's ward. When the money for such a ward was secured in the successful whirlwind campaign two years ago, it was decided, to the delight of the pupils, that their little nucleus of about $760 would be used to pay the first bills of the ward.

They then voted to give their fair proceeds each year for the support of two beds to be used only for children, one of the beds to be maintained in memory of Evelyn Frost, who was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Frost. They still have on hand the proceeds of last year's fair which they are keeping until it is convenient for the hospital governors to accept it for the purpose named.

The senior and junior classes are combining to hold a candy and flower table. Refreshments will be served in the studio by the third grade and the girls of the second and first grades are going to manage an embroidery table and a gypsy camp where fortunes will be told. The children of the fifth, sixth and seventh classes, elementary, are devoting their energies to a budoir table where dainty caps and scarfs will be sold. A housekeeping booth will be under the supervision of the fourth grade, while the little third grade is working on baby articles. As usual the children of the second grade will have a beautiful Japanese booth and the first will sell Easter toys. Grab bags in various surprising forms will be found in unusual places.

UNITY CIRCLE TO GIVE ELABORATE ENTERTAINMENT

The members of the Unity Circle of the King's Daughters, who entertained so enjoyably last year, at a colonial dinner and dance, have changed their nationality, but not their ability to give one of the most delightful affairs in the Plainfield social season. This year the young women will appear at the Park Club, Tuesday evening, April 14, as the very Dutchiest Dutch lassies and the decorations will not be out of order—not even a speck of dirt on the floor.

Whether or not the Dutch company of charity workers will wear the customary wooden shoes is still a matter of debate in the circle. Since the young women are to be the waitresses and since there is to be music during the dinner, it is probable that the wooden articles will be replaced by less noisy footwear.

With thirty-five young women to plan and prepare there should be nothing lacking in the category of food, and there certainly was no such oversight last year. Following the dinner, there will be plenty of dancing timed by the irresistible music of the VanEps. When the pennies have been gathered together and the bills paid, the young women will turn over the money for the support of local charities.

BOY IN CAR THREE DAYS WITH FRUIT BEYOND REACH

Cranford, April 2.—To be locked up in a refrigerator car for three days with nothing to eat, while just out of his reach he could see large, juicy fruit, was the experience of Benjamin Wickham, fourteen years old, appeared in the police magistrate's court here.

The boy lived in New York, where his uncle, Charles Wickham, still resides, but a year ago his parents moved to Florida. Longing to be back in New York, he said he had climbed into a refrigerator car in Jacksonville, Fla., and started north. The doors were locked and sealed upon him.

Young Wickham tried to get to the fruit but found that it was locked in compartments were it would be cooled by ice on the trip north. In that manner he starved and thirsted for three days until the car was opened near here and he was found.

The youngster' uncle was notified and came and got him, Magistrate Trimmer releasing him.

TWENTY PEOPLE KILLED BY DERAILMENT OF TRAIN

FIGHT FOR RUNKLE'S MILLIONS BEGINS

Hearing Opens in the Orphans' Court at Newark Today.

Court proceedings in the contest over the will of the late William Runkle, of Orange, involving $2,000,000, were begun in the Orphans' Court in Newark, this morning, before Judge William P. Martin. Harry G. Runkle, of this city, a brother of the testator, brought the action and he is the only living relative. Mr. Runkle claims that his brother made a more recent will than the one admitted to probate and that certain pages of the will produced were destroyed and other ones substituted.

Arthur C. Kroff, an expert on papers, was called as a witness, this morning, and testified that in his opinion there were no grounds for claiming that a sheet had been torn off and another one substituted. William E. Smith, the executor, and Catherine Kelley, a domestic in the employ of the late Mr. Runkle, who is one of the beneficiaries, also testified in the case today. The woman said that she had been instructed by her employer to turn over a packet of papers to Smith upon the testator's death and in this packet was included the will. Smith said that he had held a conference with Runkle shortly before the latter's death and at that time had been informed that he would be named as executor.

Robert H. McCarter, who appears as one of the lawyers for the beneficiaries, was unable to be in court today. Harry Runkle was represented by ex-Governor John W. Griggs, who pointed out at the opening of the case that when the will was offered for probate there were shreds of paper beneath metal clasps that held the pages of the document together. These shreds, the lawyer claimed, showed conclusively that the first page was not a part of the original will. When the will was admitted as evidence in court there were no shreds of paper attached and the stenographer who removed the clasps testified that she had not noticed the aforementioned shreds. The hearing will be continued tomorrow and Monday.

WALTER LEWIS DIES FOLLOWING AN OPERATION

Walter Lewis, a former resident of this city, living on East Fifth street, died this morning at his home in Paterson. He had been ill for a long time with an infected limb, amputation being impossible because of his weakened condition. During the past three weeks he had been semi-conscious most of the time.

Mr. Lewis was a contracting painter and paper hanger and was well known locally. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Harold Phillips, of Chicago. The latter came East last week and was at her father's bedside when he passed away.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

SENATOR O'GORMAN.

Faces Wilson Opposition if He Delays Tolls Bill.

Senator O'Gorman of New York, who is chairman of the interstate canal committee, has decided not to call the members of his committee together until next Tuesday. An ultimatum went forth from the White House to the committee. It was that unless that body promptly reports the repeal bill the administration forces in the senate will, an estimated majority of sixteen, will summarily force the committee's hand. President Wilson has decided, after conferring with his advisers, that the rules of the senate shall not be permitted to delay immediate action on the measure on which he has set his heart.

COULD NOT LIVE ON SALARY OF $26,000

Didn't Cover the Bare Expenses, Vogel Testifies.

New York, April 2.—Frank E. Vogel, associate of Henry Siegel in the huge mercantile and banking enterprises which have collapsed, took oath before Commissioner Gilchrist in the federal court today that he could not meet his mere living expenses on his yearly salary of $26,000.

He found it necessary, he said, not only to borrow from a Chicago bank to make ends meet, but also to draw upon his wife's personal income.

With the belated appearance of the banker in court following an illness which his lawyers asserted makes his examination dangerous to his health, there came a positive confirmation of the rumor, heretofore unsubstantiated, that wealthy relatives and friends of Vogel in Chicago have already invested $1,000,000 in the Chicago department store and have raised in addition $450,000 to be put into the general fund for the payment of creditors and depositors on condition that Siegel and Vogel are given a chance to rehabilitate themselves and shoulder the responsibility of paying up in full.

Levi Mayer, a Chicago attorney, who is acting on behalf of the western relatives and friends of Siegel and Vogel, was authority for this announcement. Mr. Mayer, who arrived in New York today and came directly to the hearing, wanted it clearly understood that none of the $450,000 would be used in the defense of Siegel and Vogel, nor would he make any move to compel the case of the government against the two men. He estimated, however, that in the very nature of the circumstances the $450,000 would be applied to pay off the mercantile creditors and bank depositors only in order that Siegel and Vogel were in a position to bond themselves to pay back all their creditors in full.

"I'm afraid they will do this in the penitentiary," said Mayer.

Mysterious Epidemic In Factories Causes More Employees to Quit.

St. Petersburg, April 2.—The strike caused by the epidemic of a mysterious malady in factories here is spreading rapidly. Many factories are affected, and the number of workers who have quit through fear of contagion is now about 70,000.

There were several demonstrations in the streets, and the workers clashed with the police. One hundred rioters were arrested. Some were injured.

The owners of the Trouzoinik rubber factory, which is one of those affected, have granted a holiday with pay to the employees.

NEEDLEWORK

DESIGNS FOR EMBROIDERING STOCKINGS

With summer gowns one's slippers and stockings are important items, and this season hosiery will be embroidered with small flowered designs, placed above the instep. These designs are worked in the color of the stocking with ribbosine, rope silk or filo silk. When stamping black stockings use a yellow transfer pattern and slip a piece of blotting paper inside so that the color medium will not go through the fabric to the other side of the stocking. Before doing this work, it is a good idea to baste a piece of table oil cloth inside as the material is apt to pull and of course it is impossible to put stockings into a frame when working them. Pattern 14666 includes sprays for stamping two pairs of stockings also several little wreaths. 14590 is taken from a border which includes many of these daisy motifs while 14664 is part a waist-design including collar and cuffs, the sleeve motifs of which may be used on stockings. 14110 includes six transfers each, of three designs appropriate for hosiery, while 14234 is a border which includes three.

Hot-iron guaranteed transfer patterns for stamping these designs may be supplied in blue or yellow on receipt of price, 10 cents. Nos. 14110 and 14234: 15 cents for Nos. 14666, 14664, and

PREPARING CAULIFLOWERS.

IN selecting a cauliflower be sure that it is firm and white. A pinch of soda dropped into the water in which it is boiled will neutralize the odor in cooking.

With White Sauce.

Cauliflower and Tomato Souffle.—Wash the cauliflower well, tie in cheesecloth and boil in salted water until tender. Drain and separate the tufts. Butter a baking dish well and put in a layer of tufts, then a layer of canned tomatoes. Sprinkle salt, pepper and little celery salt over the tomatoes. Fill the dish up in this manner until all the cauliflower is in, having tomatoes for the top layer. Make a cupful of white sauce. Add to it, when removed from the fire, the beaten yolks of two eggs, then add three tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, and last of all fold in the beaten whites of the eggs. Pour this over the cauliflower and tomato and lightly cover with a layer of dry breadcrumbs moistened with butter. Bake half an hour in a very moderate oven. Serve as soon as done.

Novel Way of Cooking.

Cauliflower Fritters.—Cook a cauliflower in the usual way and when quite cold separate the flowerets. Make a sauce as follows: Two tablespoonfuls of flour, two of butter, about the same quantity of chicken broth and cream, the beaten yolk of an egg, seasoning of pepper and salt and a tablespoonful of gelatin, which should be softened by water. Stir all well together, and when it thickens dip the pieces of cauliflower in it until thoroughly coated, then stand them away to cool. When firm dip into prepared batter and fry a nice brown. These can be served alone as a vegetable entree. To make the batter beat up one or two eggs with a quarter of a pint of milk and use one or two tablespoonfuls of flour. Season with a little salt.

Baked Until Brown.

Cauliflower au Gratin.—Take four cupfuls of cauliflower, one and a half cupfuls of milk, two tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter, five to six tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, salt and pepper as needed. Cut the cauliflower in sections, leaving only enough of the stems to hold each flower together. Wash, then cook in a kettle of boiling water until tender, then drain. Place milk in double boiler, rub butter and flour smooth with a little of the hot milk, and salt and pepper to taste. Stir the flour and butter into the milk and cook until thickened. Place cauliflower in pudding dish, pour the milk over, cover with grated cheese and bake until a golden crust has formed.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Moonlight Party of the Moths And Butterflies.

They Had a Good Time.

EVELYN asked daddy as soon as he got in the house if it was yet time for butterflies or any of the moth family.

"That question reminds me," said daddy, "of a party the gray night flying moths gave the other night.

"Some of the moths and small butterflies were there—in fact, as many of the moth and butterfly family who were up and ready for the summer. The ortrices, the tineids, the black streaked brown butterflies, the blue butterflies and the elfins were all there. So, you see, they really did have quite a large party.

"But it was given by the gray night flying moths, and it was given on a bright moonlight night. They chose a very lovely old fashioned garden for their party.

"The moon was shining brightly and made the nicest light. The stars winkled and blinked way up in the sky, just as if they were in the party too. At least they did seem to be trying to help along the gayety of the party by being just as bright as they possibly could be, and they looked down over the party just as if they wanted to look very, very merry.

"The man in the moon was winking and grinning and saying:

"'Ha, ha; it does my heart good to see a fine party and more especially to see all the little butterflies and moths once more having a good time!'

"They certainly did have a good time. They danced such fairy-like dances, and they watched their shadows under the moonlight. They all felt so glad to be alive and dancing, and playing once more did make them happy.

"After they'd danced for some time they had a supper of apple worms and delicious fruit buds. They had danced so long that it seemed nice to have a supper party all together. They all sat on the bushes and ate their supper. But after it was all over they still wanted the party to continue. So the gray night flying moths said:

"'No one must go to bed yet. The party isn't quarter over. We'll feel you are not having a good time if you go home so soon.'

"All the other butterflies and moths chimed in at once:

"'Oh, gray night flying moths, you are most wonderful moths, and you give the most marvelous parties! None of us has ever had such a fine party before, and we certainly do not want to go home. We'll stay ever and ever so much longer—until very, very late.' At that the moon again winked and grinned and said:

"'I'm going to stay up all night, so why shouldn't all you moths and butterflies? I like company, and I like to be amused, and you can't make me sleepy or tired.'

"So the party continued for a good long time."

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER IX.

I HAVE said before that I do not know anything about the law. I believe that the Ladley case was unusual in several ways. Mr. Ladley had once been well known in New York among the people who frequent the theaters, and Jennie Brice was even better known. A good many lawyers, I believe, said that the police had not a leg to stand on, and I know the case was watched with much interest by the legal profession. People wrote letters to the newspapers protesting against Mr. Ladley being held. And I believe that the district attorney in taking him before the grand jury hardly hoped to make a case.

But he did, to his own surprise I fancy, and the trial was set for May. But in the meantime many curious things had happened.

In the first place, the week following Mr. Ladley's arrest my house was filled up with eight or ten members of a company from the Gaiety theater, very cheerful and jolly and well behaved. Three men, I think, and the rest girls. One of the men was named Bellows, John Bellows, and it turned out that he had known Jennie Brice very well.

From the moment he learned that Mr. Holcombe hardly left him. He walked to the theater with him and waited to walk home again. He took him out to restaurants and for long street car rides in the mornings, and on the last night of their stay, Saturday, they got gloriously drunk together—Mr. Holcombe, no doubt, in his character of Ladley—and came reeling in at 3 in the morning, singing. Mr. Holcombe was very sick the next day, but by Monday he was all right, and he called me into the room.

"We've got him, Mrs. Pitman," he said, looking mottled, but cheerful. "As sure as God made little fishes, we've got him." That was all he would say, however. It seemed he was going to New York and might be gone for a month. "I've no family," he said, "and enough money to keep me. If I find my relaxation in hunting down criminals, it's a harmless and cheap amusement, and—it's my own business."

He went away that night, and I must admit I missed him. I rented the parlor bedroom the next day to a school teacher, and I found the periscope affair very handy. I could see just how much gas she used, and although the notice on each door forbids cooking and washing in rooms, I found she was doing both; making coffee and boiling an egg in the morning, and rubbing out stockings and handkerchiefs in her washbowl. I'd much rather have men as boarders than women. The women are always lighting alcohol lamps on the bureau and wanting the bed turned into a cozy corner so they can see their gentleman friends in their rooms.

Well, with Mr. Holcombe gone and Mr. Reynolds busy all day and half the night getting out the summer silks and preparing for remnant day, and with Mr. Ladley in jail and Lida out of the city—for I saw in the papers that she was not well, and her mother had taken her to Bermuda—I had a good bit of time on my hands. And so I got in the habit of thinking things over and trying to draw conclusions, as I had seen Mr. Holcombe do. I would sit down and write things out as they had happened and study them over, and especially I worried over how we could have found a slip of paper in Mr. Ladley's room with a list, almost exact, of the things we had discovered there. I used to read it over, "rope, knife, shoe, towel, Horn"—and get more and more bewildered. "Horn"—might have been a town, or it might not have been. There was such a town, according to Mr. Graves, but apparently he had made nothing of it. Was it a town that was meant?

The dictionary gave only a few words, beginning with "horn"—hornet, hornblende, hornpipe and horny—none of which was of any assistance. And then one morning I happened to see in the personal column of one of the newspapers that a woman named Eliza Shaeffer of Horner had day old Buff Orpington and Plymouth Rock chicks for sale, and it started me to puzzling again. Perhaps it had been Horner and possibly this very Eliza Shaeffer—

I suppose my lack of experience was in my favor, for, after all, Eliza Shaeffer is a common enough name, and the "Horn" might have stood for "hornswoggle" for all I knew. The story of the man who thought of what he would do if he were a horse came back to me, and for an hour or so I tried to think I was Jennie Brice trying to get away and hide from my rascal of a husband. But I made no headway. I would never have gone to Horner or to any small town if I had wanted to hide. I think I should have gone around the corner and taken a room in my own neighborhood or have lost myself in some large city.

It was that same day that since I did not go to Horner Horner came to me. The bell rang about 3 o'clock, and I answered it myself, for with times hard and only two or three roomers all winter I had not had a servant except Terry to do odd jobs for some months.

There stood a fresh faced young girl, with a covered basket in her hand.

"Are you Mrs. Pitman?" she asked.

"I don't need anything today," I said, trying to shut the door. And at that minute something in the basket cheeped. Young women selling poultry are not common in our neighborhood. "What have you there?" I asked more agreeably.

"Chicks, day old chicks, but I'm not trying to sell you any. I—may I come in?"

It was dawning on me then that perhaps this was Eliza Shaeffer. I led her back to the dining room, with Peter sniffing at the basket.

"My name is Shaeffer," she said. "I've seen your name in the papers, and I believe I know something about Jennie Brice."

Eliza Shaeffer's story was curious. She said that she was postmistress at Horner and lived with her mother on a farm a mile out of the town, driving in and out each day in a buggy.

On Monday afternoon, March 5, a woman had alighted at the station from a train and had taken luncheon at the hotel. She told the clerk she was on the road, selling corsets, and was much disappointed to find no store of any size in the town. The woman, who had registered as Mrs. Jane Bellows, said she was tired and would like to rest for a day or two on a farm. She was told to see Eliza Shaeffer at the postoffice, and as a result drove out with her to the farm after the last mail came in that evening.

Asked to describe her—she was over medium height, light haired, quick in her movements and wore a black and white striped dress with a red collar and a hat to match. She carried a small brown valise that Miss Shaeffer presumed contained her samples.

Mrs. Shaeffer had made her welcome, although they did not usually take boarders until June. She had not eaten much supper, and that night she had asked for pen and ink and had written a letter. The letter was not mailed until Wednesday. All of Tuesday Mrs. Bellows had spent in her room, and Mrs. Shaeffer had driven to the village in the afternoon with word that she had been crying all day and bought some headache medicine for her.

On Wednesday morning, however, she had appeared at breakfast, eaten heartily and had asked Miss Shaeffer to take her letter to the postoffice. It was addressed to Mr. Ellis Howell, in care of a Pittsburgh newspaper.

That night when Miss Eliza went home, about half past 8, the woman was gone. She had paid for her room and had been driven as far as Thornville, where all trace of her had been lost. On account of the disappearance of Jennie Brice being published shortly after that, she and her mother had driven to Thornville, but the station agent there was surly as well as stupid. They had learned nothing about the woman.

Since that time three men had made inquiries about the woman in question. One had a pointed vandyke beard; the second, from a description, I fancied must have been Mr. Graves. The third, without doubt, was Mr. Howell. Eliza Shaeffer said that this last man had seemed half frantic. I brought her a photograph of Jennie Brice as "Topsy" and another one as "Juliet." She said there was a resemblance, but it ended there. But of course, as Mr. Graves had said, by the time an actress gets her photograph retouched to suit her it doesn't particularly resemble her. And unless I had known Jennie Brice myself I should hardly have recognized the pictures.

Well, in spite of all that, there seemed no doubt that Jennie Brice had been living three days after her disappearance and that would clear Mr. Ladley. But what had Mr. Howell to do with it all? Why had he not told the police of the letter from Horner? Or about the woman on the bridge? Why had Mr. Bronson, who was likely the man with the pointed beard, said nothing about having traced Jennie Brice to Horner?

I did as I thought Mr. Holcombe would have wished me to do. I wrote down on a clean sheet of note paper all that Eliza Shaeffer said—the description of the black and white dress, the woman's height and the rest—and then I took her to the courthouse, chicks and all, and she told her story there to one of the assistant district attorneys.

The young man was interested, but not convinced. He had her story taken down and she signed it. He was smiling as he bowed us out. I turned in the doorway.

"This will free Mr. Ladley, I suppose?" I asked.

"Not just yet," he said pleasantly. "This makes just eleven places where Jennie Brice spent the first three days after her death."

"But I can positively identify the dress."

"My good woman, that dress has been described to the last stilted arch and colonial volute in every newspaper in the United States."

That evening the newspapers announced that during a conference at the jail between Mr. Ladley and James Bronson, business manager at the Liberty theater, Mr. Ladley had attacked Mr. Bronson with a chair and almost brained him.

Eliza Shaeffer went back to Horner after delivering her chicks somewhere in the city. Things went on as before. The trial was set for May. The district attorney's office had all the things we had found in the house that Monday afternoon—the stained towel, the broken knife and its blade, the slipper that had been floating in the parlor and the rope that had fastened my boat to the staircase. Somewhere—wherever they keep such things—was the headless body of a woman, with a hand missing, and with a curious scar across the left breast. The slip of paper, however, which I had found behind the baseboard, was still in Mr. Holcombe's possession, nor had he mentioned it to the police.

Mr. Holcombe had not come back. He wrote me twice asking me to hold his room, once from New York and once from Chicago. To the second letter he added a postscript:

Have not found what I wanted, but am getting warm. If any news, address me at Des Moines, Ia., general delivery. H.

It was nearly the end of April when I saw Lida again. I had seen by the newspapers that she and her mother were coming home. I wondered if she had heard from Mr. Howell, for I had not, and I wondered, too, if she would send for me again.

But she came herself, on foot, late one afternoon, and, the school teacher being out, I took her into the parlor bedroom. She looked thinner than before and rather white. My heart ached for her.

"I have been away," she explained. "I thought you might wonder why you did not hear from me. But, you see, my mother"—she stopped and flushed. "I would have written you from Bermuda, but—my mother watched my correspondence, so I could not."

No, I knew she could not. Alma had once found a letter of mine to Mr. Pitman. Very little escaped Alma.

"I wondered if you have heard anything?" she asked.

"I have heard nothing. Mr. Howell was here once, just after I saw you. I do not believe he is in the city.

"Perhaps not, although—Mrs. Pitman, I believe he is in the city, hiding."

"Hiding? Why?"

"I don't know. But last night I thought I saw him below my window. I opened the window, so if it were he he could make some sign. But he moved on without a word. Later, whoever it was came back. I put out my light and watched. Some one stood there, in the shadow, until after 2 this morning. Part of the time he was looking up."

"Don't you think, had it been he, he would have spoken when he saw you?"

She shook her head. "He is in trouble," she said. "He has not heard from me, and he—thinks I don't care any more. Just look at me, Mrs. Pitman. Do I look as if I don't care?"

She looked half killed, poor lamb.

"He may be out of town searching for a better position," I tried to comfort her. "He wants to have something to offer more than himself."

"I only want him," she said, looking at me frankly. "I don't know why I tell you all this, but you are so kind, and I must talk to some one."

She sat there in the cozy corner the schoolteacher had made, with a portiere and some cushions, and I saw she was about ready to break down and cry. I went over to her and took her hand, for she was my own niece, although she didn't suspect it, and I had never had a child of my own.

But, after all, I could not help her much. I could only assure her that he would come back and explain everything and that he was all right and that the last time I had seen him he had spoken of her and had said she was "the best ever." My heart fairly yearned over the girl, and I think she felt it, for she kissed me shyly when she was leaving.

With the newspaper files before me it is not hard to give the details of that sensational trial. It commenced on Monday, the 7th of May, but it was late Wednesday when the jury was finally selected. I was at the courthouse early on Thursday, and so was Mr. Reynolds.

The district attorney made a short speech. "We propose, gentlemen, to prove that the prisoner, Philip Ladley, murdered his wife," he said in part. "We will show first that a crime was committed; then we will show a motive for this crime, and finally we expect to show that the body washed ashore at Sewickley is the body of the murdered woman and thus establish beyond doubt the prisoner's guilt."

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association.
Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. H. E. Parker, chairman;
Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. J. L. Evans.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

Under the auspices of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, will be held the Third International Child-Welfare Convention in Washington, April 22-27. The Department of State of the United States government, cooperated by sending the invitations to every nation to be represented, and many have accepted. Dr. Elizabeth Sloan Chesses, of Great Britain; Miss Mary Ledyard, of Foo Chow, China; Mme. de Ortiz Coffigney, of Havana, Cuba; Mrs. Abel Renard, of Buenos Aires, Argentine Republic, Madame Ali Kuli Kahn, of Persia, and Mrs. D. N. Furnajieff, of Sofia, Bulgaria, are among the delegates.

Among the topics to be discussed at this congress will be: "Home and Child Welfare," April 24; "School and Child Welfare," April 25; "Church and Child Welfare," April 26; "State and Child Welfare," April 27. There will be opportunity for delegates to visit Mount Vernon, Georgetown, Fort Meyer and other interesting places. The social events in connection with the convention will be a reception given by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, at the White House at 2 o'clock, April 23.

Mrs. Frederic Schoff presents the following rules governing membership and representation:

"Mothers' Circles and Parent-Teacher Associations pay per capita ten cents. The representation for such association is the president and one representative for each fifty members, and one representative additional for each hundred members thereafter. Other organizations approved by the congress may affiliate by payment of three dollars a year for clubs of less than a hundred members, or five dollars a year for those having over a hundred members. Such organizations are entitled to send one delegate to the congress. Associate members pay $3. They are entitled to reserved seats, participate in discussion of the questions of child welfare to be considered at the congress and vote on the measures for child welfare recommended by the congress. National delegates appointed by other nations will have an entire day given to their reports of child welfare in their home country. They will have reserved seats and vote on measures that may be recommended for adoption."

Elizabeth Towne in an interesting editorial for the April Nautilus makes this truthful statement:

"The chief cause of degenerate homes and children is poverty. It is society's duty to relieve by law—and not as charity—the stress of poverty; and at the same time send into the home its district nurses and settlement workers to educate the family in ordinary every day efficiency of living. If the older people in the home are too set in their shiftless ways, and cannot be trained, will not do their part, then the children should be taken away from that home and put into better ones. But always there should be provided for children the loving home influence, the sympathizing, encouraging influences, and not the institutional influence."

Each mother to a certain extent, at least, is a law with herself in the rearing and training of each individual child, but it seems to me that patience should be one of the crowning virtues of motherhood, always and at all times.

The mother who loses her temper and patience in governing her child, loses her sense of justice at the same time. There is a mother in Plainfield who has four splendid, well-trained happy children, one who looks well to the ways of her household, and who cultivates patience. She believes a child's training should begin in babyhood. When asked to give an instance of just how she began with her babies, she said: "When one of my children was about six months old, he crept up to a stand and pulled off a valuable cup. I couldn't allow him to have it, so I then and there gave him his first hard lesson in self denial. I took the cup away from him, placed it back upon the stand, and at the same time tried to make him understand that he must not have it. He immediately grasped it again, and again I put it back. We went through this process again and again, he taking it off and I putting it back upon the stand, until finally something seemed to awaken in his little brain and then he knew he mustn't take it. It took me nearly two hours to teach the lesson, but he never again in his babyhood offered to touch that cup."

What infinite patience and what a valuable lesson taught! The babe, whose sense impressions are naturally vague, had already formed the habit of association. He eventually discovered by some intricate process of his undersloped mentality that the possession of the cup, associated with his mother's attitude toward that act, did not gratify him, and he knew enough to let alone.

It is surprisng how we come into our own when we give up personal ambition; when we think, not of our success, but of the success of the world. If I can lose myself in my work that I forget all about my part in it, the work succeeds marvelously; but if I think, how much am I going to get out of this and how many hours do I have to work? then the work is hard. I labor and there is no joy in it.

The child does not work in that way. Work, to it, is play; and play is work. Our advanced school teachers discovered this law and they are about to revolutionize present systems of instruction.

Let us, then, become as little children in all that we do. Let us put aside all thought of how the work is going to affect us. The important thing is, is it right, is it necessary to the betterment of men? Innocent receptivity relieves one of conceit. It broadens the mental horizon by showing us how great are the possibilities of wisdom in man.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

Children's frocks are never fussy if the mother has good taste. American children are noted for the plainness and attractive simplicity of their dresses and coats. As wash materials are generally used they are always fresh and clean as well. If dark materials are used, a bright ribbon on the hair or at the throat gives the required bit of color and is a becoming note.

No. 7867 is a long-waisted dress for a child of from 8 to 14; it shows a blouse with an adjustable shield, sailor collar and full length sleeve; the skirt is a four-piece design, attached to a separate underwaist.

As plain linen is so popular just now, this dress would be an excellent model for a plain white or colored linen; the collar, cuffs and straight stitched belt could be of a contrasting color and material if desired.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes; 8, 10, 12 and 14.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, passing the tape around the fullest part of the breast well up under the arms.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

WORLDLY FALL PRECEDES UPLIFT

GOD'S GRACE NEEDED

Prof. B. P. Stout Again Impresses Large Audience With Songs at Revival Services in Park Avenue Baptist Church.

Despite the inclement weather another large congregation attended the revival at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, to enjoy the service of sermon and song, which opened with a song service led by the chorus choir in charge of William N. Runyon, after which a number of testimonies were given.

Prof. P. B. Stout, the gospel singer, sang "The Singer," the story of a catastrophe which resulted in the death of P. P. Bliss and his wife with one hundred and fifty-two other passengers on a railroad train on December 29, 1878. Only a short time before his death Mr. Bliss was heard singing the hymn, and as he passed away he sang "Go Bury Thy Sorrow."

Just before the sermon, Prof. Stout sang "The Sword of the Lord and of Gideon." Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire took for his text, last night, "And he said, who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest." Continuing the speaker said: "There are a few lessons we might gather from this story First, A worldly fall sometimes precedes great spiritual uplifting. We will never amount to much until we are humiliated. Goldsmith said when he heard Jenny Lind sing, she lacked pathos that could only come from human experience; and not until Goldsmith broke the heart of Jenny Lind did she sing with the sympathetic touch.

"Secondly, the grace of God can overcome the worst of sinners. Oh, that you might hear the voice of God tonight. You persecute Jesus when you reject Him. It is not necessary to run a dagger into His heart—just turn a deaf ear to His pleadings and turn your back upon His gracious invitation and this will be the greatest persecution you can offer Him.

"Thirdly, there is hope for the worst. Oh, sinner, if you are here Jesus loves you as much as He loved Saul. It is mercy you want tonight not justice. If you and I had justice we would both be in hell—the wages of sin is death. Thank God, I accepted Him—my mother and father dedicated me to the Lord when I was born, and I just had to preach; I couldn't get away from it; their prayers just girded me until I fell at the foot of the cross and accepted Christ—do you accept Him tonight?"

After the sermon, Prof Stout sang "God is Willing, Are You?" and by request he sang again, "The Sinner and the Song," the story of one who has wandered from God and his mother's prayers, but is finally won for Christ through the hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul." The musical program for this evening includes "The Lost Ship of Procrastination," which will be sung by request; also the songs, "Shadows" and "A Clean Heart," and a duet by Mr. and Mrs Stout. The chorus choir sang several songs last evening from "Hallowed Hymns," the book which Prof. Stout used in his evangelistic work with "Gypsy" Smith. They will sing others at tonight's service.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

SAGE TEA KEEPS IT YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—Adv.

Forum Meeting Turned Into Discussion of That Plan For Coming Summer.

CHARLES FINE ADDRESS

Visiting Speaker Made Splendid Impression in Advocating Better Treatment of Young People—Merchants' Opinion of Saturday Plan.

Not since it was first started has there been so successful a meeting of the People's Forum as that of last night, when O. A. Charles addressed a large gathering in the Washington School. Following his address on "The Deserted Village" there was an interesting discussion of affairs in the city, including a very general expression by the leading merchants of the city on the question of closing their stores on Saturday afternoons during the summer months.

The meeting, which was under the joint auspices of the Forum and Business Men's Association, was presided over by Richard Henry Depew, who, in taking charge said that the city was fortunate in having a great number of people interested in civic affairs, even though it is hard to get out a large attendance at meetings. He commended the idea of using the schools for meetings such as that he addressed, and said that he hoped they would be more used in the future as "club houses for the people in opposition to the saloons," whose attractions he said were great enough to draw when no other means of amusement were provided. In the speaker's opinion the schools should be turned into clubhouses, with pool and billiard tables, if necessary, where the men of the city could congregate in the evening.

Introducing Mr. Charles, the chairman said that years ago the people of the East went West, but now we were beginning to look to the West for information, and that explained why Mr. Charles, who is president of the National Home Trade League, had been brought here from Muncie, Indiana, to tell of the work he is doing.

Mr. Charles is one of the most interesting talkers that has come to Plainfield in many years. Using many of the "slang" terms of the day, and illustrating his remarks with interesting personal anecdotes which frequently brought smiles and laughter from his hearers, he held attention for over an hour with his easy conversational style. While some of his remarks were a repetition of what he said to the merchants on Wednesday night, the greater part of his address was devoted to telling how the small towns and cities were being made attractive to the young people, so that they would not leave and go to the big cities. After brief introductory remarks, he said:

"If statistics are to be believed, the American country town is going out of existence. In the last decade the population decreased at the rate of 18 per cent., which in the State of Indiana, means that 100 young men a day went to the cities, and 50 of the girls. Of these 14 per cent. of the men went to the underworld, and 20 per cent. of the girls became outcasts, according to statistics compiled in Chicago. The flocking to the cities is one of the causes of the strong trend toward moral decay in the people.

"Another reason why the people leave the country is attributed to the high cost of living. Some people say the retail merchant is responsible for this. Let us see if this is true. The farmer does most of the producing in this country, and if the rural population decreases, there certainly is a dropping off in the number of people who produce the necessities. The percentage of producers in the country districts has dropped one-quarter in the last thirty years. Really the problem is that of the cost of high living. All the comforts of life, such as the telephone, free delivery of goods every day, and such things were not had by our fathers. If we don't want these advantages we do not have to have them, but we should not throw the harpoon into the merchant who gives them to us. Any man who can devise a better system of merchandising than is now in use in this country can accumulate a fortune that will make John D. Rockefeller look like a piker.

"The country town is the best place in the world except the farm, to raise a family, but the country boys all think that they have to go to the great white way in order to be successful. All that they read about as they gow up is the man who went from the country to the city and was successful there. That makes them think that they can all be successful. They do not give a thought to the ninety-nine per cent. who go to the cities and are failures. The reading of the life of Lincoln and Washington causes a lot of boys to leave home. The greatest help for this

"COLONEL" HACQUER NOW IN NEW MEXICO

Quits as War Correspondent to Be Editor of Paper in Alberquerque.

"Colonel" Archibald Hacquer, Plainfield's former well-known newspaperman and recent city editor of the Daily Press, has quitted the turbulent Mexican border near Juarez and moved to the quieter precints of Alberquerque, N. M. The change was made the past week as he was appointed city editor of the Daily News of that city, and immediately assumed his new duties. Mrs. Hacquer and her son, Robert, will join him next week, leaving Plainfield, Monday, via boat to Galveston. They are at present stopping with Mrs. Hacquer's sister, Mrs. P. A. McVoy, of East Front street.

In his letters to friends, the "Colonel" writes that his health is much improved and that in his new location he hopes to progress still further. The paper is published afternoons, making a welcome change from the night work that has been his lot for the past year. He was on the city desk of the El Paso Morning Times for six months, afterwards going to the vicinity of Juarez covering the Mexican troubles in that section for the International News Association. Hacquer is a born recounteur and his experiences as a war correspondent will furnish many interesting stories to his local friends, if he comes back to Plainfield permanently or on a visit. As it is, his host of acquaintances here wish him all success, prosperity and complete health in Alberquerque.

TWO NEW BRIDGES APPROVED BY BOARD

Will Be Built Over Cedar Brook at a Cost of $750 Each.

Elizabeth, April 3—Two new bridges over Cedar brook, at Sumner and Emerson avenues, were authorized at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Freeholders. They are to be built of reinforced concrete and steel and are to cost $750 each.

The bridge committee's report that steps will be taken to lower the bed of the stream if the owners of property abutting it consent, was also adopted. A new bridge at Pleasant place, Westfield, was also authorized, the cost not to exceed $1,000.

The board authorized the county road committee and county engineer to visit Detroit to inspect the roads there, with a view of adopting Detroit's style of paving as a substitute for the present hard surface roads in the county.

The county road committee plans for road improvements all over the county as previously reported, was endorsed. William J. McCloud was re-appointed to succeed himself on the board of managers of the Bonnie Burn Sanitorium.

This board sent a communication to the Freeholders, expressing regret over the death of Freeholder J. Logan Fay. Director Cady appointed Freeholder Hennessy to succeed him on the Freeholders' sanitorium committee.

G. Dwight Stone was appointed supervisor of the law library at a salary of $300. County Counsel Benjamin F. Jones, of Essex county, asked the board to endorse proposed amendments to the Widows' Pension Fund.

GOLDEN JUBILEE FOR DEAN SMYTHE

His Fifty Years of Ministry to Be Celebrated in Jersey City May 17.

FORMER LOCAL PRIEST

Was Rector of St. Mary's Church for Eighteen Years—Will Be Presented With Purse of $5,000 in Gold—Plans Being Perfected.

The parishioners of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, in Baldwin avenue, Jersey City, have plans underway for a State-wide observance on May 17 to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of Rev. Dean P. E. Smythe's admission to the priesthood. The venerable rector has been in charge of St. Joseph's since leaving Plainfield in 1901, after eighteen years of service for the members of St. Mary's church. What he did for the local parish, he has duplicated in Hudson county, and his golden jubilee is to be made one of the most auspicious affairs of the kind ever held in New Jersey.

The celebration will be held in the Orpheum theatre, Jersey City, and will be directly in charge of the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's church.

Surrogate John P. Egan has been made permanent chairman of the committee of arrangements and his direct assistants are Daniel J. Dunn, vice chairman; Thomas H. Neary, secretary, and Rev. James J. Owens, treasurer. Men of State and National prominence will participate in the program and virtuoso entertainers will furnish vocal and instrumental music. The entire Catholic clergy of the Newark and Trenton dioces will be invited.

One of the features planned for the jubilee is the presentation to Dean Smythe of a purse of gold amounting to $5,000. This will be collected from the aged priest's friends, the individual amounts being small in order to permit all to share in the offering. This matter is in the hands of a special committee which has divided Hudson county in districts. Contributions are also to be received from former parishioners in other places.

Dean Smythe, or Father Smythe, as his thousands of Plainfield friends and admirers prefer to call him, came to St. Mary's parish in 1883, succeeding Father Morris. Under his leadership, the church advanced rapidly, in a few years becoming one of the most influential in the Newark diocese. The present parochial school on West Sixth street was built through his efforts, the original convent house and the Young Men's Catholic Lyceum were also brought about by his work. In 1901 he succeeded in clearing the last dollar of debt from the handsome church edifice and it was dedicated in the fall of that year. It was shortly afterward that Father Smythe was transferred to Jersey City. The parishioners of St. Mary's have always held him in high regard and many of them will join in the golden jubilee.

BOARD OF TRADE WILL HEAR ABOUT NEW BANK TAX LAW

President William Jeffery, of the Board of Trade, has made arrangements for what promises to be an interesting meeting next Tuesday night. Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Union county, will be present to explain the new bank tax law, which he fathered in the Legislature, and the local bankers are being urged to attend and ask questions. Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield will also be present and discuss the subjection of consolidation. After the meeting refreshments will be served under the direction of the entertainment committee, of which J. V. E. Vanderhoef is chairman. A large attendance is expected.

SUTTON—MAZOTAS.

Miss Charlotte Sutton, daughter of Mrs. Katherine Sutton, of Watchung avenue, yesterday became the bride of Leo J. Mazotas, of New York, in the presence of but a few intimate relatives and friends at St. Mary's R. C. church. Rev. Father Bogan, pastor of the church, officiated. A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride. The young couple left on a short trip after which they will make their home at the residence of the bride's mother for a short time.

VICTIM RESTING COMFORTABLY.

Clarence Higgins, the boy who had his foot crushed in attempting to alight from a moving freight train near Richmond street, yesterday afternoon, was reported as resting comfortably in Muhlenberg Hospital today. The foot was so badly mangled that amputation above the ankle was necessary shortly after he was brought to the institution.

WILL ASK BIDS FOR ALL CITY SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Education Board Cannot Tell How Much Tax Money Will Be Needed as Yet.

The Board of Education held a special meeting, last night, in the High School building, which was entirely devoted to consideration of the budget for the year 1914-1915.

Much preliminary work was accomplished, and the various items which make up the budget were referred to the proper committees.

Between now and the fifteenth of May, when the Board of Estimate and Apportionment meets, the exact amount of expenses for the coming school year will be ascertained, and it is probable that within the next week or ten days, advertisements for bids will be published for some of the larger items of expense.

The proportion of school taxes which will have to be raised locally cannot, of course, be determined until the amount of the State tax is fixed. This year the amount is even more uncertain than usual on account of the Hennessy bill, now in the Legislature, which, if it becomes a law, will materially increase the amount of school money to be raised by local levy.

BILL DISMISSED IN CHANCERY CASE

Jersey City, April 3—The hearing was continued yesterday before Vice-Chancellor John Griffen, in the case of M. A. Delhaye, of Plainfield, to recover $2,619.74, which he is alleged to have put in the buildings situated on New street, between Fourth and Fifth streets.

The defendants named in the action were the J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company, Charles Neir, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Gertrude Welsh and the estate of the late Frank M. Bacou. Judge I. P. Runyon, of Plainfield, appeared as counsel for Loizeaux, and after proving conclusively to the court that his client was not liable, moved that the bill be dismissed against Loizeaux, and this was done.

The suit is based on an investment in the flats that were erected by the late F. M. Bacon on New street some years ago. The structure changed hands when Bacon was killed at the North avenue railroad station several years ago, becoming pinned between the iron fence that separates the east and westbound tracks and struck by a fast traveling express train.

MAY SEND STEAMER TO NETHERWOOD

Pending the Purchase of Another Motor Apparatus for That Section.

The question of giving the Netherwood section of the city better fire protection was discussed at some length at the meeting of the Councilmanic fire and building committee, last night. This was prompted by the experience at the fire last week when Ernest Hand's house was destroyed. It was the opinion of the committee that temporary relief could be provided by placing the steamer at No. 4 house in the Netherwood section. In the meantime the committee will see what can be done toward securing another apparatus for that house.

The committee has about decided to ask for an appropriation of about $55,000 for the coming year, which is $5,000 more than was given to the department, last year. This, the committee, believes will take care of the necessary expenses.

There was some discussion about the West Second street fire house, but the committee as a whole does not favor disposing of that property and abandoning that firehouse. It is claimed that the city would probably not realize more than $12,000 or $14,000 for the property and later on if the city wanted to locate another firehouse in the business section a tract of land would cost more than it could realize from the West Second street site and it would not be possible to get as good a location as the present one, and besides it is argued that there is not enough room in the other houses for all the apparatus.

TOLLS WOULD STIMULATE TRADE

EXPLAINS THE RATES

Praises Statesmanship of Premier Asquith in Taking up the Portfolio of War in England Regarding Home Rule.

Devoting her entire talk to foreign affairs, Miss Janet E. Richards, of Washington, gave the last of her series of thirteen lectures on "Current Events" before a large and appreciative audience at the Hartridge Auditorium, yesterday afternoon. This was a supplemental lecture, Miss Richards having been prevailed upon to review the latest events in foreign affairs, which are now engaging the attention of the world.

Referring to the Panama Canal free tolls repeal now before Congress, Miss Richards stated that those who are opposed to the repeal take the position that free use of the canal on the part of American vessels would stimulate ship building and commerce to such an extent that within a short time the tolls would aggregate $20,000,000 a year. On the contrary if tolls were charged it would not benefit the ship-building industry.

It is proposed to levy a tollage of $1.20 per ton, including the weight of the ships, as against a charge of $4 a ton, which was charged by the Panama Railroad Company. Miss Richards said that the Suez Canal charge was originally $2 a ton, then $1.80 and $1.40 and last year was reduced to $1.20 to compete with the Panama rates.

In speaking of the Suez Canal, Miss Richards explained that while it was not owned by England, it is owned and controlled by a company of shareholders, the majority of whom live in England, they having purchased the 170,000 shares which were previously held, but never paid for by the Khedive of Egypt.

Miss Richards praised the statesmanship of Premier Asquith in taking up the portfolio of war, believing that his policy had wrought a great solidarity of the Liberal party. She expressed the opinion that Asquith's position and influence would have a great deal to do with a solution of the present troubles.

Again referring to the controversy over the Panama Canal tolls question, Miss Richards expressed the belief that the debate in the Senate would last until July, at least, before being settled. She does not look for an early termination of the debate.

This season's lectures by Miss Richards have covered a wide range of subjects and she has presented them in such a concise manner that her talks have aroused the greatest interest among the women of Plainfield and vicinity. It was announced that Miss Richards would return in the fall to give another series of lectures.

CONCERT REPEATED.

The concert which was presented by the pupils of the Bryant School, Tuesday evening, was repeated yesterday afternoon under the direction of the principal, Miss Flora Griffen. The attendance was large and the program well rendered.

SEEKS VINDICATION FOR P. J. REVILLE

Investigation Has No Bearing on Postmastership Says Senator Martine.

According to a news despatch from Washington, yesterday, a postal inspector was ordered by Postmaster-General Burleson, to come to Plainfield with instructions to trace the case of Patrick J. Reville, former letter-carrier, who is now a candidate for the position of postmaster, and to report what grounds there were for the charges and the subsequent discharge of Reville in 1895, when he was a letter-carrier.

During the past week, Inspector Nichol visited Plainfield, as stated in the Daily Press, and called upon various citizens and examined the records in the cast at the postoffice. A preliminary search of the postoffice department's file in Washington for 1895, disclosed a score of letters written on Reville's behalf by United States Senator James E. Martine, who was then especially active in local Democratic politics in this city.

"This investigation has no direct bearing on Reville's candidacy for the postmastership," Senator Martine said. "Years ago, when they fired Reville out of the service, the Republicans were in power, and I am convinced now, as I was then, that there's no basis for the charges against Reville."

The Senator added that he had assured Mr. Burleson that the request for investigation had nothing to do with Reville's postmastership aspirations.

CREDITORS WIN IN CARNEY ESTATE CASE

Judge Beekman Names Jacob Shurts to Administer Affairs of Late Publisher.

Creditors of the estate of the late David J. Carney have won the decision in their effort to secure the appointment of an administrator, and Judge Beekman, in the Somerset county court, at Somerville, this morning, named Jacob Shurts, of Somerville, to take charge of the Carney property. His brother, Andrew Carney, has sought the appointment as next of kin, but the creditors claimed that he had had no experience in the printing business, and was not a competent person to close up the Carney estate, or continue it in business. William A. Coddington of this city, represented the petitioning creditors, who were William L. Smalley and M. C. VanArsdale, both of this city. W. S. Angleman represented Andrew J. Carney.

The hearing in the case was held Monday at Somerville, and Judge Beekman, after evidence had been presented to him to show that Andrew Carney was not a competent person to conduct the business of the Monarch Printing Company and The Review, the judge reserved decision. He has decided that every contention made was sound. Mr. Shurts will take charge of the estate at once, and it is thought that there are enough assets to cover all liabilities.

POLICE SEEKING A WHITE SLAVER

RESULT OF FLIRTATION

Parents of Kidnapped Girl Aroused to Action When She Failed to Return Home Last Night—Thomas Coppenhaven, the Fugitive.

Charged with violating the Mann White Slave Act, Thomas Coppenhaven, until recently a resident of Clinton avenue, is being sought by the police of this and other States, today, in response to a general alarm sent broadcast by Police Chief Kiely, of the local force, last night. Members of the family and friends of fifteen-year-old Ruth Naylor are up in arms as the result of the alleged abduction of the girl from the premises of the Stillman School, where she was a pupil and before nightfall the Plainfield police head expects to have the criminal lodged in a cell. The wires between here and Jersey City and in parts of Pennsylvania were kept burning last night by Chief Kiely, who sent a description of the man to every city which he will be likely to visit, requesting the apprehension of the pair.

Miss Naylor is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Naylor, of 322 Lee place, and her mother is on the verge of a nervous breakdown as the result of the incident that has attracted State-wide interest. As the result of a thorough investigation on the part of the police and the Daily Press the true facts surrounding the case have been ascertained.

Coppenhaven came to Plainfield to live last summer and was employed at the Saurer Motor Company's plant on Clinton avenue. While in this city he lived with his brother on that street, but the latter has since moved to Elmira, N. Y. During the summer months he became acquainted with Miss Naylor and appeared to be infatuated with the girl. In the fall he secured a position as draughtsman in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad at the latter's shop in Sunbury, Pa., and left Plainfield for that place. Following his removal the couple began a correspondence, many of the letters that passed between the two being discovered by the girl's mother last night, tied up in a small packet.

Mrs. Naylor knew of her daughter's acquaintance with Coppenhaven and begged her to ignore his letters because of her youth. This the girl refused to do and as a result Coppenhaven came to this city last Saturday and took up his residence with William Hutchcroft, of 221 Clinton avenue. He was the guest of the Naylor family at supper, Saturday night, and showed marked attention to the daughter, according to the mother of the girl. Mrs. Naylor described the fugitive, this morning, as being effeminate and rather unattractive.

The Naylor family did not see Coppenhaven again and thought nothing more of the relations of the girl and man until last night, when she failed to return home from school. Investigation conducted this morning revealed the fact that Miss Naylor left school without permission at 11:10 o'clock. During the morning she received a telephone call, presumably from Coppenhaven and it is thought that the two agreed on a mutual meeting place for the recess hour. A girl and man answering the description of the two purchased tickets for Jersey City at the Central Railroad station and boarded the 11:59 train for that place. The ticket agent says that the man inquired for tickets to Buffalo, but was told that he would have to go to New York to purchase them.

The girl's father appeared in police headquarters this morning as complainant against Coppenhaven and every effort is being made to apprehend the couple. Coppenhaven is a man twenty-two years of age, but looks much younger. The girl is a pupil in the seventh grade of the Stillman School.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A birthday party was given last night, in honor of Miss Cora Neller, of Elm place, the affair being arranged by Mrs. William Sparks. The rooms were prettily decorated, the color scheme being red and white. Games, music and dancing were enjoyed by the many friends of the hostess who were present. Refreshments were served.

The borough will now be called upon to meet an expense of between $300 and $400 to cover the cost of the making of a new tax map so as to comply with the State law of 1913. Such is the case in the borough as the map has been declared void and April 1, 1915, has been set as the date when the new map must be completed. There will be many changes on the map, as fully half the land in the borough has changed hands since the making of the old map. Most of this is due to the Lockwood development. Fanwood township is in the same position as the recently completed tax map, costing $1,400, has been declared unfit to be used when examined by the board and another map will have to be made. Very few places in the State have been fortunate enough to have the tax maps come up to the requirements.

Lockwood, of Westfield, who is the owner of a large tract of land in this place which he is rapidly building up, stated that in the three years he has been interested in borough improvements that he had spent nearly $10,000 in the opening of new streets and that he thought it was up to the borough to keep them in shape. Included in the streets cut through by Mr. Lockwood are the following: On the north side of the C. R. R. of N. J., Watson and Willoughbee roads and Elm and Oak avenues. The dinner of the athletic association was a success in every way, the attendance being large, and the menu an excellent one. It was served by the women of the church, young women acting as waitresses. William S. Woodruff, the president of the association, was the toastmaster, and the addresses of the evening were delivered by William V. Steele, Mayor of Somerville; A. M. Beekman, speaker of the Assembly; Dr. Austin Scott, Mayor of New Brunswick and president of Rutgers College; Manuel Gonzalez, consul from Costa Rica, and George T. There was also a large attendance at the lecture of the Public Education Society, the illustrated address being delivered by George N. Crosson, "Rome," illustrated with lantern slides. REVIVAL AT HOPE CHAPEL IS LARGELY ATTENDED

The series of evangelistic services at Hope chapel under the direction of R. M. Honeyman, opened last night with a large congregation present. The singing was led by a chorus choir under the direction of Thomas G. Hendry. This part of the services will be greatly strengthened by Sunday evening.

The speaker took for his text, Matthew 7:16; "By their fruits, ye shall know them." He especially referred to the necessity of prayer and Bible study for the development of the Christian life. Active service also was brought out by Mr. Honeyman, who insisted that without this, the Christian became a useless part of the church, not accomplishing much harm, but failing at the same time to realize any great results from their profession of Christ. These services will continue tonight and next week through Easter Sunday.

SATURDAY HALF HOLIDAY

condition will be to get more people to go back to the country."

Mr. Charles then told of his belief that the best way to help the small cities and towns is to organize all the people in them. He repeated many of his remarks of the night before regarding organization, which were told in last night's Daily Press, laying especial emphasis on the necessity of providing proper amusement for the children and young men and women, telling a number of interesting stories about what is being done in some cities to make the home town more attractive and busier.

"The time has come to wake up and give the boys and girls what they want. I led a fight against the ministers in our town in favor of Sunday baseball. If the Master was the kind of a man who would stoop down in a ditch on Sunday to aid a fallen animal, would He oppose the boys having healthy outdoor exercise on that day? It is fine to see you throwing open your schools for public dances and such things. Out in Muncie we have voted dry and closed everything up. We have the old Plymouth blue laws beat a mile, and as a result of refusing the young men and women the chance for real enjoyment under the right sort of conditions, the conditions have become so bad during the past year that I cannot tell of them to a mixed audience. It would be better to dance in the churches than to have conditions such as there are now in Muncie, and I'm a member of the church

"Last night I was talking to a man here. He berated all of the men like Mr. Jeffery, who are really trying to do something for the people, and when I asked him why he did not pitch in and help, he said, 'What do I get out of it?' That is exactly what is the trouble with too many men. They are always looking for something for themselves. If you expect to get results in any community you must all get behind a organized movement and make it win, forgetting all about your individuality. Have some patriotism for your home town. Just now we are showing too much national patriotism, and not enough for our home towns."

When Mr. Charles had finished his remarks Mr. Depew spoke of the need of getting together to fill some of the great number of empty houses in the city, and told of an experience which he had in trying to get the real estate men to combine for their mutual advantage. He said that he hoped that the meeting would result in starting a movement to bring about co-operation between the commuters and the local people for the benefit of all, and then called for public discussion. One of the audience told of his idea for getting more people back to the farms by capitalists loaning the money to those who would return to work them, and Mr. Charles said that the only hard part of that job would be to get "the capitalists to loosen up."

Miss Bail, one of the teachers at the High School, started a lively discussion when she asked Mr. Charles what he thought about the movement which had been started by the civic committee of the College Club to have the local stores close on Saturday afternoons and evenings during the summer months. She said that the mental happiness which they would gain from a day and a half of straight vacation was of more advantage than closing for part or all of a day during the week.

President Jeffery, of the Board of Trade, said that he thought that the merchants would be more willing to close one afternoon a week, but would probably be opposed to doing it on Saturday. He then offered a resolution endorsing the work of the Recreation Committee and calling on the City Council to appropriate $1,500 to continue the work next year. After the resolution had been passed without a dissenting vote, Mr. Jeffery moved that the meeting adjourn, but before the adjournment could be voted on Samuel Rothberg said that the city was only as large as its merchants made it, and he believed that the merchants should be heard from on the Saturday half-holiday project.

Harry W. Marshall said that he would close his place a half day if the others did it, but that he thought that some of the merchants should be called on, and suggested that A. E. Force, as president of the Business Men's Association, should be the first one asked.

Mr. Force said that he, for one, would like to see the plan tried this year and that as an experiment the Saturdays during August be selected, the stores keeping open Friday night, as they do in Newark and New York.

Another man, who said that he was one of the "roosters" in the city, being a commuter, said that his family had bought more in Plainfield during the past two months due to the activity of the Merchants' Association, than at any time since he moved here, and that he felt sure that the closing would not in the slightest manner affect the number of purchases which he made.

Max Tepper said that his firm had closed on Thursdays all day during August for five years, but that if the majority of the stores closed Saturday for half a day, they would be with that majority and remain open Thursday. M. C. VanArsdale thought that the half-holiday could be secured if the local plants would pay off on Friday, and he would join the crowd. Samuel Rothberg said his store would be closed if the rest were, but that he knew all wanted to build Plainfield up until it was the best city in the United States. Herbert Schuldenfrei, speaking for the Woodhull & Martin store, felt sure his corporation would join with the others in any movement, and Herman Schwed said that his firm could be counted on in any combined effort to close on Saturday. Harry Marshall said that if the problem of having the stores close early was a difficult one the women urging it should do the work of seeing the various storekeepers.

Champlain L. Riley then suggested that the matter be put up to the members of the College Club and the consumers, who could show the merchants that they would pledge themselves not to trade out of town in case the stores were closed. If such a program were adopted the matter could be accomplished in his estimation. Miss Ball agreed that the women would do their full share in the matter.

The meeting adjourned after passing a vote of thanks to Mr. Charles for coming to Plainfield, and doing the work he had done for the merchants.

Plainfield, N. J., April 3, 1914.

NO GRAFTERS HERE.

President Jeffery of the Board of Trade told the Somerville merchants at a dinner at which he spoke recently, that they should get their newspapers to give their organization advertising space, in order to present the story of "buying at home" The Plainfield dailies give such space, and they are reaping a reward in increased business from some of the members of the Association. The Unionist-Gazette, published at the Somerset county seat, however, takes occasion to criticize Mr. Jeffery, and says that his scheme would make "grafters" of the merchants.

For a newspaper, published in what is supposed to be an enlightened community, the opinion expressed is the most remarkable one that we have heard. Here in Plainfield the Business Men's Association has been formed to stimulate home trade, thus developing more business for everyone. The Daily Press believes that any movement of this kind should be encouraged, and that is why liberal space is given, almost daily, to be used for the purpose of urging the people to "buy at home." It is no more to be considered in the light of grafting than is the publishing in the news columns of the paper of notices about gatherings of Boards of Trade or other civic bodies, or the publishing of sporting items which are of interest to the general reader.

Anything which stimulates home trade, helps the local newspaper. If the people are awakened to the fact that they should do more buying at home than they now do, and we believe that the Business Men's Association is accomplishing much on that line through their advertisements, the merchants who are members of that association are going to use more space in the newspapers to tell the new people who have been attracted to the local stores all about their wares.

Mr. Jeffery is too broadminded a a man to suggest to any man that he try to get free advertising space to exploit his individual business, or to ask any newspaper to give space to a body which might use it solely for its own advancement. In fact the men in the Business Men's Association would be the last persons to ask for free notices. They realize that without daily newspapers Plainfield would be literally "the deserted village" which Mr. Charles took as his topic last night. Certainly our Somerville friend has taken the wrong track in his attack on Mr. Jeffery's very excellent suggestion, and the only way he can square himself is to offer to his Somerville merchants a reasonable amount of space every week in his paper to be used in the broadest manner possible to attract more trade to Somerville.

Those who were fortunate enough to hear O. A. Charles, who spoke twice here under the auspices of the Merchants' Association and the People's Forum, are congratulating themselves on having been present. Mr. Charles gave the merchants a straight-from-the-shoulder talk, and he showed them clearly where they could materially improve their store service. Then he made an able address last night before the Forum, which brought an interesting discussion afterward. There is not a person who heard him talk that was not benefitted by his remarks, and the action of the Business Men's Association in bringing him here is decidedly commendatory. The organization is proving to be the most active one from the point of view of the merchant that the city has ever had.

It begins to look as if Patrick J. Reville and his friends in town would be able to testify to the truth of the old adage that "he who laughs last laughs best," for Senator Martine has suddenly developed such an interest in Reville's case that it looks as if he might have more than a passing chance of getting the local postmastership. The Senator has secured an examination of the old records regarding Reville by a postoffice inspector, sent on from Washington especially for the purpose. In the meantime, pending the announcement of the appointment the rest of the fifty-seven varieties of candidates are expectantly awaiting the outcome.

One feature of the work of installing the new street lights in the center of the city which is regrettable, is the condition in which the brick pavement has been left wherever it has been torn up. Perhaps the Public Service officials are contemplating the relaying of all the bricks when the weather gets settled, but if they are not the city officials should take a hand and see that a better job is done. When bricks are properly laid there is no excuse for seeing joints, but in the case of the holes for the lights not only are the joints very imperfect, but in many cases the re-laid bricks are either above or below the level of those immediately surrounding. The city spent a lot of money for the brick pavements, and they should be kept in perfect condition.

Dr. H. M. Maxson, supervising principal of the Plainfield public schools will be the contributing editor for tomorrow's issue of the Daily Press. He will tell about the serious problem confronting the Board of Education in the proper housing of the pupils of the public schools, and of some of the things that it is hoped will be occomplished to relieve this condition. At the present time the subject of the schools is the most talked about one in the city, and we know that everyone will carefully read everything that Dr. Maxson has to say.

The Boston courts have upheld a will of John Chancellor Crafts in which he set aside $1,200 a year for the maintenance of his pet dog. Crafts explained that he preferred to do most anything with his money rather than let profligate relatives waste it. Despite his precaution it looks as though the coin will go to the bow-wows anyhow.

Up in Sunbury, Pa., the citizens are trying hard to deport a Greek who trampled on an American flag while in a fit of anger. If they succeed some of the statesmen who have been kicking the constitution around lately will probably be exiled to Siberia.

Dr. Mary Walker pauses to say that a late President of the United States asked her on two occasions to marry her, but she refused because he smoked cigars. Now who dares to say the weed has no redeeming feature?

It took the various civic bodies a long while to bring about the new street lighting but now that it is an accomplished fact the result shows that the effort was well worth while.

STORK HOVERS O'ER FORT BLISS

American Women Sewing For Mexican Babies.

MERCHANTS DONATE GOODS

Little Brown Arrivals at the Rate of One a Day In Refugees' Camp—Discarded Army Shirts Are Used to Fashion Dresses For the Tots Born In an Alien Country.

Several sons and daughters of battle have been born to Mexican mothers in the barbed wire stockade at Fort Bliss, Tex., since the 5,000 Mexican federal army prisoners and their families reached there from Presidio, Tex.

When the exodus from Ojinaga occurred after the two weeks of warfare many babies were carried across the Rio Grande in the arms of their camp follower mothers. In the quarantine camp established by the American Red Cross many babies were born and were immediately vaccinated against the dread black smallpox.

On the seventy mile overland march down the Presidio-Marfa mountain road a baby was born at the first way side camp. While the federal soldiers and their followers were waiting to be transferred to Fort Bliss from the El Paso Union station an eighteen-year old Mexican girl gave birth to a wee waif in one of the day coaches of the prison train caravan. A ragged shawl was its only layette and a seat in a dirty day coach its place of nativity. The baby lived.

A Birth a Day.

Every day since the Mexicans arrived at the end of the strange pilgrimage at least one baby, and once five, has been born within the confines of the big stockade. The maternity ward in the prison hospital is filled. The mothers and children are being cared for by the hospital corps of the United States army and are being fed from the diet kitchen.

The quartermaster does not list layettes among soldier supplies, but many dresses have been improvised from discarded army shirts. One baby is wrapped in a scarlet lined cape of an artillery overcoat, another has an olive drab army shirt for a nightgown while a third is bundled in an old Mexican federal coat.

Women Aid Mexican Mothers.

When the El Paso women learned of the condition of the children at the prison camp they organized an auxiliary of the Red Cross society to sew clothing. Merchants are donating bolts of goods for dresses and gowns, and the women meet every afternoon to sew and make the tiny garments. One woman brought the little layette which she had made by hand for a baby that did not live long enough to wear it.

Other mothers have been digging in old chests and have brought out treasures from the childhood of their grownup children. These donations are being sent to the prison camp to clothe the little brown babies who have been born in an alien country.

MILK TONIC FOR ILL PUPILS.

Innovation Is Adopted For Anaemic Immigrant Children.

The Health Protective association of New York has decided to furnish milk and eggs to anaemic children in Public School 62, one of the largest schools on New York's east side, having about 3,000 pupils.

Miss Minnie Obermeyer, assistant principal, says that at least 10 per cent of her pupils are anaemic and some, she believes, are inclined to tuberculosis.

"It is so with all immigrant children," she declares. "They are insufficiently nourished, and we can't keep them from sleeping in air tight rooms."

The milk and eggs will be charged for—perhaps a penny a glass for the milk and a penny or two for the eggs. They will be served to those whom the school physician and school nurse decide to be in need of them at the noon recess and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

NEW FACE FROM HIS ARM.

Patient Now to Have a Nose Fashioned From Rib Cartilage.

With a part of his forearm substituted for new lips, Ross Allen, at a hospital in Baltimore, seems to be in a favorable way to have a large section of his face newly shaped.

Allen entered the hospital about two months ago with his face disfigured from an accident in a sawmill five years previously. His nose and lips were missing. A section of flesh shaped to the form of his lower lip was cut on his forearm and a grafting juncture made with the lip base. The arm was bound about the head until the grafting was complete. When sufficient adherence had taken place the lip section was severed from the arm and the lip shaped. The same procedure was followed in the upper lip treatment.

The surgeons now will try to build a new nose for him, using a piece of healthy cartilage cut from one of the ribs at the junction with the breastbone.

The Explorers club will celebrate the fifth anniversary of the discovery of the north pole on April 6 by giving a dinner in honor of its president, Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, U. S. members of the Explorers club. A notification of the celebration, however, has been sent to the leading geographical societies of the world and to distinguished foreign geographers and explorers. The notification reads as follows:

"The Explorers club will celebrate on April 6, 1914, the fifth anniversary of the attainment of the north pole by giving a dinner at the club rooms in honor of its president, Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, U. S. N. The club will present its first gold medal of honor on this occasion to the discoverer.

"The club feels that the memory of this day should be kept green in the annals of exploration, and so is forwarding this notification to such societies and individuals as are specially interested in the extension of geographical knowledge with its greetings and felicitations upon the day that it is about to celebrate and respectfully asks them to bear this date in mind and to join in spirit, at least, in its celebration."

WARREN 'PHONE ORDINANCES REJECTED BY UTILITY BOARD

Trenton, April 3—Upholding the contention of the West Jersey Toll Line Company that it is entitled to protection from competition within the territory which it serves, the Public Utility Commissioners refused yesterday to approve ordinances passed by four townships in Warren county, granting franchise to the Patrons Telephone Company.

In announcing its decision, the board stated that should the ordinances be revised in such a manner as to protect the West Jersey Company, application for their approval might be renewed. The ordinances in question were passed by the townships of Oxford, Knowlton, Hope and Blairstown. They were of a general blanket form, which would give the Patron's company a right to operate in any part of the various townships

"THE LOST SHIP OF PROCRASTINATION"

Gospel Singer's Earnest Plea Heard at Revival Services.

The revival service at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, was perhaps the most impressive of the entire series so far. Prof. Stout sang the gospel into the hearts of his hearers—particularly in the song, "The Lost Ship of Procrastination," which made a profound impression upon the hundreds of men and women present. The singer made an earnest plea for those lost in sin to accept the gracious help of Jesus as He stands close by, waiting to lift them up out of their sins into the sunlight of His glorious presence.

Prof. and Mrs. Stout sang with feeling the duet, "Saved By Grace." The gospel singers seemed to put a new meaning into this song. "Shadows" was another song rendered by Prof. Stout last evening; this was written by the pianist for Alexander, who was associated with Torrey, the evangelist, for years.

Following prayer by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, Prof. Stout sang with sweetness, "A Clean Heart," in which the sinner pleads, "O make me clean without—within, purge me with fire if need be, no matter how, if only sin die out in me." This was the expression of many a heart among the hundreds of men and women present last night, for a number signified their desire to be prayed for and to become followers of the Lord Jesus. God's presence was felt in great power in this service, and the vast audience left the church feeling that not only are souls being born into the Kingdom, but hundreds of those whose names now stand upon the church rolls are being quickened and mightily strengthened.

Mr. Maguire preached with more than his usual power on "The Vision of the Holy One." It was impossible to listen to his denunciation of sin and his earnest pleadings that every one present might accept the only way to salvation—a look at the Crucified One,—without feeling that he had been inspired of God to deliver the message that meant so much to those out of Christ.

Assisted by William N. Runyon, the chorus choir gave several selections from the song book which Prof. Stout has brought with him and tonight they will render others from the same book. This evening Prof. Stout will sing "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," "Be Not Afraid," which is the story of Peter walking on the water; "The Handwriting On the Wall," "De Gentle Shepherd;" and by request will repeat the song that touched every heart in the church when he sang it several nights ago—"Poor Ol' Brack Sheep."

CONSIDER IRRIGATION OF WESTERN LANDS

Secretary of the Interior Lane Issues Call for a Conference.

Denver, Col., April 3—The extension of irrigation projects so that in the course of time the entire arid West may be made to blossom as the rose will be the subject of discussion at an important conference to be held in this city next week. The conference will meet in response to a call issued last month by Secretary of the Interior Lane. The chief purpose will be to discuss a plan for practical co-operation between the different States and the Federal government in carrying out irrigation and reclamation projects on a much larger scale than has been attempted heretofore.

The present policy of the Federal government in regards to the reclamation of Western lands is not altogether satisfactory to the States most interested. It is believed that a new policy may be worked out that will be satisfactory to all concerned and at the same time accomplish better results in the great work of reclamation and conservation. The first and most important step in the opinion of those best acquainted with the subject, will be to devise a practical plan of Federal and State co-operation in cleaning up the many struggling Carey projects throughtout the West.

The States expected to participate in the conference are Oregon, Washington, Idaho, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, Montana, South Dakota, North Dakota and Utah. Tuesday next the governors of the most or all of these States are to meet here to arrange a program for the conference and to discuss various matters of common interest and importance.

The conference proper is to begin its sessions Tuesday. Assistant Secretary Jones of the Interior Department, has been designated by Secretary Lane to call the gathering to order and preside over the sessions. Governor Ammons, of Colorado, will deliver an address of welcome and responses will be made by Governor Spry, of Utah, and other of the visiting executives. In addition to the governors and the delegates appointed by them the attendance at the conference will include representatives of numerous irrigation companies and commercial, industrial and development organizations throughout the West. President Richard W. Young and other officers and prominent members of the National Irrigation Congress will be present.

After the conference completes its organization it will divide into sections for the consideration of various subjects relating to the general problem of irrigation and land reclamation. Included among the subjects that will receive attention will be co-operation between the Federal and State governments; adminstration and operation of the desert-land act; settlement of irrigated lands; Carey land projects; irrigation districts; crops, markets and finances, and ways and means of financing future irrigation projects.

NO EPIDEMIC IN BRUNSWICK.

New Brunswick, April 3.—It was reported Wednesday by Dr. Irving Cronk, medical inspector of the Board of Health, that up to Wednesday there were twenty-four cases of scarlet fever in the city. Reports had been circulated through the city that there was an epidemic of this disease and that one of the schools had been closed. These reports he denied. The city is without a hospital for contagious diseases and people in quarantined houses frequently fail to observe the rules of the Board of Health. This, it is believed, has caused the disease to spread.

Plainfield High School Girls Allow Visitors to Even up the Series.

In one of the closest games of the season in the local High School gym, the Plainfield High School girls' team was defeated by the Cranford High School girls' team by a score of 16 to 14, yesterday afternoon. In the first half Plainfield High School was handicaped by the absence of three of its regular players, Miss Good, Miss Mortimer and Miss Crane, but in the second half Miss Crane replaced Miss R. Morris, who had played an excellent game, scoring three field goals and one foul.

One minute before time was called, Miss Lewis caged the ball for the final score, ending the game in Cranford's favor at 16 to 14. Each team has now won a game and the deciding contest will be played off in the near future.

MURRAY AND CLABBY READY.

San Francisco, Cal., April 3—Jimmy Clabby and Billy Murray, who are to settle the question of relative supremacy in Coffroth's arena at Daily City tonight, have ceased training and are ready for the timekeeper's signal to start them on their 20-round contest. Each fighter expressed himself as confident of victory. Murray will be at a disadvantage in the matter of weight as well as ring experience, but his friends are confident of his ability to make a good showing. The bout will be the last in which Clabby will engage before he departs for Australia.

OLD LINEUP FOR N. P. H. S. OPENER

All of Last Year's Men Will Be in Game Against Roselle Tomorrow.

Baseball will be ushered into this city tomorrow afternoon when the North Plainfield High School nine will meet the team from the Roselle High School on Hyde Oval. The final practice was held this afternoon and, although the team had very little time the members expect to put up a good article of ball. All of the players were in full uniform yesterday and base running and bunting were added to the practice. The twirlers were given a sound workout. The infield is still a trifle slow, but it will be rolled thoroughly before the game which will harden it considerably.

All of the men that were in the game last year will take the field at the start although several changes have been made in their positions. Two of the outfield berths are yet uncertain and there are two or three recruits that may step into these places. "Dan" Denny will probably start in the box for the boroughites but all the rest will be used during the game. Regardless of how the contest goes all of the squad will be put in the fray at one time or another.

NASH PINNERS NO MATCH FOR VAN EMBURGH'S MEN

Nash's team in the Elks' Club Bowling Tournament was snowed under on the club alleys last night, by the VanEmburgh aggregation, the latter sewing up three matches in quick succession. All of the winning team's tallies were in the 800 class while the losing side knocked two for 600 and one in the 700.

The first match set the high team score for the evening when a score of 847 was returned by the winners. Two double centuries came into prominence during the evening, a 210 credited to VanBuren in the second session being the high individual mark of the series. Nash got an even 200 in the third game.

It is figured the batters made a total of 2,299 safe hits, an average of only .210. These hits were spread over 409 games and netted 1,124 runs, about 2.74 runs per game.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Those who make a casual survey of the sporting pages from time to time are probably aware of the fact that Plainfield stock occupies a conspicuous place in the collegiate sport world, but few have stopped to figure out just how prominently the Queen City has been represented of late. At the present time three intercollegiate champions are Plainfield-bred youngsters. Russell Miller, a graduate of the Plainfield High School, is a two time holder of the intercollegiate championship on the flying rings. Miller is a University of Pennsylvania man. Ray Dutcher, another red and blue graduate, competing under the colors of the New York University, won the intercollegiate Indian club swinging title and also holds the amateur title. Russell Lawrence Beatty, a graduate of Leal School, is captain of the Columbia University track team this year and holds the intercollegiate shot-put record. Many other Plainfielders are performing more or less conspicuously in baseball, track, basketball and football exhibitions held under the auspices of various colleges and each day something of interest breaks concerning these local boys who have made good in faster circles.

Manager John Meek, who handles the interests of Bob Fitzsimmons, visited this office yesterday afternoon, to pay a friendly call and incidentally set aside a number of detrimental rumors that have been circulated relative to the veteran fighter's recent fight with the boxing commission. When informed of the fact that certain Dunnellenites had been dabbling in sportography in an effort to place the fighter's claims before the public, Meek expressed much surprise and no little amount of indignation. As suggested in these columns Monday, the long editions compiled by certain rabid followers of the fight game and of Fitzsimmons, were drawn up entirely without authorization and Meek or the fighter had nothing to do with the attacks on the commission. Meek will supply the readers of these columns with first hand information concerning the advances made by Fitz in the ring and none but his statements will be given recognition in the future.

Watch the "Rod and Reel" tips published daily in these columns and you will be able to get some first hand information concerning the finny tribe that inhabits the waters of this State. The fishing news department of the Daily Press will keep tabs on the catches made in all parts of the State and we will publish the best places for hooking different kinds of fresh and salt water fish. This has always been a prominent feature of our sporting columns and we are planning to make it more interesting than ever before.

"Maranville will make a better side partner for me than Joe Tinker was," says Johnny Evers, of the Boston Braves. What we are anxious to learn now is what they intend to do with Jack Martin. Maranville seems to be the one best bet for the shortstop berth on the Braves.

A boxing authority who has recently returned from France says that France maintains the French Federation of Boxing, a body similar to the New York State Commission. He goes on to say that it is comprised of men in every walk of life whose interest in boxing is purely one of sport and not of financial consideration. But we can't see in what way it resembles the New York State body, if this latter statement is correct.

Maximus, evidently jealous of Bob Fitzsimmons' ability to draw free advertising, has announced his intention of entering the ring. Why not a bout between Fitz and Max right here in this State inasmuch as the Empire State Commission has put the kibosh on the old man of the ring?

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK FOR 1914 SEASON

Plainfield High School Has Some Star Veterans Left in the Fold.

The material for the football team of Plainfield High School for the season of 1914 is abundant and promising, and indications are that the team will be one of the best in the history of the school. Only four regular men will be lost from last year's team by graduation. These men are Snyder, halfback; Gavett and Butler, guards, and McKenzie, tackle.

There is plenty of material in the school to fill these places. The entire backfield from last year's team will be back on the job. Smith, the speedy freshman, who showed up so well in the backfield last year, and Greene, also one of the fastest little halfbacks in these parts, will do their work in circling the enemies' ends. Rosenson will be in his position at quarterback and Peacock at fullback. Noonan and Mann will probably hold down the end positions. Each of these men are fast and with their two years' of experience will be a terror to the opposing backs. With Pennock, the 200 pound guard back in school, and Berrien, last year's guard, the positions alongside of center will be well taken care of. DuBois and Herrmann will hold down the tackle positions. DuBois has played on the local team for the past three years and Herrmann for two years, so that each man will well be able to take care of his position. Wheelan will hold down the center position.

Coach Patch expects the team to be one of the fastest in the State. Mr. Woodman, the All-American fullback in 1910, will assist Mr. Patch in rounding the team to form.

ROD AND REEL

The proper equipment for trout fishing depends not only upon the season of the year, but upon the nature of the waters to be fished. In the early season better results will be obtained by using worms and fishing the streams from the banks through the bushes. Use a light rod and fifty yards of enameled line on a light reel, either single or multiple and small single gut hooks. Trout most always take bait early in the season in preference to the fly. In most trout streams there are alternate shallow and deep places. Spots where the water, flowing over the stones, cause the wavy appearance on the surface, are called riffles, and such spots are dear to the heart of the trout fisherman, for the fish are usually found close to the lower part of the riffles, or in deep pools which are generally immediately below it. Other favorite lurking places are under fallen logs or the roots of over hanging trees, or in pools formed by the turnings of the streams, and in shady looking places around rocks or boulders in the streams.

Varying results were obtained by trout fishermen in this State at the opening of the season yesterday. Reports from the northern part of the State show that fishing was fairly good there and some good catches were made in Morris and Sussex counties.

Local fishermen had neither a pleasant nor a very profitable day of it yesterday for the opening of the season. However, notwithstanding the inclement weather, there were many of the dyed-in-the-wool trout anglers out the first thing in the morning, and a few—mighty few—trout were taken. All of the streams in this section of the State were bankful of icy cold water, and the storm will probably keep them in that condition for several days.

The spring run of flounders is on, and most of the party boat owners on Long Island are getting their craft ready. Several of them were out this week, and some good catches, running all the way up to more than a hundred to the man, were made. The flounders are of good size, running from three-quarters of a pound, to two and three pounds. The best reports thus far have come in from Freeport, although both Wreck Lead and the Raunt have yielded good returns.

Ernest Napier, of East Orange, president of the Fish and Game Commission of New Jersey, said yesterday that it is now a statute of this State that all non-residents who wish to gun and fish within the borders of New Jersey must pay $10.50 for a license. For the privilege of fishing alone, in the fresh waters, a non-resident must pay $2.15. This does not apply to salt water fishing, which is free; only to the fresh waters of the State. The law goes into effect January 1, 1915.

The State of New York has abolished the antiquated law regarding the catching of trout and made the season uniform. Heretofore practically every county had a law of its own, but the Conservation Commission had the laws repealed and April 15 set as the opening day of the trout season. Many oldtimers didn't know of the change and took the train for their favorite stream and were surprised to learn that there was nothing doing. The State law is April 15 to August 31, both dates inclusive, as an open season. This accounts for the number of New York anglers who have been fishing in South Jersey since Wednesday morning.

A member of the fair sex wants to know if there is an artificial bait that resembles the worm, as she loves trout fishing, but cannot hook the worms, as it makes her shiver. We suggest a male companion to do the baiting or else get one of those imported rubber worms that are used extensively in England.

ORANGE PLAYERS THE REAL THING

Plainfield All Star Five Had to Go the Limit to Put Down a Decision.

SEVEN TIMES A TIE

Score Never Separated by More Than Four Points—Final Count Was 28 to 26—Foul Shooting Played Prominent Part in Victory.

All-Star representatives of Plainfield's basketball material had their hands full on the Saengerbund Hall court, last night, when one of the fastest aggregations ever seen in this city or the borough swept down on the locals from the wilds of Orange. Although Plainfield won by a court of 28 to 26, the score, while close falls far short of showing how formidable the losing side appeared. With the score tied on seven different occasions and never separated by a margin greater than four points the throng of spectators was given cause for plenty of lusty shouting and all told the contest and other features that attended it were well worth seeing.

While Plainfield got the jump on their rivals when Abrams caged the opening field goal, the visitors soon retaliated and the scoring was goal for goal during the entire encounter, the game ending as it had started, with Plainfield two points to the good. Foul shooting played a prominent part in the scoring of both sides, but neither team took advantage of half the opportunities accorded it for free throws. Plainfield made good on ten, thanks to Moulton, who shouldered the burden alternating with every other member on the team. The visitors could not find the basket in throwing fouls and counted for but four chances out of a score or more.

The fouls were mostly of the unintentional nature and a majority were levied on technical infractions caused by the slippery floor and closeness of play. The visitors displayed some wonderful teamwork and herein was harbored the cause for their downfall. After repeatedly working the ball up and down the floor they failed to take the many opportunities offered for field goal shooting, this backwardness in "taking chances" lost may possible two point tallies for them.

Otey and Townsend were the leading scorers for the losing side while Ricketts and Moulton upheld the Plainfielders' side. A single one-point shot separated the two teams at the conclusion of one-half of play and soon after the opening whistle of the second period the affair resolved itself into a bitter fight. One official from the Orange High School and a second one from Plainfield had charge of the contest and experienced considerable trouble in holding the players to exclusive basketball. Dancing followed the affair.

PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR MOTORCYCLISTS

Many Features Discussed at Last Night's Meeting of Local Organization.

At the meeing of the Plainfield Motorcycle Club, held in Depot Park, last night, twenty members being present, Henry Dresselt was elected financial secretary to succeed Alex. Herrlich, of New Market, as the latter has been under the weather recently. It was decided to purchase a club pin or emblem and Dieges & Clust were asked to make up a design. One new member was elected and the applications of two more were received. The ground committee reported having a number of pieces of property in view but will make no report until the weather settles so that they can be all looked into thoroughly.

The road captain announced the first club run as follows: The run to be known as "The Picture Run"—start at 9:30 a. m., April 19, out to Seventh street to Dunellen, Bound Brook, Somerville, Pluckemin, Bedminster, Far Hills, Bernardsville (dinner), Morristown, Madison, Chatham, Springfield, Westfield, Fanwood, Plainfield.

April 16 the regular monthly feed will be held. April 19 during the run a slow hill climb will be held, the man making the hill top in the slowest time will win, contestants who stall there motors after starting will be declared out. Julius Dickhundt, head of the initiation team, announced a novel affair for the next meeting. Short talks by President Auerbach, A. G. Bowlby, H. Alberts, H. G. Uhler, Jr., (club chef), F. A. M. Hampson and Bud Klein wound up a very interesting meeting.

Three months ago we plunged on Moire silks—at the time when prices were low, because it was not yet decided that these silks would reign in Spring modes. Now these silks are at a premium, and we have the coats at ridiculously small prices.

FINAL SPURT WON FOR HOLY CROSS

Holy Cross basketball players hung up another victory at the expense of the Nonpariel Juniors in the preliminary game on the Saengerbund Hall court, last night, the final decision being 24 to 16. During the first half and throughout a portion of the second the teams battled on even terms, but the churchboys possessed the greater amount of stamir and won out handily in the end.

The close rivalry existing between these factions made the fight a warm one while it lasted and some brilliant shots were pulled off by Hebert, from the center of the floor, and the McCrea brothers, Day and Green. A majority of the field goals were of the sensational variety and furnished some fine entertainment for the crowd.

HIGH SCHOOL POOL FOR PUBLIC'S USE?

Matter Will Come Before the Board of Education at April Meeting.

Ralph S. Patch, supervisor of athletics in the Plainfield High School, will appear before the Board of Education at its April meeting next Monday night and present tentative plans for the opening of the swimming pool being constructed in the addition to the West Ninth street building to the public during the summer months. It is planned to have the new tank in readiness on or about July 1 and it will be available for public use during the months of July and August.

The idea of having a public swimming pool in this city is one that has been fostered for a number of years and the suggestion of Mr. Patch will probably be accepted as the most plausible solution to the problem. While it will not be financed for use by the student body, this term the contractors are rushing the work and the new feature is now rapidly assuming form. It is sixty by twenty five feet in size and will be built exclusively of tile.

It is proposed to have competent supervisors in charge of the pool during the summer months and to have an admission fee of ten or fifteen cents. This latter matter is one that will have to be decided by the Board and it may be concluded best to abolish all fees. Dressing rooms for both sexes are called for in the plans and these will be completed with the pool.

Several years ago the city established a public swimming pool along the brook that separates Plainfield and North Plainfield and although this project met with popular approval from the younger set it failed to meet the needs and was abolished. Since that time many plans were suggested for supplying this want but all have gradually died away.

PLANS FOR NEW DRINKING FOUNTAIN

Young People's Temperance Society Will Seek Co-operation of Mayor Stewart.

Representatives of the Park Avenue Baptist, Grace Epicopal and Monroe Avenue M. E. young people's societies, together with those from the First Baptist, Friends, First M. E., First Presbyterian and Trinity Reformed churches, which originally constituted the membership of the Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U., held an interesting meeting last night, at the Y. M. C. A. The organization is undenominational and any young man or woman is invited to join and work for the abolishment of the liquor evil. The only requirement for membership is the signing of the pledge and payment of nominal dues.

Miss Clara Karner was elected general vice president, last night, and President Robert Butler was authorized to appoint a committee to interview Mayor Percy H. Stewart and seek his co-operation with the branch in erecting a new drinking fountain for Plainfield, as a substitute for the one near the city park, which has been discarded.

Miss Edith Hamilton, secretary, read a letter from the city attorney of Portland, Oregon, who is a nephew of Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, describing the advantages and effectiveness of a fountain in Portland where 80,000 out of a population of 250,000 were users of the fountain and statistics showed that many persons were thereby kept from strong drink.

It was announced that Miss Ruth Davis, of Japan, a graduate of Wellesley College, will be the speaker at a meeting to be held in May. The use of poster displays and other business-like methods was discussed. A number signed the pledge. A special social meeting, with good music and refreshments was announced for the evening of Tuesday, April 14, at Mrs. William J. Hamilton's residence at 407 East Seventh street. An address will be made based on the life of Mrs. Frances Barnes, a well-known temperance worker. There will also be an address on "What the W. C. T. U. Has Done, Is Doing and Hopes to Do." On April 30, the branch will attend the W. C. T. U. Institute.

P. H. S. ATHLETES AWARDED RED AND BLUE INSIGNIA

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Boys' Athletic Association, of the Plainfield High School, this noon, Robert Gavett was awarded his insignia for playing on the hockey team last winter.

Captain Hetfield, of last year's basketball team; Rosenson, McNamee, Snyder, Smiack and Peacock were also awarded their insignias.

BIBLE CLASS HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Interesting addresses, together with an attractive program of music marked the sixth annual banquet of Mrs. Louis Matlack's Bible class of young women at the First Baptist church, last night. This class numbers eighty-five young women and of that number fifty-five were at the banquet. The Sunday-school rooms were attractively decorated, there being a profusion of roses and carnations from the conservatories of Charles W. McCutchen, associate teacher of the class. These flowers will be taken to Muhlenberg Hospital today.

After an excellent dinner, Mrs. Matlack, who was toastmaster, introduced the various speakers. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the church, spoke on "The Individuality of the Rose," making a practical application. There were also interesting remarks by Arthur M. Harris, superintendent of the Sunday-school; Louis Matlack and Mrs. Matlack, while the address of the evening was made by Mrs. William Comstock, of Brooklyn, who is at the head of the Camp Fire Girls of America. She spoke on the topic, "What a girl can do to brighten the home," in which she offered many helpful suggestions to the yong women present. All of the remarks were greatly enjoyed.

Another feature was the violin selections by Miss Emma Vershuur, accompanied by Miss Lillian Teeter on the piano, piano selections by Miss Teeter and phonograph selections by Robert Sherwin. The attractive hand-painted place cards at the dinner was the artistic work of Miss Ethel King.

The committee in charge of the affair comprised Miss Carrie Coombs, chairman, Mrs J. P. Reynolds, Miss Helen Armstrong, Miss Lillian Teeter Miss Edna Beeching, Miss Edith Telfer, Miss Helen Pierce, Miss Gladys Leland, Mrs. Dan Randolph. This class, which is one of the largest for young women in the city, cordially invites those who are not identified with any Sunday-school to join and enjoy the many social and other features provided by Mrs. Matlack.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The late Clyde Fitch was once asked what play of his many he found most difficult in the writing. He replied: "'Captain Jinks, of the Horse Marines,' by far!" Asked why, the brilliant writer explained thus: "Because of the great difficulty I found in getting the atmosphere of the world of grand opera onto the dramatic stage so that it would be both the 'real thing' and still to the understanding of the general public." It is just that quality—the atmosphere of grand opera, its people, and its peculiarities—which runs through and stamps Edward Sheldon's "Romance," which will be given here for the first time tomorrow afternoon and evening, in the Plainfield theatre. The chief character is a brilliant primadonna of grand opera; her companion is a broken-down singer of the Italian school of opera; one of the chief masculine characters is a wealthy patron of grand opera; and so on. Mr. Sheldon, before writing "Romance," threw himself into the atmosphere of the singers; and theirs is a world all its own—a veritable realm of romance all unlike anything else.

DESIGNS FOR EMBROIDERING BABIES' CASHMERE SACKS

Little sacks such as these are always a necessity, even in warm weather, and they are welcome presents to the mother of a small baby. Cashmere, albatross, fine French flannel or lansdown are all appropriate materials for making them, and they may be embroidered in white, pink or light blue twisted or filo silk. 14168 is a circular sack which may be spread out flat to be laundered, as the sleeves are formed by tying washable ribbon through eyelets. The cutting pattern in six months size, is included in the transfer pattern. If one prefers, the edges of the sack may be bound with washable ribbon instead of being finished with the scalloping. This design should be embroidered in solid or eyelet work with twisted silk.

14326 is a closer fitting garment than the circular sack. This is made with under arm seams, and the pattern includes a little turn-over collar which may be omitted if one likes. The embroidery should be done in solid work using filo silk for the sprays and twisted silk for the buttonholed scalloping. A cutting is included in this pattern.

DELICIOUS EGG DISHES.

THE housewife who serves eggs often during Lent or desires to serve them in some novel way for the Easter breakfast would do well to study the following recipes:

Eggs au Gratin.—Boil them until hard. Slice them and cover them with cream sauce. Season well and put them into a casserole. Sprinkle the top with powdered crumbs and place bits of butter here and there; then bake until brown.

Baked In Potatoes.

Eggs In Potato Cups.—Bake any required number of large potatoes and when they are done cut a piece off the top of each and take out enough of the inside to make a cavity to contain a raw egg. Break in the egg, season with salt and pepper and cover each with a spoonful of cream sauce. Place the potatoes upright in a pan in the oven, cooking for fifteen minutes, and serve with a brown sauce.

Egg Fondu.—Allow two fresh eggs for each person to be served, grated Swiss cheese a third as much in quantity as the eggs, butter half the weight of the cheese. Put the butter and grated cheese into a saucepan and set over the fire. As they begin to melt break the eggs over them and stir briskly until well scrambled and incorporated with the cheese. A wooden spatula is best for this, but a fork or spoon will answer. Season with salt and pepper and serve hot.

A Savory Viand.

Egg Cutlets.—Boil half a dozen eggs for an hour, chill and take off the shell. Make a thick white sauce with two tablespoonfuls of butter, four tablespoonfuls of flour and a pint of milk. Simmer for three minutes, season with one teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of paprika, a dash of cayenne, one teaspoonful of onion juice and a dash of mace. Take from the fire, add the hard boiled eggs chopped coarsely and one tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Spread on a buttered dish and when cold form into cutlets. Dip each in slightly beaten egg, roll in fine dry crumbs and fry brown in deep smoking hot fat. Serve with a cream sauce.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

Brenda's Annual Easter Visit to the Children's Ward.

DADDY had seen a little girl that day, a little daughter of a great friend of his, and he had had quite a chat with her. He wanted, of course, to tell Jack and Evelyn all about it.

"What is her name?" was Evelyn's first question.

"Her name is Brenda, and I'm sure when I've told you about her you children will both want to meet her and know her.

"She told me that every year at Easter time she went to the head nurse of the big hospital and found out the names of all the children. Then she went shopping, and it took her a long time to pick out things for little sick children. She picked out for each child a big round chocolate egg which rattled, for inside it there were little sugar candies; also a chocolate chicken and a chocolate bunny. She always picked out ones that had lots of expression too. Around the egg she tied a big red ribbon, around the chocolate chicken's neck she tied a bright green ribbon, and around the bunny's neck she tied a bright purple ribbon. Then she put them in a little box and wrote on the box the child's name.

"Last year Brenda went to the hospital the day before Easter. It was far from being a pleasant day. There was a cold wind in the air and no sun.

"She arrived at the hospital just as all the little children had had their wounds dressed. They were lying in their little white cots trying to keep back the tears that wanted to come.

"Brenda asked the nurse if she could go inside with the gifts.

"'Yes, indeed!' said the nurse. 'The children would love that. The child's name in the first cot,' continued the nurse very softly, 'is Elsa. She has hurt her back, and no one knows how long she will have to lie there.'

"'Elsa,' said Brenda, 'happy Easter. A little chocolate bunny, a little chocolate chicken and a big chocolate egg all said they wanted to wish you a happy Easter.'

"Elsa opened her half shut eyes and clutched the box. She opened it eagerly. There they all were! And the chocolate bunny did have the funniest expression! He would have made any one laugh, and his purple ribbon bow was sticking way up on one side with such a saucy expression. Elsa burst out laughing. Afterward the nurse told Brenda it was the first time she'd seen Elsa laugh since she'd been brought to the hospital.

"Then Brenda took the rest of her boxes around to all the other little sick children. And such happiness as there was in the ward!"

"Oh, I wish we could go with Brenda this Easter!" said Evelyn.

"I knew you would want to help her," said daddy. "So I have already arranged it, and you shall meet her tomorrow."

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER X.

MR. LADLEY listened with attention. He wore the brown suit and looked well and cheerful. He was much more like a spectator than a prisoner, and he was not so nervous as I was.

Of that first day I do not recall much. I was called early in the day. The district attorney questioned me.

"Your name?"

"Elizabeth Marie Pitman."

"Your occupation?"

"I keep a boarding house at 42 Union street."

"You know the prisoner?"

"Yes. He was a boarder in my house."

"For how long?"

"From Dec. 1. He and his wife came at that time."

"Was his wife the actress, Jennie Brice?"

"Yes, sir."

"Were they living together at your house the night of March 4?"

"Yes, sir."

"In what part of the house?"

"They rented the double parlors downstairs, but on account of the flood I moved them upstairs to the second floor front."

"That was on Sunday? You moved them on Sunday?"

"Yes, sir."

"At what time did you retire that night?"

"Not at all. The water was very high. I lay down, dressed, at 1 o'clock and dropped into a doze."

"How long did you sleep?"

"An hour or so. Mr. Reynolds, a boarder, roused me to say he had heard some one rowing a boat in the lower hall."

"Do you keep a boat around during flood times?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did you do when Mr. Reynolds roused you?"

"I went to the top of the stairs. My boat was gone."

"Was the boat secured?"

"Yes, sir. Anyhow, there was no current in the hall."

"What did you do then?"

"I waited a time and went back to my room."

"What examination of the house did you make—if any?"

"Mr. Reynolds looked around."

"What did he find?"

"He found Peter, the Ladleys' dog, shut in a room on the third floor."

"Was there anything unusual about that?"

"I had never known it to happen before."

"State what happened later."

"I did not go to sleep again. At a quarter after 4 I heard the boat come back. I took a candle and went to the stairs. It was Mr. Ladley. He said he had been out getting medicine for his wife."

"Did you see him tie up the boat?"

"Yes."

"Did you observe any stains on the rope?"

"I did not notice any."

"What was the prisoner's manner at that time?"

"I thought he was surly."

"Now, Mrs. Pitman, tell us about the following morning."

"I saw Mr. Ladley at a quarter before 7. He said to bring breakfast for one. His wife had gone away. I asked if she was not ill, and he said no; that she had gone away early; that he had rowed her to Federal street, and that she would be back Saturday. It was shortly after that that the dog Peter brought in one of Mrs. Ladley's slippers, water soaked."

"You recognized the slipper?"

"Positively. I had seen it often."

"What did you do with it?"

"I took it to Mr. Ladley."

"What did he say?"

"He said at first that it was not hers. Then he said if it was she would never wear it again—and then added—because it was ruined."

"Did he offer any statement as to where his wife was?"

"No, sir; not at that time. Before he had said she had gone away for a few days."

"Tell the jury about the broken knife."

"The dog found it floating in the parlor with the blade broken."

"You had not left it downstairs?"

"No, sir. I had used it upstairs the night before and left it on a mantel of the room I was using as a temporary kitchen."

"Was the door of this room locked?"

"No. It was standing open."

"Were you not asleep in this room?"

"Yes."

"You heard no one come in?"

"No one—until Mr. Reynolds roused me."

"Where did you find the blade?"

"Behind the bed in Mr. Ladley's room."

"What else did you find in the room?"

"A blood stained towel behind the washstand; also my onyx clock was missing."

"Where was the clock when the Ladleys were moved up into this room?"

"On the mantel. I wound it just before they came upstairs."

"When you saw Mrs. Ladley on Sunday did she say she was going away?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see any preparation for a journey?"

"The black and white dress was laid out on the bed and a small bag. She said she was taking the dress to the theater to lend to Miss Hope."

"Is that all she said?"

"No. She said she'd been wishing her husband would drown; that he was a fiend."

I could see that my testimony had made an impression.

The slipper, the rope, the towel and the knife and blade were produced in court, and I identified them all. They made a noticeable impression on the jury. Then Mr. Llewellyn, the lawyer for the defense, cross examined me.

"Is it not true, Mrs. Pitman," he said, "that many articles, particularly shoes and slippers, are found floating around during a flood?"

"Yes," I admitted.

"Now, you say the dog found this slipper floating in the hall and brought it to you. Are you sure this slipper belonged to Jennie Brice?"

"She wore it. I presume it belonged to her."

"Ahem! Now, Mrs. Pitman, after the Ladleys had been moved to the upper floor, did you search their bedroom and the connecting room downstairs?"

"Are you sure this slipper belonged to Jennie Brice?"

"No, sir."

"Ah! Then how do you know that this slipper was not left on the floor or in a closet?"

"It is possible, but not likely. Anyhow, it was not the slipper alone. It was the other things and the slipper. It was"—

"Exactly. Now, Mrs. Pitman, this knife. Can you identify it positively?"

"I can."

"But isn't it true that this is a very common sort of knife? One that nearly every housewife has in her possession?"

"Yes, sir. But that knife handle has three notches in it. I put the notches there myself."

"Before this presumed crime?"

"Yes, sir."

"For what purpose?"

"My neighbors were constantly borrowing things. It was a means of identification."

"Then this knife is yours?"

"Yes."

"Tell again where you left it the night before it was found floating downstairs."

"On a shelf over the stove."

"Could the dog have reached it there?"

"Not without standing on a hot stove."

"Is it not possible that Mr. Ladley, unable to untie the boat, borrowed your knife to cut the boat's painter?"

"No painter was cut that I heard about. The paper hanger"—

"No, no. The boat's painter—the rope."

"Oh! Well, he might have. He never said."

"Now, then, this towel, Mrs. Pitman. Did not the prisoner on the following day tell you that he had cut his wrist in freeing the boat and ask you for some court plaster?"

"He did not," I said firmly.

"You have not seen a scar on his wrist?"

"No." I glanced at Mr. Ladley. He was smiling as if amused. It made me angry. "And what's more," I flashed, "if he has a cut on his wrist, he put it there himself to account for the towel."

I was sorry the next moment that I had said it, but it was too late. The counsel for the defense moved to exclude the answer, and I received a caution that I deserved. Then:

"You saw Mr. Ladley when he brought your boat back?"

"Yes."

"What time was that?"

"A quarter after 4 Monday morning."

"Did he come in quietly, like a man trying to avoid attention?"

"Not particularly. It would have been of no use. The dog was barking."

"What did he say?"

"That he had been out for medicine. That his wife was sick."

"Do you know a pharmacist named Alexander—Jonathan Alexander?"

"There is such a one, but I don't know him."

I was excused, and Mr. Reynolds was called. He had heard no quarreling that Sunday night, had even heard Mrs. Ladley laughing. This was about 9 o'clock. Yes, they had fought in the afternoon. He had not overheard any words, but their voices were quarrelsome, and once he heard a chair or some article of furniture overthrown. Was awakened about 2 by footsteps on the stairs, followed by the sound of oars in the lower hall. He told his story plainly and simply. Under cross examination admitted that he was fond of detective stories and had tried to write one himself; that he had said at the store that he would like to see that "conceited ass" swing, referring to the prisoner; that he had sent flowers to Jennie Brice at the theater, and had made a few advances to her, without success.

My head was going round. I don't know yet how the police learned it all, but by the time poor Mr. Reynolds left the stand half the people there believed that he had been in love with Jennie Brice, that she had spurned his advances, and that there was more to the story than any of them had suspected.

Miss Hope's story held without any alteration under the cross examination. She was perfectly at ease, looked handsome and well dressed, and could not be shaken. She told how Jennie Brice had been in fear of her life and had asked her, only the week before she disappeared, to allow her to go home with her—Miss Hope. She told of the attack of hysteria in her dressing room, and that the missing woman had said that her husband would kill her some day. There was much wrangling over her testimony, and I believe at least a part of it was not allowed to go to the jury. But I am not a lawyer, and I repeat what I recall.

"Did she say that he had attacked her?"

"Yes, more than once. She was a large woman, fairly muscular, and had always held her own."

"Did she say that these attacks came when he had been drinking?"

"I believe he was worse then."

"Did she give any reason for her husband's attitude to her?"

"She said he wanted to marry another woman."

There was a small sensation at this. If proved it established a motive.

"Did she know who the other woman was?"

"I believe not. She was away most of the day, and he put in his time as he liked."

"Did Miss Brice ever mention the nature of the threats he made against her?"

"No, I think not."

"Have you examined the body washed ashore at Sewickley?"

"Yes"—in a low voice.

"Is it the body of Jennie Brice?"

"I cannot say."

"Does the remaining hand look like the hand of Jennie Brice?"

"Very much. The nails are filed to points, as she wore hers."

"Did you ever know of Jennie Brice having a scar on her breast?"

"No, but that would be easily concealed."

"Just what do you mean?"

"Many actresses conceal defects. She could have worn flesh colored plaster and covered it with powder. Also, such a scar would not necessarily be seen."

"Explain that."

"Most of Jennie Brice's decollete gowns were cut to a point. This would conceal such a scar."

Miss Hope was excused, and Jennie Brice's sister from Olean was called. She was a smaller woman than Jennie Brice had been, very ladylike in her manner. She said she was married and living in Olean; she had not seen her sister for several years, but had heard from her often. The witness had discouraged the marriage to the prisoner.

"Why?"

"She had had bad luck before."

"She had been married before?"

"Yes, to a man named John Bellows. They were in vaudeville together on the Keith circuit. They were known as The Pair of Pillows."

I sat up at this, for John Bellows had boarded at my house.

"Mr. Bellows is dead?"

"I think not. She divorced him."

"Did you know of any scar on your sister's body?"

"I never heard of one."

"Have you seen the body found at Sewickley?"

"Yes," faintly.

"Can you identify it?"

"No, sir."

A flurry was caused during the afternoon by Timothy Senft. He testified to what I already knew—that between 3 and 4 on Monday morning, during the height of the flood, he had seen from his shanty boat a small skiff caught in the current near the Ninth street bridge. He had shouted encouragingly to the man in the boat, running out a way on the ice to make him hear. He had told him to row with the current and to try to steer in toward shore. He had followed close to the river bank in his own boat. Below Sixth street the other boat was within rope throwing distance. He had pulled it in and had towed it well back out of the current. The man in the boat was the prisoner. Asked if the prisoner gave any explanation—yes, he said he couldn't sleep and had thought to tire himself rowing. Had been caught in the current before he knew it. Saw nothing suspicious in or about the boat. As they passed the police patrol boat prisoner had called to ask if there was much distress and expressed regret when told there was.

Tim was excused. He had made a profound impression. I would not have given a dollar for Mr. Ladley's chance with the jury at that time.

It is a real pleasure to pick floor coverings from this stock—first, because of the dependability of the quality; second, because of the wide variety of patterns, colorings and grades, and third, because prices are fixed on the standard of quality.

The collection of Domestic Rugs is the largest in Newark, while the Orientals are equal to any in the State. 12 CITIES GET RESERVE BANKS Committee Names Centers Under Currency Law.

CAPITAL IS $109,898,902.

New York, Philadelphia and Boston Become the Reserve Centers of the East—Number Is the Full Limit. Now to Make the Appointments.

Washington, April 3.—The twelve districts and twelve reserve cities of the federal reserve banking system authorized by the new currency law were announced by the organization committee. This is the first formal step to be taken in the organization of the new banking system.

The cities designated as locations for the federal reserve banks are as follows: District No. 1, Boston; district No. 2, New York; district No. 3, Philadelphia; district No. 4, Cleveland, O.; district No. 5, Richmond, Va.; district No. 6, Atlanta, Ga.; district No. 7, Chicago; district No. 8, St. Louis; district No. 9, Minneapolis, Minn.; district No 10, Kansas City, Mo.; district No. 11, Dallas, Tex.; district No. 12, San Francisco.

The next step toward putting the new banking and currency system into effect will be the nomination of five persons, who, with the secretary of the treasury and the comptroller of the currency, will constitute the federal reserve board. It is expected that President Wilson will send these nominations to the senate early next week.

The organization committee exercised to the full the discretion vested in it to divide the country into reserve bank districts. In the organic law it is provided that there shall not be fewer than eight districts nor more than twelve, and in making the larger numerical division the committee responded to a strong demand from all parts of the country.

Method of Revision.

The act provides that the determination of the organization committee as to the location of the federal reserve banks "shall not be subject to review except by the federal reserve board."

If there is any dissatisfaction with the action of the committee it can only be remedied by the federal reserve board soon to be formed. The law provides that "the districts thus created may be readjusted and new districts may from time to time be created by the federal reserve board, not to exceed twelve in all."

The organization committee may at any time notify every national bank in the different districts to subscribe to the capital stock of the federal reserve banks. Within thirty days after such notice they must make such subscriptions to the extent of 6 per cent of their paid up capital stock and surplus. Under the law one-sixth of this is to be paid on call of the organization committee, one-sixth within three months, one-sixth within six months and the remainder "shall be subject to call when deemed necessary by the federal reserve board, said payments to be in gold or gold certificates."

The combined capital and surplus of the 7,475 national banks entering the system is $1,785,791,171, and the corresponding 6 per cent subscription to be paid will amount to $107,147,470. According to the theory of the authors of the measure, not more than one-half of this subscription will be required to be paid. If this theory is lived up to by the federal reserve board it will not call for the payment of the second half of this stock subscription, or any portion of that second half, unless justified by some emergency.

VILLA WIRES A TORREON VICTORY

Rebel Leader Says He Has Captured City.

CARRANZA RECEIVES WORD

Latest News Is Assumed to Be Authentic—Heavy Losses Reported on Both Sides—Over 800 Federals Were Captured—Lind to Return to United States.

BULLETIN.

Juarez, Mexico, April 3.—General Villa wired General Carranza that he has captured Torreon and is now in full control of the city. He has captured 800 federals. The loss of life is said to be heavy on both sides. This is the first word heard from Villa and is assumed to be authentic.

Washington, April 3.—John Lind, President Wilson's special representative in Mexico, will return to the United States at once. He will sail today from Vera Cruz to Galveston on the hospital ship Solace.

President Wilson in making this announcement insisted in emphatic terms that Mr. Lind had not been recalled. He said that the special envoy was returning to the United States in order to recover his health, which had become impaired by his long stay in Mexico.

The president said that Mr. Lind would return to Mexico should his presence there still be necessary after his health is fully restored. He is to go to French Lick Springs for an indefinite period, but whether he will come to Washington to consult the president before going there is not yet known.

The long expected arrival of General Huerta's federal re-enforcements at Torreon was reported to Senor Algara, Mexican charge d'affaires here, in a dispatch from the Mexican consul at El Paso. The message said that the federal column had entered the town and that the defenders of Torreon were still holding out and were confident of ultimate success.

The consul said Villa had expended his entire force and made his greatest effort and that the federals were in no danger of being driven from the city.

Terrazas Escapes.

New Orleans, April 3.—Luis Terrazas, Jr., the north Mexican millionaire held by Villa in Chihuahua for ransom, whose life has been several times in danger, is said to have escaped and to be on his way to Saltillo, whence he will proceed to Mexico City.

The manner of Terrazas' escape is not fully known, but it is said that the prisoner was aided by a former servant of the Terrazas family and a follower of General Villa.

Early in March it was reported that General Villa had made a demand on the Terrazas family for $250,000 in gold as the price of saving the prisoner's life. General Terrazas declared he had been ruined by the rebels and that he was unable to meet this further demand. He, however, offered to take his son's place and then appealed to the United States for protection. A hint from the state department in Washington brought Villa to his senses, and Luis Terrazas was given a degree of restricted liberty. The rebel guards kept him under surveillance, but he was allowed to live with several members of his family in the Terrazas palace in Chihuahua.

General Terrazas was once governor of the state of Chihuahua and a supporter of Porfirio Diaz. His son Luis is over fifty years old.

Juarez, April 3.—That Torreon is already virtually in the possession of General Francisco Villa's Constitutionalist force, but that Villa will not "officially announce" his victory until he is in absolute undisturbed control, was the assertion of a high official of the Constitutionalist government.

TO FIGHT CHILD LABOR BILL.

Canners Declare Measure Would Ruin Their Business.

Washington, April 3.—Atlantic coast canners are prepared to make an assault on the Palmer child labor bill. It became known that the house labor committee will reopen its hearings on the measure in order to give the canners an opportunity to voice their protests. The bill prohibits the interstate shipment of goods made by child labor. The canners declare that it would ruin their business. The committee will decide today on dates for the hearings.

REBEL BOAT RUNS IN FIGHT.

Federal Warship Chases Tampico Into Topolobampo Harbor.

Washington, April 3.—A naval battle between Mexican federals and Constitutionalists was reported to the navy department in a wireless dispatch from Rear Admiral Howard at Mazatlan.

A federal gunboat engaged the rebels' only gunboat, the Tampico, off the coast of Topolobampo. The battle lasted several hours, the rebel craft getting the worst of it and finally running away into Topolobampo harbor.

QUEEN ELEANORE TO VISIT AMERICA

Will Inspect Hospitals and Kindred Charitable Organizations.

Washington, D. C., April 3—President Wilson, who has confessed his extreme distaste for the formalities and ceremonies that are necessarily a part of his daily life, seems destined by the irony of fate to be the first occupant of the White House to be called upon to entertain a reigning Queen. Some time back the cable despatches told of an intended visit of Queen Eleanore, of Bulgaria, to the United States. These have now been officially confirmed and the time of the visit fixed for next month.

It will not be the first time that the anointed of the Lord have visited the United States. Most memorable of all the visits of royalty was that of the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII. The Grand Duke of Oldenburg, a reigning soverign, paid a visit to this country many years ago. Dom Pedro, of Brazil; Prince Henry, of Prussia, brother of the German Emperor; the Duke of Connaught, uncle of King George; several Russian grand dukes, and the Infanta Eulalie, of Spain, and numerous other representatives of royalty have been here from time to time. Even Czar Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, the consort of Queen Eleanore, has been a visitor to the United States. But Queen Eleanore will have the distinction of oeing the first reigning Queen who ever stepped foot in this country.

The visit of Queen Eleanore is not to be a visit of state. Nor is she coming over to be entertained by the social lights of New York and Newport. The primary purpose of her visit is to inspect the hospitals and kindred charitable organizations in this country. These are matters in which the interests of her whole life have been centered. While in this city she will confer with the officials of the Red Cross Society. Not only is her Majesty intimately acquainted with Red Cross work, but she is an expert nurse with years of practical experience.

In the Russo-Japanese war Queen Eleanore, who at that time was Princess Eleanore of Reuss, wore the uniform of the Red Cross sisters and followed an ambulance train sent out by the Grand Duchess Vladimir. Throughout the entire war Princess Eleanore lived on board this train, traveling back and forth with the armies in Manchuria and staying always as near as possible to the actual scene of conflict. On more than one occasion the windows of her car were smashed by flying bullets. Upon her return to St. Petersburg after the close of the war she received a popular welcome and was showered with honors by the Russian court.

More recently the Balkan war brought into strong relief the Queen's personality, and her prompt action in organizing Red Cross work in Sofia as soon as hostilities began did much to mitigate the terrible condition of the wounded soldiery in the campaign. She also devoted much attention to the relief of the homeless and destitute who poured into the Bulgarian by thousands as the war progressed.

Queen Eleanore's entire life prior to her marriage to Prince Ferdinand was spent on the Reuss estates in lower Austria, so that she is to all intents and purposes an Austrian. From her girlhood she devoted herself to good works in her father's principality, particularly in the neighborhood of the ancestral home at Gera. It was generally believed that the Princess Eleanore preferred philanthrophy to matrimony. She had reached middle life when, six years ago, she became the second wife of the ruler of Bulgaria.

The Queen is a very accomplished woman and speaks several different languages fluently. Immediately after her marriage she set herself to learn Bulgarian, which is a very difficult language. In this and other ways she soon found herself to the hearts of her adopted people. Incessantly she has worked for their well-being. She has opened numerous schools, established hospitals and founded homes for orphans and the children of parents too poor to give their offspring a good education. Her Majesty was the first to introduce into the east the western custom of opening bazaars, hospitals and concerts in order that her subjects might take an interest in functions intended to swell the funds of various institutions.

It is now thirty-five years since King Ferdinand visited the United States. At that time he was a Prince of Saxe-Coburg, for it was some ten years before he was made the ruler of Bulgaria. He was on his way home from Brazil, where he had been the guest of his brother, Prince Augustus of Saxe-Coburg, who had married a daughter of Emperor Dom Pedro. After arriving in New York the Prince visited Philadelphia, Washington, Niagara Falls and other places of interest before sailing for Europe.

SCENES OF FIRE.

Plaza In St. Augustine and One Historic Street.

Damage amounting to at least $750,000 was done, two persons seriously and many slightly injured, five hotels, the county courthouse and several residences and small buildings were destroyed and many historic relics were lost when fire swept two blocks near the water front in St. Augustine, Fla. For a time the flames threatened the entire business section, but were extinguished after nearly twelve hours of fighting. The picture shows the Plaza, which was destroyed, and Charles street, which is in the center of the burned district. This street is perhaps the oldest in the United States.

SHOT TO DEATH AS HE SLAYS DETECTIVE

Gangster's Father Fires as He Faces Arrest.

New York, April 3.—Cornered in a small flat on the top floor of 1880 Second avenue, William Horgan, who had wounded and left for dead Charles Moser, a First avenue saloonkeeper, shot and killed First Grade Detective Joseph Guarnieri. Guarnieri, holder of a police department gold medal for bravery, who lay between life and death for seven months in 1911 at the Flower hospital from wounds inflicted by a desperate criminal, had taken his life in his hands by leading the hunt for Horgan. Horgan shot from ambush, but Detective Lieutenant George Haerle, who was just behind Guarnieri when he fell, killed his assassin with two well directed bullets. Moser, wounded in th right shoulder and upper lung, is fighting for his life in the Harlem hospital.

Moser and Guarnieri had been down town earlier in the day to testify before the grand jury against Thomas Horgan, alias Puggy, a member of the notorious Car Barn gang, now in the Tombs, charged with robbing Mrs. William Greer, wife of a canal boat captain, of $110 on Feb. 26 in a hallway at 1891 First avenue. Moser, who owns a saloon at 1991 First avenue, saw the holdup and on March 5 Detectives Guarnieri and Mancini arrested young Horgan.

Some time during the afternoon William Horgan, who was fifty-five years old and a laborer, living at 536 East Eighty-eighth street, got word that Moser had been down and had testified against his son. He had been drinking heavily and he appeared at Moser's saloon. Moser was standing outside the door.

"What do you mean, going downtown to swear against my boy?" Horgan shouted.

As Moser turned and before he could speak Horgan ripped a revolver from his pocket and shot at Moser's head.

SOCIALISTS DEFY BRYAN IN DEBATE

Challenge Secretary to Meet Debs Tonight.

IMPOSSIBLE TO DO SO.

Hughes Says Bryan's Time Is Limited. Senator Takes Crack at National Manufacturers' Association—Says It Is Taking Part In Fight—Former Mayor Lunn In Paterson.

Paterson, N. J., April 3.—United States Senator William Hughes, speaking in behalf of James J. O'Byrne, the Democratic candidate for member of congress to succeed the late Robert G. Bremner, declared that the National Manufacturers' association is taking part in the fight and is resorting to methods recently exposed by Colonel Mulhall in a senate investigation.

"Indications now appear," said Senator Hughes, "that the successors of the worthy Colonel Mulhall are beginning their work in this district. You will remember that Colonel Mulhall, who used to be the secret agent of the National Manufacturers' association, was called before a special investigating committee of the senate last summer, and during the course of his testimony it appeared that this congressional district was a field of great concern to him at election time.

"He had headquarters in one of our local hotels and from there sent forth his agents of corruption. Let me warn the tool who may now be at this work that times have changed since Mulhall worked here. We had to fight long and hard to get laws to make this damnable corruption work dangerous. Thank God we have these laws today, and we will fight to uphold them."

That the opponents of O'Byrne see in his defeat a slap at the administration of President Wilson is apparent in the circulation of literature paid for by W. A. Wakeman of New York, who is secretary of the American Protective Tariff league. One of his pamphlets denounces the present tariff law and ascribes to it the plight of the farmers and wage earners and says the only way to overcome these evils is to vote for the Republican candidate.

The campaign is one of the most spirited in years. Democrats and Republicans admit they are scared by the Socialists, and the Progressive vote becomes an important factor because of the chance it may afford the Socialist candidate, Gordon Demarest, to win. Former Mayor George Lunn of Schenectary was here speaking for Demarest, and he predicted that the Socialist vote would be a record breaker.

Eugene V. Debs is to be here tonight and the Socialists have made bold to challenge Secretary of State Bryan to meet him in debate. Senator Hughes said this couldn't be done because Mr. Bryan is to speak in Passaic also, and his time is limited. Collector of the Port Dudley Field Malone of New York will also speak here and in Passaic tonight.

Henry C. Whitehead, the Progressive candidate, continues his vigorous campaign. Speaking on the Panama tolls controversy he said:

"The fight against the president on this subject is really a combination of the railroads and the shipping trust to obtain big subsidies indirectly which they know congress would never dare grant to them directly and also under the guise of alleged patriotism to attempt to discredit the president by appeals to race prejudice."

BOYS TO VISIT WILSON.

Morristown Youths Will Meet President on Sightseeing Trip.

Morristown, N. J., April 3.—Fifteen boys from the local Young Men's Christian association will make a trip to Washington on Monday. The boys will be in charge of Secretary A. C. Reed and will remain in Washington four days. Four hours will be spent in Philadelphia.

Three days will be spent in viewing Washington, Mount Vernon and Arlington cemeteries. Thursday afternoon the boys will be presented to President Wilson, returning that night. The boys who will take the trip are Maurice and Lawrence Skillman, Halsey Pierson, Edward Emmons, Theodore Gaty, W. E. Day, F. L. Cregar, C. Ward, M. Garrabrant, Paul Ritter, R. Davis, James Patterson, Ray Barris, C. Ambrose and Russell Barris.

CONDENSED STATE NEWS.

Having been without a pastor for some time, the Monroe Christian church has decided to advertise for one.

Mayor Henry J. Westbrock of Midland Park was seriously injured when his auto was struck by an Erie railroad train at Glen Rock, two miles from his home.

Speaker Champ Clark will lecture in the Passaic high school on April 25. He will fill the date of Governor Hadley of Missouri, who will be unable to come east at that time.

Walter Hick and Edward Bradster of New York, both nineteen years old, are held in Jersey City charged with stealing parts of the block signal system in the Pennsylvania railroad yards.

Nicholas P. Wedin, sheriff of Hudson county, stirred up another political fuss by discharging John Maxwell, one of his constables, and reinstating Edward Craig, who lost his place two years ago. Maxwell is a supporter of Naval Officer H Otto Wittpenn.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

MANY SEALERS PERISH IN GALE

Cast Off From Ship and Die on Ice.

STRUCK BY A BLIZZARD.

Floes Break Up and Men Are Separated, but Ship Is Believed to Be Safe. Happened Off Belle Isle Strait—Another Ship Missing.

St. John's, N. F., April 3.—Death traveled in a gale that overtook the sealing fleets on Tuesday. The steamer Newfoundland lost from fifty to a hundred of her crew, and as many more, it is feared, will be maimed as a result of frostbite.

Great alarm also is felt for the steamer Southern Cross, with a crew of 170, which has not been reported since she passed Cape Pine, bound in, Tuesday morning.

The steamship Bellaventure came upon the Newfoundland's men and rescued about thirty of the living, while thirty-five were unaccounted for.

Earlier wireless messages led to the fear that the loss of life would be in the hundreds. One from Cape Race read:

Sealers from steamer Newfoundland caught in blizzard. Fifty men found dead on ice this morning. Men from other ships trying to reach remainder of exhausted crew of 170 men.

Another wireless message said:

The sealer Newfoundland was caught in a blizzard while sealing and more than 100 of her crew were frozen to death. The Red Cross steamship Florizel picked up fifty men dead and dying after the Newfoundland sank. The total loss of life on the Newfoundland is 170.

A blizzard is raging here, and it is impossible to go out into the harbor. The thick weather conditions are responsible for a report circulated through the city earlier in the day that the Newfoundland had reached here with survivors of the steamer Southern Cross. The news that the Newfoundland was lost comes by wireless from the Red Cross steamer Florizel, which is being used as a sealer.

Fifty Bodies Recovered.

The Florizel wireless states that steamers in the vicinity picked up several bodies and a few of the crew who had survived on the ice floes to which they escaped when their vessel went down. Fifty of the crew have been accounted for in this manner. Most of them were dead when discovered, and several others were dying.

Great alarm is also felt for the sealing steamer Southern Cross, which is also believed to have been caught in the ice. The first reports received here said that it was a part of the crew of the Southern Cross that had been picked up and that they were being brought into port by the Newfoundland. There are 173 men on board the Southern Cross. She was due here Tuesday.

The captain of the Newfoundland was Wesley Kean. Meager reports relayed from one vessel to another by wireless and more or less confused state that of the crew of the Newfoundland 120 men were still on the ice floes. It is thought possible that some of the bodies picked up on the ice were those of members of the crew of the Southern Cross.

One report says that the men who left the Newfoundland were scattered by the moving ice fields in different directions, radiating from the wreck like the spokes from a wheel. The wind was blowing a gale offshore, and there was a blinding snowstorm, in which the crew would be unable to find their way in any direction. They had little food when they left the ship and no extra clothing. Without tents or other shelter many succumbed to hunger and exposure. It is feared here that very few will survive. Vessels sent out from here are searching among the ice floes.

VOICE ALL RIGHT, SAYS BRYAN

Asks Help of Press to Stop Flood of Amateur Medical Advice.

Washington, April 3.—Reports that the tonal qualities of the voice of the secretary of state, Mr. Bryan, have deteriorated during his service in Washington have been taken seriously by so many persons throughout the country that Mr. Bryan is being deluged with suggestions as to how the original silver quality may be restored.

The number of these letters containing remedies for the voice has become so great that Mr. Bryan requested that the newspaper correspondents send dispatches announcing that his voice is not in need of any treatment.

170,000 ENGLISH MINERS OUT

Stock of Coal Will Be Exhausted In Week—Business Hampered.

Leeds, England, April 3.—The last of the notices to quit work having expired, all the coal miners in Yorkshire, numbering 170,000, left their pits. The men demand the introduction of a minimum wage scale.

The stock of coal at the pitheads are only sufficient to last about a week. After that railroads, steel and iron works will be seriously hampered and many men may be thrown out of work.

Weather Forecast.

Unsettled today, probably snow in north portion; tomorrow fair; light to moderate northwest to north winds.

REA ENTERS PLEA FOR HIGHER RATES

Pennsylvania President Wants 5 Per Cent Increase.

Washington, April 3.—President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania railroad was a witness before the interstate commerce commission at the hearing at which the railroads are asking for a 5 per cent increase in freight rates. Mr. Rea read a statement in which he said at the outset that the rate increase was required for the Pennsylvania system for these reasons:

"First.—Because the present rates do not yield a fair return on the amount invested in the railroad and equipment and are not an adequate return for the services rendered and facilities provided for public use.

"Second.—Because despite the company's utmost efforts to offset increasing costs by the application of the most modern operating methods the return on its investment has been continuously falling, and unless this decline is arrested it will undermine the company's resources and cripple its power to satisfactorily serve the public.

"Third.—Because the investing public, upon whom we depend for securing capital on reasonable terms, seeing the decline in profits and in the return on the capital already invested and being aware of the increases in wages, taxes and other items and of expenditures of various kinds forced upon the railroads by legislative action, and the interest commanded by new capital, regards the situation with some concern and needs to be reassured that not only will our company, but the railway companies generally, obtain reasonable compensation to offset the increase in expenses and the highest interest charges and enable them at least to maintain their current rates of dividend.

"Fourth.—Because at a time when capital everywhere is commanding a higher return than for many years past it is necessary to earn expanding, not diminishing, profits in order to obtain adequate capital at fair interest rates as needed for new lines, equipment and facilities, so as not to stop the expansion of the country's traffic, which nearly doubles every decade."

THREE WORKMEN KILLED.

Foremen Arrested, Charged With Negligence In Cave-in.

New York, April 3.—Three men were instantly killed and two others injured when a brick retaining wall in the new Flatbush theater being constructed in Church avenue near Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, caved in. The five men were working ten feet under the ground and they were buried in the pile of brick.

A fourth man may be dead. He could not be found after the accident, but the superintendent of the work was not sure whether or not he was working in the excavation at the time.

One of the bodies has not been identified. The other dead are Francisco Tuffa, twenty-five years old, of 725 Lorimer street, Brooklyn, and Frank Denana, address unknown.

THE KANSAS SENATORSHIP AROUSES GREAT INTEREST

Topeka, Kan., April 3—The political season has opened early in Kansas and gives evidence of continuing with increased interest until the election in November. Last month the Democrats met in State convention here to discuss the welfare of the party and adopt a tentative platform. Today the leaders of the Progressive party met in Wichita for the same purposes. The Progressives will find some difficulty in building a platform since all of their principal planks have been appropriated by the Democrats, who have declared in favor of government ownership, the minimum wage law, mother's pensions, and the initiative, referendum and recall.

In the campaign about to open the chief interest will center in the contest for the United States Senatorship. It promises to be a real "hoss race," with seven entries in the field and more expected before the lists close. Senator Joseph L. Bristow whose successor is to be elected, is a candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed himself. As opponents in the contest for the G. O. P. indorsement Senator Bristow will have former Senator Charles Curtis and Major A. M. Harvey, not to mention Mrs. Minnie Johnson Grinstad, who already has entered upon an active campaign. Congressman Victor Murdock will be unopposed for the Progressive nomination. There will be a scramble for the Democratic nomination, among the most prominent of those already in the field being Congressman George A. Neeley and Judge Frank Doster, of the State Supreme Court.

SHRINERS FROM AFAR GRILL 32 CANDIDATES ON THE SAND

With visiting delegations from all parts of this State, from Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and New York, Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Wednesday night held its ceremonial session in the Krueger Auditorium, Newark. Thirty-two candidates were taken "over the hot sands of the desert," and finished the wearisome journey as Shriners.

The affair was one of the biggest ceremonials held by Salaam Temple. There would have been a big street parade of the temples and their patrols in uniform but for the rain. When the ceremonial began about two thousand Shriners were in the auditorium with their bands. From Irem Temple, of Wilkesbarre, and Scranton, Pa., came a delegation of two hundred and ten, who, with uniformed patrol and the temple band marched in spite of the rain, to the Nankin Garden. After the rites all the Shriners sat down to a late supper in the auditorium.

Delegations from the following temples also were present: Oriental, Troy, N. Y.; Crescent, Trenton; Sphinx, Hartford, Conn.; Allepo, Boston; Kismet, Brooklyn, and Mecca, New York. In the initiation the members of the Woop-La Club, of Irem Temple, played a stellar part, under the leadership of Illustrious Potentate Henry W. Enger, Jr., of Salaam Temple.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS TEACHERS

Marion, Ill., April 3—Marion is entertaining during the remainder of this week the annual convention of the Southern Illinois Teachers' Association. The meeting has attracted a large and representative attendance. The proceedings were opened yesterday afternoon with a conference of the county superintendents. Speakers to be heard at the general sessions include President Bryan, of Indiana State University; President Armstrong, of West Virginia University; State Superintendent Francis G. Blair, and President Shryock, of the Southern Illinois Normal School.

ANGLERS NEAR WASHINGTON.

Washington, N. J., April 3.—In spite of unfavorable weather conditions Wednesday, many disciples of Izaak Walton whipped the streams for trout. It was the same story from almost every fishing party when notes were compared Wednesday night. From five to seven were the best catches reported, while some disgusted fishermen only caught a cold from the wet feet caused by the day's tramping through snow, mud and water. All the streams are well stocked with trout and excellent fishing is expected as soon as the streams return to the normal condition.

BIRTHDAY OF OLDEST RULER.

Berlin, April 3.—Duke George II. of Saxe-Meiningen, who is the oldest of the rulers of Europe, celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday anniversary yesterday and was the recipient of congratulatory messages from all the sovereigns of the German states and from other countries as well. The Duke has reigned almost half a century, having acceded to the throne in 1866, following the abdication of his father.

JOEL FOSTER CASE.

Mobile, Ala., April 3.—The case of Joel M. Foster, who was arrested here in the early part of the winter on a charge of violating the Mann white slave law, is on the court docket for trial tomorrow. Foster is the son of a millionaire resident of Scranton, Pa. The charge against him was the result of his alleged elopement with his sixteen-year-old stenographer, Delilah Bradley. After his release on bail Foster returned to New York and it is understood that he has since been confined in a sanitarium.

SUFFRAGISTS TO EDIT DAILY PRESS

Will Take Entire Charge of Publication on Saturday, May 2.

MRS. FEICKERT EDITOR

Well Known Votes for Women Advocates to Try Hand at Newspaper Work for One Day—Those in Charge of Departments.

Plainfield will have a real novelty in the newspaper line on Saturday, May 2. On that date the local branch of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association will take over the entire task of editing the Plainfield Daily Press, and with a staff of well known suffragists will put out what they consider an ideal newspaper from the women's point of view. The regular reporters, editors, advertising solicitors and circulation department employes will take a place in the background, and some of the women even threaten to take a hand in the mechanical department and set the paper and run the press, provided they can get union cards.

On May 2 there will be a great suffrage day all over New Jersey. Meetings will be held in the different communities under the auspices of the local leagues, and suffrage editions of newspapers may be published in other cities. That afternoon in Plainfield after the special edition of the Press has been published a number of open air meetings will be held at city park, at which time attractive young women wearing the Votes for Women badge will sell copies of the special suffrage edition of the Press, the proceeds to go for the league.

Advertising will be solicited for the benefit of the suffrage league, part of the amount derived to be turned over to the State organization and the rest to be used locally.

Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, of Dunellen, president of the State League, will be the editor in chief of the special edition of the Press, and her assistants will be Mrs. Champlain L. Riley and Mrs. A. B. Jones. The reportorial staff will consist of Mrs. F. O. Ball, Mrs. Charles A. Seldon, Mrs. Leslie R. Fort and Miss A. J. Vermilye. The advertising department will be headed by Mrs. Allen Cowperthwait, and the circulation and distributing agent will be Miss Katherine Ball.

It is possible that some time in May there may be an Anti-Suffrage edition of the Daily Press, edited by women on that side of the question.

J. C. CLARK DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Was Well Known Resident of This City for Fourteen Years.

John C. Clark, senior member of the firm of Clark Brothers, who have conducted a cafe at West Fourth and Liberty streets for several years, died suddenly at 4:30 o'clock this morning at his home, 722 West Seventh street. He was awakened with a severe coughing spell about 4 o'clock, arousing the family. Dr. A. H. Dundon was summoned, but Mr. Clark was beyond hope. Death was due to heart trouble and complications. He had been in poor health for some time.

Mr. Clark was born in Boston, and was the son of the late Bernard Clark, who he succeeded here in business. He had lived in Plainfield for fourteen years. At different times he was engaged in business in Brooklyn and Elizabeth, coming to this city from the latter place. He was a member of Elizabeth Lodge, No. 289, B. P. O. E., Plainfield Aerie, F. O. E.; Miantonomo Tribe, Improved Order Red Men; Plainfield Nest of Owls, Ancient Order Hibernians, Division No. 4, and the Gesang and Turn Verein, in all of which he was active.

Mr. Clark is survived by his mother, Mrs. Bernard Clark; a sister, Miss Mamie Clark, and two brothers, Joseph P. Clark, with whom he was associated in business, and Benjamin Clark. The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Mary's R. C. church, of which Mr. Clark was a member, where there will be a solemn requiem high mass. The burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

CLARK PRICE PASSES AWAY IN THE SOUTH

Private Secretary to Daniel G. Reid Succumbs to Long Illness.

Clark Price, aged forty-two years, a prominent resident of this city for a number of years and for twelve years private secretary to Daniel G. Reid, of New York, died yesterday at St. Petersburg, Florida, where he had been for several months in the hope of regaining his health. Death was due to heart trouble and complications. Mr. Price was obliged to give up his business duties last fall on account of ill health and early in the winter went south believing that the change would be beneficial.

Mr. Price had a large circle of friends in this city, being admired for his many excellent qualities, and news of his death comes as a severe shock. In business circles he was held in high esteem, especially so by Mr. Reid, with whom he had been associated so long.

Born in Richmond, Indiana, Mr. Price came East when a young man. He was a member of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., of this city. It is expected that the remains will be brought to this city. Mr. Price is survived by his wife, three children Herbert Harold and Elizabeth; a sister, Mrs. C. W. Haseltine, of West Front street, and a father, I. C. Price, of Dayton, Ohio. TO DECIDE SUNDAY MORNING GOLF QUESTION TONIGHT

The much discussed question as to whether or not the golf links at the Country Club will be open on Sunday mornings hereafter will be settled tonight, at a special meeting of the club, to be held at the Columbus Club Hall. No topic of recent interest has caused more discussion pro and con among the members of the club, and it is expected that there will be a large attendance at tonight's meeting. Leaders on both sides have sent out appeals to the other members urging them to attend the meeting, so that there may be a full expression of opinion on the question. A large majority of the older members of the club are said to be opposed to the change, while many of the new comers and younger men favor it.

BRONZE TABLET FOR MEMORIAL FLAGSTAFF

Manufactured by Hinman Bronze Works and Placed in Hillside Cemetery.

Through the efforts of H. Craig Smith, chairman of the G. A. R. committee of the Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, a bronze tablet has just been placed on the flagstaff erected by the Post in Hillside cemetery in 1913. The memorial tablet was made in the Hinman Bronze Works, on East Seventh street, and is an interesting piece of workmanship.

The following inscription is on the tablet:

ERECTED 1913—IN MEMORY OF VETERANS of the Civil War 1861-1865
By Winfield Scott Post, No. 73
Department of New Jersey
Grand Army of the Republic.

PLAINFIELDER "TRIMMED" BY SCOTCH PLAINS PAIR

The usual serenity of Scotch Plains was disturbed this morning by the report that a bold, highway robbery had occurred on Park avenue during the night. Investigation by Marshal William Ashton revealed the fact that two local characters had enticed a young Plainfielder to the rear of All Saints' church and relieved him of all his loose change. The victim is suffering from a crippled hand which prevented him from making a good defense and he was badly beaten up before the pair accomplished their purpose. The Plainfielder made his way back to his friends, to whom he reported the affair. One of them took him home in an automobile before the authorities were notified.

Marshal Ashton came to Plainfield this morning, to look up the victim, but he could not be located at his home on West Fourth street. The exact amount taken from him him could not be learned. The officer intends to follow up the case until he brings the guilty man to justice, either on a highway robbery charge or assault.

WILL CHANGE HOSPITAL TERMS

Borough Council Discusses Question of Care of Indigent Patients.

ORDER INVESTIGATION

Raymond Smith Appointed Tillerman in Fire Department—Will Advertise for Bids for Coal—Appropriate $50 for G. A. R.

Before renewing the contract that has been in force for a number of years between North Plainfield and the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, several changes will be made, according to sentiment expressed at the monthly meeting of the Borough Council, last night. When the contract was introduced for renewal it brought forth discussion from several of those interested in the matter.

In the past a contract providing for the care of indigent patients has been in force and as a result many patients taken from the borough have been declared "indigent" and that municipality has been paying for a number who were able to pay for medical treatment and confinement in the institution. In speaking of the matter Mayor Clark cited a case where a property-owner in the borough had been removed to Muhlenberg Hospital and his money refused by the authorities of that institution, because of the fact that he came from North Plainfield. The matter will be thoroughly investigated and may result in the drawing up of a new contract.

Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., was given $50 for the Memorial day exercises according to the annual custom. Fred Becker's request for an advance of $250 on the poor account was also granted. It was reported that North Plainfield's share in the purchase of the Darling Farm would amount to $9,000 or 25 per cent. A petition signed by ten property owners in the vicinity of Walnut street was received regarding the proposed vacation of that thoroughfare. A petition was also received for the macadamizing of West End avenue from Rockview avenue to Greenbrook road. The resignation of William Hogan as a member of the fire department was accepted and his request to be appointed a call man was granted.

Hogan's resignation takes effect at once and the vacancy was filled temporarily, last night, by the appointment of Raymond Smith, a former call man, to the position of tillerman. Some hitch occurred in the selection of a man owing to an ordinance governing the fire department, which places a tillerman in the fourth class with a monthly wage of $40. It was impossible to secure a man for this position at that salary and Smith was engaged until the next meeting at a salary of $50. In the meant time the ordinance will be revised, if applicants for the position do not make their appearance and accept the wage provided for in the ordinance.

The police committee reported that six arrests had been made during the month in the borough and $21 collected in fines. The motion adopted at the last meeting to increase the salaries of various members of the borough police force was revised so as to provide $75 a month for marshals after one year of service instead of after two years. During the month $318.39 had been expended in the upkeep of the fire department and $720 for the six months' rental of water hydrants.

Councilman Julius Stahl introduced a resoluttion to authorize the fire and building committee to purchase the winter supply of coal, about thirty tons, for the fire house. He explained that the fuel could be purchased at a cheaper rate this month than later in the year but when the proposition was put to a vote, Messrs. Boyer, Cowperwaite, Rushmore and Tinley voted against, but after considerable discussion the original motion was put to vote again and carried unanimously. This purchase will also include the coal to be used in the police station.

The Council directed that the assessors, who had charge of the assesment of Watchung avenue, be paid $10 each as previously specified. They are Morris VanArsdale, George Kirch and William Debele. A dog ordinance was introduced last night and will be put into effect at once.

A resolution was passed by the Council to issue $250,000 in bonds for the sewer construction. This amount will be divided as follows: $100,000 for the trunk line and $150,000 for the collection system. Of this amount $30,000 worth will be sold at once and the balance as needed.

DATES CHANGED FOR COMEDY CLUB SHOW

New Coach and Play Are Also Chosen Because of the Withdrawal of Hart.

A necessary change in coaches has brought about a complete rearrangement of plans by the Comedy Club, of Plainfield, for the annual spring play. The play, dates and coach have all been changed, and the production will be "The Arrival of Kitty," a three act farce which has been used as a successful vehicle for professional productions for several years. It is from the pen of Norman Swartout at present a resident of Summit, and the members of the club consider themselves fortunate in securing Mr Swartout as the producing coach, to take up the work where it was dropped by Edgar C. Hart.

Because of the changes, the play will be given on April 30 annd May 1, instead of the dates first announced. The same cast with one exception that had been selected for "A Gray Mare," which was originally chosen as the play to be produced this year will take part in "The Arrival of Kitty," and a finished performance is assured the members of the club and their friends.

Announcement will be made in ample time as to the public sale of tickets, and associate members will be given the usual advance opportunity to secure seats for the play. The performances will be given in the Plainfield Theatre, as has been the custom in the past.

FITTING MEMORIAL TO JAMES D. MACNAB

Bronze Tablet in Plainfield High School Classroom in Memory of Teacher.

In memory of James D. MacNab, one of the most popular instructors which the Plainfield High School ever had, who died suddenly less than a year ago, there has been erected in Room 4 of the high school a permanent memorial, in the form of an attractive bronze tablet. The money with which the tablet was purchased was raised by popular subscription, contributions being made by the teachers and pupils alike, the work being under the direction of Lindsey Best, principal of the high school, and R. W. Lord, one of the instructors in that institution.

Many memorials more imposing in dimension and design have been erected in this city, but probably none have recorded upon them a sentiment finer than the inscription upon this, which is a tablet 13 inches high and 21 inches wide, and reads as follows:

IN MEMORIAN
JAMES DEMAREST MACNAB
"The heaping-good measure of service that no one has quite the right to ask of us, that is what everyone wants from us. I wish you the joy resulting from many a hard job well done and also the keen delight arising from the giving of a generous supplemental service." J. D. M.

As indicated by the initials at the end, the quotation is from Mr. MacNabs own words and they aptly describe the man.

The tablet is the work of the Hinman Bronze Works, of this city, and Mr. Hinman personally took an especial interest in the making of the tablet, with the result that the workmanship is commendable in every way.

CITY WINS ITS FIGHT FOR FREE LIGHTS IN PUBLIC BUILDINGS

Contention of Charles A. Reed That Public Service Must Live Up to Original Contract Sustained by the Utility Commission.

Trenton, April 4—The State Board of Public Utility Commissioners today handed down a decision that the Public Service Electric Light Company is under obligations to light free of charge the public buildings of the city of Plainfield, but that such lighting will not involve unjust discrimination such as to be contrary to law. The decision is upon the complaint of the City of Plainfield, filed with the State Board on January 12, and drawn by City Counsel Charles A. Reed, asking the board to compel the Public Service Electric Company to comply with the terms of an ordinance and an agreement. The ordinance was dated January 12, 1898, and gave to the predecessor of the Public Service Electric Company a franchise to use the streets of Plainfield. November 28, 1908, the city and the Public Service Company made an agreement, among the covenants of which was that the company should give free light to all the public buildings in the city.

Last December the Public Service Electric Company notified the Mayor of Plainfield that it was convinced that it could no longer continue lawfully to furnish free lighting to the municipal buildings, and unless the contract for that purpose was made, the company would discontinue such lighting. This notice led to the filing of the complaint by the city.

At the hearing upon the complaint, counsel for the Public Service Electric Company argued that the Public Utility Act, in forbidding undue or unjust discrimination, precluded the lighting of municipal buildings in one case without payment and the exacting of payment in other cases, for a service physically similar. The State board says it is of the opinion that this contention is groundless.

The decision recites the conditions under which the city agreed that in return for certain privileges on the streets the predecessor of the Public Service Corporation was to light certain specified public buildings free, as is well known to the residents of the city because of the frequent publication of the facts about the dispute between the city and the lighting company. The company in December of last year notified the city that it was convinced that it could no longer lawfully continue to light the buildings, and would discontinue doing so on February first last, unless an agreement was made to pay for such service. The city took the matter up with the Public Utility Commission in January, and today's decision is the result of the appeal. It is final as both the city and the company agreed to stand by what the commission decided.

In part the decision says:

"The petitioners rest their request upon Chapter 195 of the Laws of 1911, (II., 17), (a). This provides that the board shall have power, after hearing, by order in writing, to require every public utility to comply with the laws of this State and any municipal ordinance relating thereto and to conform to the duties imposed upon it thereby, or by the provisions of its own charter, whether obtained under any general or special law of this State.

"Petitioner's contention is that the laws of the State require an observance of contract obligations; that the lighting of the city buildings without charge is a contract obligation of the respondent; that respondent refuses to observe said contract obligation; and that therefore this board has jurisdiction and should order compliance with the contract.

"If the obligation of the respondent to light without charge the public buildings of Plainfield as a continuous payment for respondent's right of entry upon and occupancy of streets of Plainfield, and rights being obtained when its franchise from Plainfield was bargained for, were one flowing wholly from a contract that in its nature is entirely akin to a contract between two private individuals it would be an obligation not intended for this board's cognizance or enforcement under the statute.

"But this board is not persuaded that the contractural obligations of the respondent to light the city buildings free of charge is one arising from a contract such as might be concluded by the respondent in a quasi-private capacity. The passage and acceptance of the ordinance approved July 12, 1898, created certain contractural rights and obligations between the city and the franchises. Some of these rights and obligations, such as the designation of streets on which the franchisee's distributing apparatus may be placed, are described in the ordinance. But the rights and obligations created by the passage and acceptance of the ordinance are not set forth in their entirety in the ordinance, but are defined in the subsequent agreement.

"The case before the board was argued largely by the respondent on the ground that the Public Utility Act in forbidding undue or unjust discrimination precludes the lighting of municipal buildings in one case without payment and the exacting of payment in other cases for a service physically similar.

"The board is of the opinion that this contention is groundless. Undue or unjust discrimination was forbidden at the common law prior to the enactment of Chapter 195, Laws of 1911. If such rights which municipalities have obtained by contract, whether incorporated in ordinances or not, when bargaining in respect of franchise grants, are void now, they have long been void hitherto. That such rights have been upheld in many adjudications precludes the assumption that they were void or have become void. Such a position may readily prove a double-edged tool for public utilities. If the covenants under which they obtained rights of entry always were void, the franchises in question are, many of them, in a parlous State. The utilities are not entitled to the rights they have obtained by such contracts, unless they honor the valid considerations required of them by virtue of such contracts.

"The board is of the opinion that when a public utility bargains with a municipality for rights of entry upon and occupancy of the public street, the publi cutility acts in a unique capacity; that in such unique capacity it may assume obligations to make a return for such franchise privileges as it seeks, and may express such obligations in terms of money, or of service. It may in such capacity lawfully undertake to pave the streets traversed by its care. It may in such capacity undertake to pay to the municipality in money a certain portion of its receipts. It may, in such capacity, undertake to afford a stipulated amount of free service, such as free lighting, or free telephone service for municipal buildings.

"The essential thing is that the obligation so undertaken, even though expressed in terms of service to be rendered without money payment, is one assumed by the public utility as a bargainer with a body politic, not as a duly deputized and enfranchised agency required to afford service to the generality of consumers without undue or unjust discrimination.

"The board is clearly of opinion that for the respondent to light without charge the public buildings of the City of Plainfield does not involve undue or unjust discrimination, but that the respondent is bound to afford such lighting service without charge to the City of Plainfield.

"The alternative contention of the respondent that such lighting service without charge is a tax, and may be deducted by the respondent under the Voorhees' Act from the taxes paid to the municipality, is a matter not within the competence of this board."

The decision is a big victory for Mr. Reed, as many able lawyers differed with his idea of the subject.

DOG RUNS AMUCK AT 'PLAINS.

Three dogs have already been shot and twelve others are under surveillance at Scotch Plains as the result of a rabid canine's visit to the village, yesterday morning. The fifteen animals were bitten before the mad dog was shot by Marshal William Ashton. It is not known to whom it belonged, but is supposed to be a homeless mongrel. The three dogs afterward killed showed unmistakable signs of going mad and all the others are being watched closely.

The chapel was artistically decorated with American flags and the appearance of the tables was sufficient to tempt every one, and the well cooked viands and the many delicacies that Ritz, the caterer, lived up to his past reputation. Prosecutor F. A. Pope, of Somerset county, the speaker of the evening, addressed the banquetters, the subject of his address being "Stop! Look! and Listen!" Mr. Pope commenced his orations by saying Stop! Look! and Listen! before the great American country there are dangers. He said that any country that realizes its own greatness was doomed, and he compared this country with other nations. Rome at the pinnacle of its power and also with Napoleon's defy of God, when that famous general before his disastrous march on Moscow at the head of 300,000 men, the very flower of France, said in answer toa warning tendered about "War proposing and God disposing," "I, Napoleon, propose and I, Napoleon, dispose." Mr. Pope said that most Americans would rather be rich—than right, or President, and he wanted to know if the American people in the mad chase after the "Almighty Dollar" had not lost sight of the fact that they once possessed souls. He said that up to the year 1890 the church had been growing, but that since then the growth had practically ceased. In continuing alag this line the prosecutor said: "Go in any church today and you will see three women to every man. The average man of today spends his Sabbath in trying in vain to find something worth while in the Sunday newspaper." Another danger that is threatening this country, Mr. Pope said, is the continuous influx into this land of the very scum of Europe with their lax principles of morality and their unreasonable ideas of liberty, and he said that he was proud of the fact that he was one of the committee that is responsible for pending legislation which will check the present influx if enacted.

AFTER ENGLISH GOLF TITLE.

The Three Foremost American Players Have Entered British Lists.

Three of the most notable American golf players have entered the lists for English honors and the English title. These are Jerome D. Travers, the national, metropolitan and New Jersey amateur golf title holder; Francis Ouimet, the American open golf champion, and Frederick Herreshoff, the famous Garden City player and far driver, who has been runner up in the national tournaments. They will compete in the tournament for the amateur championship of Great Britain, scheduled to start on May 18 at Sandwich. It is probable that the three will also take part in the French amateur contest at La Boulie.

Francis Ouimet is by far the youngest of the trio and is only twenty years old. He is the boy wonder of the golf world. England is looking forward to see him play with great expectations, for never before has one so young in years competed for championship honors. Ouimet is rated at the head of American golf players, and Travers takes second place. The latter has occupied the premier place on several different occasions, but his rating is a trifle lower than Ouimet's. Undoubtedly Ouimet is a steadier medal player than Travers.

Teeth Inlaid With Gold Found Among Ancient People

Professor Saville Has Secured Remarkable Specimens.

The Object Was Not Preservation, but Decoration.

WHAT we are pleased to call the new world contains the remains of civilizations long vanished as ancient and as interesting as those which have attracted such wide attention and study in the old world.

Here upon our own hemisphere in pre-Columbian times nations and civilizations have flourished and died, and it is only within recent years that any adequate study has been given them. More and more the vestiges of remarkable ancient civilizations are revealing themselves to exploration and scientific research.

For years Professor Marshall H. Saville has been collecting material for a comprehensive treatise on the ancient races inhabiting the coast province of Esmeraldas, in Ecuador. During the year 1906 he traveled for 150 miles along this coast and discovered the remains of an ancient people. Here during the course of several expeditions, financed by the Heye museum, he made extensive and valuable collections illustrating the arts and customs of this ancient people, hitherto practically unknown to archaeological science. Professor Saville's last trip to this section was in the summer of last year. Next May he will start again on an extended trip for further explorations.

These people covered their garments with gold decorations and also wore necklaces, bracelets and anklets of the same precious metal. Theirs, indeed, was a golden age. They wore elaborate ear ornaments of different kinds, some covering the entire ear and hanging pendant; they inserted the labret or lip plug in a perforation of the lower lip, and often large semilunar ornaments hung from the nose, being attached to the septum, and also they placed ornaments in the fleshy part on each side of the nose.

But, most remarkable of all, they went so far in their craze for decoration that they often decorated every available portion of their faces with bent gold tacks or nails, which were set in holes in the flesh. Plugs were often set on each side of the mouth and gold tacks or nails were plentifully studded in perforations on both cheeks. Not content with this sumptuous decoration of the face they sometimes inserted gold disks in cavities in the upper teeth—cavities that had been carefully and skillfully made with some form of instrument. Again gold wire has been found intertwined between teeth of the upper jaw. Tiny disks with a projecting band were clamped around the teeth.

Two remarkable examples of inlaid teeth have been brought from Ecuador by Professor Saville and are now in the Heye museum, in New York city. These are described in a report which is being distributed to scientific societies. In this report Professor Saville speaks of these two examples as follows:

In the spring of 1913 a Cholo, one of the natives of Atacames, a town in the province of Esmeraldas, about eighteen miles southwest of the city of Esmeraldas, found a skeleton in a burial tube in the right bank of the Rio Atacames, just above the town. The skull was found with the teeth inlaid with gold, but the finder contented himself by breaking off the superior maxillary, throwing the rest of the skull away. When I visited the town in June of last year for the purpose of making some excavations to supplement my former work I obtained the fragment. The two upper middle teeth are decorated by the insertion of thin gold disks in cavities drilled or bored in the enamel of the face of the teeth. An unusual dental feat in addition to the decoration is found in the right middle tooth. This is not a right middle incisor, but a right lateral incisor, which does not belong to the jaw, but was implanted to replace the middle incisor. This is such an extraordinary feature that we must weigh very carefully the evidence as to its having been found in the jaw. Everything is in favor of this position. Indeed, there is no reason to doubt that the replacement is a genuine pre-Columbian triumph of the ancient dentists of Atacames. * *

By far the transcendent example of teeth ration which has at present come ight in America is in a skull discov d in 1909 at a place called La Pie ear the point on the right bank of Esmeraldas river, where it empties to San Mateo bay. It was accidentally found by Mr. Pinzon and Mr. George D. Hedian, the latter the American consular agent at Es-meraldas and was kindly presented to me by Mr. Hedian for the Heye museum during my visit to Ecuador last summer. The skull was seen projecting from the bank, but no other parts of the skeleton were uncovered, probably having been washed away after the bank was undermined. The upper part of the skull is in fragments, but is restorable. The upper and lower jaws are somewhat flattened, having been crushed by the weight of earth and still remain with the mass of earth in which they were imbedded. The skull, slightly deformed, is that of an adult female. The decoration of the teeth is unique and presents a new type of facial ornamentation. Instead of small disks being set into artificial cavities we find in this case that certain teeth of the upper jaw were almost entirely covered on the outer face by an overlay of gold. The entire enamel of the teeth decorated has been removed with the exception of narrow bands at the bases and the upper parts where they were close to the flesh and embedded in the jaw. The removal of the enamel is through to the dentine and was skillfully accomplished. It appears that in some instances sawing was done slightly under the enamel at the upper part, so that the gold overlay, a covering, might be fitted under it in order to make it more secure. In one tooth there is a very tiny ridge on the right side, where it was left in a beveled line. The teeth thus practically "faced crowned" are the four incisors and two canines. The overlays are missing in all but one of the teeth. This gold covering is slightly folded or bent over each side of the tooth for greater security.

the enamel for inlays, as the removal of such a large part of the enamel required the most delicate work on the part of the operator so as not to injure the dentine and cause premature decay. Had the gold overlay not been tightly fitted over the exposed dentine decay likewise would have been rapid, but there is not a trace of decay on the surfaces of the dentine where the overlays have been lost, nor is there any indication that the decoration was not worn for a considerable time during life, and I am of the opinion that the accidental finding of the skull is responsible for the lack of the five overlays, and that they were not lost during life.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, APRIL 4, 1914.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is Henry M. Maxson, Supervising Principal of Plainfield's public schools.

WHY WE NEED MORE SCHOOLS.

"Father," said one our ten year old school boys the other day, "I need a new pair of pants."

"What's the matter with the ones you have on son?" asked his father. "They don't look worn to me."

"They aren't worn out," answered the boy; "but the trouble is that I can't wear last year pants on this year's legs."

When the school board comes to ask the city this year for money to build new schools, it is in just the same situation as is every growing boy of the thousands of children that it educates when he finds that his legs have outgrown the still sound and whole garments which last year were big enough for them. And the city of Plainfield, like the individual fathers who make up its voting population, gets the same nervous shock when confronted with the fact that its school children increase in numbers as well as in stature faster than either clothes or schoolhouses wear out.

A growing city gets too big for its schools as regularly as its growing children get too big for their clothes; and Plainfield is growing so fast that her present schools are as inadequate to cover her educational needs as are the trousers of 1912 to cover the 1914 legs of her husky young ten-year-olds whose fathers vote the city taxes.

Let me give you a few figures. In 1901 we had 2,697 pupils enrolled and we had about enough seats in the schools for them. In 1913 we had 4,017 children on our lists—an increase of 1,320 since 1901.

During these years we added new buildings which increased the total seating capacity of the schools by about 770 seats; but as this is 500 less than the increase in children, we have over 500 more pupils on our rolls than we have seats for. We meet this by putting in half time classes, but this means both a poorer quality of education and a greater cost per pupil. Next year the conditions will be even worse for we will probably have 200 more children than we have this year. We can help out temporarily by throwing open part of the new high school addition to the older pupils in the graded schools, but this is only possible for a year or two, as the High School pupils themselves are increasing at the rate of from 80 to 100 a year and will soon need the entire new building for their own use.

An increase of about two hundred new school children a year must be looked for in Plainfield, and the law requires us to educate them all. This means that we will have to build at least one twelve-room school this year and another one of the same capacity every two or three years thereafter until the city stops growing. It is expensive, but it is part of the price we have to pay for living in a progressive community that attracts new people to it every year.

There is no better asset for any city than good schools, but it is foolish to pretend that we can keep our public education up to its present high standard without building enough schoolhouses to give all our children seats in them.

HENRY M. MAXSON.

THE FORUM.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

You did a public service in your editorial of yesterday on the Seventh street residents who object to the auto buses passing through that thoroughfare. As I take it, their objections are not because an automobile passes that way, for you know many of those people own and use such machines for their pleasure from one end of the street to the other, and it is their right to do so if they wish. But the sin complained of is the fact that it is an "auto truck," the people's bus taking them to and from their homes outside of Plainfield where they go to spend their money among us many tradesmen. And then you see if these people's buses are allowed to run on our streets it will be but a short time, likely, when the people riding in them will ask for and get a regular car track laid right past our very doors and you know that will never do. Now, will it?

It may be that property owners on West Seventh street may find themselves glad to petition our city Council to permit street car lines on that street for the benefit of their property and their pocketbooks. When George Stevenson was about to construct his railroad line from Manchester to Liverpool, England, he sought permission from the Earl of Derby who owned much land just outside of Liverpool to allow him to do so. But no, his lordship could not think of giving up some portion of his lavish hunting grounds, and said he could not think of such a thing, so George found other means to suit his purpose. But in a very short time that stoupid Lord Derby found himself glad not only to permit the railroad line through his estate but was glad to contribute such parts as Mr. Stevenson needed. History often repeats itself and it may do so in Plainfield much sooner than at present expected.

LIKED BIG BANKNOTES.

An English Lord Who Had a Curious Mania For Hoarding.

A curious story of hoarding is told in Ralph Neville's book of gossip:

A former Lord Dysart who lived more or less an invalid's life in a house on the outskirts of London, carefully watched over by a lady who acted as a sort of companion-nurse, one day asked her to go to town and get a check cashed for him at the Bank of England. When she was ready to start the old peer sat down at his writing table and, having written out a check for £100,000, told her to be sure and see that she got one note for the whole amount. * * * When she reached the bank the cashier communicated with the manager, who asked the nurse to step into his private office. Having satisfied himself as to her authority for making such a request, he said that if she did not object he would much rather send a clerk to accompany her with the note. She gladly assented to this arrangement, and in due course the clerk in person handed the £100,000 banknote to Lord Dysart.

After having done so he told the peer that there were only three such notes in existence. "One," he said, "we have at the bank, another I have just handed to your lordship and the third, which some time ago disappeared from circulation, we have never been able to trace."

"Perhaps I can help you," said Lord Dysart, and, hobbling over to a bureau, he unlocked a drawer and took out the missing £100,000 banknote, which had been lying there for many years.

The Lincln Highway From Cast to Coast, Memoril to Emancipator

AMERICA ist last to have a highway lining the Atlantic seaboard wih the Pacific coast, one continous improved highway operated whout toll charges, smooth, dustless asl permanent.

It will be for the use of all the people and all classes f vehicles and is to be constructed in memory of the great emancipasor, Abraham Lincoln. It will be called the Lincoln highway. There have been many highway projects brought forth on paper with talk of coast to coast roads, and some work on various sections of these pathways across the North American continent has been undertaken by various automobile and good roads organizations. Even the Daughters of the American Revolution and a number of other societies have helped.

But this is the first time that a concerted effort has been made to link together the numerous available stretches of improved roads and to connect into one whole a series of roads, direct yet near to points of scenic and historical interest, that will actually connect New York with San Francisco.

It took many months of planning and hard work to settle upon a route. It took considerably more to advertise the same by means of public proclamations scattered broadcast. "An Appeal to Patriots" signed by officers of the association and the help of the newspapers and other periodicals of the country. Today a campaign is on to raise $10,000,000 to improve this highway. All the efforts of the organization are centered on it. When the site is on hand, an accomplished fact, the work on the highway, those sections to be improved by the highway will begin, and within a term that can be measured in months the Lincoln highway will become a reality.

The origin, the growth and the purpose of the Lincoln highway can only be understood when the history of the organization is told. Carl G. Fisher of Indianapolis is the projector. Mr. Fisher conceived the idea and is entitled to the credit for it. Mr. Fisher thought the plan out carefully. He wanted an ocean to ocean highway. He could see its value to the country in time of war for the movement of troops. He understood the needs of the farmer. He knew that such a thoroughfare would not be merely a speedway for motorists as the unthinking might call it.

It would be a stimulus to good road building — permanent, lasting road building—everywhere in this country. At least 80 per cent of the traffic would be the internal one of teams, farm machinery, traction engines and the like. Of the other 20 per cent for motoring, a greater per cent would comprise the use of the road by doctors, lawyers and business men of the cities and villages. Only a small percentage of the whole will be tourists.

A board of directors has been elected, national headquarters have been opened in Detroit, and a great campaign is under way to get the necessary subscriptions and pledges.

The route, as selected, goes into thirteen states, just as many as there were in the original union. Passing from New York city into New Jersey it moves southward to Philadelphia, then through lower Pennsylvania and north to Pittsburgh, westward through Canton to Van Wert, O., a little north to Fort Wayne, Ind., and then to Elkhart and South Bend, passing through Valparaiso, and into Chicago Heights, Ill., then north to Joliet and west again to Clinton, Ia., and then almost in a direct line to Omaha, taking the Platte valley route to Julesburg, Colo., where the tourists may either go to Denver or west to Cheyenne, Salt Lake city, Reno, Sacramento, Oakland and San Francisco.

Many points of scenic beauty and historical interest are either on, close to or reached by tributary highways of the Lincoln highway. There is Gettysburg, where Lincoln made his memorable address; Canton, where McKinley lies buried; the birthplace of Lincoln in Kentucky and the Mammoth cave, the Lincoln tomb in Springfield, Ill., and the city of Lincoln in Nebraska.

Odd Contrasts In Climate.

New York is usually thought of as being directly west from London. It is, however, despite its far more rigorous climate, 900 miles nearer the equator than is the British capital. The bleak coast of Labrador is directly west of London. The same line passes the southern part of Hudson bay and Lake Winnipeg. On the other side of the continent it touches the southern extremity of Alaska and continues through the center of the isthmus of Kamchatka and Siberia and Russia to Homburg.

Another illustration of the unexpected in contrasts is found in a comparison of St. John's, Newfoundland, with Paris. Paris has a winter of comparative mildness, while St. John's is a region of bitter cold and fogs, with drifting icebergs along its coast. Yet St. John's is 100 miles nearer the equator.

Anatole France on Journalism.

M. Anatole France, in reply to a toast of his health, said: "I have been a journalist and am one still. I owe to journalism some of the qualities that you have exaggerated. Journalism taught me a great part of the art of writing. The two things most useful in writing are ease and simplicity. Journalism teaches those things so well that the style even of great writers like Chateaubriand gained from journalistic experience."—London Times.

New York's Sewage.

Every day there is poured into the Harlem river 99,000,000 gallons of sewage; into the North river, 132,000,000 gallons; into the East river, 264,000,000 gallons. So in the course of a year New York city pollutes its harbor with about 495,000,000 gallons of refuse matter.—New York World.

Judicious Charity.

"I don't believe he is so miserly as they say. I hear he invites his poor relations to visit him each year."

"Yes. They all live at a considerable distance and are too poor to come."

The Reason He Jokes.

When a man jokes about his wife being jealous you may depend upon it his wife has not a jealous bone in her body. Men with jealous wives do not joke about it.—Atchison Globe.

Grief can take care of itself, but to get the full value of a joy you must have somebody to divide it with.—Mark Twain.

377 Women's Unusually Fine Tailored Suits for Easter

100 Suits at $32.50

"What shall I wear Easter—and all Spring?"

Here is the answer.

Fresh suits just built, full of new Paris ideas, made of interesting materials. Not only new, but of far better quality than any we have been able to offer at the prices this season.

Majority from a clever manufacturer who imports his own Paris models. He uses vast quantities of materials and by buying early he is able to secure advantageous rates, so that he can save his customers a great deal on that one item alone.

All this large special collection is influenced by Paris—some models are almost exact copies; others are excellent adaptations. They will surely solve many a woman's problem of what to wear this Spring.

The Suits at $19.50

The models, one of Silk Eolienne, the other of the fashionable wool poplin. The silk is gracefully draped, the poplin has yoke coat with straight back. Linings are of soft satin.

The Suits at $25

Four styles. Fashionable gabardine, wool crepe and charming models in rich silk moire. Many rare colors not often found in such moderate priced suits. Coats are short and graceful. Skirts are especially pretty. Some of the sleeves are in the very new style, rather full, gathered into long cuffs.

The Suits at $32.50

Gabardine and wool crepe, with such unusual features as picot tunics, lingerie ruffles, tunics fitted over the hips, wide silk sashes, interesting short coats.

PARK CLUB SPRING SURPRISE ON ELKS

Lyman's Good Bowling Responsible for Boroughites' Victory in Opener.

Park Club bowlers sprang a big surprise on the Elks' Club alleys last night, when they took two out of the three games rolled in the opening series for the city and borough championship with the antlered bowlers as opponents. A large audience of supporters, many of whom were of the fair sex, attended the opening contests and some keen excitement prevailed during the matches, all of which were decided by slim margins. The opening setto was the narrowest kind of a hairbreath escape for the Park Club team, the boroughites copping the opener with a bare nine pins to spare.

Lyman's good pinning won the keystone encounter for the visitors, his 226 beating Ball's mark by one pin for the high score tally of the evening. Ball and Lyman were both conspicuous in the second game and as a result the Park Club won by a margin of sixty-seven pins.

Campbell and Stout both climbed into the double century class in the last game and the Elks piled up 922 and took a single contest. Three doubles centuries were credited to the Park Club men in the final issue but low scores by Barlow and Ball put a blemish on the team's work.

The scores:

THRILLS OF MELODRAMA IN WILD RIDE OF POLICE.

Fifteen Bluecoats Seize Engine and Get Fugitive After Hair Raising Chase.

Capture of the assailant of Charles Moore, employed at an Illinois railroad camp, was brought about by fifteen bluecoats in true melodramatic style. A wild ride on a switch engine, with policemen clinging to the footboard, crowding engine cab and tender, was the measure that achieved success.

Glenn is a hamlet not far from Summit, Ill. Reports had filtered into the police station at Summit of a shooting. The police there called for aid from the Brighton park station, the nearest Chicago precinct to Glenn.

"Take a wagon"— began the sergeant. Then he paused, nonplused.

None of the men knew the winding road, now dark and covered with snow, to Glenn.

"We can go over to the Chicago and Alton and take a train," suggested one.

Over in the yards of the Alton they found a puffing switch engine with an engineer at the throttle.

"Rush us to Glenn!" called one of the policemen to the man in the cab. "We've got to catch a murderer!"

The engineer readily assented. The fireman threw in a few shovels of coal, and the locomotive swung from the switch track to the main line. Through the darkness it plunged swiftly. On the footboard three bluecoats shivered and crouched.

On a siding three freight cars, dimly lighted, loomed up. One of the policemen shouted an order to the man at the lever. The train slowly slackened speed, and the "passengers" swooped down upon the cars filled with track laborers. The latter gesticulated and protested vigorously.

One of the policemen opened a stove door. There lay a revolver in the smoldering fire.

The eyes of the laborers drifted toward one of their number. The police seized him.

"I did it!" he said reluctantly.

The policemen hurried him aboard the locomotive and sped with him to the Brighton park station.

SMALL GRASS FIRE.

A still alarm was sent into fire headquarters at 3 o'clock this afternoon from a resident of Union street. Chief Doane dispatched the chemical to the scene and a grass fire was found burning in the lot on Union street near Randolph road. The damage was slight.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS TO MEET.

The regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage will be held at the Library on Tuesday morning next at 10:30. A full attendance is desired at that time, as matters of much importance are to be brought up.

Remarkable Twins Like the Siamese Interest Medical World

A PAIR of twins with only one abdomen between them is now exciting the interest of doctors in Paris and the medical world in general.

These twins are girls, Madeleine and Suzanne Durand by name. They are united by a band of flesh near the bottom of the breastbone. The abdominal cavities open into one another and are practically one.

The twins were born on Nov. 28 last and have developed well up to the present. The leading French surgeons are now planning an operation to separate them, because the abnormal bond between them, rendering privacy and an individual life impossible, must otherwise make their existence a long tragedy.

Dr. E. Le Filliatre, surgeon of the Central Prison infirmary and member of the Academy of Medicine, has made a special study of the case and will take part in the proposed operation to separate the twins. This will not take place until the children are strong enough to undergo an operation.

"Madeleine and Suzanne," Dr. Le Filliatre reports, "belong to the xiphopagus variety of twins. That means that they are joined together at a point above the stomach and below the thorax. The connecting link is a piece of very hard flesh of about twelve inches in circumference and four inches in thickness.

"They are what a woman would call very nice babies, and their condition now is satisfactory. At first they were fed with the bottle, but now they have a wet nurse and are putting on a third of an ounce daily, their weight at present being eleven pounds. Their physical, physiological and psychic duality is beyond doubt. One laughs while the other cries. Suzanne feeds while her sister sleeps, and the will of each is independent of the other.

"Madeleine's height is sixteen inches while Suzanne's is sixteen and two thirds inches, and the latter's chest measurement is also greater by two-thirds of an inch. Suzanne is the stronger, and the bones of her limbs are a little longer than Madeleine's. The hands and feet of Madeleine are small, her face is round, while her sister's is oval, and her heart pulsates 120 times to the minute, against 130 per minute for Suzanne. The body temperature of the twins differs slightly, and there is a difference in their cries."

The father of the twins is thirty-five year old and is a perfectly normal man. The mother is forty-four. By her first marriage she had a son who is now twenty-three years old and exhibits no physical peculiarity. By her second marriage she also had a boy who died at the age of seven from scarlet fever. Doctors have been unable to trace any hereditary defects in the family.

While the doctors state that Suzanne and Madeleine are separate individuals, there must be many respects in which their sensations are confused or shared. There is no fixed line upon the band of flesh that unites them where one individual ends and the other begins. A pin prick at any spot along this uniting band causes both of the babies to cry, although a similar stimulus on the opposite side from the band would make only one baby cry. Apparently there is a connection between the smaller nerves of the two bodies in this locality.

Taste, hunger, pain and most of the simpler sensations are experienced separately by each individual. When one baby is pleased by the taste of food in its mouth the impression is conveyed to its brain and causes that individual alone to coo or express pleasure. In cases, however, where an impulse is sent from one brain to the nerves of one body the effect must be felt to some extent in the other body on account of the connection between the two nervous systems.

Thus a piece of ice placed on the skin would be felt by one individual alone, but the depression caused by grief, fear and other emotions, although felt by one individual first, must be imparted in some degree to the other. These psychological interactions will, it is expected, become very marked in later years if the twins are not separated.

FOUR YEARS OF BOY SCOUTS ACCOMPLISH WONDERFUL WORK

Activities of Lads Who Have Celebrated Fourth Anniversary.

How the Movement Came to Be Started In America.

THE other day the 300,000 Boy Scouts of America and the 7,000 men who are their scoutmasters celebrated the fourth anniversary of the founding in this country of one of the most remarkable organizations of modern times. Throughout the length and breadth of the land these 300,000 lads are formed into troops and patrols, each with its leader, and so the anniversary was celebrated all over the country.

The way in which the organization of the boy scout movement came about in this country is an interesting story. Something over four years ago an American found himself lost in the streets of London during a foggy evening. He was helped out of his difficulty by a lad in uniform, who carried a lantern and piloted the American to a dwelling he wished to reach, where he had an engagement for dinner. The lad would take no recompense for the service rendered and explained that he could not take money for doing a good turn and that he was actually looking for some means for doing a good turn in the fog.

This led the surprised American to ask questions, and he learned for the first time the aims and objects of the boy scouts, for it was one of these who had helped him. He fired question after question at the little chap in uniform, who stood there, lantern in hand, that drizzling, foggy night. He learned that a scout's first duty is forgetfulness of self and service to others, especially in time of danger. He learned that the cornerstone was truth and honor, loyalty to God, to family, country and all placed in authority; that a scout learns how to drive out evil thoughts and desires by systematic exercise, which hardens his muscles; by cool baths, by proper food and suitable clothing and especially by keeping his mind occupied by doing things that are interesting as well as being what older folks call worth while. And finally the American learned that at the head of this wonderful organization of English boys was a great and distinguished Englishman, General Sir Robert Baden-Powell.

The American went in to dinner; his young guide saluted and went on his way. Next day the American sought General Baden-Powell and before long had so absorbed the spirit of the scout movement that he hastened home full of the idea of organizing a corresponding movement for American lads. And that is how the Boy Scouts of America came to be started.

Since the movement was placed on a permanent footing, four years ago, the Boy Scouts of America have grown by leaps and bounds. Within two years word came from Boston that there were 20,000 lads in and around that city who wanted to become scouts and could not because there were not enough men volunteering to act as scout masters. Today there are more than 300,000 scouts in the whole country, but only 7,000 scout masters, and need for more men to help to develop and guide boy life is growing keener month by month. Those active in the enterprise are convinced that if the value of the movement was understood by American men there would be 70,000 volunteer scout masters instead of 7,000.

The activities of the scouts can hardly be touched upon, so varied and comprehensive are they. Work in gymnasiums, hikes in the country, experience in building shelters in the woods, lighting fires with one match and without any match at all, cooking plain food, finding edible roots, berries, etc., when food supplies are lacking; instruction in swimming, diving, life saving, resuscitation of persons apparently drowned, fighting fires, rescuing persons from burning buildings filled with smoke and flames, skating, snowshoeing, building temporary bridges, preventing fires and extinguishing fires, cleaning up dirty neighborhoods, exterminating flies, abolishing mosquito pests, all the principal forms of first aid to the injured, stopping runaways, handling small boats in heavy seas, carrying messages with utmost accuracy across short or long stretches of city or country, running, jumping, guarding game and fish, training dogs and horses, setting up and working wireless apparatus in town or open country—these are only a few of the many features which enter into scout work. And at the basis of all is that single principle of self control and service for others which includes rigidly the rule of at least "one good turn every day."

Perhaps the most extraordinary service rendered in a large way was at the Gettysburg encampment last summer, when about 500 scouts reported for duty. They met every incoming train, helped the visiting veterans to find their tents, carried valises, made up cot beds, brought food and water to those too feeble to leave their tents, cared for man after man overcome by the heat, protected girl visitors from mashers in the streets of the tented city, acted as messengers and orderlies for the officers and performed a multitude of other duties.

In a formal report afterward issued by the surgeon in charge especial reference was made to a squad of boy scouts who were assigned to assist the Red Cross doctors and nurses. The surgeon wrote that the extraordinarily low mortality of the thousands of veterans was due in great degree to the incessant activities and trained intelligence of the boy scouts.

The list of rescues of drowning persons saved by scouts is a long one, and the instances come from every part of the country.

One of the most widespread duties rendered by scouts the past year was in connection with county fairs held at various places throughout the country. At fair after fair, where country people gathered by thousands, alert little fellows wearing scout uniforms acted as guides, cared for persons overcome by the heat, found lost children and restored them to distracted parents and in other ways showed that they could do things worth while. In fact, the boy scouts are doing something worth while every day. There is practically no limit to the good that this organization is accomplishing. It is the greatest movement for teaching the young idea to shoot, and to shoot true, that has ever been inaugurated.

YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSION BAND ELECT OFFICERS

The Young Women's Mission Band of the Trinity Reformed church held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William McIntosh, of Lenox avenue. Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of the church, conducted the devotional exercises.

The yearly reports of the officers and committees showed that the organization has had a very successful year, and had accomplished much during the course of the last twelve months for the furtherance of the work in which they are most interested.

The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Arthur B. Cole; vice-president, Mrs. Arthur Stevens treasurer, Miss Ethel Van Zandt recording secretary, Miss Elizabeth Brokaw; and corresponding secretary, Miss Mabel Wilson.

UNION COUNTY ENDEAVORERS HOLD A CONFERENCE SUPPER

A large number of Christian Endeavor workers met last night, at Trinity Reformed church, where a conference-supper was held under the auspices of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union. The press and information department of the union and the various societies represented were discussed at length by the many representatives from all over the county.

Walter Anderson, of Elizabeth, president of the union, presided at the open paliament which followed the supper. The list of speakers included Fred Mintell, of Rahway, and Mr. Warner, of Elizabeth. Harold Gray, of Elizabeth, chairman of the press committee of the organization, made the arrangements for the occasion.

The committee of Trinity church headed by Mrs. Monroe Farnham, assisted by members of the local society, served the supper.

WATER IN COAL MINES.

Pumping It Out Costs a Big Pile of Money Every Year.

It costs quite a bit of money to pump 1,000,000,000 tons of water out of the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania every year, but it must be done or there could be no mines. In times past, collieries were abandoned because of inability to cope with the water flowing into them, but more and more pumps, some of them costing $30,000 and $40,000 each, have been installed, and the enormous amount of work they do is all that enables the operators to keep open the mines.

The calculation as to the amount of water handled in this way is simple. The output of the mines is a little less than 70,000,000 tons a year. The average amount of water pumped is about fifteen tons for every ton of coal produced. The cost of this is one of the most important elements in the increased cost of mining. As the richer and more accessible veins have been exhausted, shafts have been sunk deeper and the volume of water to be pumped has increased rapidly.

The pipes, of which there are thousands of miles in the mines, wear out quickly because the sulphur in the mine water eats into the iron like an acid. This destructive quality prohibits the use of the water in the boilers that generate steam at the collieries, and the result is that, when there is a drought, the companies often are obliged to haul water to the mines in tank cars from many miles away.—New York Post.

CHAS. VAN WINKLE IMPROVED

Charles VanKinkle, son of Nicholas VanWinkle, of Somerset street, is resting easily, today, after undergoing an operation for facial trouble. Lockjaw threatened for a time, but the prospects for any such development is now nearly past. The swelling in the young man's face has now entirely disappeared, and prospects for an early recovery are excellent. This is the first case of its kind in annals of the local medical profession. Dr. Raphael Yood is in charge of the case.

Chalmers---1915 "Light Six"

Master "Light Six"

$1800

Fully Equipped f.o.b. Detroit

Our 1915 Demonstration Car is Here

We beg to announce the arrival of a new Chalmers model—the 1915 "Light Six."

In this new Master "Six" we offer you the latest, and we believe, in many respects, the greatest product of the Chalmers factory.

Here is the most truly sensational "Six" on the market, the car for which thousands have waited.

This 1915 Master "Light Six" offers you for the first time the luxury, smoothness and flexibility of the high-powered "Six" at the low initial cost and with the upkeep economy of any comparable "four."

This new "Light Six" gives us a complete line of the famous Chalmers cars—the Master "Light Six" at $1800 and the larger Master "Six" at $2175. There is now a Chalmers "Six" to suit your every requirement, and we stand ready to prove that, in their classes, these two great cars cannot be equalled within $500 of the Chalmers prices.

NO REASON FOR BUYING "FOURS" NOW.

With the appearance of the Chalmers 1915 Master "Light Six," the last reason for driving a "four" has disappeared. For in this 1915 model the Chalmers Company has answered the last arguments of the four-cylinder builders—those of price and economy.

In all the qualities of mechanical smoothness, endurance, silence, flexibility, and good looks, the 1915 "Light Six" is like the larger Master "Six" at $2175.

It has the same T-head, long stroke motor; the same silent one-motion Chalmers-Entz electric starter which makes the motor non-stallable; the same wonderful flexibility which has earned for Chalmers "Sixes" the title of "one speed" cars. It is a real manufactured car—built complete in Chalmers shops.

But the Master "Light Six" is built expressly for those who want a car of low initial cost and economy of maintenance.

This new "Light Six" is slightly smaller than the Master "Six." That means lower cost and makes possible the astonishingly low price of $1800.

LIGHT FOR ECONOMY; HEAVY ENOUGH FOR SERVICE.

The Master "Light Six" is a lighter car, but not a little car. It is light enough to be easy on tires, economical of fuel and easy to handle. Yet it is not flimsy. It is built heavy enough to assure safety in any emergency and comfort on any road. Don't make the mistake of buying too light a car—for any apparent saving in first cost, gained through skimping, is more than offset by the costly repairs which result from too light construction. Medium weight is right weight. The extra gasoline used by a medium car as compared with a very light car won't amount to $25 in 10,000 miles. And $25 won't buy many repairs for a car so flimsy that it shakes itself to pieces in ordinary service.

The 1915 "Light Six," like all Chalmers cars, is built to give satisfactory service through many seasons.

This latest Chalmers has a slightly smaller motor than the Master "Six." Yet it develops up to 50 horsepower, giving all the speed and all the power you will ever want in a car of this size. No car of equal motor and car size will show greater mileage per gallon of gasoline.

HIGH PRICED FEATURES; LOW COST.

Though the price of the 1915 Master "Light Six" is only $1800 it has all the features of high-priced cars. Such, for instance, as 6-cylinder en bloc motor with small bore and long stroke; cork insert disc clutch; left drive and center control; interlocking transmission gears which can't slip or be accidentally shifted; combination splash and direct oiling; cellular radiator; diamond-hard Tungsten steel valves; exclusive Chalmers design molded oval fenders; underslung Vanadium springs; non-stallable motor; Chalmers-Entz electric starter; tires carried at rear, giving absolutely clear running boards; the newest design streamline body with flush fitting doors; electric lights and horn. In a word, every feature of advanced construction and equipment which most cars in the $2000 class will not have for another year.

A YEAR AHEAD OF OTHERS

These are a few of the reasons why experts have declared this 1915 Chalmers "Light Six" the last word in medium priced 6-cylinder construction; why we claim you will find no car in the same class within $500 of the price to equal the 1915 Master "Light Six."

The other reasons why the Master "Light Six" is one year ahead of all other cars in its class, we'll be glad to show you in the Chalmers Standard Road Test. We are now arranging demonstrations, and can make prompt delivery if you place your order as soon as the 1915 "Light Six" has convinced you. At least do yourself the justice of a thorough inspection of the one "Light Six" which is a year ahead of all others.

THE BIRD OF INDUSTRY.

In history the Dove signifies Peace. Maurice Maeterlinck tells us that the Bluebird is the Bird of Happiness. The Case Company has made the Eagle—Old Abe—the bird of Industry. This famous mark is found on all Case machinery, which plows and tills the soil, and harvests the crops. It carries to men the things they have not, in exchange for those they have, over highways which it has built. When the day's work is done it takes man out into the open to forget his problems, so that his sleep is sound and his strength is renewed, to begin tomorrow where he quit today. ACTIVITY SHOWN IN FEDERATION

The activity and scope of work of the Federation of Womens' Missionary Societies of Plainfield is shown in the annual report of the secretary, Mrs. Daniel Rapalje, which was presented at the annual meeting held last week. The federation is comprised of the representatives of fifteen churches of the city and borough. The secretarys report follows:

"The second year of existence of the Plainfield Federation of Women's Missionary Societies has, perhaps, been one of adjustment rather than of much noticeable progress. As this is, however, a fundamental part of all actual progress, the outlook is by no means discouraging, on the contrary keenness of vision to see existing or new conditions and the power of adjustment to them, argues vitality and force, which surely make for true progress.

"The members of the two standing committees for home missions and foreign missions, drawn from the fifteen churches comprised in the federation, and constituting the working forces of the organization, have met at intervals to plan for work, and in this way, if in no other, a spirit of friendliness between representatives from various churches and denominations, has been developed that will go far toward promoting Christian unity.

"The same spirit has been noticeable among the members of the executive committee, also drawn from different churches.

"In accordance with plans arranged by the home missions committee of which Mrs. J.M. Whiton was chairman, the observation of home missions week—November 16-22, 1912, was as follows:

"Daily prayer in the home on each day except Wednesday on these topics: Sunday, For freedom from race prejudice; Monday, For pioneer workers; Tuesday, For immigrant women and children; Thursday, For public righteousness in dealing with the immigrant; Friday For the church that it may incarnate Christ; Saturday For the coming of God's kingdom in our country. On Wednesday, November 19, at 10 a.m., a union prayer meeting was held at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian Association, led by Mrs. Martin I. Cooley.

"On Tuesday, November 18, at 3:30 p. m., a meeting was held in the First Methodist Episcopal church. The speaker was the Rev. Frank Higgins and the subject 'Missionary Work in the Logging Camps.'

"On Friday, November 21, at 4 p. m., a Young People's rally was held in the auditorium of the Young Men's Christian Association. Dr. Peter Roberts, secretary of the industrial department of the Young Men's Association in New York, was the speaker on 'Our Comrades from Other Lands,' and the address was illustrated by stereopticon slides and moving picture films.

"The day of prayer for home missions, Thursday, February 26, 1914, was observed by an inter-denominational meeting held at 3 p. m. in Grace Methodist Episcopal church, led by Mrs. Charles Force, assisted by Mrs. F. St. John Fitch, president of the federation, and Mrs. John M. Whiton, chairman of home missions committee.

"Miss Emily March spoke on 'Co-workers with Christ;' Mrs. Lucie Fising on 'Jesus Christ and Human Society,' and Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire on 'The Golden Rule and the Christian Standard.' Many others took part in the meeting.

"The foreign missions committee of which Mrs. E. G. Read was chairman, arranged for a lecture Thusday, January 15, 1914, at 8 p. m., in the First Baptist church. This committee through the prompt and energetic action of its chairman secured as speaker on this occasion Rev. Samuel Zwemer, D. D., of Cairo, Egypt, for many years a missionary in Arabia, under the Reformed church in America, a man who probably is better acquainted with Moslem conditions than any other American. His topic was Mohammedism.

"Notices were sent of all these meetings to local churches and to twenty-two churches in neighboring towns, east and west. Attendance at all meetings was good and much interest shown.

"The federation therefore is justified in feeling assured that its efforts to increase interest in mission study, and to further and direct the general desire for fuller knowledge of conditions and needs at home and abroad have not been in vain.

"A meeting of the federation was held Wednesday, October 29, 1913, in the parish house of Grace Protestant Episcopal church, at which Mrs J. R. Paddock, corresponding secretary of the Interdenominational Federation of the Oranges spoke on 'Methods of conducting federation work.'

"At a meeting of the executive committee held Wednesday, January 7, 1914, in response to a call from the president, several members volunteered their services as speakers on the 'Aim of the federations'—at meetings of local missionary societies desiring such information. Twenty-two societies were communicated with by the secretary, and more supplied with speakers on this subject.

"It is a matter of regret that, with one exception the missionary societies have not availed themselves this year of the opportunity of securing speakers on missionary topics from other societies in the federation through the medium of communication with the secretary, who secured a list of all who were willing to speak in societies other than their own, and was prepared to answer calls for speakers. The society in Hope chapel asked for and was supplied with a speaker in May, 1913. It is to be hoped that many women will offer their services in this line, and that many societies will desire such speakers during the coming year. In this way the different societies connected with the federation may become mutually helpful.

"A nominating committee of seven was appointed by the president in February, 1914, as follows: Mrs. Charles Force, Grace Methodist Episcopal church; Mrs. Frank Hubbard, Seventh-Day Baptist church; Mrs. H. A. Pope, First Presbyterian church; Miss Anna Boice, First Baptist church; Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux, Congregational church; Mrs. John M. Lewis, First Methodist Episcopal church; Mrs. B. L. Fitch, Grace Protestant Episcopal church. An auditing committee of two as follows was also appointed by the president: Mrs. Henry Titus, Grace Protestant Episcopal church; Mrs. Charles Leggett, Trinity Reformed church.

"The executive committee at its meeting on Wednesday, January 7, 1914, desired the secretary to lay before the deferation the following recommendations: 'That the observance in this city of the day of prayer for foreign missions, January 9, appointed by the general advisory committee of the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions in the United States be hereafter assured by the Plainfield Federation of Women's Societies. That the churches comprised in the federation be urged to change annually if possible their representatives on the two standing committees, in order that more women may come into contact with the working forces of the federation and learn experimentally in what its work consists. That the secretary be empowered to employ the services of a typist when necessary.'

"At a meeting of the executive committee held in the parlor of the Seventh Day Baptist church on Monday, March 23, the secretary was instructed to lay before the federation the following additional resolutions:

" 'That the federation aid financially this year, the Italian mission, now under the care of the First Presbyterian church of Plainfield.'

" 'That no less than $25 be hereafter paid to all lecturers.'

" 'That the federation at its next meeting amend the following resolutions:'

" 'Resolved, that new chairmen for the home and foreign missions committees shall be appointed annually by the president from the retiring committees, and each church represented in the federation shall be requested to appoint annually one member to serve on each committee, to read as follows:'

" Resolved, that new chairmen for the home and foreign missions committee shall be elected annually preferably from the retiring committees, and each church represented in the federation shall be requested to appoint annually one member to serve on each committee.'

"The secretary acknowledged with thanks the considerate courtesy of the other members of the executive committee, one of whom offered privately to pay for the services of a typist during this year, the help afforded by the assistant secretary, the secretary of the standing committees and the members of these committees who have promptly published in their individual churches notices of meetings and lectures.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

—You may have an immediate task for a want ad—and yet not act wisely in failing to read them daily.

Winter's Chills Breed Kidney Ills

Chilly, damp, changing weather is hard on the kidneys. Even more irritating are colds, grip, pneumonia, tonsilitis, quinsy and other infections. The kidneys get congested and inflamed, and this causes backache and disordered kidney action. Though serious in its latter stages, kidney disease is not hard to conquer if a good kidney remedy is used when the first signs of kidney trouble are noticed.

The best recommended kidney remedy in the world is Doan's Kidney pills. You hear it everywhere. Get a box.

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Spring is Breaking; Backs are Aching

Backache is often the first sign of some form of kidney disease that has been coming on for months. Look for the other signs—lame back, sharp pains when stooping or lifting, dizzy spells, nervousness or despondency, with irregular, painful or distressing action of the kidneys; if these signs exist, decide that the kidneys need attention, ere the trouble turns to gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease.

Read this home testimony and then give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial.

PLAINFIELD PEOPLE TESTIFY

East Second Street

Albert Naylor, musician, 256 E. Second St., Plainfield, says: "Several years ago I suffered from an ache in the small of my back and sharp pains when stooping or lifting. I took Doan's Kidney Pills, as I was told that they were good for such trouble, and by the time I had finished two boxes, I was feeling better in every way. I have often recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to people I have heard complaining of kidney trouble."

Manning Avenue

Mrs. O. C. Moore, 57 Manning Ave., Plainfield, says: "I endured much misery from backache which was caused by weak kidneys. Many nights I was unable to rest at all and in the morning my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. Whenever I caught the least cold, it settled on my kidneys and any strain on my back made the aches and pains worse. I was treated by physicians, but their medicine didn't help me. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's Drug Store rid me of my trouble. They made me feel like a different person and I have never had any serious trouble since."

West Fourth Street

A. K. Mattis, 127 W. Fourth St. Plainfield, says: "I was troubled for years by a dull backache and pains in my head. It believe that it was due in a great measure to a bad fall I had. Nothing seemed to help me and when I read of the good work Doan's Kidney Pills were doing in similar cases, I got a supply at Randolph's Drug Store. They drove away the aches and pains and gave proof of their merit. I confirm the endorsement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills when they cured me a few years ago. The cure has been permanent."

PLAINFIELD CASES SELF-TOLD

Clinton Avenue

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, says "The first symptom of kidney trouble was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's Drug Store, I began using them. Before long I improved and I continued taking Doan's Kidney Pills until I was cured. I hold just as high an opinion of them now as when I gave my former endorsement recommending them. The cure they made has been permanent."

East Third Street

C. L. Treat, painter and paperhanger, 411 E. Third St., Plainfield, says: "I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble and for years couldn't get relief. My back ached constantly and I had pain across my kidneys. My kidneys were in bad shape and I became all run down, in fact, was almost a physical wreck. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply at Randolph's Drug Store, and my experience was so satisfactory that I cannot make my endorsement too strong. I simply wouldn't be without a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills on hand."

Watchung Avenue

Mrs. Cecelia Rosseter, 127 Watchung Ave., Plainfield, says: "I am only too pleased to again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and I hope that all kidney sufferers who read my statement, will profit by my experience. I have had a world of good from this remedy; backache, headache, dizzy spells and trouble with the kidney secretions being corrected by its use. I don't know what I would have done without Doan's Kidney Pills and I am certain that there is no kidney medicine that can be compared with them."

MORE RECORDS TO BE KEPT IN FUTURE

National League Heads to Compile Records Made by Substitutes.

John Heydler, secretary of the National League, is contemplating further improvements in the averages he yearly compiles and issues. This improvement is the printing of the records of the players who take part in less than fifteen games, these records being kept each year, but never made public. Consequently, when baseball experts desire to get a complete record of a certain player, they cannot obtain all the required information from the baseball guides and have to apply to the league secretaries for the missing data.

Sporting editors whose papers make a specialty of answering questions about the national pastimers will applaud Heydler's determination of printing the records of the limited opportunity class, no one connected with baseball, not even Heydler himself, having an idea who it was that made the rule that a player wasn't to get a record unless he took part in fifteen games.

One hundred and twenty-five noble athletes were denied records by the National League's able secretary last season because he followed precedent and didn't take any cognizance of the men who participated in less than fifteen games. There probably were just as many men in the American League whose performances were not made public by Ban Johnson's official statistician—Irwin M. Howe.

According to the guide books, the first year Christy Mathewson was in the National League was 1901, but really "Big Six" broke into fast company in 1900. "Rube" Macquard gets into the guides for the first time as a National Leaguer in 1909, and is not in them at all in 1910. The facts about the holder of the modern record for consecutive victories is that he figured in one victory in 1908 and in four wins and four losses in 1910. Al Demaree's first record in the guide books is in 1913, but his National League debut was accomplished in 1912.

The same condition of affairs regarding prominent pastimers crops up in the American League. Eddie Collins first donned the livery of the White Elephants in 1906, playing under the alias of "Sullivan" and covering himself with errors, yet he doesn't break into the averages until a year later. Frank Baker is awarded his first record in 1909, but he played under Connie Mack in the fag end of the season of 1908, hitting close to the .300 notch that campaign, but not manufacturing any of those fourbag blows that since have made him famous until the following year.

Tris Speaker, Chalmers car winner in 1912, is shown by the record books to have reached fast company in 1908, but as a matter of fact he was with the Red Sox in the fall of 1907, playing his first game for them on September 14, 1907, when he batted for Minstrel Man Morgan in the eighth inning of a game in Philadelphia, Jimmy Dygert pitching. Two days later Tris again did a pinch hitting trick in a game in Washington, Charley Smith pitching, and on September 17 he played his first full game in the American, getting a hit off Tom Hughes and accepting his lone chance in the field. Speaker's batting average that year was .282.

Heydler has made a lot of improvements in the National League averages in the last few years. He was the first secretary to give the number of complete games pitched by each man, the first to adopt the new earned runs system and the first to place the full names of the players in the records.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL FIVE TOOK A CLOSE DECISION

A suprise was handed to the Plainfield High School freshmen girls' basketball team, yesterday afternoon, when the Stillman Grammar School team came over to the High School gym and walloped them by the score of 29 to 21. Before the contest and during the first half the freshmen team showed signs of overconfidence, but in the second half their attitude changed and they made every effort to win the contest.

The first half ended at 15 to 10 in favor of the grammar school. Miss Adams and Miss Dall held the freshmen forwards to seven goals, while Miss Peacock and Miss Simons scored thirteen goals. Miss Crane was high scorer for the freshmen with four field goals and four foul goals, while Miss Peacock, of the grammar school, scored twelve field goals and three fouls. Miss Ryder played a fine all around game for her team, keeping the ball under her basket most of the game.

BIG LEAD HELPED Y. M. C. A. BOYS TO ANNEX A VICTORY

The sixteen point lead that was obtained in the first half of the game was the only thing that saved the Y. M. C. A. boys' team from defeat, last night, when the Peerless Five, of the borough, made a whirlwind finish in the second period on the association court. The visitors made but one tally in the first half while their opponents rolled up seventeen. The score was 24 to 17.

In the last half the Peerless team started things going and outplayed their rivals in every respect. They scored more points than the home team did, but the lead of the first half could not be overcome. Dawe was the star for the winners while Force and S. Dunning made the majority of the points for the losers.

ROD AND REEL

The flounders are biting in all the Jersey and Long Island bays with the exception of those that have very deep water, such as Raritan Bay and the lower New York and Sandy Hook bays. Flounders like shallow water where the sun has a chance to penetrate through to the bottom, and they liven up in such waters much more rapidly than they do in the deeper waters.

Flounders are biting at Freeport, Wreck Lead, Long Beach, Queenswater, the Raunt, Goose Creek, Holland Station and Broad Channel, Long Island, and all along Long Island Sound north of Riker's Island. Barnegat Bay reports show good catches, but very little is known of any other grounds.

Fishermen who have been in northwestern New Jersey since the opening of the trout season bring home neither trout nor encouraging reports. One man who spent all of Thursday fishing the streams near Andover came back without a fish. The brooks are gorged with snow water and running like mill-races. The weather is too cold for the most hardened anglers and much too cold for fish to bite well.

Even if the weather turns warm the man who goes after trout in the Jersey streams will do well to put plenty of split shot on his line. While the water continues icy the trout will hug the bottom and an unweighted line won't go near them.

So far as fly fishing is concerned, the northern Jersey trout won't touch anything at this time of year except a live flea from an Arctic fox. These cost $5,000 apiece and are not to be had at all sporting goods stores.

More than 1,000 tuna, also known as horse mackerel, were caught off Block Island in 1913. Some specimens weighed 600 pounds, it is shown in the Fish Commission's report today. The report points out that there is great possibility of developing the industry. The lobster business was doubled in this State last year. The total catch was 1,210,094 pounds.

The brook trout season opened this morning throughout the Empire State. Up-State the streams are more or less affected by the spring floods. On Long Island the conditions are splendid for anglers. The limit is ten pounds of fish to an angler and all fish must be six inches or over.

MORE TENNIS GAMES.

Manager Harold Lounsbury, of the Plainfield High School tennis team has scheduled two more matches for the coming season. These games are with Woodbridge High School on April 23, and with Roselle High School on May 27. Both matches will be played at Plainfield.

PLAYING FIELD NOT SELECTED.

Annapolis, Md., April 4—It was officially announced by the authorities of the Naval Academy yesterday afternoon that the navy committee had reported that it had made no selection of a place for the football game with the Army next fall.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

The manner in which that basketball exhibition was conducted in Saengerbund Hall, Thursday night, reflects with credit on the promoters, Jack Hegeman and John Gates, of this city, and if those fostering similar movements in this section would follow the policy pursued by these boys more successes in the sporting world would be accomplished locally. Catering to one of the largest delegations of rabid followers of the indoor sport that ever packed the Somerset street rendezvous the managers succeeded in pleasing everyone and nothing but favorable comment was forthcoming after the affair was ended. The two basketball games were excellent exhibitions of this popular branch of athletic competition and certain novelties were introduced that were original ideas with the Plainfielders who had charge of the undertaking.

Adams, a young pitcher of the University of South Carolina, yesterday afternoon defeated Guilford College, of North Carolina, 1 to 0, holding the visitors without a hit or a run. Only twenty-nine men faced him. He walked two and one was safe on an error, but one was caught and retired in a double play. He struck out twelve men, retiring the visitors in order in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh innings. Adams is a Columbia boy and a sophomore. He pitched his first college ball last season at the University of South Carolina. He is a right hander.

The first football score to be made by a college team in 1914 came on the Harvard Stadium gridiron, yesterday afternoon, when Captain Charles E. Brickley, of the Harvard varsity team, lifted a field goal from the 25-yard line for the only score of the day. Brickley's team of "regulars" defeated the second eleven, which was directed by H. R. Snyder, the assistant coach, 3 to 0, in a half-hour of play.

The news reached the A. A. U. headquarters yesterday from the Pacific coast that Howard P. Drew, the colored sprinter, had run the 100 yards in the world's record time of 9 3-5 seconds.

"FIRST AID TO DROWNING" ADVICE BY LOCAL AMPHIBIAN IN THE NEW YORK A. C.

(By Louis Hansen.)

The yearly list of fatalities by drowning is so appalling in the United States, despite the brave corps of life-savers doing duty at our bathing resorts, that there is evidently crying need of spreading among our public better knawledge of those simple rules of rescue and resuscitation, which will enable the great majority to cope adequately with the situation when present at an accident in the water. It is the only way by which the loss of life can be checked.

One cannot, indeed, but feel it a sad reflection on our country that the art of life-saving has been so completely neglected among us, notwithstanding the rapidly growing popularity of all other branches of aquatics. It is an every day occurrence to find men and women priding themselves on their experience in and on the water, who are quite helpless when confronted with the task of going to the aid of one in danger or of caring for the apparently drowned. And this ignorance in people who have had every opportunity to fit themselves for the purpose is absolutely unpardonable.

Those in charge of the education of our boys and girls should deem it a duty to amend the deplorable state of affairs. Already the necessity of teaching swimming to the younger generation has made itself felt, and one by one our schools and colleges are making natation a compulsory part of their curriculum; but that is not enough. Quite as important, if not more so, is the establishment of life-saving courses which will enable all both to protect themselves and to help others when the occasion arises.

About a year ago a committee was appointed by the American Life Saving Society to look into the methods in use at home and in foreign countries, with the object in view of ascertaining their relative merits, drawing from each its best features, and then drafting a set of rules to be adopted by the society as its standard. There served on the committee prominent swimmers, water polo players, life-savers and medical authorities, who contributed to the good cause their valuable experience in the various lines, and the result was the formulation of a code, modern, simple and complete, which promises to allow even the mediocre swimmer to tackle a rescue successfully and without fear or ill consequences, while fitting any one who reads retentively for the proper handling of the victim of a drowning accident.

Let us take first the line of conduct prescribed when going to the aid of those in danger, as worded in the code. Here are the instructions given:

"If you are dressed and see anyone in difficulty in the water, begin at once, without hesitation, to remove your outer clothing. Take off first your coat and vest, then your shoes, tie and collar. Thus ready try to familiarize yourself at a glance with existing conditions, noting whether the water is still or running, where you can best make a landing on the return, what assistance you may count upon in case of need, and so on, deciding quickly on a plan of action.

"As soon as you become convinced that the person is really in danger jump immediately into the water, entering carefully, with a shallow dive if head first, to avoid striking should there be submerged obstructions. On coming to the surface strike out with easy well timed strokes, conserving your energy, and keep your eyes constantly on the victim, that you may know where to search for him if he sinks before you reach him. This is particularly important in running water, when it is advisable, if the man disappears, to go directly to the spot where he was last seen plunge under water and swim with the current. The prevalent custom of taking up the search from below the mark, against stream is not the right one. Besides its being hard and exhausting to breast current, you may lose valuable time if the body travels faster than you estimate, or is caught and held.

"On coming within range of one who is struggling violently or shows signs of panic do not close in rashly, act warily. And bear in mind always that the only safe and ready way to subdue a frantic man in the water is to secure a hold from behind him. Aim, therefore, at coming upon him from the back, or at gaining this po tion without coming to a grapple. Either splash water in his face as soon as you are near enough, which will generally make him turn away or watch for an opportunity and swing him around yourself. A simple and effective way is to lunge unexpectedly for his wrist, and, with a sudden outward movement, spin him about, throwing your free arm around his neck. Once you have him thus you can, if he is submissive grasp him by the hair or the neck of his suit, and with a quick pull toward you, start him floating face up when you throw yourself gently backward, and proceed to tow him in this position, or by swimming with your unhindered arm and legs. If he endeavors to resist or fight place one hand on either side of his head, near the jaw, and hold him firmly, or seize him by the arms above the elbows, with your palms up, using your legs to propel yourself. If very unduly, better pass your arms under his (always from behind, of course), drawing him into a close embrace and pressing your hands on his chest. If this seems insufficient and you fear he may break away and prove dangerous shift without removing your arms from under his, and force his head forward, locking your legs around his and waiting until he has quieted down before attempting to carry him further. This method is drastic, however, and should not be used except in extreme cases.

"When you are called to the aid of one who has sunk, look around for bubbles—they are usually seen—and if the water is still they indicate the exact location of the body, directly beneath. Dive down at an angle on reaching the spot, starting a few feet away from the bubbles, and if you fail in your first attempt try a spiral plunge next, as you may otherwise overshoot the mark and become confused. In running or tidal water the bubbles will arise further down the current than the body lies, so dive from well above them, as already told, and swim with the stream.

"When you find your man below the surface, seize him by the hair, the clothing near the neck, or pass your hand under his chin. If you are on the bottom and the footing is free and solid, push off from it with a good upward spring, and then help your rise with the unincumbered arm and legs; but if the bottom is ready or soft don't attempt to push from it or you may get caught.

"In towing the rescued ashore never exhaust yourself by trying to breast a strong current, or to cut it in a straight line; many lives have been lost this way. Take no chances. Just swim easily across the running water, meeting it diagonally and seek the first landing place you can. Similarly, if you are caught in an outsetting tide at the seashore, or in a bad undertow, don't play yourself out in battling against them. It is far wiser to retain your strength, merely supporting your charge with head above water and awaiting the help which is likely to come at any moment in the shape of a lifeline or boat.

"The belief generally held that drowning people have a death grasp which practically is unbreakable does not seem to be shared by medical men who have given special study to the subject. Most of them, in fact, are of the opinion that no such thing as a death grasp exists. They claim, on the contrary, that, as a man loses consciousness, strength passes with recollection, so that the muscles gradually relax, loosening his hold. Whatever the truth in the matter, there is no doubt that drowning people soon lose control over themselves, and cannot, unaided, make their way toward you, so that by approaching them carefully you should be able to avoid being seized by them.

"It happens frequently, however, that, through miscalculation or accident, you find yourself so close to a struggling man that he can throw his arm about your neck or body. A means has been devised of eluding his efforts before you are caught. As he puts out his arm, thrust your open palm under it, near the armpit, so as to have his arms resting in the curve between your index and thumb; duck your head; allow yourself to sink; twist your body outward; then thrust his body forward, over you, and come quickly to the surface, when you will find yourself behind him, in position to secure any of the back holds described above. This clever break, which we owe to the American water polo players, has proved so sure and safe that those who have mastered it close in unhesitatingly with the most violent victim, confident of getting the upper hand in a few seconds.

"If, on the other hand, you unfortunately find yourself in the toils of a drowning man, do not lose your head, for effective breaks have been evolved for every known hold, and you can free yourself by using them. For instance, if you are locked by the wrists, sweep your arms violently together, twisting your wrists hard against your captor's thumbs. He will surely relinquish his hold, and with a quick motion you can reach for his arm and spin him around, back toward you.

"Body holds are more difficult to deal with, but swift and energetic action should liberate you. When caught around the shoulders so that your arms are pinned down above the elbow, bend your head and simultaneously throw up and out both arms. These combined movements will shoot you downward, bringing the other's arms about your neck or head. Then slip your palm under his armpit, hurl him around you and you have him from behind at your mercy. If the hold is around your waist, over your forearms, jerk both shoulders suddenly forward, which will loosen his grip, then lean back with a swift jerk and oscillate your shoulders heavily from side to side, gaining enough room to extricate one arm. Use this arm in leverage, bracing the hand on the pit of his neck. Snap out the other arm and lay its hand on his face, with the heel under the chin, palm over the mouth and outstretched fingers on either side of the nose. Then force his head back, at the same time pressing on the mouth and squeezing the nostrils together, so as to close completely both breathing channels. This shutting off of the air supply is in most cases sufficient to make the drowning man clutch at your hand and release you, but with a powerful antagonist it is advisable to bring up the bent knee, resting it against his body, ready to facilitate a breakaway in case of necessity.

"Throughtout the rescue it is helpful to speak quietly encouraging and reassuring words, if your ward is conscious, telling him what is being done ashore to bring assistance, how near he is to safety and so on. This always has a steadying, calming effect."

So much for the actual work in taking the victim from the water.

And now we come to the question of how to care for the patient after landing on terra firma. Before touching on the rules to follow it may help a thorough understanding of the subject to devote a few lines to the physiology of resuscitation and to the various known methods of producing artificial respiration.

The work of resuscitation to be thorough must have an object, first, to free the stomach and air passages from water and mucus; second, to force all the vitiated air possible from the lungs; third, to replace the foul gases with pure air that will properly oxygenate the blood; fourth, to induce this oxygenated blood to circulate and reach the head; fifth, to restore natural respiration.

The restoring of natural respiration is, of course, the final and essential aim.

The earliest recorded methods were those of tongue-traction and mouth-to-mouth inflation. Both were defective because neither took into consideration ridding the lungs of the mephitic air which is the principal check to returning activity. Tongue-traction depended entirely upon nervous stimulation, and the mouth-to-mouth system was even less effective, as it merely distended the lungs, increasing the supply of vitiated air.

In 1890, Dr. A. E. Schaefer, of the University of Edinburgh, was made chairman of a committee appointed to investigate the various methods of resuscitation then obtaining and, assisted by Dr. D. P. Herring and a competent staff, he carried out exhaustive experiments which eventually led to his evolving the so-called prone pressure method.

Here, then, is a simple, easy, readily learned method, which enables the living subject not only to continue indefinitely under treatment without voluntary breathing, but accumulates an excess of oxygenizing air at the rate of 910 c. c. a minute above normal requirements. There can be no question of its supremacy.

Following are the rules of the Life Saving Society for operating the Schaefer or prone pressure method:

"1. Carry the victim gently, face down, so that the mouth will begin at once to clear, on emerging from the water, but do not raise the legs higher than the rest of the body. If you have no help, carry the patient over your shoulder, with hand under his crotch, locked to his wrist.

"2. Lay patient down carefully prone. Open mouth wide, and, if foul with mucus or foreign matter, clean with hand or cloth. Stand across body, facing the head, and pass your arms around the waist until your hands meet over the left side, interlocking the fingers in order to grasp the stomach between your palms. Force out the water by raising the body from the middle, at the same time pressing the hands together. Knead inward and upward under the ribs from the left side toward the centre. Press for four seconds, then relax, endeavoring to grasp more and more of the stomach pouch, until water ceases flowing from the mouth.

"3. Place a small roll of clothing, a pillow or like support, beneath the victim at the stomach. Turn his head to the windward. Crook his arm on the side opposite the face. Rest the head in the bend of arm. Leave face free to the wind.

"4. Kneel over the patient, still facing the head, with one leg on each side of the body. Rest your open hands on his back, thumbs near the spine, at the height of his elbows, fingers spread over the lower ribs. Throw yourself forward, weight on your arms, and with steady increasing pressure force out the foul air from the lungs. After four seconds strengthen up quickly, releasing the ribs, so that they will spring back into place. Bend over again immediately to press for four seconds more, then straighten. Continue this treatment until signs of life begin to appear. Make from twelve to fifteen respiratory acts to the minute, according to the size of the patient. The larger the victim the more forcible and sustained should be the pressure and slower the action.

"If you should have an assistant, let him keep the mouth open and clean white you operate. He may also help by tickling the patient's nostrils with a feather, or passing smelling salts under his nostrils.

"6. Should these stimulants fail to take effect it may aid matters to slip an elastic band around the tongue of the subject. As you release pressure the assistant draws the tongue out; as you apply it he lets it slip back. In this way the air passage is gradually cleared through expulsion of the mucus from the throat.

"As soon as natural breathing sets in strip the patient of all wet clothing, cover the upper body with something warm and dry and start rubbing the limbs with rapid strokes, first from the centre joints toward the extermities, then toward the heart—that is, in applying friction to the legs face the feet, lay one hand lightly on the thigh and draw it rapidly toward the centre of the body; then lay the other hand in the same place and repeat. Keep going lower as the parts warm until you reach the feet. Take each foot between both hands and rub the two sides at once. When the leg is warm facilitate and return of the activated blood to heart by wrapping the hands around the ankle and pressing upward, gradually moving toward the body and squeezing every few inches. Treat the arms in like manner.

"8. After thus massaging the patient, envelop his body in blankets, or dress him in woolen underclothes, and put him to bed. If natural heat does not return promptly, distribute hot bricks or water bottles at his soles, over the stomach and under armpits, taking care to wrap them in cloths to protect from burns. See that there is good circulation of air in the room, and that some one remains on hand to meet emergencies, for there is danger of congestion for some hours.

"9. If necessary, give patient whiskey, brandy or other stimulants, diluted in hot water. Administer in teaspoon or tablespoon doses, every ten or fifteen minutes for the first hour, and as often as seems expedient thereafter."

And a parting admonition in closing. Do not become discouraged if success does not at once reward your efforts in resuscitation. Often the patient will respond after all hope seems lost. Authentic cases are on record of victims having been restored to life after being under water for as much as a half hour, and it has at times taken as long as four hours to induce natural respiration in the apparently drowned. Keep this before you when you fail at first, and do not let yourself be disheartened.

LOCAL CONTRACTORS ARE GETTING BUSY

Nine Permits Granted by Chief Doane, Only One Being for Alterations.

Building trades in this city are still making great strides in regaining their normal conditions. Since the early part of last week the local contractors have been kept busy in fighting on estimates and jobs of various sizes. During the course of the past week, Building Inspector T. O. Doane has issued nine permits, which call for the erection of seven dwellings, two garages, one stable, and one permit calling for alterations. These several permits call for structures to be erected at the aggregate cost of $37,220.

Contractors throughout the city are of the opinion that the present season will be one of the busiest years in the history of the city. It is to be realized, however, that the state of the money market will be a serious handicap to the building industry of this city and vicinity. It is known that several large buildings are being held up until the industrial conditions become easier. Despite these features, the outlook is very bright.

The following figures show the costs of the buildings for which permits have been issued during the month of March:

	New Buildings.	Alterations.	Totals.
1st Ward	$13,400	$1,000	$14,400
2d Ward	7,200	500	7,700
3d Ward	.....	.....	.....
4th Ward	4,500	300	4,700
Totals	$25,100	$1,800	$26,800

It is to be noted from the above figures that no permits whatsoever were issued for the Third ward, while the First ward leads in the expenditures for buildings.

Several permits which call for the expenditure of several thousand of dollars are still pending, awaiting the signature of Inspector Doane.

JUST NOTES

During the past month eighteen building permits have been issued at New Brunswick, which will call for an expenditure of $38,000. One of the permits calls for a building to be erected by the New Brunswick Refrigerator Company at a cost of $5,000.

Alterations on the building at the corner of Park avenue and West Fourth street, are now completed. J. C. Fields, Sr., will occupy one of the stores as a druggist.

Several building permits are pending the signature of Inspector T. O. Doane, the aggregate cost of which will be $18,000.

Rumors galore have been circulating through the city concerning the possible location of the Hoe Press Company, of New York, in this city. One of the rumors had it that the New York concern had secured an option on the plants of the Manganese Safe Company and the Saurer Motor Company. These reports could not be confirmed at these shops yesterday.

CENTRAL TERMINAL IS NOW COMPLETED

Three Years' Work at Communipaw Has Developed Splendid Structure.

After three years of waiting, the improvements at the Jersey City terminal of the Central Railroad of New Jersey are now complete, and will be officially opeaed to the public tomorrow. The entire structure will be in operation at that time. The train shed will have a capacity treble that of the old shed and will have direct access from the train platform to the upper decks of the ferryboats. This has been made possible by the installation of ramps or inclined runways from the main concourse on the train level to the concourse on the second floor of the station from which two electrically-operated gangways communicate through each ferry slip to the upper decks and cabins of the boats.

Outside the terminal proper there still remain several links to be welded in the general chain of improvements inaugurated by the Central three years ago. The most important are the doubling in size and entire re-adjustment of the passenger train yard (to be extended almost to Communipaw station a mile west of the terminal) and the replacing of the present system of interlocking switches and signals in the yard with a new plant of more than ten-fold greater flexibility and efficiency than the existing lay-out.

The new passenger train yard, at least the new part of it, will occupy the present sites of the two roundhouses between the terminal and Communipaw, which will be abandoned in the near future—that is, when the new plant to the south of the main stem tracks is ready for service. With the machine and repair shops, coal bunkers, etc., this will be the largest engine terminal in the East and the second largest in the country.

INCREASED ACTIVITY DURING PRESENT WEEK

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wipsy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

NEEDLEWORK

AN EFFECTIVE WILD ROSE DESIGN FOR EMBROIDERING A SET OF UNDERWEAR

Dainty hand embroidered underwear is something every woman enjoys having, and the girl who is planning her trousseau will wish to have the prettiest lingerie she can afford. It may be made of nainsook, batiste, fine long-cloth, crêpe de Chine or China silk. The girl who expects to travel or spend some time in Europe will be wise to make a few sets of fine cotton crepon which can be laundered without ironing, for it is not always convenient or possible to have laundry done when one is traveling.

Elaborate lace trimmed underwear is not as satisfactory as that made from fine materials and finished with a little hand embroidery. The lace trimmed garments are in constant need of mending, for the lace never wears as well as the material, while hand embroidery often outwears the fabric on which it is worked. Transfer pattern 14463 may be used for stamping a slip-over nightgown. This attractive wild rose design should be embroidered in buttonhole-stitch and solid work with No. 25 white mercerized cotton. If you wish to make a complete set of underwear trimmed with this design, you can use pattern 14133 for stamping the chemise or combination garment and border 14134 for finishing the drawers and petticoat. This border is 4 inches wide and includes 2¼ yards.

FAVORITE WAYS WITH FISH.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Scallop of Fish.
Potato Cakes (a Leftover).
Cheese Toast.
Apple Turnovers.
Tea.

Scallop of Fish.—Take a half pound cold cooked fish, a half teacupful of white sauce, a quarter of a teaspoonful of Worcester sauce and some browned crumbs. Remove all pieces of skin and bones from the fish; break this into flakes. Stir it into the sauce, adding a few shrimps. Butter well some scallop shells and fill them with the mixture. Sprinkle with browned crumbs. Put a few tiny pieces of butter on top and bake until the mixture is very hot. Garnish each shell with a little parsley.

A Seasonable Appetizer.

Fish and Vegetable Salad.—Prepare some cold cooked vegetables, such as potatoes, carrots, green peas and French beans by cutting the former into small pieces or dice. Flake some cold fish and mix with the vegetables. Arrange the salad in a salad bowl and pour over this some nicely seasoned mayonnaise sauce, mixed with a large tablespoonful of sauce. Decorate with quarters of hard boiled egg, endive and small groups of pickles.

A Savory Dish.

Curried Fish Croquettes.—Remove skin and bones from any kind of cold white fish, putting the pieces of fish into a bowl. To each half pound of fish add one ounce of butter, two ounces of breadcrumbs or cooked rice and one teaspoonful of curry powder. Season with salt and pepper and a little chopped lemon rind; then moisten with sauce and a well beaten egg. Mix all together and shape into neat croquettes, cork or ball shapes, dip them in egg, roll in breadcrumbs and grated cheese, place in a wire basket and fry to a golden color in hot fat. Take up, drain, garnish with fried parsley and serve.

A Novel Combination.

Fillet of Fish With Vegetables.—Skin and fillet two medium sized soles or flounders. Flatten each fillet a little; then fold over and trim neatly. Next roll each fillet round a cube shaped piece of raw carrot or potato and place in a small buttered timbale mold and fill with seasoned fish stock, to which have been added a little white wine and lemon juice. Poach the fish in the oven for about ten minutes. Have ready about half a pound of white grapes, peel them and remove the pips, mix them with a few slices of lemon cut into fine shreds and heat up in butter. Unmold the fillets of sole and fill each with the prepared grapes. Serve with sauce, to which a little grape juice and lemon juice have been added.

Daddy Telling About the Easter Party.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Easter Party In the Barnyard.

DADDY was very, very tired. Somehow he seemed to feel more tired than he had for many days. But just the same, with all his weary bones, he was glad he had Jack and Evelyn to tell a story to before bedtime.

Well, he climbed the stairs slowly and very quietly—so quietly that Jack and Evelyn didn't hear him. And that was most unusual. Jack thought he heard a creak on the stairs and told Evelyn about it, but she had heard nothing, so Jack decided it must have been a mistake. And then daddy appeared.

"I was right," said Jack.

"And I was wrong," said Evelyn.

Evelyn laughed. "Now, daddy, you mustn't pretend you don't know, for you heard Jack saying he thought he heard something on the stairs, and that made you all the quieter. Now, didn't it, daddy? 'Fess up."

"Well, maybe it did," laughed daddy.

"You're late tonight, aren't you, daddy?" asked Jack.

"Yes," replied daddy. "I had a long day, and then there were a lot of other things to attend to."

Jack and Evelyn looked at each other very knowingly. They knew daddy had been getting little chocolate bunnies and chocolate hens with green ribbons around their necks and fuzzy little yellow play chickens whose heads came off. And then candy was inside!

"I don't suppose we could possibly guess where you went, daddy?"

"Oh, I am sure you couldn't!" said daddy.

Of course neither child guessed, as it would have spoiled all the fun.

"We're talking so much," said Jack; "how about the story?"

"Oh, yes, the story!" said Evelyn.

"I am going to tell you tonight about an Easter party in the barnyard," said daddy. "All the little yellow chickens and the old mother hens and the duck family were the ones who started the party. The little fuzzy chickens and the ducks were most enthusiastic because they were so young they weren't used to parties, and they thought they were such fun. They even loved all the fuss of getting ready.

"But at last the mother hens and the mother ducks said that the party was ready, and then they began.

"First of all, they played games, but the best part of the party and the part that the little ducks and little chickens liked the very best of all was the supper, and they asked the mother hens and the mother ducks to give them another Easter party very soon, for they had never tasted such delicious party food before."

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER XI.

THE prosecution produced many witnesses during the next two days. Shanty Boat Tim's story withstood the most vigorous cross examination. After him, Mr. Bronson from the theater corroborated Miss Hope's story of Jennie Brice's attack of hysteria in the dressing room and told of taking her home that night.

He was a poor witness, nervous and halting. He weighed each word before he said it, and he made a general unfavorable impression. I thought he was holding something back. In view of what Mr. Pitman would have called the denouement, his attitude is easily explained. But I was puzzled then.

So far, the prosecution had touched but lightly on the possible motive for a crime—the woman. But on the third day, to my surprise, a Mrs. Agnes Murray was called. It was the Mrs. Murray I had seen at the morgue.

I have lost the clipping of that day's trial, but I remember her testimony perfectly.

She was a widow, living above a small millinery shop on Federal street, Allegheny. She had one daughter, Alice, who did stenograpy and typing as a means of livelihood. She had no office and worked at home. Many of the small stores in the neighborhood employed her to send out their bills. There was a card at the street entrance beside the shop, and now and then strangers brought her work.

Early in December the prisoner had brought her the manuscript of a play to type, and from that time on he came frequently, sometimes every day, bringing a few sheets of manuscript at a time. Sometimes he came without any manuscript and would sit and talk while he smoked a cigarette. They had thought him unmarried.

On Wednesday, Feb. 28, Alice Murray had disappeared. She had taken some of her clothing—not all—and had left a note. The witness read the note aloud in a trembling voice:

Dear Mother—When you get this I shall be married to Mr. Ladley. Don't worry. Will write again from N. Y. Lovingly, ALICE.

From that time until a week before, she had not heard from her daughter. Then she had a card, mailed from Madison Square station, New York city. The card merely said:

Am well and working. ALICE.

The defense was visibly shaken. They had not expected this, and I thought even Mr. Ladley, whose calm had continued unbroken, paled.

So far all had gone well for the prosecution. They had proved a crime, as nearly as circumstantial evidence could prove a crime, and they had established a motive. But in the identification of the body so far they had failed. The prosecution "rested," as they say, although they didn't rest much on the afternoon of the third day.

The defense called, first of all, Eliza Shaeffer. She told of a woman answering the general description of Jennie Brice having spent two days at the Shaeffer farm at Horner. Being shown photographs of Jennie Brice, she said she thought it was the same woman, but was not certain. She told further of the woman leaving unexpectedly on Wednesday of that week from Thornville. On cross examination being shown the small photograph which Mr. Graves had shown me, she identified the woman in the group as being the woman in question. As the face was in shadow, knew it more by the dress and hat. She described the black and white dress and the hat with red trimming.

The defense then called me. I had to admit that the dress and hat as described were almost certainly the ones I had seen on the bed in Jennie Brice's room the day before she disappeared. I could not say definitely whether the woman in the photograph was Jennie Brice or not; under a magnifying glass thought it might be.

Defense called Jonathan Alexander, a druggist who testified that on the night in question he had been roused at half past 3 by the prisoner, who had said his wife was ill, and had purchased a bottle of proprietary remedy from him. His identification was absolute.

The defense called Jennie Brice's sister, and endeavored to prove that Jennie Brice had had no such scar. It was shown that she was on intimate terms with her family and would hardly have concealed an operation of any gravity from them.

The defense scored that day. They had shown that the prisoner had told the truth when he said he had gone to a pharmacy for medicine that night for his wife, and they had shown that a woman, answering the description of Jennie Brice, spent two days in a town called Horner, and had gone from there on Wednesday after the crime. And they had shown that this woman was attired as Jennie Brice had been.

That was the way things stood on the afternoon of the fourth day when court adjourned.

Mr. Reynolds was at home when I got there. He had been very much subdued since the developments of that first day of the trial, sat mostly in his own room and had twice brought me a bunch of jonquils as a peace offering. He had the kettle boiling when I got home.

"That's curious!" he said.

"You have had a number of visitors," he said. "Our young friend Howell has been here, and Mr. Holcombe has arrived and has a man in his room."

Mr. Holcombe came down a moment after, with his face beaming.

"I think we've got him, Mrs. Pitman," he said. "The jury won't even go out of the box."

But further than that he would not explain. He said he had a witness locked in his room, and he'd be glad of supper for him, as they'd both come a long way. And he went out and bought some oysters and a bottle or two of beer. But as far as I know he kept him locked up all that night in the second story front room. I don't think the man knew he was a prisoner. I went in to turn down the bed, and he was sitting by the window, reading the evening paper's account of the trial—an elderly gentleman, rather professional looking.

Mr. Holcombe slept on the upper landing of the hall that night, rolled in a blanket—not that I think his witness even thought of escaping, but the little man was taking no chances.

At 8 o'clock that night the bell rang. It was Mr. Howell. I admitted him myself, and he followed me back to the dining room. I had not seen him for several weeks, and the change in him startled me. He was dressed carefully, but his eyes were sunken in his head, and he looked as if he had not slept for days.

Mr. Reynolds had gone upstairs, not finding me socially inclined.

"You haven't been sick, Mr. Howell, have you?" I asked.

"Oh, no, I'm well enough. I've been traveling about. Those infernal sleeping cars"—

His voice trailed off, and I saw him looking at my mother's picture, with the jonquils beneath.

"That's curious!" he said, going closer. "It—it looks almost like Lida Harvey."

"My mother," I said simply.

"Have you seen her lately?"

"My mother?" I asked, startled.

"No, Lida."

"I saw her a few days ago."

"Here?"

"Yes; she came here, Mr. Howell, two weeks ago. She looks badly—as if she is worrying."

"Not—about me?" he asked eagerly.

"Yes, about you. What possessed you to go away as you did? When my—bro—when her uncle accused you of something you ran away instead of facing things like a man."

"I was trying to find the one person who could clear me, Mrs. Pitman." He sat back, with his eyes closed. He looked ill enough to be in bed.

"And you succeeded?"

"No."

I thought perhaps he had not been eating, and I offered him food, as I had once before. But he refused it, with the ghost of his boyish smile.

"I'm hungry, but it's not food I want. I want to see her," he said.

I sat down across from him and tried to mend a tablecloth, but I could not sew. I kept seeing those two young things, each sick for a sight of the other, and, from wishing they could have a minute together, I got to planning it for them.

"Perhaps," I said finally, "if you want it very much"—

"Very much!"

"And if you will sit quiet and stop tapping your fingers together until you drive me crazy I might contrive it for you. For five minutes," I said. "Not a second longer."

He came right over and put his arms around me.

"Who are you, anyhow?" he said. "You who turn to the world the frozen mask of a Union street boarding house landlady, who are a gentlewoman by every instinct and training and a girl at heart? Who are you?"

"I'll tell you what I am," I said. "I'm a romantic old fool, and you'd better let me do this quickly before I change my mind."

He freed me at that, but he followed to the telephone and stood by while I got Lida. He was in a perfect frenzy of anxiety, turning red and white by turns, and in the middle of the conversation taking the receiver bodily from me and holding it to his own ear.

She said she thought she could get away; she spoke guardedly as if Alma were near, but I gathered that she would come as soon as she could, and, from the way her voice broke, I knew she was as excited as the boy beside me.

She came, heavily coated and veiled, at a quarter after 10 that night, and I took her back to the dining room, where he was waiting. He did not make a move toward her, but stood there with his very lips white, looking at her. And at first she did not make a move either, but stood and gazed at him, thin and white, a wreck of himself. Then:

"Ell!" she cried, and ran around the table to him as he held out his arms.

The schoolteacher was out. I went into the parlor bedroom and sat in the cozy corner in the dark. I had done a wrong thing, and I was glad of it. And, sitting there in the darkness, I went over my life again. After all, it had been my own life; I had lived it; no one else had shaped it for me. And if it was cheerless and colorless now, it had had its big moments. Life is measured by big moments.

If I let the two children in the dining room have fifteen big moments instead of five who can blame me?

The next day was the sensational one of the trial. We went through every phase of conviction: Jennie Brice was living. Jennie Brice was dead. The body found at Sewickley could not be Jennie Brice's. The body found at Sewickley was Jennie Brice's. And so it went on.

The defense did an unexpected thing in putting Mr. Ladley on the stand. That day, for the first time, he showed the wear and tear of the ordeal. He had no flower in his buttonhole, and the rims of his eyes were red. But he was quite cool. His stage training had taught him not only to endure the eyes of the crowd, but to find in its gaze a sort of stimulant. He made a good witness I must admit.

He replied to the usual questions easily. After five minutes or so Mr. Llewellyn got down to work.

By Alice Gibson

Colored blouses are to be favored this season even more than white. They're fashioned of all the thin materials—cotton crepes, voiles, and batiste; there are also several silks excellent for this purpose, crepe de chine, pongee and Indian silks. Yellow, from the palest shade to the darkest orange, is one of the smartest colors. Light blue and pink and the other pastile shades will be used as well; the new Indian silks are especially pleasing for this purpose, showing as they do many quaint, unusual designs. Any of these silks will launder if one goes about it in the proper way. A very good way to launder wash silk is to iron it with a medium hot iron while still wet, having first pressed as much of the water out as is possible with a turkish bath towel; if the iron is too hot it will destroy both the color and the material.

To copy this blouse in size 36 it requires 3¾ yards of 36 inch material. Pattern is cut in six sizes, 32 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

Opinions and Results of the Vote In California.

After New York Suffragists get the vote they will find out what real work is.

The California women sent a message that if you want any leisure, you'd better keep on working for suffrage and not win it. But they are happy to be "building for good." (Mrs. James Lee Laidlaw on her return from California.)

Is it so laborious then to "drop a ballot in a box" or does the "fifteen minutes once a year" required for the operation seem unduly long

They are happy to be "building for good."

There are two opinions on this point evidently as the following from one of the most ardent promoters of Woman Suffrage in California—not Miss Anna Bock—demonstrates. In an interview last December she regretfully and earnestly said: "To be quite candid, we are very doubtful now that we have it, whether it will be for the best or not. We have not been able as yet to prove to the refined thoughtful women, that it is their duty to vote, whether they like having to or not."

Of course, she continued, "most of the club-women voted, but the majority at the polls did not belong to the intelligent thinking classes at all."

These classes evidently have not come to the realization that having had the responsibility of the ballot put upon them, they must regard it as a sacred duty to vote, not for a man because he stands for some pet interest of their own, but for his fitness best to serve the State, municipal or Federal Government as the case may be.

California appears to share the experience of Australia as quoted in this column some weeks ago from Miss Jessie Ackermann.

Whether welcome or not, every thoughtful, conscientious, patriotic woman, must thus regard the franchise if she lives in a Suffrage State.

This doctrine is declared by every well-informed, broad-minded Anti and by none more emphatically than the prominent writers and speakers.

The Californian had traveled East studying conditions in Suffrage and non-Suffrage States in the principal cities, and declared it as her opinion that the further East you come, the most disastrous would Equal Suffrage be. "If our experience of the classes voting proves anything, how infinitely worse it would be in your Eastern States with their overwhelming foreign population."

Suffragists, however, are always assuring thoughtful, patriotic women in the Anti ranks "that they need not vote." Is this the patriotism of the Suffragist? To gain her own desire she gladly places the ballot in millions of ignorant hands, while declaring to the vote which would represent thought, patriotism and intelligence, that it would be negligible.

A short time since a woman correspondent of a New York daily says: "Miss Todd, of California, spoke at a meeting in a private house in New York a few days ago. She had a telling way of making her facts and figures all go towards proving the good woman suffrage had done in California. For instance she announced, 'I come from a State with 700,000 women voters,' but she did not say that 73% of them did not register at the Presidential election of November 5, 1912. The votes of men and women are not counted separately so we do not know how many voted. On the very morning on which Miss Todd spoke I received a check for $100 from a California woman to help the work of opposition to suffrage in New York State. She writes: 'It is a retrograde movement and a disintegrating force.'"

We find the following statistics in a report prepared for the Senate hearings on Suffrage in Washington:

"About six years prior to the adoption of woman suffrage in California Los Angeles voted on local option and the measure was defeated two to one. About a month after women had the ballot in Los Angeles, the question was again voted on and the saloons won by nearly three to one.

"At an election, March 24, 1913, in Los Angeles, Cal., involving radical changes in the City Charter, only 31,000 voters (men and women) out of 222,817 (Census 1910 P. 113) cast their ballots. This, too, after a Citizen Committee of 1,000 advocated, in all the newspapers, the adoption of certain propositions and the defeat of others. Nine out of ten of the reform measures were defeated.

"Pasadena, Cal. for many years, in fact, practically for its entire history, had been a dry city. But soon after women were given the franchise, the sale of liquor was legalized.

"Redondo, Cal., voted on local option, October 14, 1913. The saloons won. Los Angeles Times of October 15th says that both sides claim the result was due to the women's votes.

"Anshem, Cal., (population 2,628) voted local option, November 6, 1913. The saloons won. See Los Angeles Times, November 7, 1913.

"San Bernardino, Cal., voted for the saloon January 30 1914. See Las Angeles Times, January 31, 1914.

"December 2, 1913, Santa Monica, Cal., voted wet. Ballots nearly three to one for liquor to be sold on Sundays and nights. The Los Angeles Times of December 3d, says the triumph of 'demon rum' and 'the sparkling cabaret' is attributed to the women, who voted two to one against a Sunday drought. Total vote for the saloons and Sunday liquor 2,175 against 814. Letter under date of December 13, 1913, from Director of U. S. Census shows that in 1910 Santa Monica had 2,462 males and 2,748 females over 21 years of age; 286 more women than men, yet we have the sale of liquor legalized in cafes all night and on Sundays in a city of homes of less than 8,000 (7,847) people and I doubt that a parallel can be found in any State where the franchise is limited to men.

"At a city election in San Francisco, November 11 1913, 49,833 women registered and 19,678 voted, about ¼ of the votes being cast by women. In three precincts no women voted. In 49 out of 673 precincts, there was an average of less than ten votes per precinct, by women (analysis of vote by Registrar of Elections, Lemanaky; see Los Angeles Times, November 20, 1913) Census 1910 shows there were 120,859 women over 21 years of age in San Francisco, so only 16.2% voted in election November 11, 1913."

Private opinions and statistics (as far as space permits) seem to coincide as to the success of the experiment of Suffrage in California.

Be it noted that an ardent promoter of Suffrage in that State—after months of studying condition in other States—concluded that it would be "infinitely worse in the Eastern States."

WHISTLER STORIES

Audacity and Sarcasm of the Eccentric Genius.

THE FAMOUS PEACOCK ROOM

"Jimmie's" Offhand Hospitality, at His Patron's Expense, While Decorating It, the Clash It Led to and the Way the Artist Squared Accounts.

In Mrs. Alec Tweedie's "Thirteen Years of a Busy Woman's Life" she tells this story of Whistler, which she heard at first hand:

"The famous peacock room at Prince's Gate was a wonderful scheme of decoration, peacock's eyes on a gold ground being its principal motif. About the year 1880 the late Mr. Leyland, a wealthy shipowner and patron of the arts, had taken this grand new mansion and asked Whistler to decorate a room. Jimmy, poor and out at elbows as usual, jumped at the idea, but no terms were fixed upon. The work began. It was a prodigious undertaking, and the extraordinary and erratic little man gave it his whole time.

"Being at Prince's Gate all day and having the run of Leyland's house. Whistler had a hospitable way of inviting his friends to come and see the room and then he would ask them to stop to luncheon. This sort of thing, which began occasionally, ended in being an almost daily occurrence, and Jimmy used to hold a little levee every morning, when three, four or five people remained to lunchon. This became too much for Mr. Leyland, and his plan for putting an end to the campaign was a somewhat ingenious one.

"Jimmy one day entertained four friends. The meal not being announced, he rang the bell for the butler. 'When is lunch?' he asked.

"'I have no orders for lunch,' replied the man, with a stately air.

"'Oh, fo, of course,' replied Jimmy, not in the least disconcerted. 'We'll go along to such and such a hotel. Stupid of me to forget it.'

"But it was enough, and, though he pretended not to mind and with that delightful impudence for which he was famous turned it off, he never forgave the incident and determined to pay Leyland out. From that day he took his own lunch in a little paper parcel and sat and devoured it when so inclined. On the next occasion Leyland came in to admire the peacock decorations about the usual luncheon hour.

"'You will have some lunch, won't you?' Whistler said. Leyland looked surprised.

"Up jumped Jimmy, fetched his bag and proceeded to untie his parcels, saying: 'It's all right, old chap; have no anxiety. It is my lunch, not yours, and you are heartily welcome to it.'

"When the work was accomplished which had taken so long Leyland wished to pay the bill and asked the artist what was his figure. 'I have worked a whole year and more,' Whistler said. 'I consider my services are worth £2,000 a year, therefore the figure is £2,500, from which you can deduct the few hundreds you have given me on account.'

"Leyland was horrified. 'Preposterous,' he said, 'perfectly preposterous!'

"Jimmy looked at him and drew himself up to his full height, which was not great. 'I beg, Mr. Leyland, that you will accept as a gift the entire work of my life for the last year and a quarter. I can compromise nothing.'

"Once again Whistler scored and Leyland paid. Whistler's thanks to his patron afterward took the form of painting a life size portrait of him as a devil with horns and hoofs."

Sir E. J. Poynter, P. R. A., says the New York Sun, told in an interview how when he was studying in Paris for three or four years there was one little artistic group called "Trilby." He says:

"My companions were Whistler, Du Maurier, Val Prinsep, Lamont, Thomas and Armstrong. Of course Du Maurier altered the thing a good deal, but his picture of studio life was in the main a truthful representation of our life at that time. Trilby herself, I believe, was a pure product of the author's brain.

"In many ways the most remarkable man among us was Whistler. If he had only had energy there is no knowing to what height he might have soared, but he was incorrigibly lazy. I remember visiting him once at a nursing home in Paris. He had been working a little on a study in pink carnations. It was exquisite from the extraordinary sense of color it displayed. This was his great gift. He excelled every painter ever known in purity and delicacy of coloring. He rarely finished any work, but he loved to pretend, just for fun, that his unfinished studies were perfect works of genius. Then he would chuckle when people took him at his word and declared that the very incompleteness of the sketches constituted their great artistic merit."

Two Sided Paper.

One of the most extraordinary newspapers on record is a weekly published in the little German town of Gruningen. As the place is too small to support more than one paper the Wochenblatt is the official organ of the two local political parties, the Liberals and the Socialists. Half the pages are written by members of each party, an arrangement that seems to satisfy both sides.

The first hour of the morning is the rudder of the day.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Cadillac — Standard of the World

The Car Twelve Months Ahead

From the Manchester, England, Dispatch:—

It is only after mature reflection that one is able to grasp the importance of the enormous improvements embodied in the Cadillac chassis. We have been so long accustomed to believing and being told that the English car is indisputably ahead of any other construction in the world that it comes as something of a shock when we are faced with a car successfully embodying features which are as yet in the merely experimental stage in British car builders' work shops.

On the Cadillac car will be found an interesting example of a two-speed back axle, and we may here remark that the construction has been thoroughly tested and found serviceable and reliable, both in the United States and in Europe. There is no element of experiment about the work; it has proved itself. The pressing of a button throws the low or the high-gear on the axle into operation as required, and that is all about it. They tell that, as a test, the car was driven from London to Edinburgh with a full load without handling the gear-change lever at all. Pressing the button was all that was required.

Having admired the axles to our heart's content, we are at liberty to examine the many other features of the Cadillac chassis, which calls for close examination. There is the self-starter, which will start the engine a thousand times without a miss. There is the neat little mechanical tyre pump. This is one of the finest chassis, taking all things into consideration, that left the United States just as an ordinary proposition. All her improvements are practically thrown in. I should term her the push-the-button car. So far as ordinary practice is concerned, she is equal to any. Her unique improvements have placed her twelve months ahead.

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose, equipped to meet every emergency, to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent, unaffected by the hazards of human life.

Reo the Fifth--a Super-Car

It has a 35-horsepower engine, but every driving part is made to stand 50-horsepower tests.

Test chassis have been run for 10,000 miles—run night and day at high speed on rough roads. Then taken apart and inspected. And every vital part is built so that all that reckless driving leaves it practically like new.

The steel is made to formula. The gears are tested for 75,000 pounds per tooth. The springs for 100,000 vibrations.

The car has 15 roller bearings. It has 190 drop forgings. It has oversize tires. It has a very costly clutch to prevent all the damage of gear clashing.

In a hundred ways which mean strength and endurance it offers you a super-car.

THE CAR TO KEEP

The car is for men who buy cars to keep. For men who want cars to stay new. Each car is built as Mr. Olds would build it for himself.

It is also for men who want the last word in beauty and equipment. It has the new streamline body. It has electric starter and lights. It has the one-rod control which makes gear shifting easy. It has perfect finish, deep upholstery, hand-buffed leather, etc.

NOW $220 LESS

This year's model sells for $220 less that last year's model with electric starter. This is largely due to the fact that all special machinery for building this chassis has been charged against previous output.

Now, for the first time, a car built like this and equipped like this is sold for $1,175 f. o. b. factory.

Every spring, the demand for Reo the Fifth exceeds the factory output. Production this year has been largely increased. But the demand for this car keeps ahead of supply.

We urge you, therefore, to come this week. If you want this car for early delivery come while we can supply you. The time is bound to come when we can't.

P. C. C. DEFEATS PROPOSED CHANGE

Liberal Faction Loses Out in Fight for All-Day Sunday Golf.

VOTE WAS 95 TO 93

Upon Motion of Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson All Debate Was Eliminated—Golf Course will be Kept Open Half Day Sunday as Usual.

The Plainfield Country Club, at a special meeting held at the Columbus Auditorium, Saturday night, decided against the opening of the golf course all day Sunday, and the proposed amendment to the effect was defeated by the close vote of 95 to 93. But as it required a two-thirds vote to carry the amendment the liberal faction of the club was not as strong as supposed by some people. The course is now open a half-day on Sunday or after 1 o'clock, and that rule will continue in force.

The meeting on Saturday night was robbed of some of its interest by reason of the fact that all debate on the proposed amendment was eliminated in accordance with a motion offered by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church. After the reading of the amendment, President J. P. Stevens, who presided, requested the members to cast their ballot as their names were called by the secretary, Dr. F. E. DuBois, it having previously been decided that the vote should be by ballot.

There were 188 members of the club present, including several women, who exercised their privilege by voting. Among the women who voted were Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. Josiah Browne, Mrs. C. Wesley Holland and Miss Elizabeth Goddard. There were two ministers present, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, the latter of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Mayor Percy H. Stewart was also present and voted.

Before the vote was taken it was rather difficult to make a guess as to the result. Everyone present had evidently reached a decision and there was no attempt made to win votes in favor of all-day Sunday golf or against the proposition. After the result of the vote was announced the meeting promptly adjourned and no comments were heard as to the result, except that one member was heard to remark that he thought the liberals would have a substantial majority and he was surprised. The question cannot be brought up again for two years, it is said.

CHILDREN'S HOME MAKES APPEAL FOR PROVISIONS

The increasing price of all foodstuffs is taxing severely the resources of the Children's Home, and a much larger family than ever before—35 children ranging in age from 3 to 15 years—causes the management to face a serious problem. The domestic committee has devoted much time and great care to the economical purchasing of all supplies, and the local merchants have been very generous in quoting the lowest prices possible, but with every care the bills are necessarily large, and any contributions of provisions or funds will be gratefully appreciated.

The hearty response to the needs of the children in the care of the association has given the management courage to appeal again to the generous public. This opportunity is also taken to put forward a plea for discarded or outgrown roller skates, tops, hoops, jumping ropes or other toys which will supply out of door entertainment for the children.

A EUCHRE PARTY.

Euchre prevailed Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Townley, of Watchung avenue, when four tables were occupied by their friends. Honors among the women were won by Mrs. Horace C. Huff and Mrs. Fred C. Burner, while William E. Dunn and L. D. Townley made the high scores among the men. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the games.

SENATOR PIERCE TO SPEAK.

Senator Carlton B. Pierce will address the Board of Trade on "Taxation," at its meeting tomorrow night, and Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of the borough, will speak on "Consolidation." J. V. E. Vanderhoef, chairman of the refreshment committee, will provide refreshments.

WILL REACH HOME TODAY.

The family of the late Clark A. Price, who died at St. Petersburg, Fla., last Thursday, will arrive in Plainfield sometime this afternoon, accompanying the remains to the home, 29 Sandford avenue. The announcement of the funeral will be made tomorrow.

J. H. KITCHEN, AGED 63, PASSES AWAY

Proprietor of Hotel Kensington Succumbs to Long Illness.

John H. Kitchen, aged about 63 years, widely known throughout the city and borough, and for the past three years proprietor of the Hotel Kensington on North avenue, died Saturday night, following an illness of four years with a complication of diseases which began with a carbuncle. For the most part of that time he was able to be about and take short trips, but for the past three weeks he was confined to his room, and during the last few days he was conscious only part of the time, and he just slept himself away.

Mr. Kitchen was born at Whitehouse, Hunterdon county, where he spent his boyhood days. He came to Plainfield twenty-five years ago and had lived here ever since. At different times he was engaged in the tailoring business and later as a contracting builder, in both of which he was successful. He built a number of dwellings in the city and borough and owned considerable property.

Two years ago in December he acquired the business of the Hotel Kensington and the active management of the hotel was left to his only son, William J. Kitchen. Mr. Kitchen possessed many admirable qualities. He had a large circle of acquaintances and had a faculty of making friends. He was a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., and Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M.

There survives a son, William J. Kitchen; a sister, Mrs. George R. Conover, of Dunellen; a nephew, A. J. Kitchen, of Brooklyn, and a brother, Oscar E. Kitchen. Mr. Kitchen's wife died fourteen years ago. The funeral service will be held at the hotel at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and the local lodge of Elks will have charge. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

POPULARITY OF "SIXES" EVIDENCED BY INCREASE

The big question confronting those who contemplate the purchase of motor cars, today, is whether to get a six or four horsepower machine and with the adherents of either side lined up strongly for their particular type the buyer is likely to become confused in a maze of conflicting claims. The manager of the Service Motor Car Company in this city declares that there are many fundamental facts about the two types that buyers can determine for themselves.

The popularity of "sixes" is evidenced by the wonderful increase in their production. The Service Motor Car Company handles the sale of the Chalmers car in this city.

MISS LOUISE M. DEMAREST BRIDE OF JAMES STREET

In the presence of only the immediate relatives, Miss Louise May Demarest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Demarest, of Somerset street, was married to James Street, of New York, Saturday afternoon, Rev. J. O. McKelvey officiating at the ceremony held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's dress was of chiffon and taffeta. She carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Following the reception, the couple left on a short trip, after which they will reside at 173 Sherman avenue, the Bronx, New York.

GAVE A FAREWELL SUPPER.

The members of the M. E. church, of Mt. Horeb, gave a farewell supper Thursday night, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Aten, prior to their departure for Rockland Lake, N. Y., where Mr. Aten will become pastor of the M. E. church. Mr. Aten reviewed the work of the past year, showing it to be a successful one for the church. The supper was served by the women of the church. Mr. and Mrs. Aten left today for Rockland Lake.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT.

The April meeting of the Common Council will be held tonight, when a number of matters of considerable importance will be presented. New Parish House Among Important Matters That Are Discussed.

The annual meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was largely attended yesterday afternoon and evening. The afternoon session was occupied by the regular order of business, the receiving of the reports of various societies and the election of officers. The following officers were all re-elected: Treasurer, William M. Stillman; Asa Randolph, clerk, and D. E. Titsworth, trustee for a term of five years. The reports showed that the work of the church and the different organizations was progressing and were all in a prosperous condition. The church roll contains two hundred and fifty-one names.

The latter meeting was in the form of an open parliament, a question box being conducted by Theodore J. Davis, the result of which was a lengthy discussion of various parish questions.

Among these questions was that of a new parish house and the converting of the basement of the church edifice into an institutional center where a bowling alley and other diversions will be possible for the convenience of the younger people of the church. These two questions have been submitted to a special committee of five who will make definite recommendations at the next regular quarterly meeting of the congregation. During the service several numbers were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Langworthy and a chorus of five young women. George Clark was re-elected as head usher.

HEIRESS HAS HUSBAND BARRED FROM ESTATE

Former New York "Cop" Not Permitted to Live With His Wife.

The strained relations between Arthur M. Warner, the former New York traffic cop, and his wife, Giulia Morisini, heiress to the millions of her father, the late Banker Morisini, came to a open break, Saturday, when the young woman had her husband barred from her beautiful estate at Riverside, near Yonkers. Rumors of a separation have been rife for the past six months, and it is now believed the courts will be asked to severe the matrimonial bonds.

Warner is a native of Somerville, and her and Miss Morisini were married in that town on January 12, 1911, shortly after he had saved the young woman's life in a runaway accident on Riverside Drive, where he was doing mounted police duty. In recognition of his act, the girl's father gave Warner a position as manager of the Riverdale estate. An intimacy sprang up between the ex-cop and the heiress which ended in their marriage directly after the first Mrs. Warner secured a divorce at Reno, Nev. Public discussion has it that Warner has been visiting his first wife of late and a reconciliation is probable.

The services will be continued all this week, and through next Sunday evening. Special services will be held tomorrow afternoon for children, and for older people Thursday afternoon.

SECOND STORY MEN VISIT THE BOROUGH

Second story men changed the location of their operations on Saturday night from this city to the East side of the borough, when the home of William P. VanCamp, of 131 DeLacy avenue, was entered between the hours of 7 and 10:30. The burglars attempted to force an entrance through the back door while the members of the household were shopping about town. Failing at that point, they shifted to the front porch, where they "jimmied" open a window and made their way to the second floor of the house and looted several dresser drawers, securing a number of pieces of jewelry, the value of which will amount to a couple hundred of dollars. Those who did the work evidently knew where to locate the valuables from the fact that no other rooms seemed to be disturbed, but the one from which the articles were taken.

While the borough police were notified immediately upon the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. VanCamp at their home, there is no clue as to the intruders. The discovery of the presence of the thieves was made owing to the fact that the inside front door had been left unlatched as the culprits made their exit from the house. Among the articles which were stolen were a gentleman's ring with a small diamond, a bracelet, a scarf pin with a ruby, a necklace with several rubies set in, as well as a watch with a gold hunting case. Mr. VanCamp has offered a reward for several of these articles because of their value in associations.

CRITICISM OF THE JURY REFORM LAW IN SOMERSET

There has been considerable criticism, especially in Somerset county, regarding the working of the new Jury Reform Law. The first result of a drawing of a jury under this law in Somerset county, shows that E. F. Feickert and Dr. Moldenke were among those selected, representing North Plainfield township with less than five hundred inhabitants, while North Plainfield borough with 6,000 inhabitants has no representative.

Citizens of North Plainfield, who take a lively interest in borough and county affairs are expressing their displeasure over a law that would deny a community of that size, the second largest in the county, representation on a jury, believing that such a system will only work harm to that community.

ABDUCTION CASE TAKES NEW TURN

GIRL IS STILL MISSING

Prisoner Makes Full Confession to Local Police—Coppenhaven Arrested in New York Boarding House and Will Be Extradited.

Sensational developments continue to make their appearance in the abduction of fifteen-year-old Ruth Naylor from the premises of the Stillman Grammar School, last Thursday morning, but mystery still shrouds the whereabouts of the schoolgirl. Chief of Police Kiely and Detective-Sergeant J. J. Flynn are running down various clues that have cropped out during the time that has elapsed since the girl disappeared and within the next twenty-four hours expect to have her back in her parents' home at 322 Lee place.

Upon information furnished by two painters, who knew the girl, Chief Kiely ordered the arrest of Lynus Walpole, Jr., twenty-three years old, of 133 East Second street, last night, and since his apprehension he has made a full confession that makes him an important factor in the unraveling of the kidnapping case that has aroused the many friends of the girl in this city. Walpole has made admissions that put an entirely different light on the case and the matter will probably be taken up by the Federal authorities, who were represented here this morning by Inspector William H. Larabee.

Thomas A. Coppenhaven, the central figure in the case before the introduction of Walpole, was arrested in his temporary home, 136 West Eighty-second street, New York city, Saturday morning, and identified as the man who had paid attentions to the Naylor girl here last summer, by the missing girl's father and Detective Sergeant Flynn.

Coppenhaven was arraigned before Magistrate Appleton yesterday, and held to await extradition to New Jersey. His whereabouts were revealed to the police through a letter mailed to Mrs. Naylor, Saturday, asking that she forward to him any mail that might arrive. He failed to mention Ruth. At the West Eighty-second street address, a boarding-house, no trace of the Naylor girl could be found. Coppenhaven insisted in court that he was not responsible for her leaving home, and that he had no idea where she was. Two pieces of baggage are checked at the local railroad station in Coppenhaven's name and the local police have unearthed facts that will make Coppenhaven an important link in the solution of the mystery.

When arrested last night, Walpole made a partial confession to Chief Kiely, saying that he met the Naylor girl at Front and Somerset streets, Thursday, and went to Westfield with her on the Main Line trolley car leaving the station at 12 o'clock. In Westfield, according to Walpole's first admission, he and the girl went to a hotel and registered under assumed names. Walpole claimed that he left the girl at that place and returned to his home. When Detective-Sergeant Flynn endeavored to corroborate this confession they found that Walpole and the girl had never visited the Westfield hotel.

Under a fire of questioning from Chief Kiely and Detective-Sergeant Flynn, the prisoner finally admitted that he and his companion had boarded the Central Railroad train at Westfield and went from that place to New York. In New York, according to Walpole, they registered at a downtown hotel, returning to Westfield in the evening. The prisoner claimed that he left the girl in Westfield at 8:45 o'clock, and knows nothing of her whereabouts at the present time. Investigation on the part of the local police this morning, revealed the fact that the couple registered at the New York hotel under the name of Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson.

Walpole will be put through a further grilling by the police this afternoon in an effort to obtain some clue as to the whereabouts of the girl. The prisoner was identified by two witnesses in court this morning, David Ross, a conductor on a Main Line trolley, and Lester Renninger, of 84 Fairview avenue. Both established positive identification and Walpole returned the recognition.

According to a description furnished by her mother, this morning, Ruth weighed 135 pounds and was about 5 feet 6 inches in heighth. When last seen she wore a corduroy skirt, white waist with red polkadots, high tan shoes, a gray hat and gray coat. Her thick, brown hair was braided down her back. Mrs. Naylor says that her daughter had $1.50 in cash with her when she left home. According to her parents she has never been away from Plainfield before except with her mother.

This will mean that the Lincoln School pupils will resume their schooling at the conclusion of the Easter vacation in the Whittier School. This transfer will effect the hours of the first five grades. The pupils of the first four grades will have but one session while the pupils of the fifth grade will merely have their hours changed. It is confidently expected that the new Lincoln School will be completed and ready for occupancy upon the resumption of school at the conclusion of the summer vacation.

SIMPLE FROCKS SHOW STYLE FEATURES

PARIS arbiters of dress have sent forth panniers, overskirts, tunics upon tunics, bustle draperies, ruffles, and even plaited skirts, for us to conjure with in the desire to be as fashionable as possible, and yet as conservative as inclination dictates. Poiret is said to have passed the eminent that American women dress too sombre. The charge will be denied, when the gay and gorgeous loom fabrics designed for spring and summer gowns are actually on the wearers. On the one hand, there are wondrous designs in rich taffeta silks, soft satins, moirés, and printed ratines, and on the other, dainty flowered, striped and checked wash materials, fascinating for summer frocks. The latter are effective without being very intricate in the making. Manufacturers have chosen models which can be made with comparatively little work; and this fact will appeal to those who want the same styles, and yet will make their own dresses. There are many interesting simple gowns and coats among the importers' arrivals from French opening displays. A group of this class has been chosen and photographed for this page, to show leading style features that are pleasing and easily adapted to the needs of the average woman.

Box plaits are again in vogue. They have ventured in with the excuse of letting a little fullness into the skirt bottom to make walking easier. Outing skirts, for golf and tennis will have some plaits, disguised, or hidden, if not plainly in view. The large figure near the centre of this page shows one of the latest types of dressy afternoon gown, made of a brocaded crêpe de Chine. The skirt (8148) has two box plaits in the middle of the front, side drapery, just enough bouffant to be up to the minute; and even the hint at a tunic in the middle front section, which is trimmed with a row of buttons. The soft blouse of the same material has a rounded collar seeming to outline a bosom shaped vest, having no collar. While the flaring Medici and the Chinese collars are much used on some dresses, there is no decided tendency toward stock collars, save in a few strictly tailored waists, and a few neckwear accessories, which the manufacturer has exploited for the sake of a change. You will notice that there are long circular ruffles in the sleeves of this dress. They are made of net like the vest, and bound. Here the modish crush girdle is retained. This model is also intended for cotton crêpes, and ratine.

Speaking of "bound ruffles," for sleeves, calls attention to similar treatment of two circular flounces about the hips of the lower left figure. The skirt (8212) is plain and close fitting, narrow at the foot, and yet cut so as to have the latest silhouette outline produced by the flounces. It is made of gabardine, a material vieing with serge for practical wear; and one which hangs well. The binding is taffeta silk cut on the bias. Binding of braid, on ruffles for street skirts are exceedingly smart again, with a similar finish on the jacket worn with it. Ribbon velvet is also much used as the finish of lace or net ruffles.

Still the upward tilt of skirts in front is seen. Two tunics, cut slightly circular, so as to fit the hips snugly are the feature of a very practical and becoming skirt in model (8195). As shown, the model is made of a lightweight summer suiting, with a fancy ribbon vest and cuffs, and a soft silk girdle. The lines of the dress are graceful and very becoming. For a dark silk dress, or a light one, the same idea can be carried out with the pattern for this useful woolen dress. A plain and a flowered material may be combined splendidly in the same design also. The shops are featuring plain poplins, with novelty ones of the same color ground having printed flower designs on them. One or both tunics are made of the fancy, and the blouse trimming. In wash materials, one tunic might be of flowered and the other of plain. The three-quarter sleeve is seen on many new dresses and separate waists; while the full length sleeve is so much in evidence, that we can only conclude both are correct. In all probability, the shorter sleeves will obtain for mid-summer.

Apropos of sleeves, the latest long silk gloves are flesh color, to give the effect of none on the arm. This follows the Paris fad for flesh colored stockings with almost any kind of shoe or slipper.

The semi-tailored dress, so indispensable in the practical wardrobe, has not been forgotten amid the fancy créations for the opening displays. Here is a smart dress (8189) for morning, shopping, traveling or outing. Just a little fullness in the skirt is held in by plaits at the foot, and near the belt, giving the effect of some fashionable breadths across the hips, and making the skirt comfortable to sit in. The blouse is severely plain except for a vest of soft white crêpe de Chine, turning over in a wide collar. The cuffs match, and have an odd and interesting fastening of frogs on cord loops, in lieu of ordinary round buttons. The model selected to show here as a type of simple gown easy to make, and very inexpensive, is made of a black and white wool ratine, costing $1.50 per yard. The vest is white; and the cording either side of it, and on the skirt is black moiré silk. The girdle is moiré also; and to complete the chic effect, a trim little turban is worn with this gown, being of black Milan with a moiré crown; and trimmed with a fancy ostrich aigrette.

The price of this and of each of the other patterns for illustrations described is 15 cents.

MAGPIE effects are conspicuous in parasols, as well as in dresses and hats for the season of 1914. Black and white stripes are smart and popular, as instanced in the novel parasol shown on this page with the brocaded crêpe de Chine costume. Shape counts for as much as the covering itself. This particular novelty has a rolling edge not unlike the upturned brim of a sailor hat. If it were a rain umbrella, there might seem to be an excuse for the "gutter" in which to catch the drips.

Another noticeable fancy black and white parasol has the stripes running vertically on a frame described as the Minaret, which fashion motif it resembles. The sides are in panels joining the top at a sharp angle. In fact there is a double "roof" on the inside frame. Black marabout borders this fancy accessory.

Shirred net or lace covers combined with ribbon are noticed among the dainty parasols, which like all other articles of feminine adornment are more or less fussy. It is quite the correct thing to trim your parasols as you would your hats. Parasols handles are long to allow for the height of hats of the moment. Some handles are of jet, or irridescent beads; others are of natural wood, plain or carded; and still others have tops or knobs of colored quartz.

Dressed in the attire which Paris designers are now featuring, many smartly gowned women look as if they walked out of some olden time pictures. Watteau and Directoire hats have been reproduced from portraits. Quaintly picturesque are the latest plateaux of straw or velvet with loops of ribbon feathers, or flowers piled high at the back. A pretty and new way of trimming a small sailor shape appears in the band of black satin ribbon, and bow under the brim of the hat on the lower left figure.

Practical Hints for the Housewife

SIFTED wood ashes and common salt mixed into a paste with water, can be used to stop cracks on the inside of a range. These sometimes appear suddenly, and seriously interfere with the heat of the oven. The simple mending will suffice until repairing can be done, and often answers the same purpose.

White or light colored ostrich plumes and fancies may be dyed at home by dipping them in gasoline in which enough oil paint from a tube of artist's pigment of the desired shade has been dissolved to give the color. A very small quantity of color will probably give the shade wanted, but it must be completely dissolved before the process is undertaken. Hold the feather by the stem and move it around in the liquid, until the color is evenly spread. Shake dry, and the feather will become fluffy.

"Mixed grill" is the name of a combination of familiar goods served in appetizing fashion at men's clubs and leading restaurants. It consists of a lamb chop, a slice of English bacon, a link sausage, and a piece of lamb kidney, broiled together and served with French fried, white or sweet potatoes.

Russian Dressing

Heart lettuce with Russian dressing is adequate for a light meal, and frequently ordered by food connoisseurs who want a delectable vegetable dish. The dressing has a mayonnaise foundation. To half a cup of it, add one teaspoonful each of chopped sweet red peppers, chives, and Chili sauce. Add a gill of whipped cream. Cover the heart of crisp lettuce with the dressing.

BASKET cloth with plain or novelty patterns is one of many new weaves which are a distinctive feature of the new season's costuming. The dressy coat shown above is made of it. Simple in lines and cut, with a rounded loose back, cutaway front and set-in sleeves, like many others, this model is unusual, because of its delicate cameo pink coloring, with a brocaded design showing glossy fibre strands. A narrow shawl collar and cuffs of black taffeta with a narrow plaiting in the edge, and a cameo button for the single fastening are the style features. This kind of coat will be worn for dressy afternoon occasions, with lingerie frocks and for summer evenings. It is destined to be one of the indispensable garments of the coming season, but one which may be had at little cost, if one makes it herself. This coat can be duplicated with pattern No. 8137. 15 cents.

FASHION has set her seal of approval on as many fancy handbags and reticules as one can have. To be quite correct, one chooses this adjunct to match or accord with this or that costume. The shopping bag of leather is out of place with the afternoon toilette, or reception gown; and the theatre or opera calls for a still different and more dressy bag. Odd and unusual shapes are in especial favor. Two bags like some of the newest in the shops are shown above. Both can be made at little cost. The long pouch is of soft satin with a lining of pale pink messaline. It has a motif embroidered in solid stitch on a shaped piece of velvet. Some have an inset piece of gold cloth on which the embroidery appears. The second bag has a simple design worked out with a dull gold cord couched on the fabric. Both these designs come in pattern No. 14579, ready for stamping. It is 10 cents.

RATINES and crêpes in silk or cotton have open meshes which make embroidery a very simple and suitable sort of decoration. Handwork that is fashionable to-day on dresses and blouses is largely made up of motifs or borders done with long stitches, French knots, and coarse floss. Two easy designs are shown above. No. 14570 is a conventional pattern that will be found very effective on white or colored linen and equally adaptable for the decoration of ratine and cotton crêpes. It is two inches wide. The clover leaf petals, or only the round dot in the middle might introduce a color.

For children's dresses, a coat collar, and for blouses, pattern No. 14600 is very pretty and quickly done. Two shades of floss or cotton, with a thread of black or a contrasting color around the dot will be pleasing on woolen or cotton materials. Each pattern comes in three yard strips, ready for stamping. The price is 10 cents.

GARDEN TIME.

These are the days when most people turn their thoughts to the garden; when they dream of prize radishes, tomatoes and other 'truck" and tell the other fellow all the things they intend to do before the summer is over; when the discussion on the trains and streets turns to the time when someone planted government grass seed, and his front lawn came up with buckwheat or something besides grass. The fellow who doesn't own a farm wishes he did, and the one who hasn't a garden patch is completely out of touch with the rest of the world. The flower beds, window boxes and lawns all receive proper attention, and many a man dons his old clothes upon reaching home, for a fight with the weeds. If all the things that are promised materialize, the high cost of living will have a terrible set back along about the time that the gardens begin the produce.

Garden time is here, calling everyone out of doors. There is no one in this or any other city, who has the ground to do so who cannot better his or her health, spirit and peace of mind by following the advice of those who set the example of "back to the land." Working in the garden may appear to yield nothing but a crop of weeds in the most unsuccessful plot, but the reward in the health and physical development of the man or woman who spends a few hours a week in the open is worth more than all the vegetables or flowers that might have been, in the healthy development of mind and body. It is pleasanter to see a lot of weeds grow, than to gaze on a pile of ashes or rubbish in a back lot.

No sacrifice is required of anyone to plant a few seeds, which in practically every sense will at least produce something which will make barren land attractive. There is nothing which arouses one's pride so much as a well kept and productive garden of vegetables or flowers to furnish the table with delicacies and the home with fragrance and color. If anyone doubts this let him try the experiment. We'll wager that he will be lording it over his neighbor before the season is over, because of the superior product of his patch. There is no time like the present. Get a shovel and hoe, a few seeds and have a lot of fun while reducing the high cost of living. If you don't think it's true ask your neighbor who has a garden.

Chronic kickers who make it their business to scour the city once or twice every twenty-four hours in an effort to unearth petty charges against city officials are becoming altogether too plentiful here, and are making themselves more conspicuous than is good for their personal welfare. This regrettable condition has been most noticeable in local police court proceedings of late and each morning the trouble makers congregate to discuss their grievances and herald them broadcast Recently a number of the more persistent have taken it upon themselves to criticize the manner in which justice is being meted out in the Plainfield police court and unless they find better grounds on which to base their attacks their crusading will ultimately result in serious trouble. The practise has now passed the back-fence gossip stage and many are employing this method to work out personal grudges against office holders. It is evident that many of the kickers know nothing of the fundamentals on which they make their charges. Others make the common and narrow-minded mistake of demanding that the law be administered to the letter rather than in the spirit with which it was intended when passed. The duty of the police court magistrate is to exercise discretion in disposing of cases that come before him and his decisions occasionally call forth comment from those who fail to investigate the circumstances surrounding the cases before entering into discussions. It is one thing to interest yourself and keep well versed in civic affairs but another thing to everlastingly wield the knocker's hammer.

Those interested in juvenile recreation work in this city are endeavoring to formulate plans whereby the public may have the use of the swimming pool in the Plainfield High School during the summer and if the project is made a reality, a long felt need will be supplied. The pool will be completed some time in May or early June and will be ready for use during the hot months when it is most needed. Plainfield youths have been yearning for just such a luxury as this for years past and every effort should be made by those in authority to properly arrange for public bathing during the summer. Not only should the younger generation be catered to in the hot weather but special hours should be set aside during the evening for the grown-ups. Many attempts have been launched to raise funds for public baths but this appears to be the most feasable solution of all.

City Counsel Reed is deserving of the heartiest congratulations upon his success in the matter of the lighting of the public buildings, which the Utility Commission has decided must be done without cost to the city. When he advised the city Council to carry the matter to the Commission many lawyers thought that the effort would be unsuccessful, and did not hesitate to say so. Mr. Reed has proven once more that he is men for the place, and Plainfield is fortunate in having such an able attorney to represent its interests.

From West Bend, Iowa, comes the news story that a 150 pound Romeo eloped with a 350 pound Juliet. The despatch doesn't tell how he "snuk" her away from the bosom of her family, but we'll wager dollars to doughnuts her old man purposely looked the other way when the intrepid lover lifted the blushing young thing with the aid of a derrick and loaded her on a flat car. There's a lot of truth in that statement about opportunity knocking only once and those methodical Iowa farmers are hep to the fact.

The Pittsburgh anti-administration papers are sore because the mayor has appointed four women to the police force and are figuring out plans to remove them. It ought to be an easy matter. All the dissatisfied journals have to do is to insist that the copesses be placed in the plain clothes division and their resignations will be handed in to take immediate effect.

The New York conference of the Methodist church has placed a reverend doctor on trial for daring to kiss four of his congregation. Judging from their pictures in the afternoon dailies, he ought to be awarded a heroes medal.

"Vox Populi" writes us to ask what is the difference between Sunday golf and Sunday baseball? Hadn't given the matter much thought, but should say off-hand its merely a matter of income.

That Fort Worth, Texas, man who married sixteen women in fifteen years might make an easy living giving correspondence courses to bashful bachelors on "How to win her."

PROFESS CONVERSION AT EVANGELISTIC SERVICES

After a two weeks' series of meetings, which were all strictly devotional and perhaps the best held by the church, yesterday's services at the Temple Baptist church came as a climax. Throughout the two weeks the edifice has been thronged with people, many of whom voluntarily made a confession of Christ. The meetings closed yesterday and they will be long remembered.

Decision day was observed in the Bible school and more than 75 per cent. of the enrollment was present. Edward W. Cooper, president of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association, spoke, and after a forceful address, in which he showed the need of making a definite decision for Christ early in life, twelve persons took a stand for Christ.

The regular communion service followed and was attended by an exceptionally large number. The evening service was a continuation of the others of the day. Rev. Evarts C. Conover, the pastor, after preaching from the topic, "The Attractive Power of a Crucified Christ," again sought an expression and one more young man signified his desire to be a Christian. Both pastor and people believe that the recent series of meetings is the beginning of greater blessings for the church.

TAPS FROM THE GAVEL.

Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., is preparing for a class initiation on April 30. There have been already several applications received.

The Uniformed Rank, Jr. O. U. A. M., are now planning to march with and aid the G. A. R. in the distribution of the flowers on Memorial Day. Whether Co. K will march this year has not yet been decided.

Burt Wilson and Theodore VanPelt have been elected as delegates to the Funeral Benefit Association of the P. O. S. of A., by Washington Camp, No. 30, of this city. Charles H. Steets is the secretary of the association.

American Nest, No. 1,327, Order of Owls, have changed their meeting night from the second and fourth Fridays to the second and fourth Monday nights. The next session of the lodge will be held April 13.

Iona Council, No. 14, D. of P., initiated five candidates during the past week.

Lodges scheduled to meet tonight are as follows: Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. of T., at the Babcock building; Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F.; Plainfield Lodge, No. 310, L. O. O. M., at Junior Hall.

A smoker and entertainment will mark the third anniversary of Court Union, No. 3277, I. O. F., at Coward Hall, on the evening of April 11. It is planned to have several State officers and other prominent visitors present on the occasion.

Over four hundred members of the K. of C. were present at the Holy Trinity R. C. church, Westfield, last night, the lodge members coming from all parts of the county. Several representatives were present from Watchung Council, of this city.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

The elation of the school kiddies knows no bounds now that they know the circus is at Madison Square Garden, New York. Barnum & Bailey management proudly announces that everything is new except the name and that is so well known to every city and port that it would be like slicing the world in two to separate that name from America circusdom. There's an adage that "the proof of the pudding is the eating," and to show them that Barnum & Bailey's Circus is offering the biggest square deal of show amusement the management have brought it into Madison Square Garden where thousands of people are entertained afternoon and night. "Once seen, never forgotten" goes for the Barnum & Bailey Circus this season, as it spells the last word in the circus realm. Novelties galore are to be found with the big show this year, including the array of acts from Europe, which were imported specially for the present tour. The circus has a world of amusement features, wealth of circus colors, a menagerie of the wildest beasts imaginable, a regiment of clowns, numerous equestrian features, an army of performing animals from the jungles, caves and plains, popular music played by augmented bands, in fact, a million of things that can only be found under the "canvas" of the big show. A brilliant pageant, "The Wizard Prince of Arabia" is a sumptuous eye feast teeming with life, action and color; a realistic reproduction of the irridescent days of the land of a Thousand and One Nights.

RED LETTER DAY IN REVIVAL SERVICES

Many Profess Conversion Following Appeal in Sermon and Song.

It was a Red Letter Day at the Park Avenue Baptist church, yesterday, when the revival services were continued by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, the pastor, assisted by Prof. B. P. Stout, the gospel singer. Beginning with the Sunday-school session in the morning and continuing throughout the day every service was largely attended. Prof. Stout had charge of the Sunday-school, singing several songs, including "Memories of Mother," and "The Books Will Be Open." The singer made the gospel story more effective by telling several pathetic incidents, resulting in remarkable conversions.

In response to a request every member of the Agoga Bible class took a stand and made a public confession of religion, forming a line that extended from one end of the room to the other. There were a number of others who professed conversion. Other songs by Mr. Stout included, "The Model Church," "Nor Silver Nor Gold," and "I'm the Child of a King."

The evening service was marked by the largest attendance of the day, many persons being turned away. Prof. Stout again sang several songs in an impressive manner, each one telling a story. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire preached the sermon from the text, "But He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him; and with His stripes we are healed." He made the point that man's rescue was impossible except at some great sacrifice, Christ was wounded that the nature of human gift might be demonstrated. At the conclusion of the sermon Mr. Stout sang "Nailed to the Cross." This evening he will have charge of the service, it being a "Sermon in Song," on "Mother, Home and Heaven."

RECREATION NOTES

The Washington Musical and Dramatic Club had a successful rehearsal of their play, "Paddle Your Own Canoe," last week. Afterwards a business meeting was conducted, Harry Shirley being in the chair. Plans for the presentation of the play Tuesday, April 14, were discussed, and tickets were distributed among the members of the club to sell. A nominal charge is made for the tickets by the club in order to cover expense of presentation. It was decided that each member of the cast and each understudy should have two complimentary tickets and that all other tickets should be sold. The committee of arrangements reported progress.

The International Club of Dancing which met in the auditorium of the Washington School, Wednesday night of last week, held a business meeting in addition to their regular class time which is spent in learning folk and national dances. J. H. Bamforth presided and an election of officers took place, resulting in the resignation of Harry Shirley. There will be no meeting of the club and class on Wednesday, April 8.

The regular Thursday evening rehearsals of the Municipal Orchestra, under the direction of M. A. Korff, show weekly improvement.

The Guild of Play which meets regularly in the auditorium of the Stillman School under the Recreation Committee offers opportunity for training to the young girls and boys of the eighth grade in Plainfield, besides opportunities for fun. The Stillman Social Club met last Friday and enjoyed two hours of games and dances.

The Civic Club, which meets in the Stillman School under R. Story Rowland's leadership, had an interesting discussion of the pending immigration bill, now before Congress. Plans were made for a debate upon the question of woman suffrage. It is to be a four-handed debate, Miss Erica Helpainen and A. Isaacson upholding the affirmative, and Mr. Matthews and A. Goldberg speaking for the negative. All the suffragists and anti-suffragists are invited to attend this meeting of the Civic Club. At the last meeting of the club held April 3, Mr. Isaacson was appointed by the president to act as chairman and presided over the meeting. Mr. Rowland then addressed the club on the immigration laws and the proposed literacy test as called for in the Burnett Bill and the requirements and procedure of becoming a citizen. After the approaching debate, the Panama Canal Tolls question will be discussed. This club has been meeting Friday nights, but for the convenience of a number of those who would like to attend, the meeting time has ben changed to Wednesday night.

The Dunbar Club met last Friday in the Washington School and spent a pleasant social evening. John Taylor's quartet rendered three numbers —Suwanee River, Old Black Joe and a popular modern love song.

60,000 PARADE AT ATLANTIC CITY

Palm Sunday Fashion March Picturesque Sight.

BEADS ON ALL WOMEN.

Paris Boast of Shark Fin Hat Has Nothing on Those Shown on Boardwalk—Innumerable Tier Skirts Take Place of Popular Slit Skirt.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 6.—Sixty thousand persons at one time or another participated in the Palm Sunday fashion parade on the boardwalk, the parade which has long been recognized as the full dress rehearsal for the greater demonstration in the way of modish gowns and millinery Easter Sunday.

During the early morning the weather was threatening, and there were many misgivings among the hosts who had come from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and points further away especially to see and be seen. Those who sallied out from their hotels before the noon hour were garbed in heavy coats and furs, and the only showing of color was in the millinery. The early throng which converged from the hotels of the Chelsea and the Inlet districts were stylishly clad beyond a question, but they were not of the promenading type from which boardwalk pageants are constructed.

Shortly after 11 o'clock, however, there was a break in the clouds, and the sun made a belated appearance. Almost immediately there was a change in the general aspect of the boardwalk throng, and thousands who had deferred their stroll because of the lowering skies and the chill winds then hastened to join the promenaders.

One by one stunning costumes appeared, and one by one the heavy coats and the furs and the mufflers and the umbrellas vanished. The sun came out full and warm at noon, and all the hotel corridors were deserted.

Gay gowns and hats never before seen were shown off. Many of the styles shown only in the fashion pages of the magazines and newspapers made their appearance, and if there was one skillet hat there were 5,000, and if there was one string of beads there were 30,000. Every woman in the throng wore beads—beads of all colors, shapes and sizes, glass and metal beads, gold and silver, pearls and stones of a thousand varieties.

Paris has boasted of the shark fin hat, but there were dozens of them here. By shark fin is meant the upstanding trimming which runs around the crown of the hat and the edge of which is cut zigzag in imitation of the fish's fin. Of course there were hundreds of specimens of the clamshell hat in evidence, the clamshell hat no longer is new.

The popular slit skirt surely has had its day. In its place appeared innumerable tier skirts, some with three and four rows of ruffles running round just below the waist line.

KILLED CLEANING GUN.

Glass Manufacturer Found Dead In His Garage.

Woodbury, N. J., April 6.—Charles C. Moore, a well to do glass manufacturer of Clayton, N. J., accidentally shot and killed himself while cleaning a revolver in his garage. The bullet struck him in the heart, and death was instant. The coroner's verdict was that death was accidental.

Moore was alone in the garage, but the investigation of the coroner convinced him that it was not a case of suicide.

The shot was heard by those in the house, and when they rushed to the garage they found Moore dead on the floor, with a bullet in his heart and directly in front of a vise holding the revolver.

Moore was one of the most prominent men in the glass manufacturing trade and leaves a wife and one daughter.

DREAM TOLD OF SUICIDE.

And Led to the Finding of Woman's Body In a Well at Clifton, N. J.

Paterson, N. J., April 6.—Awakened from a dream that her missing daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mary Pralevis, had committed suicide and that her body lay at the bottom of an abandoned well in the yard, Mrs. Julia Pralevis of Clifton arose from her bed and going out to the well found the dream to be true.

Mary Pralevis disappeared a week ago. It was then believed that she had either fallen or jumped into the Passaic river. The belief now is that she deliberately walked to the old well lifted the cover and dropped in.

CONDENSED STATE NEWS.

It has been decided to eliminate silver maple and elm trees as shade trees in Bloomfield, as they are believed to be breeding places of insect pests.

Several Montclair men with business in New York have been duped by a man who got money from them by posing as a representative of the Benevolent Association of Montclair Firemen.

Thomas E. Hicks was found dead from a pistol wound in his head on the sidewalk in Irvington. Grief over the death of his mother last February is believed to have caused Hicks to take his life.

Opening Game An Easy Victory for Smalley's Team of Boro Ball Tossers.

FINE ARRAY OF TALENT

Recruits Look Good—Final Score 10 to 6—VanMater, Hebert, Stahl and the Davies Trio Shine at the Bat—Diamond in Good Condition.

Playing before a large crowd and with Hyde Oval in the finest shape that it has even been in, the North Plainfield High School baseball team defeated the Roselle High School team, Saturday afternoon, by the score of 10 to 6. The contest was loosely played throughout with streaks of good fielding and batting showing at times. Both teams handled the bat in good style for the first game of the season and ten hits were credited to each. G. Davies poled out a three bagger which was the longest hit of the game, and Van Mater was second with a double. The field was a little soft because of the new sand top and it made the diamond slower, but it was level and free of ruts and rocks.

Denny was Smalley's choice for the start while Benedict, Roselle's veteran pitcher, opposed the boroughites. Both teams used three pitchers and North Plainfield put fifteen men into the game, this including all of the substitutes. Denny started the season off well by fanning the first two men that faced him and the third went to first base on an error by Townley. The first three borough men to face Benedict went out in fast time. Roselle failed to score in the second although Schynowetts smashed a Texas leaguer over third. He was thrown out at third, Smalley to Townley. Abrams crossed the plate in the second with the first tally and was followed by Newkirk who stole second, third and home. Both teams was blanked in the third and the visitors' initial count came in the fourth. On two hits and two errors the "Canadians" scored three times in the fourth and repeated this in the fifth, making the score 8 to 2.

Stahl and Davies went in the box for their respective teams in the fifth and the second man that faced the former tripled to the right field hill and scored on a passed ball. VanMater doubled to the tennis court in left field, stole third and romped home on Stahl's single. Two runs in the sixth ended the scoring for the locals. They had a fine chance in the seventh inning but a fast double play took away all hope. Galloway relieved Davies in the eighth and proved a puzzling twirler for the home team. Smalley sent in a new battery in the ninth, Dilts pitching and Marsh behind the bat. The visitors hit safely twice and scored two runs before the last man was put out at first.

The Davies brothers led the visitors in the hitting line making seven between them. VanMater made a double and a single while Stahl and Hebert each were credited with two hits. All of the recruits showed up well in the game and from the outlook there will be a long string of substitutes.

SCOTCH PLAINS SECONDS NOSE OUT WATCHUNG A. C.

The Watchung A. A. traveled to Scotch Plains, Saturday night, and after putting up a scrappy fight came out on the small end of a 27 to 21 score against the Parish House second team. This was the third appearance of the season for Watchung at the Parish House and they put up the best game of the series, making the home five go at top speed all the way to secure the verdict.

F. Saunders, Hall and Anson did most of the shooting for the winners, the latter making all of his shots from the middle of the floor. Armstrong was the shining light for the visitors, chalking up 11 points for half of their score.

ROD AND REEL

The wind blew from four different points of the compass yesterday and it fooled a number of men who had planned for a fishing trip. Early in the morning it came from the north east, then shifted to the east and brought rain and snow, then it rounded to the southward, and finally wound up in the west and cleared the decks so that the sun burst out strong and warm. We had a very late fall last year and a very late winter, and now we must expect a late spring, so don't be impatient and go fishing before it is time; don't attempt to crowd the season, but wait for real fishing weather regardless of the day. Some people advise pruning trees and shrubbery because it is the fifteenth of March, and others advise trout fishing because it is April 1, but the sap in the tree wont run until nature arranges the smallest detail, and the fish won't bite until the water is warm enough to permit them to shake off their sluggish habits, so we might just as well take our time until all things are right before venturing after the wily trout or the deep-sea fish. The next few weeks will bring us well into spring, and then comes warmer water which all of the summer fish want before they feed. In 1911 the first sea bass was caught on May 12, which was considered late, and the spring of that year was changeable up until May 1; and in 1912 it was just the same kind of an unsettled spring, and the first sea bass was caught on May 7. In 1913 the spring opened early and the first sea bass was caught on April 23, and, strange to say, a number of codfish were caught the same day.

The act to license all non-resident fresh water anglers has already started the adjoining States thinking of doing the same thing as a reciprocal measure. Edward T. Finnegan, president of the Pennsylvania Fish and Game Conservation Club, claims that it will be the duty of his association to attack the New Jersey non-resident fishing law and he has enlisted several New York sportsmen to join him, their contention being that many of the New Jersey streams are inter-State and therefore it is an unconstitutional act to compel a resident of New York to pay a license fee.

Here is a trout trip that will bring better results than fishing the swollen streams of North Jersey: Take the Central train to Morganville, arriving at 8:25, and take the road that crosses south of the depot to the west just one and a half miles straight, without a curve, to a tributary of Deep Run Brook. Fish west, and the further west you go the better the fishing. It is a stream that is very seldom fished by strangers, but they don't know how good it is for ten-inch trout.

The trout anglers have been greatly disappointed on account of the swollen condition of the streams. In many cases the anglers journeyed to the western section of the State to try the fishing, but they found too much water and the conditions such as to make fishing impossible. The people in the country who seem to understand the spring freshets say that it will be at least ten days before the water recedes enough to make fishing for trout worth while.

An authority living at Greenwood Lake, was in the city last week and remarked that it was foolish for trout anglers to think of fishing in the northern section of the State until the freshets had fallen off. He said that there was thirteen inches of ice on the lake and that chilled the water in the small tributaries so that the fish didn't care to bite.

All of the bays in the southern section of the State are being fished for flounders. The fishing in Barnegat is excellent and Little Egg Harbor is fairly alive with this fine pan fish.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Baseball was ushered in rather inauspiciously on Hyde Oval Saturday afternoon, the weather conditions greeting the ball tossers being more applicable to pigskin chasing. The several hundred spectators that crowded the sidelines were chilled to the bone before the nine innings had been rolled off. It was gratifying to see the boroughites maul an opponent that has proven so formidable the year before, but there were few incidents of genuine interest connected with the struggle. North Plainfield was able to score runs at will and as runs are what win games the Canadians were never really in danger of a dose of defeat in their first appearance. The diamond in the borough presented a very favorable appearance Saturday afternoon and from a spectator's point of view it was ideal. Of course, rolling and usage will wear down the rough spots of which there were a few, but as it now stands the infield is fast and the field is fit for contests to come.

One sad and rather discouraging incident placed a gloom on the glory of victory in North Plainfield High School's initial triumph Saturday afternoon and that was the injury sustained by Captain Ralph Smalley. In the second inning Ralph, who holds down the catcher's job, caught a foul tip with full force on the ends of two of his fingers, causing the flesh between the digits to split, thus making a painful wound. Although blood flowed freely from the cut and it was plainly giving him much pain, Smalley stuck to his task and retired only after his team had asserted its superiority of the rival nine. As a result of the injury the borough captain will be out of the game for ten days, his place being filled by Marsh.

Many were of the opinion Saturday afternoon that the Plainfield High School had a game scheduled with Camp Bowser to be played on Parker Field, and not a few P. H. S. followers journeyed to that place expecting to witness a game. Just how this mixup occurred is a problem as the game in question does not come until next Saturday afternoon. Whether the manager had previously given the public to understand that the season opened last Saturday is not known but many there were who contemplated witnessing the red and blue in action. Plainfield's first game is due to be played on Parker Field, Saturday, April 11.

For the first time in five months Plainfield was without a basketball game Saturday night. Not a single local team entered into hostilities and those who count on weekly exhibitions of the indoor game went to bed with an unsatisfied appetite.

Why not stage some more of those championship bowling games while interest is rife in the alley game? The unexpected victory of the Park Club over the Elks Friday night has added considerable interest to the project.

Some close fighting for the first place berth is going on in the Elks' Club tournament just at present. None of the teams are out of the running as yet and hostilities are pretty close between the first half dozen.

The reinstatement of "Doc" Scanlon means that Central New Jersey teams will have to hunt up another emergency pitcher this season. Scanlon worked on many Jersey mounds during the last two years.

Jack Martin and his team mates have quit the South and are now sojourning in Baltimore, Md. Word received today from Jack indicates that he is well and playing his best game whenever accorded a chance.

Haven't heard anything from Bob Fitzsimmons since Maximus announced his intention of entering the roped arena. It's a case of England and Russia, mostly the latter.

LEAGUE MAY BREAK.

According to a baseball scribe who recently returned from the land of Dixie, where he followed the training of a major league club, there is a full-sized rumor in the Southern country that the Southen Association, presided over by Judge Kavanaugh contemplates breaking with Organized Baseball and hooking up with the Federal League.

PHILLIES ARE AFTER LOCAL BALL PLAYER

Jack Martin Sought to Fill a Gap in Quaker's Infield Machine.

Rumors that Jack Martin, the local ball player, may be playing shortstop with the Philadelphia Nationals this season have been passed around. Martin's place on the Boston team has been filled with a better man and now he is subject to the bench or a farming.

The Quaker's lineup has been so shattered by "jumps" that they need infielders badly. Whether or not Jack could keep in such fast company as the runners-up of last year's pennant race is a question, but he has not had much of a chance to show himself this year. Should he go to the Phillies he would have to do some tall playing to cover that position.

HARRISON BALL TOSSERS WON OPENING DIAMOND GAME

The Harrison A. C. defeated the Highlanders, of the borough, in a ten inning game last Saturday, the final score being 7 to 4. Hitting was a feature of the contest and the poor fielding of the losers was the chief cause of their defeat. The Highlander slabsman sent twenty-one of his opponents to the bench via the strike-out route, while his opponent only fanned four. Seven errors were credited to them, all of which were costly. The Harrison team tied the score up in the ninth and then made three runs in the tenth on two hits and two errors. Hodskine and Marsh played the best for their respective teams. The second game between these teams will be played tomorrow morning. The lineup:

SCHENCK'S DOUBLE TIED SCORE IN PRINCETON GAME

Harold Schenck, of East Front street, was a shining light in the Rutgers-Princeton baseball game last Saturday. He played left field during the entire game and in the ninth inning poled out a two bagger that brought in the run that made the score 3 to 3. Princeton won out in the eleventh by a score of 4 to 3.

This is Schenck's third year with the Rutgers team and his hitting has been a big factor in many of the games that he has played in. Last year he was kiven a tryout with the Plainfield team and played in the field for that team in the last two games of the season. He also captained the Trinity church team for one year. This is his last year in college.

NO FOOTBALL TEAM FOR BORO SCHOOL NEXT YEAR

Football enthusiasts of the North Plainfield High School were given a big shock last week when it was announced that a football team would not be allowed in the High School next year. During a meeting of the athletic association two of the members stated that if an eleven was to be put out next season that a manager should be elected immediately. Many were in favor of reorganizing this game as part of high school athletics while others thought that a team could not be turned out. The discussion went on for some time and then it was ended rather abruptly.

Principal Earley announced that there was no use of arguing the matter as a team would not be allowed even if the association did vote for one. He explained that there was a strong sentiment in the borough against any additional athletics and that many of the people thought that there was too much recreation and not enough studying in the school at the present time. He explained further that the Board of Education would not allow the proposed addition and the subject was dropped.

The team that could be picked from the present enrollment of the association would be very light and small but might easily be made fast with the proper training. A light, fast team is just what the promoters expected to have, but all hopes were shattered with these announcements.

LOCAL BATTERY IN ACTION IN FAST GAME YESTERDAY

A pair of local ball players were in action in New York, yesterday afternoon, when the Lincoln Giants defeated the fast going Trenton team by a score of 4 to 3. Warry McLaughlin and "Nibs" Hand, both known in these parts for the playing ability, were the battery for the losing team.

Both teams hit the ball hard and it was not until the last part of the ninth that the winning run was scored. McLaughlin struck out six men and passed four. He made one of his team's five hits and Hand was responsible for another. Both went through the entire game. The home team hit the local pitcher hard at times but fast fielding held his opponents in check until the latter part of the game. Each team made one error.

SMALLEY INJURED IN GAME.

While catching in the North Plainfield-Roselle game last Saturday, Captain Smalley, of the local team, was hit in the hand and received a bad injury to his right hand. The ball struck between his two middle fingers and split the skin about a quarter of an inch into the palm of his hand. He went back into the game but was forced to retire before the end and Marsh was sent in to take his place. Smalley was attended by Dr. Carman that night, who said it would take at least a week to heal. He bound the injured members up in splints so that it could not be used. It is doubtful if Smalley will be able to take part in the game next Saturday against Rutgers Prep. A substitute catcher will be sent to New Brunswick on Thursday.

GOOD HOME ON VISIT.

Monroe Good, who graduated from the Plainfield High School last year and now a freshman student at Colgate, is visiting his parents during the Easter vacation of the college. Good is out for the varsity baseball team and stands a good chance to make catcher. He is a sure backstop and has a good wing. That he was not taken on the spring trip which started yesterday is not to be wondered at as the veterans are the only ones that go. He was a substitute on the football team last fall and played center on his class basketball team.

VILLA CLEARED IN BENTON CASE

Major Fierro Killed British Rancher, Says Board.

REBEL CHIEF UNAWARE.

Murder Is Said to Have Taken Place Thirty-two Miles South of Juarez. General Villa Removed the Body After Interment.

El Paso, Tex., April 6.—Carranza's investigating commission has decided that William S. Benton, the British rancher, was not murdered by Pancho Villa. He was not executed by a court martial's order nor killed by a knife stab. He was not even killed in Juarez.

The report will say that Benton was killed at Samalayuca, thirty-two miles south of Juarez, and Rodolfo Fierro, late rebel major and superintendent of railways for Pancho Villa, will be held responsible. The body, it will be said, was first buried in the soft sand at Samalayuca, but was later taken up by Villa and transported to Chihuahua and buried.

Villa will be completely exonerated and the killing will be entirely at the door of Fierro, who is now and has been for several weeks in jail in Chihuahua. He was stripped of his authority as superintendent of railways shortly after the Benton incident and a few days later was placed in prison in Chihuahua. At the time it was given out that his arrest was in connection with the death of a woman at Chihuahua.

It became known today positively that the commission had completed its investigation and is ready to report. It also became known that Carranza has known the facts for weeks without waiting for the official report and that the official report will in every way confirm what Villa told Carranza regarding the affair when the rebel general first took Carranza into his confidence.

Federals Trapped.

Torreon, Mexico, April 6.—Cornered by General Villa's pursuing army at Parras, five miles east of San Pedro, General Refugio Velasco's disorganized remnant of the army that so desperately defended Torreon is fighting for life.

General Villa is hurrying re-enforcements to his command surrounding Velasco's army, and a final battle is at hand. Even at this moment it may be in progress.

"We will be ready to dictate in Mexico City. There can be no compromise with the enemy," declares General Villa. "Madero compromised, and his government failed through the treachery of those who did not appreciate him or took advantage of his clemency.

"This revolution must be the last in Mexico, and it must be thorough and conclusive. This we must accomplish by force of arms, so that in the end there will be no questioning of our orders or our laws."

Six hundred Spanish residents of Torreon, ordered expelled from Mexico, began their exodus from this city. Their expulsion is made under an article of the Mexican constitution. It is expected that their property will be confiscated by the rebels, as was done at Chihuahua when the Spanish residents of that city were driven from Mexico.

Fearing instant death when Villa and his army entered the city, the Spaniards had been huddled into the Laguna bank under the protection of J. M. Ulmer, the American consular agent, and an American flag was hoisted over the building.

As soon as Villa was certain of his command of the city he visited the Spaniards and warned them to keep out of sight for fear that the rebels, who hate the dons for the aid they are alleged to have given to the federal cause, would kill them before he could interfere.

The Spaniards had been practically prisoners until the first of the trains which was to carry them to the frontier opposite El Paso was in readiness and they were forced to leave.

BRYAN BARS RACE DISCUSSION

Segregation Plan to Be Taboo While He's In North Carolina.

Raleigh, N. C., April 6.—North Carolina Democrats will not discuss the race issue when Secretaries Bryan and Daniels come here Wednesday to cheer progressive Democracy in its fight.

Prominent Democrats declare that Bryan refused to speak if the race segregation policy was to be discussed. This latest phase of race agitation seeks to restrict ownership of farms in certain localities to the majority race, depriving colored persons from buying there. It is said that Bryan has no sympathy with this proposal.

Many Democrats are opposing it because they declare that after driving the negro to the farm it would be unjust to deprive him of the right of ownership. The dropping of the race issue is the talk of the state.

Help Villa to Have His Fun.

Spartanburg, N. C., April 6.—Twelve fighting cocks were sent from here to General Francesco Villa, victor at Torreon. They were sold at $6 each. This is the second order filled for the Mexican general since Christmas.

THE DAILY PRESS IN SOMERVILLE will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon after 4:30 by Jacob Gernert, the Main stret newsdealer and stationer.

VILLA FIRING GUN.

In the fighting at Torreon General Villa was in the thickest of the fray. It was due to the example that he set for his men by his reckless daring and undaunted will that the army rallied after suffering two reverses and finally put the federals to rout. BOMB IS EXPLODED IN LONDON CHURCH

Militants Attempt to Wreck Prominent Edifice.

London, April 6.—An attempt to set fire to the famous church of St. Martin In the Fields, in Trafalgar square, was made by suffragettes. A bomb was used, and the ancient pews and two beautiful stained glass windows were wrecked.

How the bomb came to be left in the church is not certain. It is believed, however, that it was left under one of the seats during the evening service. One of the occupants of the damaged pew was a young woman fashionably dressed, carrying a large muff. After the service she remained for communion. It is believed that while kneeling she produced the bomb from her muff, set the mechanism going and placed it beneath the seat.

The church was closed in the usual way with everything apparently in perfect order. Exactly at 10:30 o'clock the sound of an explosion was heard, followed by the smashing of glass. A volume of smoke poured from the windows on the south side of the church, which were seen to be broken.

An alarm of fire called the fire brigade, which was on the spot within a few minutes. The church was entered, but for several moments it was impossible to discover what had happened, owing to the alarming volume of smoke. No flames were visible, however, and when the smoke partially cleared away it was possible to make an examination.

The bomb was then discovered. It was a crude affair, made out of a tin canister and American cloth. It included a clockwork device, timed to go off at 10:30, and performed its function with surprising accuracy. The fuse was not burned away.

SIX MONTHS FOR KELLEY.

"General" of "Army" of Unemployed Likens Himself to Nazarene.

Sacramento, Cal., April 6.—"General" Charles Kelley, who started last month on a proposed march to Washington at the head of an "army" of about 1,400 unemployed men, was sentenced to six months in the county jail for vagrancy. Kelley was arrested a few minutes before his "army" was routed from its camp here and driven across the river by means of fire hose and pick handles in the hands of a posse of peace officers.

"If the lowly Nazarene suffered as he did for his cause I can only say I am no greater than he and will be content with the court's judgment," remarked Kelley in a one hour address before sentence was pronounced.

FEUD JURY DISAGREES.

No Verdict In Trial of Davidson For Kentucky Mountain Murder.

Winchester, Ky., April 6.—The jury in the case of Thomas Davidson, charged with complicity in the murder of Edward Callahan, ex-sheriff of Breathitt county, failed to agree and was discharged. Judge Benton immediately set the case for trial again on June 29.

The most sensational testimony at the trial was that of "Doc" Smith, who confessed that he was one of three men who fired at Callahan.

The prosecution announced that a big log tide in the Kentucky river possibly saved Davidson from conviction, inasmuch as it prevented several important witnesses from being present.

BOY SCOUTS ENJOY ALL-DAY CYCLE TRIP

Here they had dinner with a former member of their patrol, Alfred Smalley, who now lives in Newark. After dinner the riders proceeded to Orange, where they made a short visit with some friends.

Leaving for home about 5 o'clock, they were forced to make a stop at Springfield, when the tire blew out. This was fixed with ease and before home was reached two more punctures occurred. The party arrived here about 7 o'clock.

ONLY BAD ONE IS SIXTEENTH, SAYS MOTHER OF SEVENTEEN

New Brunswick, April 6.—The mother of George Kellner, of Perth Amboy, fifteen years old, and her sixteenth child, appeared in court Friday before Judge Peter F. Daly on behalf of her son. She broke down in addressing the court, declaring that she had had seventeen children, and this was the only black sheep in the family.

The lad was arrested with Charles Cadmus and George Larson, two other boys, all being held for the theft of a chicken, a duck and some eggs from Stancey McCloskey, of Perth Amboy. All were valued at $3.

Mrs. Kellner declared her son had played hookey since these boys had been his companions, and they were leading him astray. Because of his being in jail, she said, his sisters were unable to attend mass last Sunday. Judge Daly placed the boy on probation for three years, and he returned home with his mother.

ANTI-SUFFRAGIST PROTEST STOPS SCHOOL COMPETITION

Pupils in the seventh and eighth grades of the Montclair schools will not engage this year in a competition for $5 prizes offered by the Montclair Suffrage League for the best composition on equal suffrage. The league has withdrawn the prize offers following a protest from the Montclair Association Opposed to Women's Suffrage. It is stated that the suffragists do not desire to embarrass Superintendent Don C. Bliss.

The protest of the anti-suffragists, according to Dr. Theodora Krichbaum, is based on the contention that but one-third of the pupils eligible to compete are members of families where the woman's suffrage cause is looked upon with favor, and consequently to engage the others in the contest would appear illogical.

The suffragists, however, are inclined to a theory that the objection is made because of the intention of the league to distribute suffrage literature to the children in order to give them information in dealing with the subject.

The suffragists conducted a successful competition last year.

"POETRY THE HIGHEST FORM OF LANGUAGE"

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong Delivers Last of Series of Sermons.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, yesterday concluded a series of three sermons on the Book of Habakkuk. His discourse yesterday was based on these words: "Just as the 'mute e' of the French is the key to the language, just so the minor prophet, so seldom read, contain the gist of our theology." Much of these prophetical books is poetic, for poetry is the highest form of language, and nothing less than this highest form can adequately depict Jehovah and His works," continued Dr. Strong.

"It is an interesting and significant fact that so much is said in the Bible about horses. It might be affirmed that most of the history of the world clusters round the horse. To tell the story of Washington and the Revolution is to tell of that wonderful little Arab charger which carried the great general swiftly hither and thither through the campaigns as only that horse could do. The story of the Crusades is a story of horses. The downfall of Israel has much to do with the horses of the king. Mythology is replete with stories of horses. The horse of Troy is only one of a host of such tales.

'It was on horses and chariots of fire that Elijah was carried to Heaven. It is on a white horse that the triumphant Christ is pictured in John's Revelation. The Psalmist speaks at different times of 'God's horses.' What are they? Habakkuk in his brief writings gives us a clue. They are the wind, the waves of the sea, the forces of nature and the tide of human events, all of which He holds in perfect leash.

"God's horses are mighty, swift and sure. No scheming of mankind shall be able to thwart one iota of His plans. Prayer commands these horses; it is one of the laws of the spiritual world and cannot be gainsaid.

"Again, we must wait God's time for the fulfillment of His purposes through His 'horses.' He does not gauge time as His creatures do. In fact there is no 'time' with Him. It is all one vast eternity. Habakkuk said he would wait, and we must wait.

"There rode into Jerusalem one day the Prince, the Conqueror, so soon to conquer His last enemy, the grave. Did He come on a war-horse, the world's Messiah? No, He came riding the white foal of an ass, the type of peace. And one day this Conqueror shall come again with all the glory of victory over all evil and over man's last enemy. And this Palm Sunday commemorating that symbolic event so long ago, bids us look forward to that day when He shall come 'on the white horse' to judge the world in righteousness."

TWO JAPANESE COLLARS

14668

Often the only trimming necessary for a simple frock is a pretty collar of white linen, ratine or crêpe to finish the neck, and if this is embroidered in colors either matching or harmonious with the color of the gown, the effect is always good. We are illustrating two very simple and effective collars in the new Japanese designs which may be embroidered entirely in white, but are more attractive when worked in old blue, two shades of yellow, Japanese green or in wistaria shades. The embroidery should be done in unpadded solid work with mercerized cotton, and the edges may be in a shade darker than the flowers. Such collars as these are appropriate for wear with separate blouses, dresses of silk, linen or wool materials and on coats for the very young girl.

Transfer pattern 14668 which includes the two designs, will be supplied to readers on receipt of price, 15 cents.

Some Cookery Suggestions

COOKING RICE.

OWING to its nourishing qualities, rice is a useful cereal for the cook who must carefully study food values. It is a wholesome addition to any bill of fare.

Some persons are partial to raisins with rice, but if baked in the rice they may discolor it, so a good way is to steam the raisins over a kettle of hot water or drop them into boiling water long enough to plump them out before adding them to the rice to be baked.

Baked With Cheese.

Baked Rice.—Take two cupfuls of cooked rice, one-half cupful of small bits of cheese, two cupfuls of milk, two eggs, one large spoonful of butter and one teaspoonful of salt. Mix well and place in a baking pan with cheese and a little butter on top. Bake half an hour.

Rice Pudding.—Take two cupfuls of cooked rice, one cupful of granulated sugar, two and one-half cupfuls of milk, two eggs, one cupful of raisins and one teaspoonful of cinnamon, or sufficient quantity to suit the tasfe. Mix the cinnamon in the sugar and stir into the rice. Beat the eggs, stir in the milk and add to the first mixture with the raisins. Bake in an earthenware dish in a hot oven.

Rice With Caramel Sauce.

Caramel Rice.—Butter a mold carefully; then brown one ounce of lump sugar in a saucepan over a good, clear fire. Wash thoroughly four ounces of the best rice and place in a saucepan of cold water. When the water boils pour away every drop of it. Add a pint of new milk to the rice and simmer gently for half an hour. When cooled a little add a beaten egg to the rice, sweeten and flavor to taste. Pour into the mold and bake for half an hour in a steady oven. Turn the mold out on to a hot dish and pour caramel sauce around. Garnish with whipped cream.

Excellent For Invalids.

Baked Milk Rice.—Take one cupful of rice, six cupfuls of milk, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and three or four teaspoonfuls of sugar. Wash rice thoroughly and drain well. Place the milk and other ingredients in a bowl, stir in rice and bake for about two hours in a moderately hot oven. Watch to see that top does not brown. If it should form a little brown skin on top remove it at once and cover pan until the heat has been reduced. When done the rice will be of a creamy consistency; the slow baking will evaporate the more watery parts of the milk and the rice absorb the rest. If served warm this rice requires no additional cream, as it is just right for the table. If served cold a little thin cream may be added.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Trouts' New Home Of Safety.

"Duck!" the old trout shouted.

JACK and Evelyn were all ready for daddy to tell them his bedtime story. As he came in he said:

"I am going to tell you this evening about a certain trout family who have just moved into their new home at Red Creek. It is a most beautiful home, they think.

"The trout family had made up their minds that another spring could not go by without their having a new home. The old brook they had lived in they had grown tired of. Too many neighbors had come to live there, and, besides, what was still more dangerous, the brook had become known as a wonderful trout fishing brook.

"The old trout had heard some men passing there a little bit too early for what these men called their 'fishing season.' One man had said:

"'This is the best trout brook we have around here. Let's get up a party in a couple of weeks. We can come out here early some Saturday morning.'

"The trout family didn't like this, and the old trout said, 'This spring we'll move and before that awful Saturday.'

"So the whole trout family moved to Red Creek, and there they stayed perfectly happy. When they heard sounds of footsteps or voices they hid beneath the rocks, so the men who liked trout fishing wouldn't discover them.

"They had been there several weeks. They were having a beautiful time—no worries, no fears, a happy home, good things to eat and plenty of fun.

"One day they were all playing games and enjoying the sunshine. The old trout was more prudent than the younger ones and was always on the lookout to make sure that their home would not be disturbed and none of their dear family hurt.

"'Duck; duck under the rocks quickly!' shouted the old trout. And all the trout, although they could not see anything, ducked under the rocks and deep down in the mossy, weedy parts of the creek. Of course the water looked very much disturbed for a few minutes. But the old trout had told them in time, so the water would look quite calm before the men appeared. He had heard their voices a long distance off.

"All the trout from under the water heard some of the men say, 'Is this the place?'

"'No,' said another voice, which the old trout remembered hearing several weeks before. 'It's the brook farther on.'

"And then the trout family heard them going on.

"'Ah,' sighed the old trout after they'd safely disappeared; 'now this spring we'll enjoy life in our new home in Red Creek without being bothered by those awful men who think it's "sport" to fish.'"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER XII.

"MR. LADLEY, you have said that your wife was ill the night of March 4?"

"Yes."

"What was the nature of her illness?"

"She had a functional heart trouble, not serious."

"Will you tell us fully the events of that night?"

"I had been asleep when my wife wakened me. She asked for a medicine she used in these attacks. I got up and found the bottle, but it was empty. As she was nervous and frightened, I agreed to try to get some at a drug store. I went downstairs, took Mrs. Pitman's boat and went to several stores before I could awaken a pharmacist."

"You cut the boat loose?"

"Yes. It was tied in a woman's knot or series of knots. I could not untie it, and I was in a hurry."

"How did you cut it?"

"With my pocketknife."

"You did not use Mrs. Pitman's bread knife?"

"I did not."

"And in cutting it you cut your wrist, did you?"

"Yes. The knife slipped. I have the scar still."

"What did you do then?"

"I went back to the room and stanched the blood with a towel."

"From whom did you get the medicine?"

"From Alexander's pharmacy."

"At what time?"

"I am not certain. About 3 o'clock, probably."

"You went directly back home?"

Mr. Ladley hesitated. "No," he said finally. "My wife had had these attacks, but they were not serious. I was curious to see how the river front looked and rowed out too far. I was caught in the current and nearly carried away."

"You came home after that?"

"Yes, at once. Mrs. Ladley was better and had dropped asleep. She wakened as I came in. She was disagreeable about the length of time I had been gone and would not let me explain. We quarreled, and she said she was going to leave me. I said that as she had threatened this before and had never done it I would see that she really started. At daylight I rowed her to Federal street."

"What had she with her?"

"A small brown valise."

"How was she dressed?"

"In a black and white dress and hat, with a long, black coat."

"What was the last you saw of her?"

"She was going across the Sixth street bridge."

"Alone."

"No. She went with a young man we knew."

There was a stir in the courtroom at this.

"Who was the young man?"

"A Mr. Howell, a reporter on a newspaper here."

"Have you seen Mr. Howell since your arrest?"

"No, sir. He has been out of the city."

I was so excited by this time that I could hardly hear. I missed some of the cross examination. The district attorney pulled Mr. Ladley's testimony to pieces.

"You cut the boat's painter with your pocketknife?"

"I did."

"Then how do you account for Mrs. Pitman's broken knife, with the blade in your room?"

"I have no theory about it. She may have broken it herself. She had used it the day before to lift tacks out of a carpet."

That was true; I had.

"That early Monday morning was cold, was it not?"

"Yes; very."

"Why did your wife leave without her fur coat?"

"I did not know she had until we had left the house. Then I did not ask her. She would not speak to me."

"I see. But is it not true that, upon a wet fur coat being shown you as your wife's, you said it could not be hers, as she had taken hers with her?"

"I do not recall such a statement."

"You recall a coat being shown you?"

"Yes. Mrs. Pitman brought a coat to my door, but I was working on a play I am writing, and I do not remember what I said. The coat was ruined. I did not want it. I probably said the first thing I thought of to get rid of the woman."

I got up at that. I'd held my peace about the breadknife, but this was too much. However, the moment I started to speak somebody pushed me back into my chair and told me to be quiet.

"Now, you say you were in such a hurry to get this medicine for your wife that you cut the rope, thus cutting your wrist."

"Yes. I have the scar still."

"You could not wait to untie the boat, and yet you went along the river front to see how high the water was?"

"Her alarm had excited me. But when I got out and remembered that the doctors had told us she would never die in an attack, I grew more composed."

"You got the medicine first, you say?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Alexander has testified that you got the medicine at 3:30. It has been shown that you left the house at 2 and got back about 4. Does not this show that with all your alarm you went to the river front first?"

"I was gone from 2 to 4," he replied calmly. "Mr. Alexander must be wrong about the time I wakened him. I got the medicine first."

"When your wife left you at the bridge, did she say where she was going?"

"No."

"You claim that this woman at Horner was your wife?"

"I think it likely."

"Was there an onyx clock in the second story room when you moved into it?"

"I do not recall the clock."

"Your wife did not take an onyx clock away with her?"

Mr. Ladley smiled. "No."

The defense called Mr. Howell next. He looked rested and the happier for having seen Lida, but he was still pale and showed the strain of some hidden anxiety. What that anxiety was the next two days were to tell us all.

"Mr. Howell," Mr. Llewellyn asked, "you know the prisoner?"

"Slightly."

"State when you met him."

"On Sunday morning, March 4. I went to see him."

"Will you tell us the nature of that visit?"

"My paper had heard he was writing a play for himself. I was to get an interview, with photographs, if possible."

"You saw his wife at that time?"

"Yes."

"When did you see her again?"

"The following morning at 6 o'clock or a little later. I walked across the Sixth street bridge with her and put her on a train for Horner, Pa."

"You are positive it was Jennie Brice?"

"Yes. I watched her get out of the boat while her husband steadied it."

"If you knew this, why did you not come forward sooner?"

"I have been out of the city."

"But you knew the prisoner had been arrested and that this testimony of yours would be invaluable to him."

"Yes. But I thought it necessary to produce Jennie Brice herself. My unsupported word"—

"You have been searching for Jennie Brice?"

"Yes. Since March 8."

"How was she dressed when you saw her last?"

"She wore a red and black hat and a black coat. She carried a small brown valise."

"Thank you."

The cross examination did not shake his testimony. But it brought out some curious things. Mr. Howell refused to say how he happened to be at the end of the Sixth street bridge at that hour or why he had thought it necessary on meeting a woman he claimed to have known only twenty-four hours to go with her to the railway station and put her on a train.

The jury was visibly impressed and much shaken, for Mr. Howell carried conviction in every word he said. He looked the district attorney in the eye, and once when our glances crossed he even smiled at me faintly. But I saw why he had tried to find Jennie Brice and had dreaded testifying. Not a woman in that courtroom and hardly a man but believed when he left the stand that he was or had been Jennie Brice's lover and as such was assisting her to leave her husband.

"Then you believe," the district attorney said at the end—"you believe, Mr. Howell, that Jennie Brice is living?"

"Jennie Brice was living on Monday morning, March 5," he said firmly.

"Miss Shaeffer has testified that on Wednesday this woman who you claim was Jennie Brice sent a letter to you from Horner. Is that the case?"

"Yes."

"The letter was signed 'Jennie Brice'?"

"It was signed 'J. B.'"

"Will you show the court that letter?"

"I destroyed it."

"It was a personal letter?"

"It merely said she had arrived safely and not to let any one know where she was."

"And yet you destroyed it?"

"A postscript said to do so."

"Why?"

"I do not know. An extra precaution probably."

"You were under the impression that she was going to stay there?"

"She was to have remained for a week."

"And you have been searching for this woman for two months?"

He quailed, but his voice was steady. "Yes," he admitted.

He was telling the truth, even if it was not all the truth. I believe had it gone to the jury then Mr. Ladley would have been acquitted. But late that afternoon things took a new turn. Counsel for the prosecution stated to the court that he had a new and important witness and got permission to introduce this further evidence. The witness was a Dr. Littlefield and proved to be my one night tenant of the second story front. Holcombe's prisoner of the night before took the stand. The doctor was less impressive in full daylight—he was a trifle shiny, a bit bulbous as to nose and indifferent as to finger nails. But his testimony was given with due professional weight.

"You are a doctor of medicine, Dr. Littlefield?" asked the district attorney.

"Yes."

"In active practice?"

"I have a cure for inebriates in Des Moines, Ia. I was formerly in general practice in New York city."

"You knew Jennie Ladley?"

"I had seen her at different theaters, and she consulted me professionally at one time in New York."

"You operated on her, I believe?"

"Yes. She came to me to have a name removed. It had been tattooed over her heart."

"You removed it?"

"Not at once. I tried fading the marks with goat's milk, but she was impatient. On the third visit to my office she demanded that the name be cut out."

"You did it?"

"Yes. She refused a general anaesthetic and I used cocaine. The name was John—I believe a former husband. She intended to marry again."

A titter ran over the courtroom. People strained to the utmost are always glad of an excuse to smile. The laughter of a wrought up crowd always seems to me half hysterical.

The Doctor Made a Careful Drawing.

"Have you seen photographs of the scar on the body found at Sewickley? Or the body itself?"

"No; I have not."

"Will you describe the operation?"

"I made a transverse incision for the body of the name and two vertical ones—one longer for the 'J,' the other shorter for the stem of the 'b.' There was a dot after the name. I made a half inch incision for it."

"Will you sketch the cicatrix as you recall it?"

The doctor made a careful drawing on a pad that was passed to him. The drawing was much like this:

Line for line, dot for dot, it was the scar on the body found at Sewickley.

"You are sure the woman was Jennie Brice?"

"She sent me tickets for the theater shortly after, and I had an announcement of her marriage to the prisoner some weeks later."

"Were there any witnesses to the operation?"

"My assistant. I can produce him at any time."

That was not all of the trial, but it was the decisive moment. Shortly after the jury withdrew, and for twenty-four hours not a word was heard from them.

No. 7793 is a layette consisting of six patterns, designed by Miss Marianna Wheeler, formerly superintendent of the Babies' Hospital of the City of New York.

There is a dress, tucked front and back yoke fashion, with puff sleeves; a slip that may be gathered up at the lower edge with a draw string or turned over and buttoned; a petticoat with a waist; a skirt buttoning in the front; moccasins; and a one-piece kimono, with small round collar and full length sleeve. This kimono may be used for a coat, with a deep round cape, which is optional, and it is also perforated for sacque length. For the new baby of course, the finest of nainsook, muslin or linen is used, for the little dresses and skirts, trimmed with lace and dainty hand embroidered designs; the coats and sacques require a very fine flannel or quilted China silk.

This pattern is cut in one size only.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose, equipped to meet every emergency, to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent, unaffected by the hazards of human life.

BORO SUPERVISOR NOT A CANDIDATE

Arthur B. Vossler Will Not Seek Reappointment as School Head.

SUCCESSOR NOT NAMED

Many Applicants for Vacancy—Board Organizes for the Year—May Abandon Kindergarden—Selection of Various Committees.

Although Arthur B. Voseller, supervising principal of the North Plainfield public schools, has not formally presented his resignation to the Board of Education, members of the latter body admitted at last night's session that they had been given to understand that he was not a candidate for reappointment to the office he now holds. Mr. Voseller has been connected with the borough schools for two years and his resignation was predicted by the Daily Press sometime ago. He has been an efficient head and has introduced many new features into the routine of work in the schools of North Plainfield. He is not prepared to disclose his plans for the future.

The four newly elected members of the Board of Education were introduced to the body last night and took the oath of office. The new men are Thomas E. Currin, Jr., Judd Stuart, Charles L. Holstein and Richard C. Campbell. Dr. Justus H. Cooley was re-elected president of the board, and Hiram A. Woodruff was chosen as vice president to succeed E. S. Boyer, one of the outgoing members. The following committees were appointed by the president: Business and grounds, Van Mater, Sill and Holstein; finance, Stuart Currin and Woodruff; teachers, Cooley, Sill and Campbell; auditing, Currin, Smalley and Stuart; supplies, Campbell, Stuart and Currin; truancy, Holstein, Campbell and Smalley; visiting, Smalley, Van Mater and Woodruff; commencement, Campbell and Holstein.

Mr. Voseller suggested at last night's meeting that the board abandon the present ginderkarten class, supplying this work by the fusion of the kindergarten and first grade. Mr. Voseller stated that while this would probably not prove a popular move in North Plainfield it was one of the many suggestions that have been offered as a possible solution to the problem now before the Board, that of the crowded condition of the schools.

The school head declared that at the present time the high school had an enrollment of 187 and present prospects indicate that there will be 220 on the rolls next year. At the present time all of the seats in the commercial room are taken and there is evidence of overcrowding in several other departments. Owing to the lack of room Miss Eva Terry has been forced to teach a history class in what was formerly a cloak room. In this compartment, which has been somewhat remodeled to meet the needs, she has a class of eighteen pupils and there is but one window in the enclosure. The old idea of consolidating the Plainfield and North Plainfield schools was again brought up, but it was said at the meeting that Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield schools, had declared that this municipality could take charge of a portion of the grammar pupils for next year and next year only. This would relieve the stress for one term but leaves the future unprovided for.

Supervising Principal Voseller was requested to prepare a census map of school children which will show from what sections the most pupils come and where a school building is most needed at the present time. In the event of the erection of a new structure it is planned to place it where the school population is the densest. There is an apparent need for a new building, according to sentiment expressed by board members, and between two and three hundred new seats will be required to provide for pupils next year.

A number of likely condidates for Mr. Voseller's position were mentioned, but the entire matter was turned over to the teachers' committee and will be brought up at a future gathering. Applications were received from educational workers in Lambertville, High Bridge and various parts of New York State and Pennsylvania.

MISS LUCILE EWART GIVES "HONOR" PARTY

Entertained Friends at Her Home Last Evening—500 Was the Feature.

Miss Lucile Ewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Ewart, of Fairview avenue, gave an informal card party and dance at her home, last night, in honor of her friends, the Misses Elizabeth and Carol Taber, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who are making a short visit with her. There were eight couples present and most of the evening was spent in playing progressive "500." There were three tables and the first table was successfully maintained by Miss Carol Taber and Percy Bailey. The guests were entertained with Victrola selections, and Miss Nettie Steiner presided at the piano for the dancers. The front porch proved an excellent floor for the gliders. Several pleasing baritone solos were rendered by P. J. Bailey and Douglas Demler. Bailey and Webster, comedians, entertained the audience in an original comedy skit.

At midnight a waffle supper was served by the hostess' mother and the party broke up in the early hours of the morning. Those who were present were the Misses Elizabeth Taber, Carol Taber, Lucile Ewart, Margaret Ewart, Helen George, Clara Runyon, Annette Steiner, Jubilee Rowley, and Frank Webster, Ralph Smalley, Duclos VanMater, Percy Bailey, Pierson Bailey, Carlton Smith, Douglas Demler and Frank Dunning.

MERCHANTS AVOID HALF HOLIDAY TALK

Business Men's Association Will Hold Dollar Dinner—Elect New Secretary.

Contrary to expectation, the question of closing at noon on Saturdays during the coming summer did not come up for discussion at the meeting of the Business Men's Association which was held in the Frost building last night. After the members had held an interesting session for nearly three hours a resolution, proposed by William Jeffery that the Saturday closing be discussed, was sidetracked by another calling for adjournment. During the evening the well attended meeting disposed of a large amount of business. The principal thing decided was to hold a dollar dinner, the second one of the winter, at the Waldorf Hotel on Monday night, April 20.

The resignation of Allen F. Davis as secretary, which has been in the hands of the executive committee for some weeks, was accepted, and George A. Ballantyne was chosen in his stead. Several new members were elected, including George J. Finger, Lamar Van Syckel, Miron & Lifson and former Mayor Charles J. Fisk. Every member present pledged himself to strive to bring two new members into the organization before the next meeting in May.

The question of the buying of tickets for various shows which are given about town was thoroughly discussed. Some members felt that this was forbidden by the rule which makes it impossible to advertise or contribute to any cause which the member may not be personally interested in, while others thought that the purchase of tickets was beyond the scope of the rule, and that the members should use their own judgment in buying tickets.

The finances of the organization were discussed, and they were found to be in a healthy condition.

SAUNDERS TO PRESIDE AT WEST END ASSN. DINNER

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, will act as toastmaster at the annual dinner of the West End Civic Association which will be held at the Waldorf Hotel on Tuesday April 21. The other speakers have not as yet been chosen, but the members of the entertainment committee, of which Barton K. Davis is chairman, promise interesting entertainment.

The regular meeting of the association will be held on Friday night of this week at the Washington School on Darrow avenue, at which time a number of matters of much interest to the West End will be taken up. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

PROTEST AGAINST NEW SCHOOL PLOT

Neighboring Property Owners Object to Building on Evergreen Avenue.

SAY IT IS UNNECESSARY

Board of Education Received Petition at Meeting Last Night—After Contractors on New High School Building.

A petition, signed by thirty-nine property owners and residents of the vicinity, was presented to the Board of Education at the regular April meeting, held last night in the High School in which protest was made against the erection of the proposed new schoolhouse on the lot which the Board recently purchased on Evergreen avenue. The signers all live on Evergreen, Martine, Prospect or Park avenues, within a short distance of the new lot, and in their request that no school be erected they claim that it is neither necessary nor suitable to that section of the city, and therefore they "respectfully request their friends, the Board of Education, to reconsider this proposition before deciding to place the aforesaid school upon the proposed site."

The signers are Edward A. Lyon, J. Philip Bird, Charles A. Edwards, David J. Scott, Arthur E. Crone, L. B. Woolston, Florence Schwed, James C. Manning, Charles R. Goldsmith, Bruce S. Lachlan, William Dutcher, W. H. Stevens, C. B. Repp, P. S. Harmon Ida B. Hunt, E. M. Snyder, J. C. Ogden, Henry J. Stevenson, Anna S. Robert, Ruth Morse Everest, William Wright, Lizzie D. Lowry, John Darling, M. C. Nash, W. H. Dixon, Nils Anderson, Curtis B. Dall, G. W. Frech, Charles A. Dall, W. F. Higgins, H. V. Lewis, Edith Huse French, E.V. Bartine, Helen Brewster Barr, F. M. Canda, R. L. Willis, Lavinia Marchant, George Brisbane.

While the Board did not take any formal action in the matter there was discussion about the delay on the part of the contractors on the new high school building, the Paul J. Exner Company, of New York, who should have completed the building several weeks ago. The Board will enforce the rule which provides for a ten dollar a day forfeit by the contractor, for every day that has elapsed since the date the contract should have been completed. The Exner firm were notified this morning of this action, and have at once put a large force of men at work, trying to rush the completion of the building.

The question of throwing the new swimming pool in the high school building open to public use during the summer was also discussed, and if it is found financially practical to do so the public will have the opportunity to use it. It will cost $5 a day to keep the pool open, and if the public patronage, at a small fee, will warrant such action the Board will open the pool.

The series of twenty-two questions which were submitted to the Board by President Jeffery, of the Board of Trade, were received and answers will be prepared to all of them by Dr. H. M. Maxson, supervising principal of the schools.

Advertisements for bids for coal for next year were authorized, and will be opened on Tuesday, April 21.

TRANSFER OF NO. 1 STEAMER CAUSES SHIFT OF TWO MEN

Fire Chief T. O. Doane issued an official order this morning, transferring the No. 1 steamer from No. 1 house on West Second street to No. 4 house at Netherwood. Edward Vail, who has been driving this apparatus, will go to West End house, No. 3, for regular duty, and Jens Claassen, driver for No. 3, for the past five years, will in turn go to the Netherwood house. This will make four regular men and two apparatuses at the latter place, the engineer of the steamer being on call.

The order goes into effect this afternoon and will be the only changes in the department at this time. The removal of the steamer from No. 1 house leaves only one piece of apparatus at that location, this being Captain Feiring's hose wagon. It is one of the oldest vehicles in the department, carrying only hose and hand chemicals. The exercise wagon will be stored at this house with a reserve supply of hose.

LOCAL DRIVER'S CAR KILLS MAN

James Wherry Ran Over Herman Bertsch in Newark Crushing Him to Death.

AUTOMOBILE WRECKED

Driver of Machine Held for Manslaughter — Bystanders Claim Wherry Made Every Effort to Stop Car in Time.

Charged with manslaughter, James Wherry, of 25 Vine street, North Plainfield, is held a prisoner in the Frist Precinct Police Court, Newark, preferred by Captain William A. Carroll. Herman Bertsch, twenty-two years old, of 492 Delavan avenue, Newark, died in the City Hospital at that place, last night, after he had been run over by an automobile driven by Wherry, who is a chauffeur in the employ of the Cadillac Motor Car Company.

Bertsch, who lived with his widowed mother, had just stepped from a trolley car behind which the automobile was running. This was at Eighth street and Bloomfield avenue, Newark, and the car came to a standstill so suddenly that Wherry was forced to turn out of the tracks to avoid hitting the car. Every effort was evidently made by Wherry to prevent his machine hitting Bertsch, for he swerved it so sharply that it ran up on the sidewalk between a pole and a tree, but not until after Bertsch had been struck.

Word was immediately sent to the City Hospital to which he was removed in an ambulance. Every effort was made to save the victim's life but he died shortly after being hit. His left leg was crushed, his nose broken, and he was severely injured internally. The occupants of the car, all of whom are known to the police, disappeared, but Wherry remained by the machine and was taken in custody by Patrolman Brown.

The car was practically wrecked from the impact with the pole and the tree. It had only been purchased yesterday and Wherry was driving the owner to Montclair, there to turn over the car. The accident occurred at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Wherry lives with his mother in this city and was formerly employed by a family in this city as a chauffeur.

WANTS CLOSING HOUR CHANGED TO 11.30

For Concession Hotel Would Open an Hour Later in the Morning.

Peter Floersch, proprietor of the Queen City Hotel, in a communication to the Common Council, at its April meeting, last night, requested that body to change the ordinance governing the sale of liquors so as to permit him to serve liquors up to 11:30 o'clock at night, and in return for such concession he said that he would be willing to open his bar one hour later in the morning, changing that time from 6 to 7 o'clock.

Mr. Floersch stated that theatre parties were often inconvenienced by the closing hour of 11 o'clock, as there were times when performances at the local theatres were not out until nearly that time. In other ways he said that the present closing hour was a great inconvenience and he believed that some consideration should be given hotels under such conditions, and said that he thought he was justified in asking for the change. The communication was referred to the license committee. There seems to be a feeling that Mr. Floersch's request should be granted.

TWO MORE CONVERSIONS AT REVIVAL SERVICES

The Park Avenue Baptist church was crowded again last night, Prof. Stout singing in a way that impressed the audience. Among the selections were "Heaven, Home and Mother," "Our Country Home" and "My Mother's Prayer." The gospel story as told in the songs held the attention of those gathered to hear Prof. Stout, two responding to the invitation by the pastor, Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire.

The meetings will be continued through the remainder of the week and Easter week. The subject of the address tonight will be "Pontius Pilate," the subject tomorrow evening being, "The Lord's Second Coming."

SEWER BOND ISSUE APPROVED

City Council Decides to Take Up $30,000 at Present Time.

BONDS TO MATURE 1922

Will be of $1,000 Denomination and Bear Interest at 4½ Per Cent—Communication Received from A. J. Brunson.

The Common Council at its April meeting, last night, decided upon the recommendation of the finance committee, of which Leighton Calkins is chairman, to issue $30,000 of the proposed $300,000 sewage bonds, that amount being all that is needed at the present time. These bonds are to bear interest at 4½ per cent. and to mature at the earliest dates up to 1922. This action, Mr. Calkins said, had been concurred in by City Treasurer W. F. Arnold, and had been approved by those who may be asked to bid on the bonds.

Mr. Calkins then offered a resolution which was adopted, authorizing the issue of $30,000 worth of bonds of $1,000 denomination each, to be sold under sealed proposals Monday night, May 4. According to the provisions under which the $300,000 bond issue is to be made, they are to cover a period of forty years in all.

A communication received by Mayor Percy H. Stewart from A. J. Brunson, president of the First National Bank, was turned over to the Council for consideration. Mr. Brunson again referred to the fact that his banking institution is not being used as one of the city depositories and took exception to an alleged recent statement to the effect that the bank was not willing to make a loan to the city. He said that the bank was willing to loan the city up to five times the amount of its deposit, and incidentally added that the present amount on deposit was $7.93. The communication was referred to the finance committee, which has had the matter under consideration.

In acordance with a resolution by Councilman A. D. Edgar, chairman of the fire committee, the new Nott automobile fire engine was accepted by the city, and a warrant ordered drawn for $7,850 to pay for the same, after a communication from Fire Chief T. O. Doane was read showing that the engine had fulfilled all requirements. Accompanying the letter was the official test made under the direction of the Board of Fire Underwriters, but Mr. Calkins desired that the names of the board making the test appear as a matter of record and that will be furnished the city clerk for that purpose. The engine has been in service now for several weeks.

According to the statement by Chief Doane, the engine is satisfactory in every way, having come up to all the requirements as set forth in the specifications. It is possible that a little later on the city may purchase another similar engine to be placed in No. 4 house at Netherwood to give that section of the city adequate protection.

HEALTH SURVEY OF BORO GRATIFYING

Every Section Found to Be in An Excellent Sanitary Condition.

Reports from a committee appointed to investigate the health conditions that exist in the borough were received at the monthly meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health, last night, and the returns are more gratifying than was at first anticipated. Included in the committee that had charge of the work were President Andrew E. Kenney, John I. Brower and J. V. E. Vanderhoef, and they were accompanied on their tour by Health Officer James L. Oliff.

The investigators visited every section of the borough and found only two instances where neglect was evidenced. The backyards, streets and vacant lots were found to be remarkably free from refuse of every kind. The banks of Greenbrook which have been the subject for numerous complaints lodged by property owners on this side of the brook, were carefully inspected and the committee found that debris of an objectionable nature was entirely missing on the North Plainfield side. According to the president of the board, vigilance on the part of the health officer is responsible for the sanitary conditions that exist in the borough and Mr. Oliff was commended highly at the meeting, last night, for his work during the past six months.

The investigation covered every street in North Plainfield and special attention was paid to the more densely populated parts. Routine business occupied the attention of the board during the evening and many outstanding matters were disposed of at that time.

CITIZENS ASK FOR BETTER PROTECTION

City Council Then Locates Seven Fire Hydrants in Netherwood.

Residents of the Netherwood section in a petition headed by Lewis J. Geary, entered a strong protest to the Common Council at its April meeting, last night, against the inadequate fire protection afforded property in that part of the city, citing the recent fire which destroyed the dwelling of Ernest Hand. The petition set forth that the alarm was given at 11:15 and it was 11:45 before a stream of water was put on the blazing building, and then hose was laid a distance of 1,500 feet, when there was a hydrant five hundred feet away.

The petitioners further complained that the firemen were unable to locate the fire hydrants and deplored the fact that thirty-three minutes elapsed from the time of the alarm until water was secured. It was also stated that no record of water pressure was secured and urged that a high pressure auto engine be placed in that section of the city. This communication was referred to the fire committee.

Later in the evening a resolution was offered by Councilman C. C. Graves, and adopted, authorizing the location of seven new hydrants in the vicinity of Dixie Lane, Denmark road and Berkeley avenue. This, the committee believes, will assist in affording better fire protection.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN ON THE CLARK ESTATE

Somerville, April 7.—The large barn on the estate of the late Alvan A. Clark on Mountain avenue, this city, was practically destroyed by fire at noon today, the origin of which has not been determined as yet. Two horses, a pony, several carriages and a touring automobile were saved, but the entire supply of hay and grain were consumed by the flames, as were several farming machines.

The loss will aggregate considerably over $5,000, which is covered by insurance. The firemen were greatly handicapped by the low pressure of water, because of the great distance of the hydrants from the buildings. The estate is now being occupied by Mrs. Clarke and her daughter, Mrs. Madge Mack.

FUNERAL OF C. A. PRICE.

The funeral service of Clark A. Price, who died at St. Petersburg, Fla., on April 3, will be held at the late home, 29 Sandford avenue, this evening at 8 o'clock. The interment will be at the convenience of the family.

POLICE FIND NAYLOR GIRL

DETAILS OF SEARCH

Fifteen-year-old Daughter of John Naylor, Missing for Five Days, is Apparently None the Worse for Her Experience.

Information furnished to Police Chief Kiely and Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn by a Plainfield commuter, last night, resulted in the solution of the Ruth Naylor abduction case this afternoon. The girl has been working in the home of a private family in Brooklyn as a domestic, having secured employment through the Y. W. C. A., of that place.

A New York business man who lives in this city, came to police headquarters, last night, and informed the local authorities that he had seen a girl answering Ruth's description in a New York restaurant. Inquiry started by Detective Flynn and Chief Kiely finally revealed the fact that the girl had applied for a position as waitress in the Columbia Urn, a restaurant on Cortlandt street, one day last week. Accompanied by John Naylor, the girl's father, Chief Kiely went to New York this morning and interviewed the manager of the restaurant.

The latter gave a description of the girl that tallied exactly with that of Ruth and said that she had told him that her parents were dead and that she had some to the Metropolis to lay claim to an estate of $500.

The sympathies of waitresses in the restaurant were aroused and they directed the applicant to the Harriet Judson Memorial Home conducted by the Brooklyn Y. W. C. A. She arrived at that place Friday afternoon and was taken in by the matron in charge. In answer to certain questions she gave her name as Ruth French and said that she had come from Philadelphia in search of employment. The association found work for the girl in a Brooklyn family. Applying at the address furnished by the matron, Chief Kiely and Mr. Naylor were met by Ruth this afternoon.

In an interview with a Daily Press reporter the superintendent of the Harriet Judson Memorial Home said that the girl had applied there for lodging Friday night, stating that she intended to look for a position in New York. The officials of the home, it was said, took an interest in the girl because of her youth and retained her at the place until Saturday afternoon when she was placed in the home of the Brooklyn family. When taken into custody by her father and the police chief this afternoon she was attired in the same garments she wore when she left home and has evidently made no effort to disguise herself. The matron at the home said that she had noticed stories in the metropolitan papers regarding the kidnapping of the Plainfield girl, but did not connect the story with the girl that had applied there for a night's lodging. According to the superintendent she is in the best of health and seems little the worse for her escapade.

As the result of the girl's disappearance, Mrs. Naylor, her mother, is in a state of nervous collapse, and anxiously awaits the return of her daughter. Mr. Naylor has remained with Chief Kiely constantly since the incident was reported to the police and he was overjoyed when his eyes met those of Ruth's this afternoon.

Numerous rumors were circulated this morning concerning the whereabouts of the girl among the latter being one that had her lying in a serious condition in an Easton, Pa., hospital. Out of a long list of possible clues the local police head and his assistant selected the restaurant possibility, this morning, and within three hours after leaving Plainfield had the girl located.

Lynus Walpole, Jr., and Thomas Copenhaven, the two men who have been arrested in the case, are both being detained for further examination. Copenhaven is in the Tombs, New York, awaiting extradition to New Jersey, and he will probably be brought to Plainfield within the next two days. Walpole was arraigned before Judge DeMeza, this morning, on a complaint sworn out by the father of the girl charging him with a serious offense. He was remanded until tomorrow morning when bail will be fixed.

WOMEN IN LOCAL CIVIC LIFE.

The succesful luncheon yesterday for the benefit of the penny lunches for school children, which was held under the auspices of the Plainfield Mothers' Association, is another evidence of the great part the women play in the civic life of Plainfield. This is only one of the many activities with which the members of the sex are identified in this city, and as one of the speakers said at the Forum meeting last Thursday night, there is no real movement for the public good in which they do not take a prominent part.

To its women in greater degree than to its men, does the city look for leadership in movements for physical betterment and material advancement. Perhaps the men are too busy with their own affairs to note many of the needs of the people, but the women, "whose work is never done," come forward to supply that civic alertness missing in the sterner sex.

Women's work in the community deals with those things which make life more worth living. It seeks to provide comforts, health, recreation and the means for happiness. It develops education and in Plainfield it has been instrumental in the opening of the schools for neighborhood gatherings. It elevates the city and thus elevates society. Women as home makers, make home happier and brighter, an influence felt beyond the family circle; as city makers, they make the city brighter and happier, as well, with their influence upon the general human and social welfare.

In all their efforts they deserve the hearty co-operation of the men, and in Plainfield they are receiving it.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

Plainfield is fortunate in having at the head of its Board of Trade an active and up-to-date man of practical ideas. Too many civic bodies of this character are dead in every way, and accomplish little or nothing that they start out to do. In small cities such as Plainfield the Board of Trade is something between a commercial democracy and a committee of the common weal, and there is room for every man with a useful idea or who is willing to work for his community, but without an active and energetic executive either at the head or in the secretary's position, little can be accomplished.

A live board of trade may become, by virtue of its own enterprise and with general assent, a sort of unofficial government of the town. There are many things to be done that public officials cannot do. There are things which public officials should do, but may not do, or may not do well, unless they are pointedly reminded of these from time to time by such a standing embodiment of public sentiment as a board of trade. In a sense the relation of a town board of trade and a town council is the relation between a popular assembly and a senate. In another sense, the board of trade is just an interesting and vigorous survival of the guild governments of medieval towns, and as such its activities are justified by precedent as well as necessity.

A board of trade may properly concern itself with everything connected with a town's welfare save religious, political and controversial moral questions. It has nothing to do with a church revival, a town election, except for a change in the form of government. It should labor to render the town it serves a better market for farmers; to improve the roads leading into the town; to put and keep the town on the map by well considered public enterprises; to promote the City Beautiful; to enlarge the trade of its merchants, by such means as barter days, bargain days, opportunity days and town celebrations and conventions; and to attract desirable industries.

Boards of trade should not sidetrack and sacrifice other work by concentrating all their energies upon the ambitious but uncertain pursuit of new industries. Whether any town shall get these is a gamble at best, and commonly, those easiest to land are quickest to blow up. Work in this field may be love's labor lost.

The muddy crossing, made usable by ashes; the waste lot turned into a kitchen garden; the alley scrap-heap carted away; the front yard and front porch dressed in verdure, the dwelling transformed with new paint; the common converted into a park; the road out of town properly dragged.

To make one's home and one's town beautiful in the things of the eye and of the spirit is the best work any man can do. Ignoring ethics and aesthetics save as they can be reduced to a balance sheet, the town which strives to make itself good to look upon and pleasant to live in, the town wherein neighbors wish each other well, is the town that thrives. Its young people leave it with reluctance to seek fortune elsewhere, and return to it with eagerness when their fortunes are made. It draws into its population retired farmers from the countryside; the families of traveling men who pass through and the heads of industries seeking a dwelling place as well as a factory site.

Out of such endeavor is born a local tradition that makes for character and achievement, for a service that may be wide as the race. Of all the gifts of the work, none pay such dividends as paint, flowers and good will.

Among the numerous local charities which appeal for aid from time to time the Children's Home occupies a position in the first rank. The work being done at that institution is well known to the people of the city, and when those in charge ask help, as they did through the columns of the Daily Press last night, the request is one that should be heeded. Confronted by the increasing price of food stuffs, the managers are forced to adopt all sorts of expedients to keep things moving, and to care for the thirty-five children under their protecting roof. Not only is money desired, but discarded playthings suitable for out of doors, such as roller skates, tops, hoops, jumping ropes and other toys will be welcomed.

LENTEN LUNCHEON DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

Prominent Speakers Address the Plainfield Mothers' Association.

Covers were laid for one hundred and twenty-five guests at the Lenten luncheon conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association in the Park Club, yesterday, when the school lunch question was brought before the gathering in an interesting way, by a number of those actively engaged in promoting the project. The foodstuffs used in the preparation of the luncheon were donated by manufacturers of the various foods and the proceeds of the affair will be devoted to furthering the proposition, started in the local public schools. The serving of penny luncheons in this city has attracted wide interest, as evidenced by the number who took advantage of the opportunity to learn more of the movement yesterday. The idea was inaugurated in the Bryant school last September and during the six months that have elapsed twelve thousand luncheons have been served during the noon hour. These cost the pupils from one to seven cents and the work has been carried on exclusively by the Mothers' Association.

Mrs. Charles G. Munro, president of the organization, presided at the luncheon yesterday and led the devotional services that preceded it. Miss Alice Boughton, supervisor of the public school lunches in Philadelphia, and also an instructor in the Teachers' College of Columbia University, was one of the speakers and told many interesting features that may be added to the work as it progresses. She described actual experiences encountered during her investigation and study of the subject and her address was of an unusually instructive nature. The other speakers were Mrs. Herbert E. Parker, secretary of the organization ;Mrs. William M. Sandford, William A. Wheatley, of Middletown, Conn., who is principal of the schools in that city; Robert W. Rollins, representative of the manufacturers contributing the foodstuffs; Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the local public schools, and Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann. Mr. Wheatley took for his subject, "Every schoolroom an open air room."

The hostesses were: Mrs. C. G. Munro, president of the association, who acted as toastmaster; Mrs. H. E. Parker, vice-president, and Mrs. T. R. Van Boskerck, Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Wadsworth Parker, Mrs. Joseph Smith, Mrs. E. H. Mumford, Mrs. W. H. P. Veysey, Mrs. George A. Bomann, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, Mrs. W. H. Freeman, Mrs. H. M. Maxson, Mrs. A. C. Penn, Mrs. Samuel Clark, Mrs. Stephen H. Voorhees, Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, Mrs. James A. Foulks, Mrs. William M. Sandford, Mrs. M. P. E. Groszmann, Mrs. H. V. Phillips, Mrs. O. H. Smith, Mrs. George B. Wean, Mrs. C. L. Riley and Mrs. Charles A. Lawrence.

"WAGNER'S PARSIFAL; LEGEND OF THE GRAIL"

Prof. J. Duncan Spaeth Gives Interesting Lecture Before Monday Afternoon Club.

Professor J. Duncan Spaeth, head of the English literature department of Princeton University, gave a pleasing address at the Hartridge School, yesterday afternoon, before a large audience of the Monday Afternoon Club. Mrs Orton G. Dale, president of the club, introduced the speaker. Professor Spaeth did not deliver the address announced for him, which was "The Contemporary Novel," but took for his subject, "Wagner's Parsifal" or the "Legend of the Grail."

In order that the audience might fully appreciate the story, the speaker took them back to the golden times when these legends were very popular and showed how all of the minor legends led to the big and best known one, that of the Holy Grail. He said that all of these stories were subject to change every time they were told and that in this way the one beautiful one has come down to us through the ages.

Mr. Spaeth treated the subject from a literary standpoint and did not make any reference to the musical side of it at all. He will speak to the club again in the fall and at that time will discuss his delayed topic.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS' CONFERENCE

Discuss Practical Questions and Elect Officers at Annual Meeting.

A large number of Sunday-school workers attended the annual meeting of the Plainfield Graded Union, yesterday afternoon, at the First Baptist church, at which time reports of the various officers and committees were presented. These reports showed much progress during the course of the past year and that the organization was in a prosperous condition. After the business session, a luncheon was served, followed by an intermediate department conference conducted by Miss Alice B. Hamlin of Newark. This part of the day's program was well attended and proved to be very interesting and instructive to those who attended. Many questions of importance in Sunday-school work were discussed at length.

During the business session the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Honorary president, Mrs. Robert Love; honorary vice president, Mrs. F. R. Baker; president, Mrs. J. A. Powlison; first vice president, Mrs. D. L. Darby; second vice president, Mrs. Edgar Williams; third vice president, Mrs. G. A. Ballantyne; honorary secretary and treasurer, Mrs. R. W. Barnes; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Elvin Van Name; assistant secretary, Mrs. Charles Conover; librarian, Miss Mary White; pianist, Mrs. L. R. Schofield; assistant pianist, Miss Voorhees.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS GOLDEN JUBILEE

Local Members Will Attend Big Gathering at Atlantic City.

A celebration of the golden jubilee of the Knights of Pythias fraternity will be held by the Grand Domain of New Jersey, at Atlantic City, on May 12, 13 and 14. The order was founded in Washington, D. C., February 19, 1864, by Justus H. Rathbone and twelve friends, two of whom were Matthew H. and Abraham VanderVeer, of Somerville, then employed as government clerks at the capitol.

A feature of the jubilee celebration will be a parade of members of the order from all over the State, and for the purpose of transporting the Knights of Central New Jersey to Atlantic City and return, an excursion is being arranged for. This excursion will be run by the six lodges located in Flemington, Neshanic, Somerville, Bound Brook and Plainfield, these organizations comprising the twentieth district.

It is planned to make the excursion a one-day affair, the special train to leave Flemington by the Central Railroad on Thursday, May 14, as early at 6:30 if not before. It will make stops at the principal towns along the line, as far as Elizabeth, and possibly at the Amboys. The return trip will be scheduled to leave Atlantic City late in the evening so as to afford the excursionists an opportunity to see the night attractions. The fare for the round trip will be $3.50, and the public generally will be privileged to accompany the Knights.

The board of trustees of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will meet tonight at the parish house. The Men's Association will meet at the same place Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

EXTENSION OF SEWER SYSTEM

Street Improvement Also Planned in Ordinances Adopted by Council.

$12,000 FOR LIBRARY

City Tax Maps to be Revised—Council Chambers to be Improved—Numerous Petitions—Adjourned Meeting April 20.

Plans for extending the sanitary sewer system in the city and petitions requesting street and other improvements from various sections engaged the attention of the Common Council, last night. An ordinance providing for an extension of the sewer system in the West End was introduced by Francis J. Blatz, a public hearing was granted, after which it was adopted on two readings and ordered advertised.

Mr. Blatz also presented a map and resolution, both of which were approved, providing for the establishment of the building line on Park avenue, between the railroad and Fifth street. The ordinance was adopted on two readings and ordered advertised. Similar action was taken regarding an ordinance to extend Spooner avenue, from West Eighth street to Sherman avenue, and an ordinance and map were introduced providing for the straightening of East Fourth street, just east of Washington street. Monday, May 4, was fixed as the time for public hearings on these ordinances, at which it is proposed to adopt them on third and last reading.

Felmley Brothers petitioned to have Emerson avenue macadamized, which matter was referred and the Council received an invitation to witness a demonstration of the Tygard engines which are to be purchased by the Government for battleship service. The Mutual Land Improvement Company, which developed and improved a tract in the Netherwood section, petitioned the Council to accept the streets and give that section street lights. This was referred. Charles Peterson and others asked for street lights on George street; also sidewalks and crosswalks. This was referred to the street and light committees.

The directors of the Plainfield Public Library, in a communication, informed the Council that the amount needed for library purposes the coming year was $12,000. This was referred to the finance committee. A communication was received from the Plainfield Mothers' Association asking for an appropriation of $1,500 for the coming year to provide and extend the school luncheon system to all the schools of the city. This was referred to the finance committee. Winfield Scott Post No. 73, G. A. R., made the usual request for an appropriation of $100 for Memorial Day and this was referred to the finance committee.

The Public Service Corporation electric department, informed the Council that the New Jersey Central had refused to allow the erection of poles on its property on North avenue for lights without a rental, which it had declined to pay, and asked the Council to secure the necessary permission. The matter was referred to the light committee, as was also a petition for lights on Stelle avenue, between Grant and Hobart avenues.

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed made a report on the recent decision of the Public Utilities Commission in favor of the city, in the contention for free lights for the city's offices and buildings, and President George S. Clay remarked that Mr. Reed was to be congratulated.

City Judge W. C. DeMeza presented his quarterly report showing that 265 cases had been disposed of and $395 received in fines. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported receipts of $228.57 for the past month and expenditures of $82.67, leaving a balance of $149.90. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of eight permits during March. Mr. Calkins presented four copies of the Universal Audit Company's audit of the city and they were filed.

In accordance with a resolution by Mr. Calkins, $12,000 was transferred from the general to the fire fund and $2,000 from the general fund to the poor fund. Another resolution by Mr. Calkins which was adopted, authorized the tax collector to have the city taxing maps revised in accordance with an opinion of the corporation counsel and a ruling of the State Tax Board.

A resolution offered by Mr. Edgar and adopted, authorized the expenditure of $475 for the purpose of widening the doors at fire headquarters to permit the easy exit and egress of the new auto fire engine.

The Council chamber and other offices occupied by the city are to be repapered, repainted and provided with new shades, the city to stand half the expense, and David T. Kenney, owner of the building, the other half. This was decided through a resolution offered by Mr. Claybrook, which was adopted.

Mr. Edgar presented a communication from the Underwriters' Association, middle division, approving of the electric wiring in No. 2 fire house on West Second street. Upon motion of Mr. Calkins, Council adjourned to meet again on Monday night, April 20.

ATHLETIC MEET FOR PLAINIELD MAY 9TH

Princeton Club Will Stage Fine Set of Games on Parker Field.

It was announced today that the annual scholastic athletic meet will be held either in Newark or on Parker Field, Saturday, May 9, under the auspices of the Princeton Club. The decision was rendered only after the athletic field at Newark had been considered and the local playground has since been mentioned. The meet will be the largest that has even been held in this State and from the entries that are being received at the present time there will be some lively competition for the spectators. The games have grown steadily under the head of the committee and have become Statewide in popularity. An inviting list of prizes has been made up and the winners will surely be rewarded for their efforts. Star athletes and champions from all over the State and also a few from New York are booked to appear on that day and will make it hot racing for those in these parts.

One of the pleasing features of the meet will be that the local high school is going to try to bring many of the valuable prizes to this city. Captain Alfred Day, of the track team, is getting his men into shape and has a fine set of runers to train. He will have representatives starting in about every race and individuals will enter the field events and try for their school. The meet is sure to bring to light some speed kings, but no matter how hard the locals train they will have to use all of their energy to cross the tape as winners. As a preliminary workout for this meet the locals will meet the athletes of the Somerville school in a set of games.

MULLIN MAY SIGN WITH AMBOY TEAM

Atlantic League Looks Good to Plainfield Boy Who Has Quit Georgia Club.

Rather than endanger his life by starvation, Tommy Mullin, the local baseball player, has decided to ignore all contracts sent him by managers of teams in Southern Leagues and will probably remain in Jersey during the coming season. While in Brunswick, Ga., last season, Mullin was in one of the southern hospitals as the result of a general rundown and he was finally forced to return to the East. The climate in that section does not agree with the local boy and according to his own statement the "eats" are not what they should be. This is a common complaint lodged by eastern ball players who go South during the summer months and few there are who can stand the change.

When seen by a Daily Press reporter, last night, Mullin had offers on his person from managers of a half dozen southern leagues, but declared that he would ignore all of the contracts offered. Although he will not go South, Mullin will not be seen in a Plainfield or Central New Jersey uniform this season as was at first anticipated by his friends locally.

It now looks as though the Atlantic League has come to stay and the possibilities of Mullin's signing with this organization are pretty bright just at the present time. Perth Amboy is not far from the Queen City and as Mullin has many influential friends in that municipality it now seems likely that he will enter the Atlantic League, the successor to the New York and New Jersey organization. Cliff Randolph has signed to twirl for the Perth Amboy club, on which Mullin has designs.

He anticipates little or no trouble in securing his release from Manager Morehouse, of the Brunswick club, as he stood in "right" with the southern manager while in the South and Mullin says the latter stands ready to taks any steps that will better a ball player's future.

PLAINFIELD PITCHER RUTGERS' MAINSTAY

Twirler Who Pitched Plainfield to a Central League Pennant Making Good.

Pitcher Harry Jennings, of the Rutgers College baseball team, displayed great form in the game against Princeton last Saturday and more than once kept the Tigers from scoring by his masterly pitching. Jennings is known in this city because of the fine work that he did two years ago in the championship games between Plainfield and Somerville. He pitched winning ball at that time and has been as good ever since.

Last year he was a substitute moundsman but this season he has come to the front and promises to be one of the mainstays of the New Brunswick team. In last Saturday's contest he used a large amount of head work and was at his best in the tightest pinches. Three times during the game the Tiger base runners were annoying but each time the young twirler held his own and blanked his opponents. He has a vast amount of speed and fine control. Saturday he was opposed by Lambertson who pitched his first varsity game for Princeton.

ROD AND REEL

The shad fishermen of the Raritan river are hustling to get their net poles in so that they may intercept the first run of fish that is expected almost any day now. These nets are spread east of the railroad bridge and the fish they catch are sold to the people of the Amboys.

The Delaware river fishermen report that shad are working up toward Trenton, but if so, they are early. Usually the fishermen are not caught unprepared and their nets and crews have to wait at least a week for the fish to come. The shad of the Delaware river will be watched by the Federal authorities this spring in order to see if any with tags are caught.

One who tried the trout fishing in the Whippany river, Sunday, landed two trout and five large suckers. He hooked into one trout that bent his steel rod clear to the river bank and then the line snapped and the trout won out. The sucker fishing up that way is good, and the men that fish the river dont' hesitate to catch a mess of them when the trout won't bite.

The New York fishing smacks are beginning to get in shape for the spring bluefish run. The first reports of bluefish generally come from the vicinity of Beaufort, N. C., and that word is anxiously awaited. Southern bluefish from the Florida waters have been in the market for a week, but not until they reach the Carolinas will it pay to send the smacks out. When the boats get busy, some of the rod and line fishermen realize that summer is about, and they get out their heavy tackle and prepare for the fishing.

LEAL SCHOOL TACKLES WESTFIELD TOMORROW

Will Open on Crescent Oval With the Best Lineup it Has Had For Years.

The Leal School baseball aggregation is primed for its opening contest which will take place tomorrow afternoon on Crescent Oval, when the team from the Westfield High School will invade this city. This will be the only game that will be played tomorrow and the local team is sure to put up a fight that will be interesting to the spectators. Leal players have been practicing for the past week and are ready to take anything that comes from their opponents bats.

Captain Faber has picked all of the team except the battery and that will not be announced until the last minute. All of last year's men will be on the job again and many of them in their old positions. With Faber, Dickerson and Dale in the outfield the ball should be well taken care of and Stewart will handle the hot ones that go down by shortstop.

The field is in fair condition and will be fast considering the weather during the past week. The visitors will come here with a strong lineup and both teams will strive hard to get the opener. The private school team will take the field as follows: First base, Stevenson; second base, Lyon; third base, Schneider; shortstop, Stewart; left field, Faber; center field, Dickerson; right field, Dale.

DEMOCRATS ORGANIZE BALL TEAM TO STUMP STATE

At a meeting of the Jefferson Democratic Club, last night, it was decided to organize a baseball team to play week-end games. The following committee was appointed to look into this matter and to make arrangements, Dick Scott, David L. Coleman and Daniel Courain.

The club has a lot of good material available for this sport and a fine team will undoubtedly be put out. All of the amateur teams of this section of the State iwll be played. Final arrangements were completed for the first grand ball to be held in Sebring's Auditorium, Thursday, April 16. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

MARSANS QUITS REDS.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 7—Armando Marsans, the Cuban outfielder of the Cincinnati National League team, informed August Herrman, president of the club, yesterday, that he had been unjustly treated by Manager Herzog and that he would not play with the team. Marsans and Herzog had trouble while the team was playing an exhibition game with the Louisville American Association club last week. Herzog said that Marsans claimed he had been injured and could not play, while the club's physicians stated that the injury was slight.

PHOTOGRAPHERS BARRED.

Philadelphia., April 7—The order that Thomas J. Lynch issued when he was president of the National League, prohibiting photographers from being on the ground during the playing of a championship league game, will be continued by President Tener.

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB.

The hounds will meet at the kennels tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for the weekly run of the Watchung Hunt Club.

ELKS' LEAGUE BOWLING.

The Nash and VanEmburgh teams will oppose each other in the Elks' Club tournament on the club alleys tonight.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Much speculation is going the rounds hereabouts concerning the final destination of one Jack Martin in baseball. Martin has had a big share of the ups and downs of the national pastime and his troubles are not yet to an end if new developments are to be taken as a criterion of what is to follow. The latect reports have Jack dickering with Charlie Dooin's Philadelphia Nationals, and it looks as though the Plainfield boy would wind up in sleeptown before many more moons have rolled by. The Phillies need a good shortstop and it is the belief of many experts that the Plainfielder would fit in just right.

Now that the baseball diamonds have dried up sufficiently to allow the ball tossers to cavort about without danger of becoming mired in the mud, it might be well to revive a little interest in that track meet which was proposed some weeks ago by several local enthusiasts. At present it looks as though the Union county meet would be staged in Elizabeth on Kingsley Oval and the athletes in this part should get busy on some kind of an interscholastic affair before it gets too late. Plainfield, Westfield North Plainfield and Somerville High Schools would probably fall in line as would also Leal School.

Principal Earley of the North Plainfield High School, evidently considers football too rough for schoolboys to indulge in as a pastime. Smashing human limbs and pushing in of human eyes does not appeal to the boroughites as a sport and it is one safe bet that N. P. H. S. will not be represented on the football field this fall.

The Legislature last night adopted a resolution requesting the Governor to appoint a commission to inquire into horse racing and the existence of gambling in connection therewith. A report is to be made to the Legislature of 1916. Failure to legislate against racetrack gambling is attributed in the resolution "in a great measure to lack of reliable information upon which such legislation might be based, with reasonable assurance that it would prove more effective than the laws now in force."

The national amateur court tennis championship tournament was begun yesterday at the Racquet and Tennis Club, New York. Three matches were played. In the first Charles E. Sands, the former title holder, appeared in old-time form and defeated a club-mate, C. S. Cutting, in straight sets. Then Philip Stockton, of Boston, eliminated D. L. Hutchinson, of Philadelphia, while in the last contest Lawrence Waterbury put out Kingdon Gould, an elder brother of Jay Gould, in five sets.

The matter of reviving scholastic rowing in this section reached quite an advanced stage at the meeting of the Regatta Committee of the New York Rowing Association in the New York Athletic Club, last night. So widespread has the interest in the interscholastic race to be rowed in the big Memorial Day regatta on the Harlem River become, that the scope of the contest has been increased

BATTIN CHALLENGES RIVALS TO PLAYOFF

Westfield High School Girls May Accept Defy to Play for a Greater Title.

After having won the feminine basketball title for the city of Elizabeth, the Battin High School team is now in a fine mood to fight for the championship of the State and has challenged the lassies of the Westfield school for a third game in order that a decision may be reached. The Mount Ararat girls are a little slow in accepting the challenge and may not do it at all since the season is over.

Both teams lay claim to the title but only the Elizabeth girls are willing to take a chance and play the deciding game. In the first meeting of the season the Westfield girls went down to defeat in a fine game by a score of 17 to 16. In the next game they came back strong and upset their opponents with a 28 to 17 victory. Westfield is the only team that had beaten the Elizabeth girls and vica versa so the only way in which the title can be decided is to see which team can win two out of three games.

Both of these games have been fast, close ones and on a neutral court the best team would surely prove itself superior. The manager of the Betystown aggregation has issued a challenge for the third and if the other team refuses to accept the terms Battin will have the undisputed claim to the title. However that is a poor way to win a championship and it is to be hoped that the Westfield girls will at least take another try for the title.

This is the second suit brought against the order since the session of their Supreme Court last September, and in both cases the courts decided in favor of the Foresters, the other decision being rendered by Judge Tappan, of the Michigan court.

NURSES' ASSOCIATION TO PAY MEMBERS SICK BENEFITS

The Nurses' Alumni Association of Muhlenberg Hospital transacted a considerable amount of business at the regular monthly meeting, yesterday afternoon. President George P. Mellick, of the hospital board of governors, was present and discussed several matters relating to the graduate nurses' connection with the institution. One of these was the offering to care for nurses at the hospital during illness for half cost and this was accepted.

The association voted to pay sick benefits at the rate of $1 per day. Several amendments were made to the bylaws and tentative plans were made for the annual reception to the 1914 graduating class.

BRUNSWICK TO PAY FIREMEN.

New Brunswick, April 7—This city is to have a paid fire department on July 1. The Common Council last night received an ordinance providing for a paid department of chief, assistant chief and forty men. Harry J. Francis will be the chief and Louis Sass the assistant. They are now in office. The chief's salary of $1,200 is to be raised to $1,500 and the assistant chief is to receive $1,200 instead of $1,000. There will be six companies. Washington and Protection engine companies are to be dropped. The new companies will be known as Liberty, Neptune Phoenix, Raritan and Hibernia engine companies and the New Brunswick truck company. All will have motor apparatus and Neptune firehouse will be moved to another section of the city. The firemen must pass a physician's examination. The first year they will get $60 a month, the second $70 and thereafter $80. The police department probably will be given the old Protection firehouse.

GOVERNORS' CONFERENCE.

The chief purpose of the conference is to unite the Western States in a definite policy on public questions of common interest. The conference also will agree upon a program for the Western Irrigation Congress which is to meet here Thursday in response to the call recently issued by Secretary Lane, of the Interior Department.

ROSELLE PARK BOARD SPLIT.

Roselle Park, April 7—It is reported in official and political circles of Roselle Park that Mayor Harwood Fish, after fighting for more than a year to control the Board of Health, is about to lose what he has gained in that body. Dr. William R. Smith, one of the Mayor's appointees, who succeeded Dr. F. Halstead Brown, has sent his resignation to the Borough Council as medical inspector and a member of the board. It is also said that two other members of the board will resign. Affairs are unsettled in the health board, as the result of the resignation of Health Inspector William Morris and the subsequent action of Mr. Morris in bringing criminal action against Mayor Fish for an alleged libel.

ATTEMPT TO STEAL TWO AUTOS AT SOMERVILLE

Somerville, April 7—An attempt was made last night to steal the automobiles of Alexander W. Mack and that of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Louis C. Mack. Both parties live within short distances from each other, and it was evident from the condition of the garages that the attempt to steal the auto of Mr. Mack had been made first.

Mr. Mack's machine is a fine new one, with a self-starter, and the chief of thieves were unable to get the machine in motion and abandoned it outside of the garage. The same trouble confronted them with the auto of Mrs. Mack, and this was also abandoned at the door of the garage. Both machines had been loaded up with fur coats, tools, etc. found in the garages.

DUNELLEN SELLS ITS SEWER BONDS

WILL EXPIRE IN 1937

Several Ordinances Are Adopted—Tax List is Revised—Contract for Stone Awarded to Plainfield Trap Rock Company.

Numerous matters of more or less importance were disposed of at the April meeting of the Dunellen Council, last night. The directors of the Building and Loan Association was given permission to hold its meetings on the upper part of the borough hall. The Watchung Investment Company and Dunellen Home and Investment Company petitioned that either Washington avenue, between Culhane place and Walnut street, be lowered to grade to properly drain it or that they be given permission to lay 700 feet of drain pipe along the northeasterly line of that avenue to Bonegut brook, with the borough bearing part of the expense. Permission was given to the property-owners to lay the pipe.

Property-owners on Penfield place petitioned to have that thoroughfare improved, and Frank T. Farrell, one of the petitioners, addressed the Council earnestly on the subject, advocating the improvement at once, instead of continually referring it to a committee. He thought it was about time that some action was taken. After Mayor Latham informed Mr. Farrell that that was the usual procedure to refer such matters and that Mr. Castner was chairman of the committee, Mr. Farrell expressed the hope that something would be done at once.

Martin White, of the Public Service Corporation, requested an itemized bill of the expense of removing snow, the expense incurred by the borough during the March blizzard the company being obliged to bear one-half the expense. Charles Wragg was appointed a member of Defender Fire Company, No. 1.

These ordinances were passed: To prohibit the riding or driving of wagons carts or autos over the sidewalks of the borough, unless the walks are protected; providing for the paving of both sides of Front street from Madison avenue to the westerly end of the street; providing for the paving of North avenue from Chestnut street to the westerly end of the avenue.

The Plainfield Trap Rock Company was the only bidder for the contract for supplying the borough with crushed stone, the bids being $1.45, $1.50 per ton, according to the size of stone. Kissell, Kinnicutt & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, were the successful bidders and only bidders for the $20,000 of 4½ per cent. joint sewage system bonds, and the firm was awarded the bonds at $101,513 and accrued interest. These bonds are to be retired by the borough at the rate of $1,000 per year from 1924 to 1931, inclusive, and $2,000 each year from 1932 to 1937, inclusive. The borough's total resource as to issuing bonds to meet its proportionate expense of the enterprise is $30,000, from which is deducted the $20,000 of bonds just issued, leaving a balance of $10,000.

Treasurer I. J. Stite's report showed a balance on hand of $179.38 against a balance of $401.48 the preceding month. The bill of Lindabury Depue & Faulks, amounting to $183.61, which is the borough's proportionate share of the legal expense incident to the joint sewer project was ordered paid. Current bills amounting to $520.60 were also paid.

The finance committee reported that it had gone over the tax collector's list of delinquent poll tax payers from 1905-1912 and marked off therefrom the names of those who had either removed or were unable to pay. The list was ordered turned over to Collector Stites with instructions to take such action as he thought best about collections. Prior to the adjournment of the Council to April 20, Michael Gallagher entered a vigorous protest against the location of the joint sewage disposal works on the Darling farm.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is spiendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SOME TEMPTING CROQUETTES.

SUPPER MENU.
Eggs Baked in Potato Nests.
Parsnip Croquettes.
Rolls.
Rhubarb Sponge.
Tea.

HOUSEWIVES find croquettes a help in many a household crisis. Often an emergency is tided over by using odds and ends from the yesterday's meals in the making of dainty croquettes.

Parsnip Croquettes. — Take three parsnips, one ounce of butter, salt and pepper, one egg and one-half cupful of breadcrumbs. Wash and boil the parsnips, season well, add the butter, egg and breadcrumbs. When the mixture is quite smooth form it into balls or flat cakes. Coat these with egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat until a golden brown. Serve very hot.

Vegetable Croquettes.

Kidney Bean Croquettes.—Take three cupfuls of kidney beans, one cupful of boiled rice, one tablespoonful of butter or bacon drippings, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of onion juice, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of nutmeg, a dash of white pepper, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one tablespoonful of finely cut parsley and one egg. Wash and soak the beans overnight. Drain, cover with boiling water and boil two hours or until tender. Drain, put the beans and rice through a meat chopper, add the butter or bacon drippings, salt, pepper, nutmeg, onion juice, Worcestershire sauce, parsley and mix well. Spread on platter to cool. Take a spoonful into floured hands and form into cone shapes. Dip in egg (one egg beaten with one tablespoonful of cold milk), then in breadcrumbs. Fry in deep, hot fat. Serve with cream sauce.

A Use For Cold Mush.

Chicken and Cornmeal Croquettes.—Take one cupful of white cornmeal mush, one cupful of chopped chicken, a few drops of onion juice, one egg, salt and pepper. Combine the ingredients and drop by spoonfuls into hot fat. White cornmeal may be very satisfactorily combined with other kinds of cold meat to make croquettes. In general cornmeal croquettes need not be egged and crumbed like ordinary croquettes, for the hardening of the cornmeal on the surface of the mixture forms the necessary crust.

Cheese Croquettes.—Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add one-third of a cupful of flour and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one cupful of milk. Bring to the boiling point and add the yolks of two eggs, slightly beaten and diluted with two tablespoonfuls of cream and two cupfuls of soft, mild cheese, cut in small cubes. Season with three-quarters of a teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper. Spread on a plate to cool. Shape, dip in crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How the Dragon Helped Billy.

Ate All the Goodies He Could Get.

THE children were quite tired, for they had both been for a very long walk.

"Well," said daddy, "you ought to be thankful that neither of you is very fat, for then you would come home all out of breath and all tired out—much more tired than you are now. In fact, you could not take these long walks at all if you were like a little boy I have in mind.

"Billy was very, very fat, and, oh, so lazy! The reason he was so fat was because he ate everything he wanted. He used to spend every penny he ever got all on himself, and he always bought candy.

"When supper time came he really made himself very sick over jam, for he always persisted in eating loads and loads of jam and would not even spread it on his toast, but would eat it plain out of a spoon.

"He got so he became very lazy, and that was something he had never been before. He had always been fond of exercise and games, walking and running.

"One afternoon he went to a party. He was very disagreeable and wouldn't play any games at all. He simply sat in a corner and waited until supper time came. Then he ate all the ice cream, all the candy and all the cake that he could get hold of. None of the other children went near him, for they didn't care about a little boy who only cared about eating sweets all the time.

"That night Billy felt very bad when he went to bed. But he soon fell asleep. In his sleep, though, a great horned dragon appeared and said to him:

"'Billy, it's for your sake I'm coming here tonight. We dragons aren't nearly so dreadful as we're made out to be. We take a great interest in children, and I am going to take a great interest in you.

"'Before you made such a little—yes, I must say it—a little piggiewig of yourself you were a very nice little boy. But now you're fat and lazy. So every night I shall chase you around in your dreams until you give up eating so much jam and candy and until you once more enjoy playing around with the other little boys and girls. I don't care for a little boy who is off by himself all the time eating and doing nothing else. So I'll have to play games with you for awhile.'

"'Oh, please don't!' said Billy, who was terrified.

"'Yes,' said the dragon; 'I'm a good friend of yours, and I shall make you a real boy again. In a few weeks you really won't know yourself.'

"With that he was gone, but he kept his word, and every night chased Billy around in his dreams until he gave up eating nothing but sweets and took exercise, played games and became a real boy again."

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER XIII.

AFTER twenty-four hours' deliberation the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. It was a first degree verdict. Mr. Howell's unsupported word had lost out against a scar.

Contrary to my expectation, Mr. Holcombe was not jubilant over the verdict. He came into the dining room that night and stood by the window, looking out into the yard.

"It isn't logical," he said. "In view of Howell's testimony, it's ridiculous! Heaven help us under this jury system, anyhow! Look at the facts! Howell knows the woman. He sees her on Monday morning and puts her on a train out of town. The boy is telling the truth. He has nothing to gain by coming forward and everything to lose. Very well, she was alive on Monday. We know where she was on Tuesday and Wednesday. Anyhow, during those days her gem of a husband was in jail. He was freed Thursday night, and from that time until his rearrest on the following Tuesday, I had him under observation every moment. He left the jail Thursday night, and on Saturday the body floated in at Sewickley. If it was done by Ladley it must have been done on Friday, and on Friday he was in view through the periscope all day!"

Mr. Reynolds came in and joined us. "There's only one way out that I see," he said mildly. "Two women have been fool enough to have a name tattooed over their hearts. No woman ever thought enough of me to have my name put on her."

"I hope not," I retorted. Mr. Reynold's first name is Zachariah.

But, as Mr. Holcombe said, all that had been proved was that Jennie Brice was dead, probably murdered. He could not understand the defense letting the case go to the jury without their putting more stress on Mr. Howell's story. But we were to understand that soon, and many other things. Mr. Holcombe told me that evening of learning from John Bellows of the tattooed name on Jennie Brice and of how, after an almost endless search, he had found the man who had cut the name away.

At 8 o'clock the doorbell rang. Mr. Reynolds had gone to lodge, he being an Elk and several other things and much given to regalia in boxes and having his picture in the newspapers in different outlandish costumes. Mr. Pitman used to say that man, being denied his natural love for barbaric adornment in his everyday clothing, took to the different fraternities as an excuse for decking himself out. But this has nothing to do with the doorbell.

It was old Isaac. He had a basket in his hand, and he stepped into the hall and placed it on the floor.

"Evening, Miss Bess," he said. "Can you see a bit of company tonight?"

"I can always see you," I replied. But he had not meant himself. He stepped to the door and, opening it, beckoned to some one across the street. It was Lida!

She came in, her color a little heightened, and old Isaac stood back, beaming at us both. I believe it was one of the crowning moments of the old man's life—thus to see his Miss Bess and Alma's child together.

"Is—is he here yet?" she asked me nervously.

"I did not know he was coming." There was no need to ask which "he." There was only one for Lida.

"He telephoned me and asked me to come here. Oh, Mrs. Pitman, I'm so afraid for him!" She had forgotten Isaac. I turned to the schoolteacher's room and opened the door. "The woman who belongs here is out at a lecture," I said. "Come in here, Ikkie, and I'll find the evening paper for you."

"'Ikkie!'" said Lida, and stood staring at me. I think I went white.

"The lady heah and I is old friends," Isaac said, with his splendid manner. "Her mothah, Miss Lida, her mothah"—

But even old Isaac choked up at that, and I closed the door on him.

"How queer!" Lida said, looking at me. "So Isaac knew your mother? Have you lived always in Allegheny, Mrs. Pitman?"

"I was born in Pittsburgh," I evaded. "I went away for a long time, but I always longed for the hurry and activity of the old home town. So here I am again."

Fortunately, like all the young, her own affairs engrossed her. She was flushed with the prospect of meeting her lover, tremulous over what the evening might bring. The middle aged woman who had come back to the hurry of the old town, and who, pushed back into an eddy of the flood district, could only watch the activity and the life from behind a "Rooms to Let" sign, did not concern her much. Nor should she have.

Mr. Howell came soon after. He asked for her, and, going back to the dining room, kissed her quietly. He had an air of resolve, a sort of grim determination, that was a relief from the half frantic look he had worn before. He asked to have Mr. Holcombe brought down, and so behold us all, four of us, sitting around the table—Mr. Holcombe with his notebook, I with my mending and the boy with one of Lida's hands frankly under his on the red tablecloth.

"I want to tell all of you the whole story," he began. "Tomorrow I shall go to the district attorney and confess, but—I want you all to have it first. I can't sleep again until I get it off my chest. Mrs. Pitman has suffered through me, and Mr. Holcombe here has spent money and time"—

Lida did not speak, but she drew her chair closer and put her other hand over his.

"I want to get it straight, if I can. Let me see. It was on Sunday, the 4th, that the river came up, wasn't it? Yes. Well, on the Thursday before that I met you, Mr. Holcombe, in a restaurant in Pittsburgh. Do you remember?"

Mr. Holcombe nodded.

"We were talking of crime, and I said no man should be hanged on purely circumstantial evidence. You affirmed that a well linked chain of circumstantial evidence could properly hang a man. We had a long argument, in which I was worsted. There was a third man at the table—Bronson, the business manager of the Liberty theater."

"Who sided with you," put in Mr. Holcombe, "and whose views I refused to entertain because as publicity man for a theater he dealt in fiction rather than in fact."

"Precisely. You may recall, Mr. Holcombe, that you offered to hang any man we would name given a proper chain of circumstantial evidence against him?"

"Yes."

"After you left Bronson spoke to me. He said business at the theater was bad and complained of the way the papers used, or would not use, his stuff. He said the Liberty theater had not had a proper deal and that he was tempted to go over and bang one of the company on the head, and so get a little free advertising.

"I said he ought to be able to fake a good story, but he maintained that a newspaper could smell a faked story a mile away, and that, anyhow, all the good stunts had been pulled off. I agreed with him. I remember saying that nothing but a railroad wreck or a murder hit the public very hard these days and that I didn't feel like wrecking the Pennsylvania limited.

"He leaned over the table and looked at me. 'Well, how about a murder, then?' he said. 'You get the story for your paper and I get some advertising for the theater. We need it, that's sure.'

"I laughed it off, and we separated. But at 2 o'clock Bronson called me up again. I met him in his office at the theater, and he told me that Jennie Brice, who was out of the cast that week, had asked for a week's vacation. She had heard of a farm at a town called Horner, and she wanted to go there to rest.

"'Now the idea is this,' he said. 'She's living with her husband, and he has threatened her life more than once. It would be easy enough to frame up something to look as if he'd made away with her. We'd get a week of excitement, more advertising than we'd ordinarily get in a year. You get a corking news story and find Jennie Brice at the end, getting the credit for that. Jennie gets $100 and a rest, and Ladley, her husband, gets, say, $200.'

"Mr. Bronson offered to put up the money, and I agreed. The flood came just then and was considerable help. It made a good setting. I went to my city editor and got an assignment to interview Ladley about this play of his. Then Bronson and I went together to see the Ladleys on Sunday morning, and as they needed money they agreed. But Ladley insisted on $50 a week extra if he had to go to jail. We promised it, but we did not intend to let things go so far as that.

"In the Ladleys' room that Sunday morning we worked it all out. The hardest thing was to get Jennie Brice's consent, but she agreed finally. We arranged a list of clews to be left around, and Ladley was to go out in the night and to be heard coming back. I told him to quarrel with his wife that afternoon, although I don't believe they needed to be asked to do it—and I suggested also the shoe or slipper to be found floating around."

"Just a moment," said Mr. Holcombe, busy with his notebook. "Did you suggest the onyx clock?"

"No, no clock was mentioned. The—the clock has puzzled me."

"The towel?"

"Yes. I said no murder was complete without blood, but he kicked on that—said he didn't mind the rest, but he'd be hanged if he was going to slash himself. But, as it happened, he cut his wrist while cutting the boat loose, and so we had the towel."

"Pillow slip?" asked Mr. Holcombe.

"Well, no. There was nothing said about a pillowslip. Didn't he say he burned it accidentally?"

"So he claimed." Mr. Holcombe made another entry in his book.

"Then I said every murder had a weapon. He was to have a pistol at first, but none of us owned one. Mrs. Ladley undertook to get a knife from Mrs. Pitman's kitchen and to leave it around, not in full view, but where it could be found."

"A broken knife?"

"No; just a knife."

"He was to throw the knife into the water?"

"That was not arranged. I only gave him a general outline. He was to add any interesting details that might occur to him. The idea, of course, was to give the police plenty to work on and just when they thought they had it all and when the theater had had a lot of booming and I had got a good story, to produce Jennie Brice safe and well. We were not to appear in it at all. It would have worked perfectly, but we forgot to count on one thing—Jennie Brice hated her husband."

"Not really hated him!" cried Lida.

"Hated him! She is letting him hang. She could save him by coming forward now, and she won't do it. She is hiding so he will go to the gallows."

There was a pause at that. It seemed too incredible, too inhuman.

"Then early that Monday morning you smuggled Jennie Brice out of the city?"

"Yes; that was the only thing we bungled. We fixed the hour a little too late, and I was seen by Miss Harvey's uncle walking across the bridge with a woman."

"Why did you meet her openly and take her to the train?"

Mr. Howell bent forward and smiled across at the little man. "One of your own axioms, sir," he said. "Do the natural thing; upset the customary order of events as little as possible. Jennie Brice went to the train because that was where she wanted to go. But as Ladley was to protest that his wife had left town, and as the police would be searching for a solitary woman, I went with her. We went in a leisurely manner. I bought her a magazine and a morning paper, asked the conductor to fix her window, and, in general, acted the devoted husband seeing his wife off on a trip. I even"—he smiled—"I even promised to feed the canary."

Lida took her hands away. "Did you kiss her goodby?" she demanded.

"Not even a chaste salute," he said. His spirits were rising. It was, as often happens, as if the mere confession removed the guilt. I have seen little boys who have broken a window show the same relief after telling about it.

"For a day or two Bronson and I sat back, enjoying the stir up. Things turned out as we had expected. Business boomed at the theater. I got a good story, and some few kind words from my city editor. Then—the explosion came. I got a letter from Jennie Brice saying she was going away, and that we need not try to find her. I went to Horner, but I had lost track of her completely. Even then, we did not believe things so bad as they turned out to be. We thought she was giving us a bad time, but that she would show up.

"Ladley was in a blue funk for a time. Bronson and I went to him. We told him how the thing had slipped up. We didn't want to go to the police and confess if we could help it. Finally he agreed to stick it out until she was found, at $100 a week. It took all we could beg, borrow and steal. But now—we have to come out with the story anyhow."

"She is hiding so he will go to the gallows."

Mr. Holcombe sat up and closed his notebook with a snap. "I'm not so sure of that," he said impressively. "I wonder if you realize, young man, that, having provided a perfect defense for this man Ladley, you provided him with every possible inducement to make away with his wife. Secure in your coming forward at the last minute and confessing the hoax to save him, was there anything he might not have dared with impunity?"

"But I tell you I took Jennie Brice out of town on Monday morning."

"Did you?" asked Holcombe sternly.

But at that, the schoolteacher, having come home and found old Isaac sound asleep in her cozy corner, set up such a screaming for the police that our meeting broke up. Nor would Mr. Holcombe explain any further.

By Alice Gibson

There are a number of new fabrics that will be much favored for one-piece dresses this spring. Stripes, checks, and soft Scotch plaids are among the most popular; there are some plain colors also that are very pleasing.

No. 7866 is a design that is especially suited to a check or plaid as it is so straight and simple of line. If a plain material like serge, ratine or duvetyn were used trimming bands of plaid or Roman striped silk would be effective. This design would make up well in one of the new taffetas or in a ripple silk which is also new.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34 to 44.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state right size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

CONTRACTS AWARDED FOR OIL AND TARVIA

City Council Also Decides to Buy Machinery for Street Work.

Sixteen bids in all were received at the April meeting of the Common Council, last night, for furnishing various road preparations, including tarvia, oil and patent sand and oil sprinklers, in response to an advertisement seeking such offers. Resolutions offered by Councilman Francis J. Blatz, chairman of the street committee, which were adopted, accepted the bid of Barrett & Co., of New York, represented by former Councilman Charles C. Randolph, for furnishing tarvia at 5½ cents a gallon; the United States Improvement Company, of Philadelphia, for furnishing another quality of the same material for 6 1-10 cents a gallon.

Charles Foss & Co., of New York, was awarded the contract for furnishing two sand spreaders at $350 each and the Good Roads Manufacturing Company was awarded the contract for furnishing a tar spreader. The Weldon Contracting Company put in the best bid for street work, offering to resurface for 29 cents a square yard, which includes three inches of loose stone, rolled with a binder.

The price for filling holes and depressions is $1.70 a ton and placing, and the price for rebuilding streets is the cost of labor plus 15 per cent. As to the latter work no definite action was taken. It is the purpose of the committee to examine further into this matter.

BIBLE SCHOOL OFFICERS ARE TO BE INSTALLED

The service tomorrow evening at the First Baptist church will be one of unusual interest and earnestness, unique also in many respects, being the first service of its kind the church has ever held, namely, an installation service for the newly elected and appointed officers of the Bible school. A simple but appropriate program will be rendered and features of special attractiveness introduced. Those who have recently been elected or appointed officers of the school are asked to meet in the Chapman Bible classroom promptly at 8 o'clock for a preliminary meeting of conference and prayer with the pastor, afterward to occupy seats together in the main prayer-room.

Preceding the regular prayer service at 7:30, will be a very important meeting to confer with those who last Sunday expressed a desire to lead a Christian life. Several scores of pupils, younger and older, connected with the Bible school arose in response to the invitation extended to accept Christ as their Savior and have indicated their desire to live a Christian life. The pastor and others will talk with these tomorrow evening in this preliminary service at 7:30. Any others who would like to confer with the pastor in reference to church membership are also asked to be present at this time.

SPECIAL LENTEN SERVICES AT CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH

The special Lenten services being held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock afternoons of this week, are affording to the people of this city an opportunity to hear a number of distinguished preachers of New York and vicinity. At the service yesterday afternoon, Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, one of the leaders of the National Congregational body, and pastor of the Clinton Avenue church, Brooklyn, preached a masterful sermon.

Rev. Dr. G. A. Johnston Ross, formerly of Cambridge, England, the speaker of this afternoon, made a deep impression at the University City and is well known on both sides of the Atlantic as a powerful preacher. Dr. Ross occupied several New York pulpits before he was finally induced to remain on this side and accept a professorship at Union Theological Seminary.

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose, equipped to meet every emergency, to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent, unaffected by the hazards of human life.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Adv.

TWO SESSION PLAN IS ADOPTED

Dunellen Board of Education Revises Schedule Owing to Improvements.

OBJECTIONS OFFERED

Superintendent Instructed to Arrange for One Session—Advisability of Changing Heating System Considered, but No Action Taken.

The April meeting of the Dunellen Board of Education was held last night, when a number of matters of interest were considered. Superintendent Rentschler in his monthly report recommended that in order to meet the emergency arising from the work of remodeling the Lincoln School, which will be started immediately, by the sub-contracting mason, Firman H. Gise, that the following changes be made beginning Monday, April 13, namely that the fourth grade of the Lincoln School use the fifth grade room at the Whittier School in connection with that grade, upon the following schedule:

8:30-10:30, fifth grade, 10:30-12:30 p. m., fourth grade; 12:30-2:30, fifth grade; 2:30-4:30, fourth grade; that the second grade of the Lincoln School use the same room as the reception and first grades of the Whittier School as per the following schedule: 8:30-10:30, reception and first grade; 10:30-12:30 p. m., second grade; 12:30-2:30, reception and first grade; 2:30-4:30, second grade; that the third grade of the Lincoln School use the room of the second and third grades of the Whittier School as per the following schedule: 8:30-10:30, second and third grades; 10:30-12:30, third grade; 12:30-2:30, second and third grades; 2:30-4:30, third grade.

The recommendation of Superintendent Rentschler, which was adopted, means that all the grades of the Lincoln School will be transferred on the resumption of school, Monday morning, from the Lincoln to the Whittier School with the exception of the reception and first grades.

There was considerable discussion before the recommendation was finally put to a vote as A. J. Hamley was strongly opposed to the two-session features of the plan upon the ground that it compelled the little children from the north side of the borough to cross and recross the railroad tracks four distinct times. Mr. Hamley favored one four-hour session.

As the pupils had been informed of the change prior to their Easter vacation the majority of the Board took the stand that another change at this late hour would result in a mixup. A motion was made, however, and carried that the superintendent's attention be called to the advisability of working out a one-session schedule in order to obviate the necessity of the little children crossing and recrossing the tracks so often.

The Board was engaged until a late hour in discussing the advisability of changing the specified heating and ventilating system as recommended by Architect Pierson to the Monarch system at an increased cost of $900. The members of the board who were inclined toward the change were of the opinion that the Monarch system was positive of results. The discussion finally ended without a vote being taken upon the question, the board deciding to visit a school in Bound Brook, where the system as recommended is installed. They will visit the school Saturday afternoon.

KING-RYMAN NUPTIALS.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Helen Louise Ryman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Sturdevant Ryman, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., to Charles Arthur King, of Watchung avenue, this city. The ceremony will be performed in the First Presbyterian church, Wilkesbarre, on Saturday night, April 25, at 7:30.

FLOWER GUILD MEETING.

WHERRY ARRAIGNED ON DOUBLE CHARGE

Held in $1,000 Bail to Await the Action of the Grand Jury in Newark Court.

James M. Wherry, of 25 Vine street, North Plainfield, who was arrested in Newark, Monday night, after his machine had run over and killed Herman Bertsch, of 492 Delavan aavenue, Newark, was arraigned in the First Precinct Police Court, yesterday, and held under bonds of $1,000 to await the action of the Grand Jury. Wherry is charged with manslaughter and with driving a car without a license, as was disclosed following his arrest. He is a demonstrator for the Cadillac Motor Company, of Newark, and was taking a car to a purchaser in Montclair when he struck Bertsch, who was alighting from a trolley car on Bloomfield avenue.

He was arraigned before Judge Yull in Newark, yesterday, when a charge was preferred by Captain William A. Carroll. He was originally held without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury and turned over to Detective Walter Godfrey, of the prosecutor's office. Later the $1,000 bail agreement was reached. Bonds were furnished by Clarence C. Fisher, of 550 Highland avenue, Newark, a distributing agent for the Cadillac company.

DROP CITY HALL PROJECT THIS YEAR

Special Council Committee Reports Adversely on the Proposed Plan.

The special committee from the Common Council, of which Councilman Richard A. Claybrook was chairman, appointed for the purpose of considering the advisability of purchasing a tract of land and erecting a city hall, reported adversely on the subject, at the April meeting of the Council, Monday night. That the committee would reach such a decision was previously stated in the Daily Press. The committee comprised beside Mr. Claybrook, Juan A. Babcock, C. C. Graves and Theodore A. Martin. Mr. Claybrook presented the following report for the committee:

"In compliance with the resolution of the Common Council adopted January 26, 1914, in reference to building a new City Hall, your committee begs leave to report as follows: After a full investigation we find that a city building such as we would require for many years to come, could be erected, furnished completely and maintained at a cost to the taxpayer of a 2½ point raise in the tax rate on our present ratables for a period of twenty years, or in other words, at a cost to the taxpayer of twenty-five (25) cents per thousand (1000) on assessed values, for each year for twenty years, at the end of which time the building, etc., would be owned by the city free of debt.

"In the judgment of your committee a municipal building is much needed both from a business and economic standpoint, but owing to the many other pressing needs upon our finances at the present time, we deem it wise to defer action for the present. We, however, desire to recommend to your honorable body that this matter be taken up and pushed through as soon as conditions will justify."

WARREN TOWNSHIP MAY BUY ROLLER AND CRUSHER

The advisability of buying a combined road roller and crusher was discussed by the Warren Township Committee, yesterday afternoon. A representative of the Climax Engine and Crusher Company offered to sell the committee one for $4,275, exactly the same as the State is using in Sussex county. The members of the committee, John Gunton, George Friday and John Cooper, will go to Sussex tomorrow to see them working and if they decide Warren should have one, will call a citizens' meeting at Mount Bethel next Tuesday afternoon.

The Climax engine offered is 35 horse power and beside rolling down the road, carries its own portable crusher with a daily capacity of 100 to 125 tons per day. It also has a 30 ton storage bin.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 59 degrees; 11 a. m., 65 degrees; 1 p. m., 68 degrees.

APPEAL TO STATE UTILITY BOARD

South Plainfielders Tell Board of Trade About Effort to Secure Trolley Line.

CONSOLIDATION TALKS

Mayor Clark, of Borough; William L. Saunders and Others Discuss Matter, and Unanimous Sentiment Is Expressed in Favor of More.

Although Senator Carlton B. Pierce, who was to have explained the new bank tax law, was unable to be present at last night's well attended session of the Board of Trade, that body had a busy meeting and much was accomplished. The extension of the trolley to South Plainfield and the question of consolidation of city and borough were the topics discussed, and many interesting facts regarding both were brought to light, the principle one being that the Public Utility Commission is considering the trolley question, and has set a hearing for April 30 in the matter.

President Jeffery briefly reviewed the work of the executive committee for the past month. Senator Pierce's letter of regret was read and then twelve new members were elected into the organization, as follows: Samuel Townsend, A. D. Edgar, Charles A. Higgins, Morris Latzko, John Pedeflous, Robert Hyman, P. Saklatava, C. T. Elliott, Seymour Perkins, Richard A. Claybrook, Dr. F. F. Wilcox and Morris C. VanArsdale.

Justice of the Pease W. E. Smith headed a committee of the South Plainfield Board of Trade, and it was he who told of the new developments regarding the trolley, which that lively little civic body have brought about. He said that the committee came to urge the co-operation of the Plainfield Board of Trade in this matter which is all important to the South Plainfielders. He told how it has been taken to the Public Utility Commission, and the Public Service Corporation has made answer to the claims of those who want the extension. Five reasons are given by the corporation why the service will not be granted, as follows: First, no franchise for the road; second, it would cost $101,700 to build the line; third, South Plainfield was claimed to be but a small collection of houses surrounding the railroad station; fourth, the route was so sparsely settled that little or no business could be secured along the line, and fifth, that it would not pay to build the line.

Justice Smith said that there was plenty of traffic, and that the contention of the municipalities affected was that their claims were based on substantial grounds, and he urged that there be a large attendance at the hearing at Newark on April 30, when the matter will be presented by both sides before the Utility Commisssion. A. E. Force, chairman of the trolley extension committee of the local board, reported the result of his efforts to get the officials to extend the line, telling how President McCarter went over the proposed routes with the committee, and said that conditions were such that the extension could not be financed now.

Dr. William L. Saunders said that the trolley committee should be instructed to continue urging upon the company the necessity for the road, and told that if they do not get busy themselves the Plainfield people will get together and build the line. "Don't lie down because the corporation talks about hard times. I think that we should notify the Public Service Corporation and the Public Utility Commission of this meeting, and propose the following resolution to be passed and sent to both: Resolved, that the Public Service Corporation owes it to the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield to connect them with South Plainfield.'"

Former Judge William Newcorn said that not only should the resolution be passed, but that the Plainfield people should send a big crowd to the meeting, and after Mr. Saunders' resolution had been passed, another by J. Henry Crane was put through calling upon the trolley committee and such members as may wish to attend, to go to the Newark gathering.

J. V. E. Vanderhoef and Andrew E. Kenney, of the North Plainfield Board of Health, told about the excellent health conditions in the borough, which were described in last night's Daily Press, and Herman Schwed reported for the dinner committee that the annual banquet had been a success, and that a balance of $37.01 was left after all bills had been paid.

When President Jeffery called on Mayor Clark, of the borough, the latter was cordially received. He said that he is more heartily in favor of uniting the city and borough than ever, and that it had been a grievous

CLAIMS FOUR HOBOES LOCKED HIM IN CAR

Raymond Rockfellow Arrested in Brunswick, Md., Charged With Vagrancy.

William Rockefellow, the fourteen-year-old boy who was arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court two weeks ago, charged with being incorrigible, by his parents was arrested by the police of Brunswick, Md., last night. He has been out on probation since his arraignment in the local court and reported as usual last Saturday morning.

In a story to the police of Brunswick he claimed that four men had forced him into a box car at the Plainfield freight station and would not let him go until the train reached Brunswick, where he was arrested, charged with vagrancy. When taken into custody, he gave his name as LeRoy Rockefellow and finally admitted that he lived in Plainfield. Police Chief Kiely was notified by telegraph and he in turn informed the boys' parents, who live on Prescott place. The father went to Maryland this morning for his son.

The boy cannot be controlled in his home, according to the parents, and is addicted to freight car riding. His father claims that the boy remains away from home for days at a time and his mother is in a state of nervous collapse as the result of her son's waywardness.

T., and other local Masonic bodies with which Mr. Price was connected.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, was in charge of the service, while the officers of Trinity Commandery conducted a Masonic ritualistic service which was very impressive. There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends, including associates in the office of Daniel G. Reid, New York, for whom Mr. Price was private secretary for twelve years.

FILES ANSWER IN DIVORCE SUIT

Mrs. Natalie Wildey Farlee Denies Absolutely Husband's Charge.

SEEK CHILD'S CUSTODY

Complainant Accuses Wife of Unfaithfulness and Names Plainfield Man as Co-respondent—Couple Married Here June 30, 1909.

Trenton, April 8.—Mrs. Natalie Wildey Farlee, of 1003 Park avenue, Plainfield, has filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton her answer to the suit for divorce started against her by her husband, Hart Scudder Farlee, of Fanwood township, formerly of this city. Farlee charged his wife with unfaithfulness to her marriage vows, and named Austin W. Andrews as the co-respondent. Besides asking for a divorce he petitioned the court to give him the custody of their daughter, Natalie Potter Farlee, who is two years old. He claimed that his wife was not a fit person to rear the child.

Mrs. Farlee denies absolutely the charge made by her husband and asserts that she has always been faithful to him. She also denied his charge as to her unfitness to care for the child. She asks that the suit be dismissed and that she be allowed to retain the custody of the girl. The Farlees were married June 30, 1909, in Plainfield.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Farlee were prominent here in the younger social set, being members of the Plainfield Country Club and other social organizations. Mrs. Farelee was widely-known as an expert tennis player, having taken part with her sisters in a number of the big tournaments throughout the country.

Mr. Farlee was, while a resident of the city, a member of the Watchung Hunt Club, and frequently followed the hounds in the weekly runs of that organization. Since being separated from his wife, he has been making his home in New York, while Mrs. Farlee has continued to reside in Plainfield.

AN EVENING WITH THE STARS IN FREE LECTURE COURSE

The next entertainment in the free public lecture course in the Washington School will be on Thursday evening, April 9, by R. R. Baumgardt, of California, who will present "An Evening With the Stars." All illustrations are from celestial negatives taken with the latest giant telescopes.

It is a valuable and instructive lecture on celestial photography, presenting the mysterious drama of the heavens in a way that can be followed and understood even by a child, and yet each statement is scientifically correct. A most profitable hour will be given to those who attend the lecture.

The Washington Star says of Mr. Baumgardt: "It would seem a difficult task to create a new impression in the lecture field. Yet this is precisely what B. R. Baumgardt does by adding to the elements of instruction and entertainment the charm of poetic interpretation. His enthusiasm is contagious, his personality peculiarly attractive, and his delivery modulated to a nicety, which shows him to be the possessor of histrionic abilities as well as a man of rarest intellectual attainments."

LOCAL CHURCHES INVITED TO "THREE HOURS SERVICE"

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, has extended a special invitation to all members of other congregations in Plainfield to join with the congregation of Grace in the observance of Good Friday, if loyalty to their own church does not conflict. The "Three Hours' Service" has been particularly mentioned as suitable for the attendance of business men and others.

This service begins at 12 o'clock and ends promptly at 3 o'clock. Those who cannot attend the whole service, may come in or go out at any period. The service is simple and consists of short addresses on the words of our Lord from the cross. After each address a hymn is sung and a short prayer is said.

Rev. Dr. Carstensen, of New York, is to give the addresses. This is a most suitable opportunity for Christians to gather about the uplifted cross of the common Savior, and the rector of Grace church hopes that he may have the privilege of the association of others outside his regular congregation.

PLANS PROGRESSING FOR HOSPITAL DANCE

Second Event of Season by Women's Auxiliary Will Be Held April 24.

Of all the various events planned to take place after Easter, the dance to be given by the Woman's Auxiliary of Muhlenberg Hospital, promises to be one of the largest and most successful. The members of the auxiliary are bending every effort to make it an occasion of interest to the public as a whole, and are appealing to all to support their work. During the last few days attractive cards advertising the affair, with unique drawings, prepared especially for the purpose, have been place in shop windows about town, and have caused favorable comment.

The dance will be held Friday, April 24, at Columbus Hall, where earlier in the winter one was so successfully given under the same auspices. The public is urged to attend, and the committee wish to emphasize the fact that the dance is not a so-called society affair, but has been arranged so that all can participate in helping the work at the hospital. The music will be provided by Muller's orchestra, one of the most popular that comes to Plainfield, and a feature of the evening will be specialty dancing. The hours are from 8:30 to 1:30 and refreshments will be served, but these will not be included in the price of the admission ticket.

STATE OFFICE TO BE LOCATED HERE

Woman Suffrage Headquarters to be Transferred From Newark.

The executive office of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association will be transferred on May 1 from Newark to this city, so that the State work may be under the direct personal supervision of the president, Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, whose home is just outside the city, and also because of the rapid growth of woman suffrage.

The increasing interest which is being manifested in the subject in every city and town of the State makes it necessary to open various city headquarters, which are supported and controlled by the local suffrage leagues. There is, therefore no longer necessity for the State association to do local propaganda work in addition to its special work of organizing the still unorganized towns of the State, issuing regular press bulletins, running a speakers' bureau and exercising a general supervision of the work throughout the State.

No doubt within a short time the Newark leagues will open a city headquarters to take the place in local work of the rooms now occupied by the State association at 33 Halsey street. The New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association expects to maintain temporary headquarters at various places from time to time when they are specially needed—at the seashore during the summer, in Trenton while the Legislature is in session there.

WALPOLE OUT ON BONDS OF $1,000

Bail Furnished by William Stanbery Following Arraignment in Court.

CONFESSION OF GIRL

Ruth Naylor Corroborates the Statements Made by Prisoner Following His Arrest—Had Been Working in Brroklyn.

Charged with a serious offense, Lynus Walpole, Jr., was arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza, in the city court this morning, and held in bonds of $1,000 to await the action of the Grand Jury. William Stanbery, of Scotch Plains, furnished the necessary bail and the prisoner was released soon afterward. Walpole was represented in court by John P. Owens who entered a plea of not guilty for his client and waived examination.

As told exclusively in this paper yesterday afternoon, Ruth Naylor, the central figure in the case, was located yesterday after a search in Brooklyn by Chief of Police Kiely and was brought to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Naylor, of 322 Lee place, last night. She was located in the home of Mrs. Jennie Walley, of 770 Franklin avenue, Brooklyn, where she was employed as a domestic. The latter had taken a keen interest in the girl and until Chief Kiely called at the home yesterday suspected nothing of her connection with the escapade that has been depicted vividly in the metropolitan newspapers. She was brought to her home in this city in a state of nervous collapse and was in no condition to make a statement to the police last night.

She was brought to police headquarters this morning by her father and in a signed confession corroborated the admissions made by Walpole following his apprehension. The girl said that she had met the accused at Front and Somerset streets at noon, Thursday, and went with him via the Main Line trolley to Westfield At that point, according to the two confessions, the couple boarded a New Jersey Central train for New York. They visited a New York hotel and returned to Westfield shortly after 8 o'clock Thursday night. Ruth said that Walpole left her in that town at 9 o'clock the same night, giving her a quarter and telling her to go to her home in this city.

Although she left her companion with the understanding that she was to take the next trolley back to Plainfield, fear suddenly took possession of her and she was afraid to carry out her plan. Instead she concluded to run away to New York and look for work. She went to the New York restaurant and was referred to the Brooklyn Y. W. C. A. authorities to whom she applied for employment Friday. She was placed in the home of Mrs. Walley, who is a widow, and worked at that place until taken into custody by Chief Kiely yesterday.

Thomas Copenhaven, who is alleged to have some connection with the case, is still a prisoner in the Tombs in New York city awaiting extradition to this State. If Miss Naylor's confession exonerates Copenhaven from all blame he will probably be released when brought here.

Walpole was arrested Sunday night by the local authorities and was a prisoner in police headquarters until today. He made a statement similar to the one taken from Miss Naylor, this morning. Leaving the jail the accused was met by seven friends in an automobile who took him to his home. When seen by a Daily Press reporter following his release Walpole appeared to be encouraged by the turn matters had taken.

He was highly incensed at a story published in another local paper to the effect that he had a police record and was interested in a gambling joint just outside of Dunellen. He further stated that he never had the $1,000 mentioned in the story and classed the revelations as a "pipe-dream."

The bearers were William Mernagh, Jr., Dennis O'Sullivan, Florence O'Sullivan and Charles Wicht. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

TO FACE MURDER CHARGE.

Kansas City, Mo., April 8.—The case of Dr. W. T. Elam, under indictment for first degree murder, will be called in court today and it is expected the trial will proceed within a few days. The crime of which Dr. Elam is accused was one of the most sensational enacted in this city in several years. On November 18 last he is alleged to have shot and killed William Putnam Cramer, whom the physician accused of intimacy with his wife. The killing occurred in a room in a local hotel where the two men had met to talk the matter over. Dr. Elam had previously prepared a list of questions which he intended to propound to Cramer. The latter was accompanied to the hotel by his attorney and Dr. Elam was attended by a private detective whom he had desired to shadow Cramer and Mrs. Elam. At the time of the conference, however, the two principals were alone in the room and there were no witnesses to the tragedy. Following a single shot from a revolver Dr. Elam came out of the room and is alleged to have declared that he had killed the destroyer of his home. Later, however, he stated that the shooting was an accident and that he did not know how it had occurred. The victim of the shooting died almost instantly. Dr. Elam is a resident of St. Louis and for many years has occupied a high place in the medical profession. Cramer, the victim of the tragedy, was an advertising solicitor for a well known magazine and lived with his wife in Chicago. After the killing Mrs. Elam went to Detroit to reside with her mother.

BAN "MODERN" DANCES IN PASSAIC SCHOOLS

Edwin Flower, president of Passaic's Board of Education, fears the worst about the tango and the hesitation waltz. He has ordered that no "modern" dances be permitted in the social centre assemblies in the public school buildings until he has had opportunity to investigate and form his own conclusions.

Harold Welles Turner wrote to Mr. Flower that these dances are immoral and improper. Mrs. I. Waters Sylvester, chairman of the Social Centre Committee, and the only woman members of the Passaic Board of Education, informed Mr. Flower that the tango and the hesitation are beautiful, graceful and healthful. Thomas I. Goodlatte, another member of the board, announced his loyalty to the tango and declares it would be pretty mean to keep the poor boys and girls from enjoying it in the school social centres while others were dancing it every night up on the "Hill," Passaic's fashionable residence section.

GOETHALS, CANAL GOVERNOR.

His Previous Experience Peculiarly Fits Him For This Position.

The selection of Colonel George W. Goethals, engineer in chief of the Panama canal, to be the first governor of the canal zone is a peculiarly fitting one. The present form of government of the zone by executive order is to be changed to a civil one on April 1 next. This is in accordance with an act of congress. The appointment of Colonel Goethals is for four years at a salary of $10,000 a year. When informed of his appointment Colonel Goethals expressed gratification at the honor conferred upon him and said that there would be no delay in the reorganization of the canal force.

Secretary of War Garrison has announced that Colonel Goethals has signified his intention of accepting the governorship. He intimated that Colonel Goethals' acceptance was unqualified.

© by American Press Association.

COLONEL GEORGE W. GOETHALS.

"I am not able to give out the terms of Colonel Goethals' acceptance at the present time," said the secretary, "but it was whole and complete."

As chairman of the Isthmian canal commission, Colonel Goethals now is paid $15,000 a year. A bill has been introduced in congress to amend the law to make the salary of the governor $15,000 as long as Colonel Goethals holds the office.

The powers of the governor for the operation of the canal and the administration of the zone are very great. They could be intrusted to no man more worthy to exercise them. The great work that Colonel Goethals has achieved on the isthmus—for it is now so near to achievement that it can be spoken of as a completed work—is hardly more extraordinary than the organization by which it has been carried on, and of that organization Colonel Goethals has been the head and directing mind. His ability has been demonstrated under the severest tests. No man knows so much about the canal as he; no other man could be so well fitted as he to control its operation.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The Mozart Music Co., music publishers and producers claim that popular priced musical comedy will pay, and to prove what they say is true, they have selected Matthew Ott's two-act farce with music entitled "The Movie Girl," and mounted it with special scenery, handsome costumes, funny comedians and pretty girls, all headed by that popular German comedian, Harry Billy Carlton, who will all appear at the Plainfield theatre, Monday afternoon and night, and offer a dollar show at popular prices. In other cities where "The Movie Girl" has appeared it has met with great success and so far has proven that popular priced musical comedy is the biggest kind of success. Special scenery is carried for both acts, handsome costumes will be worn by the principals and the chorus during the action of the play and the rendering of eighteen catchy song numbers.

NINE SCARLET FEVER CASES DURING MARCH

Plainfield Has Had a Total of 39 Communicable Diseases Reported.

Nine cases of scarlet fever have been under quarantine during March according to the monthly reports submitted by Health Officer Randolph Chandler at the regular monthly meeting of that body held last night. One of the cases was contracted out of town. At the present time there are three patients ill with the disease in Muhlenberg Hospital and three houses are under quarantine. One of the typhoid fever patients has completely recovered and the source of infection in either instance has not been ascertained. There has been a total of thirty-nine communicable diseases here in March.

During the month the health department has disinfected one hundred rooms in thirty houses and examination was made of thirty-five cultures. A sample of the public water supply was analyzed at the laboratory of hygiene during the month and it was found to be maintaining the usual high quality. During March five hundred and thirty-one inspections were made and one hundred and three returns made to the health office.

AN OLD, OLD TOPIC.

Municipal collection of garbage and ashes has become a hackneyed topic in Plainfield. It has been talked about so much, been requested so many times by the Board of Health, and with equal emphasis turned down year after year by the City Council, because of the fear that it will be expensive to the taxpayers, that the thousands of residents who wish to see a system established here are getting discouraged. In the mean time we read of the splendid plans being put into use in other places, and think, almost with shame, of the decrepit and unsatisfactory method in vogue here. The time will come, however, when the municipalities will not only find methods to reduce the cost, but will make the disposal work pay the cost, as is said to be the case already in many European municipalities. Chicago bids fair to offer this country the best example in scientific and economical garbage collection and disposal, and as is so often the case, the women are responsible for the advanced steps made in that progressive city.

After a three years' campaign of education by its Woman's Civic Club to create in the people a desire and demand for the best garbage system obtainable, Chicago has purchased a private reduction plant to save itself from the exorbitant charge made by its operators who held the city's contract. Now the Civic Club, thus far unusually successful in its battle for better city housekeeping, has supplied the city with figures to show that scientific municipal garbage collection and disposal can be made self-supporting if not to pay a profit. The plans, while not worked out completely, include collection of all waste not only from residences but from stores and hotels, taking the department out of the hands of politicians and putting at its head a sanitary engineer, and putting expert business methods in control.

Having been granted the ballot, the demands of the women that the city buy the private reduction plant were taken seriously and their further recommendations promise to also be put in practice. When they are, other American cities will be given a practical working type here at home to follow without going to Europe for inspiration and ideas. Finding its way into actual operation within our nation, better garbage systems, made self-supporting, must naturally spread over the country.

Chicago has taken the initiative for the main reason that its conditions were so bad. It was shown that it paid $380 per ton for rendering its garbage while New York paid $1.47 and Washington $1.41, and it paid $47,500 a year to the private company for services that Cleveland and several other cities received for nothing. Even these figures failed to arouse action until the Woman's Civic Club put the question squarely before the city officials, who then created a city waste commission, naming two leading club women to its membership. Rather than renew its bad bargain with the private reducers or pay an exorbitant price for its plant, it dumped its garbage in dumping grounds until it could condemn the plant and secure it at a reasonable figure. Chicago's experience is typical of most American communities. Its plans are still in the preliminary stage but its women have been laboring with one end in view. The people have been thoroughly aroused by lectures, stereoptican pictures and printed circulars. Such a campaign can be waged in every city and Chicago is demonstrating that it is well worth while.

The management of the Queen City Hotel requested the City Council on Monday night to change the liquor license ordinance so that the hotel can serve patrons in its dining room with liquors until 11:30 at night, instead of 11 o'clock. In return for the privilege of keeping open half an hour longer, it was voluntarily offered to remain closed one hour later in the morning. In this instance, the request seems like a reasonable one, in view of the fact that the restaurant is open every night after the performance at the theatre, and many patrons desire to have refreshments which are banned after the hotel closes. Plainfield has always taken great pride in the manner in which the licensed places in the city have been conducted. The hotel men have acquiesced in all suggestions made to them by the police authorities, so far as closing on holidays is concerned and in other ways, and when they present a request such as that made by Mr. Floersch the matter should be given every consideration. While we would oppose anything which might break down the established regulation of the liquor traffic in this city, it would seem that the request now made of the City Council is a fair one.

The finding of the committee appointed by Andrew E. Kenney, president of the North Plainfield Board of Health to investigate the conditions that exist in the borough, reflects credit on the work of Health Inspector James L. Oliff. "Clean-up day," a feature in health department work in many communities, is unnecessary in North Plainfield, according to the committee, for so thorough has the routine of inspection been carried out that only two instances came to the attention of the investigators where premises were not kept as the law requires. The expense of conducting this all-important branch of community work has been cut down to a minimum and but $1,000 is set aside for the operation of the borough Board of Health each year. With this sum the authorities have maintained a superior degree of sanitation which might well be copied by officials in towns many times North Plainfield's size. The casual observer is forced to note the cleanliness of back yards, the absence of litter of ever variety in public thoroughfares and above all the conditions along the banks of Green brook, on the borough side.

APPEAL TO STATE BOARD

mistake not to have consolidated in 1902 when the matter was last up, as he felt sure that North Plainfield would have grown much faster if sewers had been installed long ago. Consolidation would do away with an extra set of officers and mean a vast saving in expense, school conditions would be improved, because the North Plainfield pupils would then go to the city High School, and it would obviate the necessity of building any more school buildings in the borough for some years to come.

The Mayor told of the commercial aspect of the present situation, and showed how property values on Somerset street, the business street of the borough, had decreased, while on Front street in the city the valuation has steadily increased. At present the Somerset street business section valuation is $72,000 and that on Front street $1,750,000. North Plainfield contributes to all the Plainfield charities; it uses the city hospital, library, banks and Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations, and the municipalities are in reality one in every way except in government. "I believe that we should bring about consolidation first," said the Mayor, "and after that is done there would so soon be brought about a public clamor for annexation to Union county, that this could be accomplished too." The remarks of the borough executive were received with great applause.

Dr. Sounders paid a high tribute to Mayor Clark as an efficient executive, and said that after the hearing the report as to health conditions in the borough, he had come to the conclusion that a well-known jingle fits the executive. "He walks the streets with his renown, the spotless Mayor of spotless town." He then made humorous and interesting remarks about the need of annexation, saying that the absorbing action of the city on the borough at the present time makes the smaller municipality go backward. He showed how nature in the form of mountain and lowland really prevented the borough from growing except as a place for homes, and called attention to the fact that in fifteen years not a house valued at $10,000 or more had been built "over the brook," finally offering a resolution urging early consolidation, which was unanimously passed.

The question of trying to bring about some method of compelling the Public Service Corporation to provide emergency light and power service, or to bury the wires underground from the plants now furnishing the power to the city, was brought up, and several spoke of the need of some such service, as was proven during the recent storm. It was finally decided to let the matter go over to the next meeting of the Board of Trade.

After the meeting the large gathering present enjoyed a social hour, in which refreshments and cigars were served under the direction of J. V. E. Vanderhoef, chairman of the entertainment committee.

STRAY TOPICS FROM OLD NEW YORK

New York, April 8—Arrangements are being made for an elaborate celebration to be held here this month in honor of Shakespeare's birth. The celebration will be under the auspices of the Shakespeare Club, of New York city, in co-operation with the American Playgoers, the Board of Education and the Brooklyn Institue of Art and Science. The plans call for a big outdoor observance in Central Park, a dramatic pageant and literary exercises of various sorts.

The American Bible Society has just made a unique shipment of a thousand Bibles, printed in the Gilbert Islands language, to Micronesia, a group of islands situated about 5,000 miles southwest of San Francisco. The Bibles were soldered up in tin packages of twenty and put in fifty stout wooden boxes for their covers. The Bibles will be distributed principally from Ocean Island, which is a mere speck of land but a point of call for many ships because of the wealth of its phosphate deposits.

Richard A. Canfield has sold his famous collection of Whistler pictures, valued at several hundred thousand dollars. A few years ago, it will be remembered, Mr. Canfield was known as the greatest gambler in the world. But when District Attorney Jerome put the lid on gambling in New York eight years ago Mr. Canfield was forced to retire. It was generally believed at that time that he was a millionaire. His famous establishment next door to Delmonico's, and his equally famous gambling house, the Saratoga Club, near the Saratoga race course, for years were immensely profitable. Mr. Canfield hailed originally from Providence and got his first start in the gambling profession by catering to the sporting proclivities of the idle rich at Newport. When his establishments in New York and Saratoga were closed he took many of his valuable pictures to his old home in Providence.

Tango enthusiasts and the votaries of the night life along Broadway gasped with astonishment the other night when a band of Salvation lads and lassies invaded the floors of the Jardin de Paris and several other of the best known and most popular dance establishments and bade the trotters and tangoers pause and reflect that there was also a serious side of life. Contrary to their expectations the Salvationists were welcomed to all the places they visited. The adjutant in charge of the little band delivered a brief speech and his comrades sang "My Mother's Hand Upon My Brow" and other songs. The joyful crowds listened in silence to the songs and speeches, then applauded and offered contributions to the unusual visitors. The Salvationists declined to accept the money.

Count Michael Karolyi, president of the Hungarian Independent party, has arrived here on a mission that is exciting great interest in Hungarian political circles, for it is believed he will direct his efforts toward drawing Hungarians now in America into the home parliamentary campaign. He plans to visit Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Chicago and a number of other cities. The Count belongs to a family that has for ages taken a leading part in Hungarian affairs. The family is not altogether unknown in the United States, owing to the sojourn here a dozen years or so ago of Count George Karolyi. About the year 1900 this member of the family attracted attention by marrying a Hungarian actress after a precipitate flight across the Atlantic. The marriage ceremony was performed in the city hall in Boston and later there was a second ceremony in Oakland, Cal. The young Count and his actress wife spent three years in California, running a hotel in San Francisco, of which all the employes were broken down nobles, and possessed of perfectly authentic, and in some cases, historic titles. The enterprise, however, resulted in ultimate failure and the couple returned to Europe. Later the Countess obtained a divorce from her husband.

A wrecking crew is demolishing the old buildings of Washington Market and when it has finished its work there is to be built on the site one of the finest and most sanitary markets in the world. Feelings of sorrow and regret filled the breasts of the scores of butchers and produce merchants tenanting the market when they saw the pick and axe applied to the old buildings. Washington Market is more than one hundred years old and has been one of the few remaining landmarks in lower Manhattan. The market was completed in 1813. Those were war times, and the marketmen soon had an occasion to celebrate, when, on October 23, the city was illuminated in honor of Perry's victory on Lake Erie. All of the tenants of the market illuminated their stalls with a profusion of colored lights. A few years later the market was enlarged to two stories, having a cupola and a watch tower with a bell on top. This bell did service for many years in sounding alarms of fire. Many of the old-time butchers in the market were men of influence in the civic and financial life of the city.

WONDER WORKINGS OF RADIUM WATCHED BY MEDICAL WORLD

United States Has Now a Radium Institute.

Scientists Are Busy Conducting Novel Experiments.

RADIUM, radium—more radium! This is the latest cry of the surgeon, for the curative power of radium, especially for cancerous growths, is now exciting the medical world. But radium is extremely scarce and wonderfully valuable. Gold can scarcely be called a precious metal in comparison. Gold is worth but $20 an ounce, while a similar quantity of radium would command the vast sum of $4,000,000.

What is more, there is every probability of the price of radium rising higher if some of the beneficent work it has already done proves to be lasting. Reference is made to what it has accomplished so far in battling with sinister cancer and to what it has wrought toward a return to health in lesser maladies.

Radium fetches today at least $120,000 a gram, and the world over during the last year probably not more than a total of sixteen grams were extracted from the hundreds of tons of raw material worked for that purpose. Of this amount about three-fourths had its origin in the United States, and yet today relatively little of this new found curative agent is in the possession of American hospitals, physicians and laboratories. Foreigners draw the vast bulk of the mother substance from the mines in this country.

How to produce more radium is one of the burning questions of the day, and this country is particularly interested in conserving its resources in this direction and producing radium for home consumption. Secretary of the Interior Lane proposes to withdraw all lands of the public domain believed to contain radium that their precious deposits may be secured for the public good and not become the subject of private speculation.

He has urged the passage of a joint congressional resolution empowering the president to make the withdrawals. By the terms of the proposed resolution the secretary of the interior would be authorized "to conduct exporations and researches with a view to determining the practicability of developing from such ores a supply of radium and to provide for the mining and treatment of radium bearing ores in such manner as would best secure a supply of radium for the use of the government of the United States and the hospitals of this country."

MME. MARIE CURIE, DISCOVEROR OF RADIUM, IN HER LABORATORY.

Secretary Lane points out that there are only two grains of radium in the United States at present and says:

"Radium is found in ores carrying uranium and vanadium, which are used extensively in the arts, and processes by which it is extracted are secret. A process has been invented by the chemists in our bureau of mines which promises, from the laboratory experiments thus far made, to be successful. Under the endowment of two Americans, a building is now being erected in Denver (which, with its equipment, will be opened for work in the coming February), in which an effort will be made to prove the commercial possibility of this American process. If successful this process will be given to the world, and all of the radium secured over and above a small minimum will be the property of the United States and will be put into the hands of the United States public health service for public use.

"Under all these circumstances, it seems to me that the only prudent course that the United States can follow is to withdraw such of its lands as are supposed to contain radium from public entry. This will guard against these lands being taken up by those who would not put them to their highest and most beneficial use."

The building being erected in Denver referred to by Secretary Lane is that of the American National Radium institute, which has been incorporated and endowed by Dr. Howard Kelly of Baltimore and Dr. James Douglas of New York city, together with, as an incorporator and president, Dr. Charles L. Parsons of the United States bureau of mines and chief of the division of mineral technology. The institute is co-operating with the bureau of mines. It was Dr. Kelly who treated Representative Bremner of New Jersey. Dr. Kelly has expressed himself as not believing that radium will eradicate cancer, at least in the near future, but he is satisfied that it will be an excellent helpmate for surgery and that in some cases radium, as it is now applied, may suffice to bring about cures.

The American National Radium institute, if the hopes of its organizers be realized, will be richer in radium than any other institute of the sort. The Radium institute of Vienna owns about two and one-half grams of radium salts, obtained well nigh exclusively from the famous pitchblende of the mines at Joachimsthal. In Paris Mme. Curie's laboratory boasts something like one gram of radium, and this will be transferred to the new Radium institute, and the Radium institute in London has at its disposition somewhere between one and two grams of radium chloride. And yet wonders have been worked already with these extremely small quantities.

PIECES OF RADIUM BEARING ORE.

For instance, the London Radium institute treated during a period of nearly sixteen months a total of 619 patients. Out of these fifty-three were apparently cured, twenty-eight were declared cured and 245 were pronounced improved. There were, however, seventy sufferers not improved, eighty-eight abandoned the treatment, and fifty-five died. At the time of the report the remaining forty-one cases had been too recently treated for the announcement of definite results.

The patients were afflicted with a large number of diseases, but the majority of them were suffering from ulcers, tumors, cancers and other malignant maladies, and in the light of recent information it is probable that of the 245 "improved" many might have been classed among the "cured" or "apparently cured" had the resident physicians had at their disposition a larger quantity of radium.

It was Mme. Marie Curie who, in conjunction with her husband, Professor Curie, since dead, discovered radium in 1898. She is now at the head of the Radium institute at Paris.

The discovery of radium led to the finding of thirty-eight radio-active bodies. Some disappear so soon that they cannot be examined; others can last a billion years. In spite of all efforts, such as heating it to 1,500 degrees of warmth and cooling it to minus 180 degrees, Mme. Curie says she has not been able yet to break up radium into other component elements. She is still trying.

NEW RADIUM INSTITUTE AT PARIS.

The experiments of scientists with radium brings us to one of the most interesting aspects of the vital question of supply. The physicist knows that uranium, the parent of radium, disintegrates in 12,000,000,000 years and during this incomprehensible period of time produces, through various intermediate substances, the precious mineral we now seek. What the wizard of chemistry is now trying to do is to convert uranium into radium within an interval of only months! If he can do this—and there are experts that believe it possible—then, instead of having to wait for the ages to work this metamorphosis, man may transmute uranium into radium and produce in much larger quantities this marvelous healing agency.

APPLICATIONS MUST BE PLACED ON FILE

Final Preparations for Opening of S. S. League Season Friday Night.

Final preparations for the Sunday-school Baseball League season will be made at the meeting which will be held in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A., Friday night at 8 o'clock. Every representative is requested to be present and all Sunday-schools that wish to enter the league must hand in their application by that time. This is the latest date that any will be considered.

Many of the teams that were in the league last season have decided to take another chance at the cup and have entered. The champion First Baptist team will again be on the job in an effort to repeat its fine showing of last year. Efforts have been made to get one of the Sunday-school teams of Westfield to enter the league. However, that city always has a similar league and it is doubtful if the out of town ball tossers will compete. Trinity will take the place of the First Presbyterian team and the Park Avenue Baptist nine will play independent ball.

Many of the teams have already selected their field while other managers are still looking about. The schedule will be drawn up by the board of directors in the near future. No trophy has as yet been donated, but it is expected that one of the local merchants will offer one before the season starts.

BOUND BROOK TRACK MAN PICKED FOR RUTGERS TEAM

About forty candidates are working daily in Neilson Field, New Brunswick, in preparation for one of the hardest track seasons in the history of Rutgers College. Besides dual meets with Stevens, New York University, Lafayette and Swarthmore, there are the Middle States championships to be held in Lancaster, Pa., the Pennsylvania relays and the intercollegiates.

Prospects for a winning team are not exceptionally bright owing to the loss of men through graduation and scholastic deficiencies. Captain Earl Silvers, of Rahway, who was a sure point winner in the half and quarter mile runs, graduated in June. Slater, two miler, and Johnson, hurdler, were also lost by the same means. The absence of Talman, star weight man, will be severely felt, as he holds the college records in the discus and shot putting events.

William Bowles, of Elizabeth, is a veteran in the sprints and will probably take first in these events. He will have a good supporter in Mahlon Harker, of Denver, Col., who has won his varsity letter in track for the past two years. Charles Reed, of New Brunswick, will be the mainstay in the quarter mile, while Howard Huber, of Rahway, and Stanley North, of Pleasantville, are veterans at the half mile. Captain Arthur Mershon, of Rahway, who holds the college records in the mile and two mile, will take care of these events. His running mate will be George Wilkins, of Bound Brook.

In the field events Rutgers has George Segur, of Asbury Park, for the high jump, Calbell for the broad jump, Polensbee for the weights, and Schmidt for the pole vault. The first meet will be held on May 3d.

DREW EQUALS RECORD.

Los Angeles, April 8—Howard Drew, the phenomenal colored sprinter, equaled the world's record for fifty yards at the University of Southern California track carnival yesterday afternoon. Drew's time was 5 2-5 seconds. Bradley was second and Fitzsimmons third.

BATTIN HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS FORM BASEBALL TEAM

The Battin High School lassies met yesterday in the assembly rooms of the school and elected Miss Josephine Green captain, and Miss Margaret Ogden manager for the tennis and baseball teams. This is the first time at the hilltop that the fair sex has endeavored to organize both tennis and baseball teams.

Miss Ogden plans to arrange baseball dates with the State High Schools, which have girls' teams. Battin has some fine material, and a fast nine can easily be chosen. The candidates for the teams are the Misses Josephine Green, Ella Nelson, Margaret Ogden, Margaret Richart, Helen Lane, Edith Otto, Elsie Helich, Eleanore Jacobs, Lucile McCullough, Maude Stewart, Alice Stone, Celest Moore, Anna Mason, Ruth Calvert, Mildred Dederick, Geneva Winslow, Marion Walls and Gertrude Hopf.

BASEBALL NOTES

Since he joined the Cubs, Bill Sweeney, the former Boston Brave, has hit well over the .300 mark in the practice games.

The New York Giants will meet Jack Dunn's Orioles in Baltimore on April 13, the day the Federals will start the season in that city.

Johnny Evers, who takes Bill Sweeney's place at second base, will also assume Bill's former duties as captain of the Boston Braves.

It looks as though Manager "Bobbie" Robinson, of the Brooklyn Superbas, has found a regular pitcher in Atchinson, the former Newark twirler.

With Walsh, Chappell, Schalk and a few lesser lights on the hospital list it looks as though the White Sox may be up against it at the getaway.

Manager Callahan was somewhat disgruntled over the condition of Outfielder Ping Bodie, who reported to the White Sox some fifteen or twenty pounds overweight.

Washington scribes have already figured out how the Senatorial infield, composed of Gandil, Morgan, McBride and Foster, will rival the "peerless four" of the Athletics this season.

Rumor has it that the Western League is figuring on putting a team in Kansas City, the team to play on the American Association grounds while the A. A. team is on the road.

Manager Jennings has announced that Ty Cobb will be number 3 instead of number 4 in the Detroit batting order this season. Ty did his best work as number 3 man several years ago.

Ralph Capron, former University of Minnesota star and later a Pittsburgh Pirate, has reported to Jack Dunn's Baltimore Internationals. Dunn also has signed up his own son, Jack Dunn, Jr.

Zulu Zilz, not a Sandwich Islander, but a German, is trying out for the outfield with the Kalamazoo South Michigan League team. Zulu Zilz and Kalamazoo. There's some poetry in that combination.

It is said the Philadelphia Nationals recently turned down an offer of $6,000 cash for Outfielder Josh Devore. Josh must be improving, as the Phillies secured him last year from Cincinnati at the waiver price.

LAING TOOK THREE FROM RIVAL'S MEN

Low Scores Feature Elks' League Series Rolled Last Night.

Three in a row went to the Laing team in the Elks' Club bowling tournament, last night, Kiely's pinners falling victims to the prowess of quintet No. 5. Winning the first contest by 103 pins the Laing bowlers fell back a little in the second and just managed to take the verdict, having but thirteen of the wooden blocks to spare. Forty-two pins separated the rivals in the final match.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will you kindly tell me the value of the following coins. Three-cent piece dated 1865 and a one-cent piece dated 1837?—P. S. N.

Answer—Your first coin is worth twenty-five cents but the second one is not listed.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the premium on a half-dollar dated 1833 with a woman's head on one side, etc.?—M. O.

Answer—Your coin is worthy fifty cents.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Please answer the following questions: (1) What make baseball will be used by the Federal League? (2) Is there any way to tell "seconds" or last year's baseballs from regulation 1914 baseballs (before using them)? (3) Can a retail sporting dealer be made to redeem a Reach $1.25 baseball, the seams of which break in four innings and what should be done if he refuses to do so? And here's a scoring query: The batter hits a ball between the box and first base and both pitcher and first baseman start for it. The pitcher fields the ball in plenty of time to get the man at first but finds no one covering the bag and holds the ball, the runner reaching first safely. Does he get a hit? If the pitcher had made a perfect throw to first with no one covering the bag should the first baseman be given an error?—C. D. B.

Answer—(1) The Federal League clubs have not decided on an official ball. Some discussion has been prevalent regarding this matter but no definite conclusion has been reached as yet. (2) The only way we know of it to test it for "life" by bouncing on the sidewalk. Dealers are not supposed to carry stock over from one year to another and if you find a "dead" ball you should return it to the factory or manufacturer. (3) All Reach balls are sold under a guarantee and if the dealer refuses to redeem a ball send it to the manufacturer, A. J. Reach Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and action will be taken in the matter immediately. (4) This is an error of judgment on the part of the first baseman and should be listed as such. If the pitcher fielded the ball in plenty of time to catch the runner at the bag under ordinary conditions the batter should not be given a hit. The error for the first baseman will dispose of the matter.

WITH THE BOXERS

Jack Dillon and Pueblo Jim Flynn will clash in a return engagement at Indianapolis on May 30.

Joe Borrell, of Philadelphia, has signed to box Bandsman Blake, in London, the latter part of this month.

Bat Nelson must be in the pugilistic discard for fair. They don't even introduce the Battler at the boxing shows any longer.

After his bout with Tommy Murphy in San Francisco, this month, Champion Willie Ritchie will return to Milwaukee to prepare for the meeting with Charley White.

CRIER ANNOUNCES BASEBALL.

Baltimore, April 8—The ancient vocation of town crier, which went out of vogue here more than a century ago, has been revived with the opening of the baseball season and brought up to date. Lefty Shields, a husky young man with a deep baritone voice, will be seen throughout the summer in the business district of the city announcing time and scene of play of all important games. In fact, he is on the job now, and pedestrians are startled suddenly on the quiet business streets when they gaze on Lefty as he bellows through a gigantic megaphone.

SCHOOLBOYS ON 200 MILE HIKE.

Newark, April 8—A squad of track athletes at the Barringer High School are spending the week of vacation in hard training for the opening of the outdoor season. Their training consists of taking a cross-country hike from this city to the Delaware Water Gap and back, a distance of almost 200 miles. The boys are making stops on the way at the summer homes of team members. The track season opens on May 2, when the locals meet the Stevens Prep team in a dual meet.

SECOND GAME FOR N. P. H. S.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team will get into action again tomorrow afternoon when they will journey to New Brunswick and meet the High School nine of that place. The trip will be made by automobile. Malcolm Marsh will be sent along to do the backstop work in place of Smalley, who has an injured hand. The locals defeated this team twice last year and are going out tomorrow for another victory.

SENIOR GIRLS DEFEATED THEIR JUNIOR OPPONENTS

The senior class team of the Plainfield High School had an easy time defeating the juniors yesterday afternoon and won by the score of 24 to 9. Miss Morris, of the juniors, was the star of the game, scoring all the points.

For the seniors Miss Philips was high scorer with five field goals and six fouls. Miss Morris scored three pretty field goals from the centre of the floor. The seniors and freshmen are now tied for the lead and the deciding game between these two teams will be played next Thursday.

HARVARD'S STRONG MAN.

Cambridge, Mass., April 8—A freshman became Harvard's strong man yesterday, when O. G. Kirkpatrick, of San Antonio, Tex., set a new college strength test record of 1349 points. The best previous mark in the ten years the present system has been used was 1,296, made by H. R. (Tacks) Hardwick, the football star. Kirkpatrick is a member of the second freshman eight and is president of his class.

LUYSTER AND BRUGGY LEAVE.

William "Flick" Luyster and Frank Bruggy, the Elizabeth ball players who were on the Plainfield team last season, will report today to the manager of the Lawrence, New England League team. Bruggy's hitting ability, which was a sensation in the local games last year, is one of his strong points up north and besides that he is a fine fielder. However, he will tryout for a backstop position this year and will have to go some if he makes it. Luyster will play in the field this year besides doing a little work in the box. Both men played well at the close of the season for Plainfield last year and are surely too good to remain in these parts long.

ONLY TWO P. H. S. ATHLETES ARE DECLARED INELIGIBLE

Of the thirty-eight candidates for the High School baseball team who lined up before Dr. VanHorn the other day, to present themselves for the medical examination which is required of all who wish to represent the school in athletics, only two failed to pass the severe physical test imposed upon them by the school regulations.

Several of those who successfully passed, have, in recent years, fallen below the physical standard required of school team candidates, but under the care af the school physician and the athletic instructor, have improved their condition until they are now eligible.

UNITED STATES WARNS CARRANZA

Must Stop Deporting Spaniards From Mexico.

MADRID MAKES AN APPEAL

Federal Plan to Renew Attack on Torreon—Over 9,000 Huerta Troops Now Threaten the City—Refugee Priests Report Outrages by Rebels.

Washington, April 8.—The United States government sent to General Carranza, the Mexican Constitutionalist chief, a vigorous demand that he modify the order of General Villa expelling Spaniards from Torreon.

The situation was complicated and its gravity was emphasized when an official report was received here that Spain has appealed to Great Britain to safeguard the interests of its nationals at Tampico.

It became plain that Madrid proposes to exhaust every resource to protect Spanish subjects in the revolution torn republic.

Rear Admiral Mayo at Tampico sent a report to the navy department that the commanding officer of the British cruiser Hermoine has been instructed to care for Spaniards at that besieged federal port.

The United States has undertaken to extend to Spaniards the same protection it affords Americans resident in Mexico, and Ambassador Riano has been assured that nothing will be left undone to assure for the unfortunates at Torreon every right to which they are entitled under international law and usage.

El Paso, Tex., April 8.—Messages from three separate sources in Mexico City, each independent of the other and each confirmatory of the other, were received in El Paso by prominent federal sympathizers and officials stating that the federal forces comprising the recent garrison at Torreon had concentrated near Torreon, re-enforced by Generals Maure and Maas, and were returning to make a combined assault upon the city.

That, it was explained, was the reason for the contention in Mexico City that Torreon had never been taken. It was said that when the re-enforcements failed to reach General Velasco he retired from the city to await their organization, prepared to return against the city with a much larger force than he had for its defense, and for this reason the Mexican war department does not consider the city as taken until another battle is fought.

Rebel officials in Juarez admit that fighting is in progress at Viescas, "about two hours' automobile ride southeast of Torreon," but insist that there is no danger of Torreon being retaken. They assert that the retreating federals could not get water at San Pedro, so started back southeast, after first heading for Saltillo, and were intercepted at Viescas by the Constitutionalists.

Report Outrages.

Eagle Pass, Tex., April 8.—Refugee Catholic priests from Durango and other towns of that section who arrived here report that the Constitutionalists are waging an anticlerical warfare and that terrible outrages have been committed upon some of the padres. In Durango a few days ago the rebels desecrated the tombs of the archbishops and bishops, removing the pastoral rings from their fingers and robbing the bodies of other ecclesiastical ornaments of value. From San Luis Potosi comes the news that the Constitutionalists have set up a guillotine and tried out their new instrument with great success on a lamb.

It was built by soldiers in the Gutierrez corps. General Gutierrez's brother-in-law was killed some time ago by the federals near Saltillo, and revenge for his slaying is said to be responsible for the guillotine.

ARMY CRISIS A "SPOIL SPORT"

British Parliamentarians Refuse to Play Political Opponents.

London, April 8.—It is often boasted that political divergencies do not affect the personal relations of British members of parliament, but the recent conflict in the house of commons over the army crisis and the home rule bill has so stirred passion that many members of parliament have refused to meet their political opponents at the annual parliamentary golf handicap, which begins on May 9.

This fact and the uncertainty of the situation after Easter has compelled the postponement of this fixture, for which there were very few entries.

SHRINERS PREPARE FOR ATLANTA TRIP

Atlanta, April 8.—More than 30,000 "nobles" are expected to assemble here May 13 and 14 for the annual convention of the Shriners of North America, for which an elaborate program of festivities has been prepared. Shriners from New Jersey and the other States of the Union and from many sections of Canada will journey here to take part in the event.

The city will be figuratively transformed for the occasion, arrangements for which appear to assure a celebration akin to Mardi Gras. By permission of the Mayor and the City Council, the Atlanta Shriners' entertainment committee will take full control for the time of the whole street lighting system.

White globes with the Shriners' emblems thereon will be substituted for the top globes of the White Way clusters throughout the heart of the city. The dome of the Capitol will be silhouetted, and special electrical decorations on hotels and business houses will go to make the entire central section a blaze of glittering bulbs.

There will be two parades, one of which, it is expected, will be at least eight miles long. There will be between sixty and seventy-five bands in each pageant, included among which will be the "Milionaire Band" from the Middle West and an Indian band with tom-toms to do the snake and sun dances.

SOUTHERN EDUCATIONAL ASSN CONFERENCE IN LOUISVILLE

Louisville, Ky., April 8.—A convention under the joint auspices of the Southern Educational Association and the Conference for Education in the South opened here yesterday and will continue through the remainder of the week. The importance of the meeting in its relation to the future welfare and development of the South can scarcely be overestimated.

The conference will not confine itself to the discussion of educational topics. A much broader field will be covered by the addresses, papers and discussions that will make up the program. The underlying idea is to interest laymen in education as a civic responsibility. To this end, the conference will undertake to develop and promote the idea of rural economics with a view of building up a better and more comfortable home life, especially among the poorer classes of the sparsely settled districts in the South. Farmers' co-operative work and the problems of the rural church and school will receive particular attention. Besides the general sessions there will be meetings by sections, in which every phase of the uplift movement will be discussed in detail.

The conference has brought together not only the leading spirits in every branch of educational work, but a large number of business men, bankers, professional men, college men, and, in fact, men of nearly every walk in life, who have banded together for the common object of raising the standard of citizenship in the section in which they have lived.

RECREATION NOTES

The Dramatic Club, organized as one of the activities of the Public Recreation Committee, held its regular business meeting and practice last night in the Washington School. Next Tuesday evening is the date upon which the play, "Paddle Your Own Canoe," will be given in the auditorium of the Washington School. Ten members of the club make up the cast of the play and other young men and women of the membership will serve as ushers and ticket-takers at the performance. A rehearsal will be held tonight.

The Junior Orchestra, which with M. A. Korff as leader, practices every Thursday night, will meet tomorrow evening in the auditorium of the Stillman School instead of in the usual place.

The public is codrailly invited to attend the meeting of the Civic Club, of which R. S. Rowland is president, at its interesting session tonight. A debate on woman suffrage is the feature of the evening.

DECISIONS AWAITED.

Springfield, Ill., April 8.—Several cases of more than ordinary importance are docketed for hearing and decision at the term of the Illinois Supreme Court, being held here. Decisions are expected in the case involving the validity of the woman's suffrage act and in the Sellers case, involving the State civil service act. One of the important cases scheduled for argument is the appeal of Harry Spencer, who is under sentence of death at Wheaton for the murder of Mrs. Mildred Allison-Rexroat, a tango teacher.

MOOSE MEETING TONIGHT.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 310, Loyal Order of Moose, will hold a meeting tonight at the lodge rooms instead of next Monday. The date was changed because of a dance that is to be held by the lodge on that night. At the meeting tonight there will be the installation of officers.

BEAT FIELDER ON FREEHOLDER BILL

Assembly Ignores Governor's Sharp Message.

SESSION IS NEARLY OVER

Fielder Appeals In Vain to Pass Measure Making Small Boards of Freeholders Mandatory — Expect to Adjourn Legislature Thursday—Governor Signs Preferential Election Bill.

Trenton, N. J., April 8.—Governor Fielder made a last appeal to the legislature to pass a law making small boards of freeholders mandatory in all counties, declaring that failure to do so would be a betrayal of trust on the part of the Democratic majority. The house refused, however, to adopt such an amendment to the pending Griffin bill. It was asserted that even should the house pass a small board bill there are enough votes in the senate to kill it.

The governor sent to the senate the nomination of Stephen R. Applegate of Toms River to succeed Henry S. Washington as a member of the geological survey from the Third congress district. As members at large of the survey the governor reappointed Alfred A. Woodhull of Princeton and Frank Vanderpool of Orange.

The senate passed Assemblyman Godfrey's bill permitting trust companies and state banks to become members of the federal reserve district. So much opposition has developed to having Trenton and other cities north of Mercer county placed in the Philadelphia instead of the New York district that state financial institutions are hesitating as to what course to pursue.

A bill of Assemblyman Richards exempting clergymen from jury duty was defeated in the senate.

Senator Hennessy's bill providing for preferential elections in all cities in which commission government is in force was signed by the governor.

Adjournment of the legislature is expected on Thursday.

MINERS MAY LOSE JOBS.

Shafts Will Be Abandoned if Wharton Strikers Do Not Return.

Dover, N. J., April 8.—Superintendent Tooke C. Stryker of the Thomas Iron company's mines near Wharton, declared that if the 212 employees who went on strike Sunday afternoon continue the strike the Richard mine will be completely abandoned. The strike is the result of a layoff of eighty-four miners and laborers, and the union demands that they be reinstated.

The Richard mines have been operated almost continuously since 1852, and the abandonment of the mines would be a severe blow to the industries of Morris county, the monthly payroll of the firm during proper market conditions being $12,000. Since 7 o'clock Sunday night the pumps have been idle, and the mines are being flooded with water, which will entail loss of thousands of dollars to the firm.

HIS FEET FROST BITTEN.

Philadelphian Was Found by Roadside on Outskirts of Camden.

Camden, N. J., April 8.—Found lying on the roadside in the outskirts of this city, George Hoskins, thirty-four years old, of Philadelphia was taken to the Cooper hospital, where the physicians discovered that both his feet were frost bitten.

When revived he explained that he had been working as a farm hand during the last two months and that the zero weather a month or so ago was responsible for his condition.

POISONED TREATING BOY.

Medical Director of New Jersey Hospital For the Insane the Victim.

Trenton, N. J., April 8.—Fluid from the spinal cavity of a boy suffering from meningitis poisoned the left arm of Dr. Henry A. Cotton, medical director of the New Jersey Hospital For the Insane, it was learned. The boy died later in the Mercy hospital, this city.

The surgeon was applying a treatment, and in his hurry to relieve the boy's sufferings neglected to use rubber gloves. It is believed Dr. Cotton's arm will be saved.

BINGEMAN PREPARING FOR BANNER CAMP SEASON

C. William Bingeman, of the local Y. M. C. A., is making plans for the annual association camp that will be opened the first part of July at Lake Wawayanda. He expects to have the largest delegation that has ever been sent from this city and has had many applications from new campers.

Mr. Bingeman is anxious that the applicants get their cards in on time as there were about fifty boys who could not be accommodated last season because of tardiness. Some of the boys will go for one section while some will remain the entire period of eight weeks. Mr. Bingeman was assistant camp director last year and will act in that capacity part of this year. Charles Line, formerly of this city, but now of the Springfield Training School, will also be an assistant.

FOR EMBROIDERING BABY'S BEST DRESS OR CHRISTENING GOWN

Babies' clothes for every day wear should be just as simple as possible, made of the finest of batiste, nainsook or longcloth and trimmed only with simple hand embroidery, for they must be easy to launder. However for the first real occasion, the baby's christening, a more elaborate dress is permissible, and the one illustrated is so dainty and simple that it is exceptionally attractive. This may be cut by pattern 8052 which comes in the first size only. The embroidery may be stamped with transfer pattern 12822. It should be developed entirely in solid work with very fine white mercerized cotton. If you do not care for such an elaborate design, the yoke sections and bottom of the panel may be used and the sprays in the center of the design can easily be cut away before the pattern is transferred to the material. The illustration shows the panel joined to the dress with fine entre-deux and the neck and sleeves are finished with the finest of Valenciennes lace.

Dress pattern 8052 and hot-iron transfer pattern 12822 can be supplied to readers on receipt of price, 15 cents each.

Some Cookery Suggestions

COOKING WITH CREAM.

CREAM plays an important part in the culinary scheme. Often there are small portions of sour cream on hand. These may be used in the concoctions of pies, puddings or cakes.

Some suggestions for using extra cream, whether sweet or sour, are the following:

Toothsome Cakes.

Cream Cookies.—Take one cupful of sour cream, one egg, one cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of baking soda, cinnamon or nutmeg, salt. Stir quite stiff, roll out half an inch thick, dip the top of each one in sugar and bake immediately in a quick oven.

Cream Cake.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of flour and one cupful of sugar, break one egg in a cup, fill three-quarters full with either sweet or sour cream and fill up with milk. If sour milk is used add one-half teaspoonful of baking soda; if sweet, two tablespoonfuls of baking powder, salt and any flavoring you like. A few seeded raisins added to the above are a decided improvement.

Rich Pies.

Cream Pie Crust.—Take two cupfuls of cream, either sweet or sour. A good pinch of saleratus is enough in either case. Salt and stir thoroughly; then add flour for quite a stiff dough, which, after light molding, cut into as many pieces as you wish crusts, rolling to just fit the plate. This will make three pies of two crusts each.

Two Crust Pies.—Bake two crusts made as above on separate plates, fill them while warm with strawberry or raspberry jam, cranberry sauce or freshly stewed apples nicely flavored or a cornstarch cream prepared as follows: Take one pint of rich milk; set in a kettle of boiling water. When scalding hot add one egg, one heaping tablespoonful of cornstarch, two or three tablespoonfuls of sugar, a pinch of salt, vanilla, nutmeg. Beat thoroughly and stir constantly till thick enough. Put in the pie either hot or cold.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Soloist Of the Bird Concert

THE birds had begun their early morning concerts.

"I know why," said daddy. "It is because they have been practicing for their opening concert of the season, which they gave this morning and which I am going to tell you about this evening. They have been practicing hard every morning.

"The vireos, having such lovely voices and being devoted to music, got it up and made all the arrangements. Yesterday, the day before the concert, they scratched signs on the trees, which in the bird world read:

"'Concert in the village park tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock. All those who are taking part will of course be present. Those who are not taking part will be invited to attend. Splendid music. Good seats. Feature of concert to be the soloist. The name of the soloist will not be made known until the concert.'

"All the birds were tremendously excited when they read that, for it was all a surprise arranged by the vireos. They were the only ones who knew who the soloist was to be. At the rehearsals even the soloist had not appeared.

"At last the time for the concert came. All the birds were up very early that morning, fussing to look their very best.

"Most of the birds sat around on the grass, but some of them had reserved boxes in the trees.

"The program for the concert was delightful. The robins sang in chorus, as did the chirping sparrows. The warblers sang quartets and duets. Several of the chickadees gave little solos. The thrushes and the vireos appeared many times on the program. They were encored again and again and were greatly pleased.

"The soloist was to appear the very last. A vireo came out and announced to the audience that the soloist, being slightly nervous, would not stand before them and sing, but would sing from a very short distance.

"Then they heard from a neighboring tree the strange, lonely song of the whippoorwill. He sang his song several times over, and the applause was terrific. The birds were charmed, absolutely charmed.

"The whippoorwill was very modest and didn't see why they liked his solo at all. He had really been very shy about appearing at the concert. But he was encouraged by the vireos, who, as a rule, are nervous, too, when they appear in public.

"At the conclusion of the concert a vote of thanks was given the vireos for the crowning success of their concert and an additional vote of thanks for their splendid soloist."

THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE

CHAPTER XIV.

MR. HOLCOMBE was up very early the next morning. I heard him moving around at 5 o'clock, and at 6 he banged at my door and demanded to know at what time the neighborhood rose. He had been up for an hour and there were no signs of life. He was more cheerful after he had a cup of coffee, commented on Lida's beauty and said that Howell was a lucky chap.

"That is what worries me, Mr. Holcombe," I said. "I am helping the affair along and—what if it turns out badly?"

He looked at me over his glasses. "It isn't likely to turn out badly," he said. "I have never married, Mrs. Pitman, and I have missed a great deal out of life."

"Perhaps you're better off. If you had married and lost your wife"— I was thinking of Mr. Pitman.

"Not at all," he said with emphasis. "It's better to have married and lost than never to have married at all. Every man needs a good woman, and it doesn't matter how old he is. The older he is the more he needs her. I am nearly sixty."

I was rather startled, and I almost dropped the fried potatoes. But the next moment he had got out his notebook and was going over the items again. "Pillowslip," he said, "knife, broken; onyx clock—wouldn't think so much of the clock if he hadn't been so damnably anxious to hide the key, the discrepancy in time as revealed by the trial—yes, it is as clear as a bell. Mrs. Pitman, does that Maguire woman next door sleep all day?"

"She's up now," I said, looking out the window.

He was in the hall in a moment, only to come to the door later, hat in hand. "Is she the only other woman on the street who keeps boarders?"

"She's the only woman who doesn't," I snapped. "She'll keep anything that doesn't belong to her—except boarders."

"Ah!"

He lighted his corncob pipe and stood puffing at it and watching me. He made me uneasy. I thought he was going to continue the subject of every man needing a wife.

But when he spoke he was back to the crime again: "Did you ever work a typewriter?" he asked.

What with the surprise, I was a little sharp. "I don't play any instrument except an egg beater," I replied shortly, and went on clearing the table.

"I wonder—do you remember about the village idiot and the horse? But of course you do. Mrs. Pitman, you are a woman of imagination. Don't you think you could be Alice Murray for a few moments? Now think—you are a stenographer with theatrical ambitions. You meet an actor and you fall in love with him and he with you."

"That's hard to imagine, that last."

"Not so hard," he said gently. "Now the actor is going to put you on the stage, perhaps in this new play, and some day he is going to marry you."

"Is that what he promised the girl?"

"According to some letters her mother found, yes. The actor is married, but he tells you he will divorce the wife. You are to wait for him, and in the meantime he wants you near him—away from the office, where other men are apt to come in with letters to be typed and to chaff you. You are a pretty girl."

"It isn't necessary to overwork my imagination," I said, with a little bitterness. I had been a pretty girl, but work and worry—

"Now you are going to New York very soon, and in the meantime you have cut yourself off from all your people. You have no one but this man. What would you do? Where would you go?"

"How old was the girl?"

"Nineteen."

"I think," I said slowly, "that if I were nineteen and in love with a man and hiding I would hide as near him as possible. I'd be likely to get a window that could see his going out and coming in—a place so near that he could come often to see me."

"Bravo," he exclaimed. "Of course, with your present wisdom and experience, you would do nothing so foolish. But this girl was in her teens. She was not very far away, for he probably saw her that Sunday afternoon, when he was out for two hours. And as the going was slow that day and he had much to tell and explain I figure she was not far off, probably in this very neighborhood."

During the remainder of that morning I saw Mr. Holcombe at intervals going from house to house. Finally he came back, flushed and excited.

"I found the house," he said, wiping his glasses. "She was there, all right, not so close as we had thought, but as close as she could get."

"And can you trace her?" I asked.

His face changed and saddened. "Poor child!" he said. "She is dead, Mrs. Pitman."

"Not she—at Sewickley!"

"No," he said patiently. "That was Jennie Brice."

"But—Mr. Howell"—

"Mr. Howell is a young ass," he said with irritation. "He did not take Jennie Brice out of the city that morning. He took Alice Murray in Jennie Brice's clothing, and veiled."

Well, that is five years ago. Five times since then the Allegheny river, from being a mild and inoffensive stream, carrying a few boats and a great deal of sewage, has become a raging destroyer and has filled our hearts with fear and our cellars with mud.

A few days ago, as I said at the beginning, we found Peter's body floating in the cellar, and as soon as the yard was dry I buried him. He had grown fat and lazy, but I shall miss him.

Yesterday a riverman fell off a barge along the water front and was drowned. They dragged the river for his body, but they did not find him. But they found something—an onyx clock, with the tattered remnant of a muslin pillowslip wrapped around it. It only bore out the story as we had known it for five years.

The Murray girl had lived long enough to make a statement to the police, although Mr. Holcombe only learned this later. On the statement being shown to Ladley in the jail and his learning of the girl's death, he collapsed. He confessed before he was hanged, and his confession, briefly, was like this:

He had met the Murray girl in connection with the typing of his play, and had fallen in love with her. He had never cared for his wife, and would have been glad to get rid of her in any way possible. He had not intended to kill her, however. He had planned to elope with the Murray girl, and, awaiting an opportunity, had persuaded her to leave home and to take a room near my house.

Here he had visited her daily, while his wife was at the theater.

They had planned to go to New York together on Monday, March 5. On Sunday, the 4th, however, Mr. Bronson and Mr. Howell had made their curious proposition. When he accepted, Philip Ladley maintained that he meant only to carry out the plan as suggested. But the temptation was too strong for him. That night, while his wife slept, he had strangled her.

I believe he was frantic with fear, after he had done it. Then it occurred to him that if he made the body unrecognizable he would be safe enough. On that quiet Sunday night, when Mr. Reynolds reported all peaceful in the Ladley room he had cut off the poor wretch's head and had tied it up in a pillowslip weighted with my onyx clock.

It is a curious fact about the case that the scar which his wife incurred to enable her to marry him was the means of his undoing. He insisted, and I believe he was telling the truth, that he did not know of the scar—that is, his wife had never told him of it and had been able to conceal it. He thought she had probably used paraffin in some way.

In his final statement, written with great care and no little literary finish, he told the story in detail; of arranging the clews as Mr. Howell and Mr. Bronson had suggested; of going out in the boat with the body, covered with a fur coat, in the bottom of the skiff; of throwing it into the current above the Ninth street bridge, and of seeing the fur coat fall from the boat and carried beyond his reach; of disposing of the head near the Seventh street bridge; of going to a drug store, as per the Howell instructions and of coming home at 4 o'clock to find me at the head of the stairs.

Several points of confusion remained. One had been caused by Temple Hope's refusal to admit that the dress and hat that figured in the case were to be used by her the next week at the theater. Mr. Ladley insisted that this was the case and that on that Sunday afternoon his wife had requested him to take them to Miss Hope; that they had quarreled as to whether they should be packed in a box or in the brown valise, and that he had visited Alice Murray instead. It was on the way there that the idea of finally getting rid of Jennie Brice came to him. And a way—using the black and white striped dress of the dispute.

Another point of confusion had been the dismantling of his room that Monday night, some time between the visit of Temple Hope and the return of Mr. Holcombe. This was to obtain the scrap of paper containing the list of clews as suggested by Mr. Howell, a clew that might have brought about a premature discovery of the so called hoax.

To the girl he had told nothing of his plan. But he had told her she was to leave town on an early train the next morning, going as his wife; that he wished her to wear the black and white dress and hat for reasons that he would explain later and to be veiled heavy; that to the young man who would put her on the train and who had seen Jennie Brice only once she was to be Jennie Brice; to say as little as possible and not to raise her veil. Her further instructions were simple—to go to the place at Horner where Jennie Brice had planned to go, but to use the name of Bellows there. And after she had been there for a day or two to go as quietly as possible to New York. He gave her the address of a boarding house where he could write her and where he would join her later.

He reasoned in this way: That as Alice Murray was to impersonate Jennie Brice and Jennie Brice hiding from her husband she would naturally discard her name. The name Bellows had been hers by a previous marriage, and she might easily resume it. Thus to establish his innocence he had not only the evidence of Howell and Bronson that the whole thing was a gigantic hoax; he had the evidence of Howell that he had started Jennie Brice to Horner that Monday morning, that she had reached Horner, had there assumed an incognito, as Mr. Pitman would say, and had later disappeared from there, maliciously concealing herself to work his undoing.

In all probability he would have gone free, the richer by $100 for each week of his imprisonment, but for two things. The flood, which had brought opportunity to his door, had brought Mr. Holcombe to feed Peter, the dog. And the same flood, which should have carried the headless body as far as Cairo or even farther on down the Mississippi, had rejected it in an eddy below a clay bluff at Sewickley.

Well, it is all over now. Mr. Ladley is dead, and Alice Murray, and even Peter lies in the yard. Mr. Reynolds made a small wooden cross over Peter's grave and carved "Till we meet again" on it. I daresay the next flood will find it in Molly Maguire's kitchen.

Mr. Howell and Lida are married. Mr. Howell inherited some money, I believe, and what with that and Lida declaring she would either marry him in a church or run off to Steubenville, O., Alma had to consent. I went to the wedding and stood near the door, while Alma swept in, in lavender chiffon and rose point lace. She has not improved with age, has Alma. But Lida—Lida—I wanted to run out and claim her, my more than child.

I sat down and covered my face, and from the pew behind me some one leaned over and patted my shoulder.

"Miss Bess," old Isaac said gently, "don't take on, Miss Bess!"

He came the next day and brought me some lilies from the bride's bouquet that she had sent me and a bottle of champagne from the wedding supper. I had not tasted champagne for twenty years!

That is all of the story. On summer afternoons sometimes when the house is hot I go to the park and sit. I used to take Peter, but now he is dead. I like to see Lida's little boy. The nurse knows me by sight and lets me talk to the child. He can say "Peter" quite plainly. But he does not call Alma "grandmother." The nurse says she does not like it. He calls her "Nana."

Lida does not forget me. The other day she brought me, with apologies, the chiffon gown her mother had worn at her wedding. Alma had never worn it but once, and now she was too stout for it. I took it. I am not proud, and I should like Molly Maguire to see it.

Mr. Holcombe asked me last night to marry him. He says he needs me, and that I need him.

I am a lonely woman and getting old, and I'm tired of watching the gas meter, and besides, with Peter dead, I need a man in the house all the time. The flood district is none too orderly. Besides, when I have a wedding dress laid away and a bottle of good wine it seems a pity not to use them.

I think I shall do it.

THE END.

NOTED CASE COMES TO TRIAL.

Columbiana, Ala., April 8.—A special term of the Shelby County Circuit Court is being held for the trial of James G. Oakley on a charge of embezzling about $3,500 of State funds. This is one of the cases in which leading politicians of Alabama have become involved and which is attracting the keenest attention throughout the State. Oakley was president of the State Convict Department at the time that Theo Lacy left Montgomery carrying with him about $90,000 of State funds. When Oakley was tried in Montgomery county recently on another indictment, he admitted that he had used the State funds, but that he did so in the belief that he was using his own money. He declared that in 1911 he paid over to Lacy, who was then chief clerk of the State Convict Department $27,500 and that he thought that he was using this money when he converted State checks. Lacy recently was tried and convicted on the charge of embezzlement. After his conviction he declared that he had given $27,500 to Governor O'Neal. The latter replied that Lacy's statement was wholly without foundation and intimated that it had been instigated by B. B. Comer to further his aspirations for the governorship.

The Bible Study class to be inaugurated at the Y. W. C. A. under the leadership of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, will start on Friday, April 17, instead of this Friday, as announced in this paper yesterday.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Votes for Women: The Two Amendments Now Before Congress.

(From The New York Evening Post of March 28.)

The suffragists lost their recent fight in the United States Senate, to obtain adoption of an amendment to the Federal Constitution extending the right of suffrage to women. No sooner had the announcement of the vote, 35 to 34 against it (a two-thirds affirmative vote being necessary for passage), been made than the suffragists declared that they were not at all discouraged, and to prove it had a second amendment introduced by Senator Shafroth, of Colorado, on the very heels of the one that had been defeated. No sooner had the second amendment been introduced than Senator Bristow came back again with the defeated amendment and introduced it again, so that it is before the Senate as it has been for the last forty-four years.

The fact of the matter is, that the present move of the workers for votes for women, this introduction of a second amendment while still retaining the old one, is a far-sighted and strategic move in the suffrage movement.

But before attempting to prove that, it is necessary to bear in mind the two amendments. The first one is the same old one that has stood the test of forty-four years of wear and tear, and which, as an ardent suffragist remarked today, is "about as near being adopted now as it ever has been in all its history." It provides for the enfranchisement of women by amending the Federal Constitution. The second one, drawn up by Mrs. Antoinette Funk, one of the officers of the Congressional committee of the National Suffrage Association, and a member of the group of three women known as the "Illinois Lobby," to whose work is due much of the credit for securing the partial franchise in that State, is as follows:

"Whenever any number of legal voters of any State to a number exceeding 8 per cent. of the number of legal voters voting at the last preceding general election held in such State shall petition for the submission to the legal voters of said State of the question of whether women shall have equal rights with men in respect to voting at all elections to be held in such State, such question shall be so submitted, and if, upon submission, a majority of the legal voters of the State voting on the question shall vote in favor of granting the women such equal rights, the same shall thereupon be deemed established, anything in the Constitution or laws of such State to the contrary notwithstanding."

One important discovery led the suffragists to frame this second amendment and have it introduced by Senator Shafroth. That was the fact that the question of States rights and the strong feeling on this subject are not confined to the Southern States, as many have been led to suppose. The right of the State to decide questions of great moment for itself and not be forced into something by a majority of other States—as, for instance, one-fourth of the States would be forced to grant equal suffrage if the first amendment passed the Legislature, and three-fourths of the State Legislature—is a belief strongly held by a large proportion of people.

But besides recognizing the strong antipathy to any legislation which shall endanger States' rights, the framers of the second amendment also took into account the fact that the common watchword of today is "the rule of the people." Every political party is careful to talk about the "will of the people," "the voice of the people," "the rule of the people." The second amendment is in line with this policy, for it would put the suffrage question directly before the people of the various States; it would be by their petition that the question would be submitted to them for the final vote, and it would be a much more direct way of obtaining the suffrage than by changing the various State constitutions which are so iron-bound in many cases.

If the Democrats with their principle of the will of the people can openly oppose this second amendment which suffragists have framed, they will have to be more skillful than they have been formerly in avoiding the suffrage question. This amendment carries the suffrage question past obstructions and places it in the hands of the voters, and what could be more in accordance with Democratic principles?

These are the reasons why this second amendment has been framed. Now what is it actually going to accomplish? First of all the mere framing of such an amendment will force Congressmen to come out in the open and state their position squarely on the question of suffrage. Heretofore it has happened that when they have been questioned as to whether they believe or did not believe in granting women the right to vote, instead of answering "yes" or "no," they have been able to say, "Well, now there's the question of States' rights and that suggests the literacy test and the problem of the negro woman in the Southern States," and so on. Between the two amendments now before Congress, there can be no dodging behind the States' rights question, since, if he believes in States' rights, a Senator should vote for the second amendment, and if not, for the first amendment. But the real question is, does he actually favor equal suffrage?

Another thing which the present situation is sure to do is to keep the suffrage question incessantly before the minds of Congress and the whole nation. As Mrs. Dennett put it:

"It's a splendid thing to have more than one string to our bow. We won't let the question of suffrage be lost sight of for many days at a time. I believe that by playing these two amendments together, as we are doing now—we are not playing them against each other, remember, but expect that one will help the other and between the two that the suffrage question will be kept constantly in the minds of Congressmen—we have a short cut to our end. If this second amendment passes, we will have one continual campaign for the vote in the various States. With 8 per cent. of the voters necessary to having the question submitted to the voters at the regular election there won't be much rest in any of the States which haven't equal suffrage."

Perhaps you have become used to saying that the two Dakotas, Montana and Nevada are the campaign States this year, meaning by "campaign" that the bill has passed the Legislature the necessary number of times and goes to the voters in the fall. But if you have, you must now enlarge your idea of the suffrage situation and include in the campaign States, Nebraska, Missouri and Ohio, making in all seven States in which the question will come before the voters this year.

The reason for the increase in the number of campaign States is that there are eleven States in which an amendment to the State Constitution can be introduced by initiative petition and in the last three mentioned the requisite percentage of voters have signed such a petition and the question therefore comes before them at the next general election. Oklahoma is another State which has the initiative petition privilege and the petition is now being circulated. The initiative laws vary in the three States, Nebraska having to obtain a petition signed by 15 per cent. of the voters; Ohio, 10 per cent, and Missouri, 5 per cent. in two-thirds of the Congressional districts. The States vary also in the size of the vote which is finally required when the amendment is submitted. In Ohio, the amendment requires a simple majority vote to pass; in Nebraska, it must receive 35 per cent. of the total vote cast at the election; in Missouri, it must receive a majority of all the votes cast at the election.

In commenting upon the suffrage situation as a whole and the attitude of many people toward it, Mrs. Dennett said:

"Suffrage has come to the point now where you hear on all sides the trite remark, 'Oh, it's coming' and even anti-suffragists do not deny it even though they fight what they admit is inevitable. If people would only stop to think, it does seem as though instead of allowing women to spend time, money and strength in this long struggle for their political rights they would want to see them win with the utmost efficiency and least possible expenditure of labor. It is unjust to make us work as we are now working and have been for years to get what should be ours. But perhaps next fall if a landslide of seven more States swells the number of the States that have already adopted suffrage, the people in general will wake up to the fact that it is no use to fight what is inevitable, that women have worked and won in their long struggle for an equal voice in the laws which govern them and their children and which often discriminate cruelly against them, and that women are people and as such should have their part in the government of the country if 'of the people, for the people, and by the people' means anything at all."

REV. DR. JACOB PRICE.

Clergyman Is Found Guilty of Kissing.

The Rev. Dr. Jacob Embury Price, pastor of the Washington Heights Methodist Episcopal church, was found guilty of "imprudent and unministerial conduct" and was admonished by the ecclesiastical court that had heard the charges against him in the Metropolitan temple, Seventh avenue, near Fourteenth street, New York. At the same time the court acquitted Dr. Price on the charges of "conduct in violation of the moral law" and of "sinful temper and words."

MORE INDICTMENTS IN THE SIEGEL CASE

Fourteen Handed Down For Grand Larceny.

New York, April 8.—Fourteen indictments against Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel, three of them superseding presentments already handed down, were returned by the grand jury which has investigated the failure of the Siegel enterprises last December.

The eleven new indictments charge grand larceny. In these and one of the superseding indictments the two men are accused of obtaining upward of $625,000 from various New York banks in the year 1912 alone, their last fully completed fiscal year, by means of fraudulent written statements regarding the financial condition of the Simpson-Crawford company, the Fourteenth street store and the Henry Siegel company of Boston, but only a small number of the actual transactions are said to be embraced in the specific charges.

"Siegel and Vogel, in fact," according to District Attorney Whitman, "obtained at least $2,500,000 by false statements during 1912. These new indictments shed an entirely new light on the financial operations of these two men and completely dispose of the contention of the friends of Siegel that Vogel was the person responsible for any crimes which may have been committed. These indictments show that Siegel constantly signed false statements as to the condition of the stores of which he was president, and indeed it appears that in certain years he signed all the statements."

In all but two of the twelve indictments charging grand larceny Siegel and Vogel are made joint defendants.

GLYNN REJECTS GUNMEN'S APPEAL

Must Pay the Death Penalty Next Week.

NO ERRORS IN THE TRIAL

Respite Would Be Improper Use of Executive Power, He Asserts—Upholds Opinion of Justice Goff and District Attorney Whitman.

Albany, N. Y., April 8.—Governor Glynn announced he would not interfere with the execution of the four gunmen convicted of murdering Herman Rosenthal. The prisoners must die in the electric chair next week, probably on Monday.

By refusing to commute the death sentence or to issue a reprieve for Frank Cirofici ("Dago Frank"), Harry Horowitz ("Gyp the Blood"), Louis Rosenberg ("Lefty Louie") and Jacob Seidenshner ("Whitey Lewis") the governor swept away the last chance the gangsters had of escaping execution at the time set by the court of appeals when that court refused the plea for a new trial. The tribunal directed that the executions take place in the week of April 13.

The governor's memorandum explaining his reasons for refusing to interfere in the gunmen's case follows:

"I have carefully reviewed the record of the trial and the opinions written in the court of appeals on the affirmance of the judgment of conviction in this case, and I am unable to discover any reason that would justify the granting of a reprieve.

"The judgment of conviction of these defendants was unanimously affirmed by the court of appeals. Judge Chase in writing the principal opinion of that court makes an exhaustive review of the evidence. That court found no error had been committed on the trial, that the defendants had a fair trial and that there was nothing in the case to justify a new trial."

The decision had not been communicated to the gunmen in the Sing Sing death house. "Lefty Louis," "Gyp the Blood," "Dago Frank" and "Whitey Lewis" were therefore still ignorant of their fate.

His Decision.

"There is nothing in the case before me to show that there is any reasonable probability that anything will be developed on the new trial of Becker that could in any way change the result reached in this case. If the defendants possessed any credible evidence to support a motive for a new trial they have had sixteen months since their conviction and six weeks since the decision of the court of appeals in which to present it to the courts on a motion for a new trial, but they have not made any such motion. This is eminently a case for justice, not mercy, and the forum to deal with new evidence, if any, is the judiciary, not the executive.

"The natural considerations which have urged me, and would urge any public official with the power to reprieve—to halt an execution of four human beings—have moved me to consider every suggestion which would justify me in granting a reprieve, but after reading and rereading the record of the case, the communications to me from the presiding judge and the prosecuting attorney, as well as the unanimous opinion of the court of appeals upholding the verdict of the jury that passed upon the evidence in the trial, and thoroughly considering the defendants' petition and all the facts that have been brought to my attention, I cannot escape the conclusion that it is my duty to deny the application for either a commutation of sentence or a reprieve.

"The application is therefore denied."

WILSON MAN DEFEATED IN NEW JERSEY

Drukker, Republican, Wins For Congress.

REVISE CONSTITUTION.

New York Voters Decide on Convention.

WOMEN LOSE IN CHICAGO

About 100 000 of Their Sisters Vote, but Mostly For Men For Aldermen---"Bath House John" Wins Out.

CONCISE FACTS OF YESTERDAY'S ELECTIONS.

New York state will have a constitutional convention next April to revise the state constitution. This was decided by the special election on the convention referendum, which Greater New York favored by a majority of 55,916, more than offsetting the adverse vote up state.

Washington regards the election of Gallivan, a Democrat, in the Twelfth Massachusetts congress district and Drukker, a Republican, in the Seventh New Jersey district as indicating a decided slump in President Wilson's prestige and as likely to have a pronounced effect on the future of the canal tolls problem in the senate adverse to the president's program.

The "drys" gained a number of the larger towns in Illinois. The "wets" gained none, but retained control of the bigger cities.

In Chicago 175,000 women voted, but failed to elect any of their candidates.

Socialism suffered a crushing defeat in Milwaukee. Bading was reelected by 10,000.

Paterson, N. J., April 8.—Dow H. Drukker, Republican, was elected representative in congress from the Seventh New Jersey district to fill the unexpired term of Robert G. Bremner, Democrat, who died of cancer on Feb 5. He carried the district, embracing all of Passaic county, with the exception of two townships, with a plurality of 5,276.

James J. O'Byrne, Democrat, in the interest of whose candidacy President Wilson wrote a letter of warm indorsement, was a poor second in the race, with a total of 5,229 votes. He was closely crowded by Gordon Demarest, Socialist, who was only 173 votes behind him.

The Republicans fought the campaign on the tariff issue, contending that the present tariff law was responsible in no small measure for a slump in the business of many of Passaic county's industries. The district is essentially an industrial center.

The Democratic campaigners appealed to the voters to support O'Byrne and thus give their approval of the Wilson policies and the national administration.

In Paterson Drukker received 5,737 votes, O'Byrne 3,944, Demarest 3,696 and Whitehead 201. Drukker carried six wards, O'Byrne four and Demarest one. When he ran for mayor of Paterson last November Demarest, the Socialist, had a total of 5,048 and was second high man, being beaten by Mayor Robert Fordyce, Republican.

Washington, April 8.—The result of special elections held in the Twelfth Massachusetts and the Seventh New Jersey districts are accepted here by politicians as indicating a recession of the wave of popularity that has attended the administration of President Wilson since he was inaugurated.

That the result will have its effect on the pending tolls fight in the senate is believed by some senators and representatives. A Republican senator pointed out that in the Massachusetts district, where a Democrat won by a reduced majority, the Democratic nominee repudiated the administration policy for the repeal of the free tolls legislation, while in the New Jersey district the Democratic nominee stood with the president on the tolls question.

To Revise Convention.

New York, April 8.—There will be a convention to revise the state constitution in April next year. The voters so decided in a special election, remarkable for a lighter vote than expected.

New York city gave a majority of 55,916 in favor of a convention. Most of the up state cities also voted "Yes," a notable exception being Albany, the home of State Republican Chairman William Barnes, which went "No" by 3,377. The result in this city made certain a majority for the whole state. The indicated state majority for a convention is more than 45,000. The total vote cast is apparently about 175,000. On an average about one-third of the registered vote was cast in the up state cities and less than one-fifth of the vote in the country districts.

Interest in the election was even less than had been expected. In this city the number of voters who thought it worth while to go to the polls was 104,382. The registration remains virtually the same as for the mayoralty election last fall—667,609. Assuming that to be the present registration, only 15.6 per cent of the qualified voters cast their ballots in this city yesterday. Politicians and members of the board of elections expected a light vote, but none of their predictions fell below 20 per cent.

Estimating the cost of running the special election in this city at $360,000, which is the official guess, it cost the taxpayers $3.45 for each vote cast.

Women Defeated.

Chicago, April 8.—Fairly complete returns from municipal elections, the first in which Illinois women ever participated, indicate that the women divided on about the same lines that men have divided in all previous campaigns. The indications are that no less than 175,000 out of a registration of something more than 200,000 women availed themselves of their newly acquired right to the ballot.

Of the eight women candidates for alderman in Chicago, out of a total of 154, not one was elected. Each one of the thirty-six members of the city council chosen is a man, and from returns available so far the indications are that they will be lined up as follows: Democrats, 16; Republicans, 9; Progressives, 2, and nonpartisan, 1.

The liquor question did not enter into the Chicago elections, but the women got a chance to express themselves on it in the outside towns. Indications are that while the drys made some gains, they did not make the clean sweep that had been claimed by the dry leaders and that they were lined up on that question, as in others, about as the men voters. The number of "non" ballots in many localities surprised both wet and dry forces.

The most spectacular campaign in Chicago was in the First ward, where Miss Marion Drake, Progressive, opposed Alderman "Bath House John" Coughlin. Miss Drake was snowed under.

Gallivan Wins In Boston.

Boston, April 8.—James A. Gallivan, Democrat, was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mayor James M. Curley as congressman from the Twelfth district. Mr. Gallivan had opposed the administration policy on the tolls repeal. He has been superintendent of streets for the past thirteen years. Mr. Gallivan received 8,709 votes; Frank L. Brier, Republican, 3,973; James B. Connolly, Progressive, author and friend of Colonel Roosevelt, 3,592.

Socialists Are Buried.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 8.—Mayor Gerhard Bading, who two years ago was the candidate when a fusion of the old parties drove Socialism out of office in Milwaukee, was elected for another term on the combination or nonpartisan ticket by a majority of 10,000. This majority for the head of the ticket assures the election of the entire nonpartisan ticket.

B. B. Comer is ahead in the gubernatorial poll in the Alabama primaries. As a majority is needed to elect a party candidate, it is likely that a second primary may be held to determine who would be the candidate for governor.

PICKLE DISHES, SAYS GLYNN.

Substitute For Punch Bowl In Silver Service For Battleship.

Albany, N. Y., April 8.—Governor Glynn said that he would sign the Carswell bill appropriating $10,000 for purchasing a silver service for the battleship New York.

The governor is one of the committee to select the service. He was asked what would be substituted for the punch bowl, now that liquor had been forbidden in the navy.

"Pickle dishes, I guess," he replied.

MANY CONVERSIONS AT HOPE REVIVAL

Over Two Hundred Children Attend Interesting Afternoon Service.

The evangelistic services at Hope chapel, yesterday afternoon and evening were well attended and considerable interest shown in the meetings. At the afternoon meeting, over 200 children were in attendance, while singing formed the feature of the gathering. From fifty to sixty cards were signed by the children and young people ranging from twelve to eighteen years of age, indicating their desire to lead Christian lives. The service was the most largely attended of those held thus far, with the exception of the service on Sunday evening. R. M. Honeyman, the speaker, gave a short address for the children.

At the evening gathering, Mr. Honeyman spoke of the necessity of the Christian's duty, first of all, to those in the home, then to the community, and then to those away from the home of the individual. In all these places those professing to follow the Christ found opportunities to give forth the message of the religion, which they themselves were enjoying. The address laid emphasis on the fact that the commission given to the early followers to begin at Jerusalem (home) with the proclamation of the gospel still held good for the followers of today. Four hands were raised for prayer when the invitation was given.

The subject of Mr. Honeyman's address at the meeting to be held tonight will be, "Prodigals I Have Known." This talk will deal with the experiences of the speaker as secretary of the Bowery Y. M. C. A., New York.

"PONTIUS PILATE" THEME OF SERMON

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire Tells Story of the Crucifixion at Revival.

A large audience attended the revival service at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last evening, being held by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, assisted by Prof. Stout. The meeting opened with selections by the chorus choir and a duet, "Jesus Leads," by Prof. and Mrs. Stout. The gospel singer also gave, as promised, "De Gentle Shepherd;" this is a story in darkey dialect of the shepherd searching all the night through for the sheep that has wandered away from the fold, and continues his search until morning, when he finds it and brings it back in his arms; it is the "Ninety and Nine" in dialect, and is written by the author of "The Li'l Brack Sheep." It was sung with a tenderness that touched many hearts.

Other solos included "Calvary" and "What Will You Do With Jesus?" This song tells the story of Jesus standing in Pilate's court, friendless, forsaken by all, facing His unjust accusers. Mr. Maguire preached a strong sermon on "Pontius Pilate" from the text: "Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified. And they took Jesus and led Him away." Both sermon and song made a profound impression upon the audience, and there was one conversion before the service closed.

The theme this evening will be "The Lord's Second Coming," on which Mr. Maguire will preach; and Prof. Stout will sing several songs appropriate to the subject. Tomorrow evening there will be the usual sermon and song, and on Friday night, Prof. Stout will have entire charge of the service, when he will give in song the full story of the "Passion Play," starting from the Garden of Gethsemane, following through the betrayal of thirty pieces of silver, the denial of Peter, the Judgment Hall, Jesus carrying the Cross to Calvary, His death on the Cross, burial and resurrection—fifteen songs in all.

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose, equipped to meet every emergency, to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent, unaffected by the hazards of human life.

ANNUAL CHURCH MEETINGS HELD

Local Presbyterian Congregations Report a Prosperous Year.

OFFICIALS ARE ELECTED

Crescent Avenue Church Raises $38,804.85 for All Purposes While Sister Body Contributes a Total of $3,000 for Benevolences.

Showing total benevolences of $25,554.40, and congregational expenses of $12,750.45, the annual statement of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church was given to the members last night at the annual meeting of the congregation. The church and chapels were reported to be in flourishing condition, and in every way the reports satisfactory. During the evening, trustees, elders and deacons were elected for the ensuing year.

W. A. Garrigues, president of the board of trustees, called the meeting of the congregation together and Louis K. Hyde and James DeGraff were re-elected on the board, after which Treasurer Joseph W. Sandford read the financial report of the church corporation. It showed total receipts for the year ending March 31 to be $14,825.57, of which $790.63 was the cash on hand one year ago; $13,129.22 from pew rents; $800 from the session to pay off mortgage on the parsonage, and the balance from miscellaneous items. The expenditures during the year totaled $13,550.45, leaving a balance on hand on April 1 of $1,275.12. The expenditures were divided as follows: Salaries, $6,230; music, $3,302.21; light, $204.46; repairs and supplies, $1,237.35; Sunday-school, $650; insurance, $370.78; parsonage, $515.65; pulpit supply, $240, and final payment of mortgage on parsonage, $800.

The estimated expenses for 1914-1915 are $12,966, and the estimated receipts from pew rents are $13,000.

To conduct the chapels during the past year the session contributed $5,560.51, and the chapels themselves gave the following amounts: Hope, $987.37; Warren, $1,425; Bethel, $550, a total of $8,522.88. The cost of running them amounted for Hope to $3,154.89; for Warren, $3,296.17, and for Bethel, $1,938, a total of $8,389.32. During the year $1,000 was paid on the mortgage of Warren chapel, leaving the balance due $6,500. Of this sum $300 was contributed by Crescent Avenue church, the balance being raised by the chapel.

After the reading of the reports a resolution was passed providing that hereafter nominations for trustees shall be made by a nominating committee consisting of one trustee, one deacon and one elder, selected by their various bodies, these three to select two others from the congregation. The motion for such action was made by Augustus V. Heely.

At the congregational meeting Rev. John Sheriden Zelie presided, and J. F. Harman, A. V. Heely and Dr. Ellis W. Hedges were re-elected as elders. Dr. William H. Murray was re-named as a deacon, and Deuse VanVliet chosen to succeed T. F. Budlong, who has left town. Dr. Hedges, as clerk of the session read the reports for the various activities. They showed that in the Crescent Avenue church there are 1,133 members, a gain of three; in Bethel chapel, 106 members, a gain of 10; Hope chapel, 347 members, a gain of 13, and in Warren chapel, 255 members, a gain of 7, making a total at the end of the year for all of 1,841 members. In the Sunday-schools, Crescent Avenue has 321 officers, teachers and scholars; Bethel, 288; Hope, 795, and Warren, 442, a grand total of 1,556.

The benevolences for the year were as follows: Foreign missions, $5,826.80; home missions, $3,939.78; synodical home missions, $625; support of chapels, $5,702.71; American Bible Society, $25; publication and Sabbath school work, $237.44; deacons fund, $1,698.19; freedmen, $200; ministerial relief, $1,500; general assembly, $221.63; temperance, $165; aid for colleges, $570; church erection, $200; education, $200; local charities, $1,770.86; miscellaneous, $1,871.99, and for liquidating mortgage on parsonage, $800, a total of $25,554.40. To this is added the cost of running the church, $12,750.45, or a total amount raised for all purposes amounting to $38,304.85.

Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, Rev. F. B. Tilden and Rev. Frederick L. Greene, reported briefly on the work being done at Warren, Bethel and Hope chapels, and said that the year had been a satisfactory one from many standpoints. Mr. Green said that although there had been a large number of the men out of work during the year, the receipts at Hope had nearly come up to those of a year ago. He appealed for more teachers

THIRD FIRE STARTED IN ARNOLD'S STABLE

Fated Structure Damaged to the Extent of $200—Horse Had to Be Shot.

For the third time in six weeks a futile attempt was made by an incendiary to destroy the barn owned by Charles Arnold and which is situated on the rear of his proerty on Liberty street last night. Although the third fire got a good start the firemen saved the structure and the damage amounted to about $200.

The barn was filled with vehicles of various kinds and a horse owned by Joseph Dever, a grocer. Dever made an effort to get the animal out but was overcome by the thick smoke and rendered unconscious. He was found by Jens Claassen, a fireman, who dragged him from the burning structure to the open air where he soon recovered.

The barn is of frame construction and burns readily when once started. It is the opinion of Chief Doane that someone is making an effort to destroy the building. Dever's horse was severely burned and was shot by a veterinary surgeon this morning.

U. S. TROOPS MAY LAND AT TAMPICO

Mexican City Has Been Fiercely Attacked by the the Rebels.

Tampico, Mexico, April 9.—United States marines may be landed in Tampico today, and Rear Admiral Mayo has told the federal gunboats here that if they shell the city proper he will blow them out of the water. When the rebel artillery arrives the fall of the city appears imminent. For the last three days Tampico has been fiercely attacked by the rebels, who have penetrated into the outskrts of the town. Shells from the federal gunboats Zaragosa and Vera Cruz have set fire to the huge oil tank and refinery buildings of the Waters-Pierce Company.

Fanned by a hard norther, which keeps the larger war vessels of the international fleet outside, the flames from the oil plant are menacing the city. Just below the Waters-Pierce plant the agency of a German commercial concern was set afire by the federal shells and destroyed with a loss of $500,000.

The shells of the gunboats have also set fire to the Custom House, and fifty freight cars in the suburbs.

The foreigners in Tampico have fed on board the various war ships, and Rear Admiral Mayo has sent a wireless message to W. W. Canada, United States Consul at Vera Cruz, asking that the Ward line steamship Morro Castle be sent here to care for refugees. The Morro Castle, with mail and passengers, is due to leave Vera Cruz today, and it is believed that the Esperanza, now bound for Vera Cruz from Progreso, will be intercepted by wireless and ordered here.

MOTION PICTURES WILL SHOW MAKING OF AUTOS

The E. & C. Auto Sales Co., local agents for the Reo Motor Car Company, announce that moving picture reels showing every step in the manufacture of Reo, The Fifth machine, will shortly be received here and will be exhibited at once at one of the local moving picture theatres by special arrangement.

Edwin A. Craig, of the Reo agency, states that the Reo Motor Car Co. was a pioneer concern in the use of moving pictures to educate its employes and the public concerning Reo construction. These moving picture reels will, as fast as taken, be exhibited first at the Lansing factory and then forwarded to the various agencies of the company. When the pictures are shown here all Reo attaches, Reo owners and those interested in Reo cars will be invited to attend.

CAMPAIGN FOR MEMBERS.

The local branch of the Y. M. H. A. held a busy session of the organization last evening at the new club rooms on West Front street. A campaign for new members was inaugurated with the appointment of five team captains as follows: Victor L. Drelich, Arthur H. Richards, Irving Klinzman, Herman Schrager and Louis Rothberg. The present membership of the association is thirty-five and it is the desire of the officers to double this number.

OPEN AIR SCHOOL A DIRECT BENEFIT

Strong Appeal for Funds to Carry on Important Work.

Anyone walking through Muhlenberg place on a cold wintry day would be astonished to see a building, with sides open to the sun and air, filled with children sitting at desks, studying, writing, ciphering, etc. They are dressed in blanket suits and are warm and comfortable. When sent first to the school all were in a poor condition of health, children who could easily fall a prey to tuberculosis and whose wan little faces fill your hearts with pity, when you realize they are facing life so handicapped.

On entering school in the morning each child is given a bath or spray; at 11 o'clock a glass of milk and at 12:30 a plain but nourishing dinner. A half hour's rest follows this still in the open air, the children lying on cots with heavy warm blankets over them. This enforced rest has proved of inestimable benefit. A test having been made, it was found that the children who did not rest, did not gain as those who had it. You may wonder how it is possible to keep a number of children quiet for a half hour at first, it did seem an impossibility, but a number of young women consented to come and help and one a day reads and entertains them, so they forget they have to rest.

As the spring opens and summer comes each child has its tiny little garden which he weeds and waters and which is a never ending delight. As to improvement in studies it has been found on comparison with children of the same grade in the public schools that their standing is in every study higher. Their gain in health has been in every instance good, in some cases such as to warrant their return to the public schools.

All this has been accomplished through the generosity of Plainfield public spirited citizens and those friends to the children who have given of their time and strength. But, alas, this coming season confronts the Anti-Tuberculosis League without funds to warrant its engaging a teacher and continuing the work. Can you not help these delicate little children to a sturdier, happier life? A small contribution from everyone and we can go on. Will you not help? Contributions may be sent to Mrs. E. W. Bulkley or Mrs. David Rowland.

PAUL A. MERTZ WEDS MISS ANNA LEE FOX

Paul A. Mertz, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Mertz, of Durham, Pa., who was formerly head of the English department of the North Plainfield High School, was married this afternoon to Miss Anna Lee Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lee Fox, of Murfreesboro, Tennessee. The ceremony was performed at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents.

The wedding was a quiet one and was attended by only the families and immediate relatives of the couple. The home was attractively decorated with cut flowers. The bride wore a gown of pink chiffon and carried a large bouquet of roses. After a reception the couple left for a short honeymoon and upon their return will reside in Trenton, where Mr. Mertz is a teacher.

ATTRACTIVE ADVERTISEMENT FOR ADELBERG CREDIT STORE

Hyman Adelberg, the Front street credit clothier, has been making a strong bid for trade during the past few weeks, and his advertising has attracted much attention. In today's Daily Press he uses a full page, which has been attractively prepared to call attention to the splendid line of goods which he offers for the Easter trade. The advertisement is one of the most attractive from the point of view of illustration that has appeared in Plainfield for some time.

Mr. Adelberg has one of the oldest established credit houses in the city. He has built up a splendid reputation for fair dealing, and presents to the people of the city for the Easter trade what he says is the finest line of goods that he has ever offered. Easy terms of credit make his store a desirable one to patronize for those who buy that way.

LOSES VALUABLE HORSE.

Joseph Harrigan, of South avenue, lost a valuable horse yesterday. The animal was fed the night before at Mr. Harrigan's place of business in the borough and following an investigation he believes that it swallowed some glass which was found near the place. The horse was one of a team that cost over $300.

POLITICAL POT BOILING IN UNION

George Peek a Candidate to Succeed Sheriff William H. Wright.

2 LOCAL CANDIDATES

County Registrar F. H. Smith Will Seek Re-election—Rev. W. T. Stuchell Will Try for Congressional Nomination.

The political pot which has been simmering in Union county for several weeks, is now beginning to boil, and the various aspirants for office are already conducting a vigorous campaign in the hope of being successful at the fall primaries. There are three offices in the county on which longing eyes are being cast by several prospective candidates, that of the sheriff, county clerk and county registrar.

William H. Wright, the present sheriff, has already announced his candidacy for county clerk to succeed James C. Calvert, and the reports indicate that he is considered a strong man in the race owing to his intimate knowledge of the duties of the office. He is said to have considerable strength not only in Rahway, his home, and in the vicinity of Elizabeth, but at this end of the county as well.

George Peek, who is the deputy sheriff, has announced himself as a candidate for the shrievalty nomination. Mr. Peek has been in the office for several years and is thoroughly acquainted with the work of the office, his knowledge of legal matters being considered valuable to him in that work. His friends are working hard in his interest. Others who have been mentioned for this office among the Republicans are Andrew McCardell and Alexander D. Ayers, the friends of both urging them to enter the race.

The fact that Frank H. Smith, the present county registrar, will seek a nomination, is quite likely to send the shrievalty nomination to another part of the county. Mr. Smith, according to his friends, is the strongest candidate the party can name, and they point with considerable pride to his record as county registrar. That there will be other candidates among the Republicans is likely but Mr. Smith, it is said, is quite sure to have the support of his party.

The Congressional fight is already assuming a lively aspect, especially since Rev. William T. Stuchell, the former pastor of the Presbyterian church, of Rahway, has announced himself a candidate for the Republican nomination. He is widely known throughout the county, and his friends and supporters predict that he will be successful in his fight. Mr. Stuchell is of the aggressive type and his campaign is already underway.

It is confidently expected that Mayor Percy H. Stewart will be a candidate for State Senator on the Democratic party primary ticket, and former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman will be a candidate for the Congressional nomination in the Republican primary and this is sure to result in a lively campaign in the Republican and Democratic parties.

STATE BOARD MEETINGS.

Trenton, April 9.—The State Board of Equalization of Taxes, today, announced their schedule of meetings throughout the State, which includes the dates for sittings at Somerville and Elizabeth. The Board will meet at the latter place on April 22 to hear Union and Middlesex county cases and at the former place on June 4 to hear Somerset county cases.

PURCHASED FOURTEEN LOTS.

The Berkeley Heights Association purchased fourteen lots at a sheriff's sale held at Elizabeth yesterday afternoon. The sale is the result of a mortgage foreclosure proceedings brought by Jonathan Clawson in order to have the title cleared. The lots which were located at the corner of Park and Woodbine avenues, were owned by the Association eight years ago.

TO LICENCE BROKERS.

Trenton, April 9.—The Senate yesterday passed Assemblyman Burton's bill providing for the examination of fire insurance brokers and agents and the licensing of them by the State. The bill was urged upon the floor of the Senate by Senator Ramsay, of Middlesex county, who explained it as a measure to protect policy-holders against unscrupulous brokers and agents.

GEORGE SCHAFER.

George Schafer, for several years a resident of this city, died yesterday at the State Hospital at Morris Plains. The funeral services will be held at the home of his sister, Mrs. Patrick Kellegher, of 107 Manning avenue, the borough, and will be private.

COPPENHAVEN STILL HELD IN THE TOMBS

Although He Has Been Exonerated Prisoner is Kept in a Cell.

Although he has been exonerated from all blame in the Ruth Naylor disappearance case, Thomas Coppenhaven, who was at one time alleged to have some knowledge of the whereabouts of the girl, is still held a prisoner in the Tombs. He has been confined in a cell since Saturday afternoon, awaiting extradition to New Jersey. In their confessions to the police, Lynus Walpole, Jr., and Ruth Naylor shoulder the blame for the escapade that has aroused State-wide attention and every suspicion has been raised from Coppenhaven's head.

According to a story told by the father of the girl when her absence was first discovered, Coppenhaven was alleged to have abducted her from the premises of the Stillman Grammar School, but it has since been learned that Walpole is the guilty party. Now that the mystery in which the case has been shrouded is cleared up it is thought likely that Coppenhaven will be given his release at once.

As the result of certain incidents that have been brought to the attention of the police since the apprehension of Walpole the local authorities are planning to conduct a rigid crusade against the practice of girls and boys loitering around the street corners in the business section. Chief Kiely has issued orders to his men to break up the practice and congregating in the vicinity of the postoffice and at other points along Front street will probably result in arrest.

WILL PROBABLY ENGAGE G. W. FULLER AS ENGINEER

The joint sanitary sewer commission met last night, in the city offices on North avenue, and spent most of the evening discussing the question of engaging an engineer to supervise the work of construcing the joint trunk sewer. No decision was reached, but it seems to be the belief that George W. Fuller, who prepared the plans for the projection will be engaged as engineer.

Some of the members of the commission are of the opinion that a local man should be given the opportunity to take charge of the work, but it seems impossible for the members to agree on any one person. Nothing was done last night toward purchasing rights of way for the trunk line, this matter being in the hands of a special committee.

W. L. SAUNDERS RE-APPOINTED.

Trenton, April 9.—Following his approval yesterday afternoon of the New Jersey Harbor Commission Bill introduced by Mr. Hennessy, Governor Fielder sent in his nominations for the membership of the Commission as follows: J. Spencer Smith, of Tenefly; William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield; Richard C. Jenkinson, of Newark; W. Parker Runyon, of Perth Amboy, and Charles S. Boyer, of Camden county.

HELD SUCCESSFUL DANCE.

A successful dance was held in Debele Hall, last night, under the auspices of a party of young people of the borough. CODDINGTON MAY BE HEAD OF TAX BOARD

His Qualification Makes Him One of the Leading Choices to Succeed Scudder.

Since the appointment of William A. Coddington, of this city, to the Union County Board for the Equalization of Taxes, to suceed Mulford M. Scudder, of Westfield, there has been considerable speculation as to who will be elected chairman at the organization meeting, May 1. When the Board became Democratic two years ago through the appointment of former Assemblyman Brodhead, Mr. Scudder was chosen as chairman because he was the senior member.

Mr. Coddington's appointment retains the Democratic majority on the Board and if the same precedent of seniority is followed John J. Collins, of Elizabeth, will be selected as the presiding officer. He has been a member of the Board only a few months, but is said to be well qualified for the office.

It is not known whether or not Mr. Coddington is seeking the office of chairman, but it is also said that he will not refuse the job if it is decided in his favor. He has a wide knowledge of realty matters and being an attorney would make a good man for the position.

PLANNING FOR A CITY ELECTRICIAN

Councilman John H. Cose Preparing an Ordinance to Create This Office.

CITY LINEMEN, TOO

Appointment of These Men Would Mean Saving in Time and Money—Matter to Be Presented at Next Meeting of the Common Council.

As the result of many months of study and investigation, Councilman John H. Cose has plans underway for the introduction of an ordinance before the Common Council, calling for the appointment of a city electrician and a city lineman. Although the matter is still in its infancy, it has received general sanction from officials and will undoubtedly meet with the approbation of every taxpayer. The ordinance is to be presented at the next regular Council meeting.

A perusal of Mr. Cose's plan shows that it will not only save money for the city but also facilitate the work of local contractors. Plainfield now pays a flat rate of $1,900 a year for the maintenance of its police and fire alarm systems, $500 for the former and $1,400 for the latter. The installation of new boxes, the changing or stringing of new wires and anything outside of ordinary repairs is charged extra. The cost is frequently brought up to $2,500. This year it will go over that amount as the March blizzard damage has produced an outside bill of $400. In addition to these items the citizens are charged $5 direct for each inspection of new or old electrical wiring, the work being done by an inspector for the Board of Underwriters. This official visits the city once a week. Any work completed the day after he is here must wait for his next trip, thus holding back all work on a building for that time. The Public Service also has a rule which prohibits the connecting of power with any job not O. K.'d by the inspector.

Mr. Cose's ordinance will call for the appointment of a supervising electrician at a salary of perhaps $1,500 a year and a lineman at $1,000. The former will have general charge of the police and fire alarms and also make all the house inspections. This will prevent the delay to contractors, and the $5 now paid to an outsider can go toward the new salaries.

New Brunswick and other nearby cities have tried the scheme, finding it satisfactory from every point of view. The underwriters prefer to have a local man do the inspecting and the Public Service also endorses the plan. The electrical department of the latter reports that in the past year there were 350 inspections in Plainfield, which gave the underwriters a total of $1,750.

Mr. Cose has compiled numerous other data to properly outline his ordinance and when it comes before the Council it will be devoid of theory, showing only what is practical in asking for the creation of the new department.

BOARDS OF EDUCATION NOW CONSTITUTED FEDERATION

Trenton, April 9.—All local Boards of Education in New Jersey are constituted into a "State Federation of District Boards of Education," under a new law just made by Governor Fielder by signing House Bill No. 372, by Mr. Agnew, of Bergen county. It provides that each District Board shall annually select a member as a delegate to the State Federation.

The Federation is empowered to investigate subjects relating to education and to encourage all movements for the improvement of the educational affairs of the State. It may make its own rules and select such officers as may be necessary. Each District Board is authorized to pay the expenses of its delegate and to pay annually not to exceed $10 for the dues of the delegate.

ASSEMBLYMAN AGNEW'S BILL PASSED BY VOTE OF 31 TO 11

Trenton, April 9—The nearest approach to legislation along the small Board of Freholders line that the House of Assembly has adopted this session was the passage yesterday by a vote of 31 to 11, of Assemblyman Agnew's bill, No. 631, embodying the proposities but carrying a referendum. Agnew, who comes from a county desiring a small board, several times yesterday made attempts to have the rules suspended and the bill taken up on third reading and final passage, but at each attempt failed, and the bill was not considered until reached in regular order.

FIELDER LOSES MANDATORY BILL

Freeholder Measure Passes Assembly With Referendum.

APPROPRIATIONS $8,482,306

Shows an Increase of $457,600 Over Last Year—Governor Has Bill For Protection at All Grade Crossings. Legislature Scheduled to Adjourn Today—Sunday Liquor Bill Defeated.

Trenton, N. J., April 9.—With final adjournment scheduled for today, the assembly passed the Agnew freeholders bill, which is a referendum measure and not the mandatory bill for small boards in every county which Governor Fielder has urged in strong messages and otherwise. Then came the annual presentations. Speaker Beekman got a diamond ring from his fellow members, and both the floor leaders were remembered with gifts.

Showing a total of $8,482,306, or an increase of $457,000 over last year, the regular annual and supplemental appropriation bills were introduced in the legislature by Senator Hennessy as chairman of the joint appropriations committee. The sum of $163,000 is appropriated to the State Hospital For the Insane here, $175,000 to the Village For Epileptics at Skillman, $21,500 to the Morris Plains institution, $140,000 to the Home For Feeble Minded Women at Vineland, $30,000 to the State Reformatory For Women at Clinton, $22,500 to the State Prison farm in Cumberland county, $20,000 to the Sanatorium For Tubercular Diseases at Glen Garden.

The Camden armory gets $50,000 for completion, and $25,000 each is appropriated for completion of the Orange and Red Bank armories. The Asbury Park armory gets $5,500 for equipment. The educational appropriations amount to $819,877, compared with $836,966 last year. Appropriations for public roads are $604,300, as against $582,600 last year. For a manufacturing plant at the prison here $50,000 is appropriated, and the state board of children's guardians gets $23,000 for the operation of the mothers' pension act. The State House park commission gets $40,000 for completing the work and $30,000 to be used in restoring the old barracks, which forms a part of the park scheme.

In the assembly the Mulligan Sunday selling bill, to permit the sale of liquor between noon and 10 o'clock at night when served with meals, was laid aside. Mr. Scovel warned the Democrats that the passage of the bill would end their power in state affairs. It is not likely that it will be moved again at this session.

One of the most important measures passed by both houses and now ready for the governor is the Edge bill requiring every railroad company to provide protection at grade crossings within six months.

JERSEY BANKS FIGHT.

Institutions Demand They Be Placed In New York's Reserve District.

Jersey City, N. J., April 9.—New Jersey banking institutions near New York entered strong protests against the federal reserve bank committee's action, which places them in the Philadelphia reserve district. The objection is made on the ground that New York is the natural banking point for near by New Jersey cities and that if Philadelphia is made the reserve center instead of New York the protesting banks will lose much business.

At a meeting the Hudson county group of the New Jersey Bankers' association adopted a resolution setting forth the desire to be in New York's district.

In Passaic a protest against placing the banks of that city and its vicinity in the Philadelphia district was recorded by the Associated Bankers of Passaic.

VINDICATION COMES TOO LATE

Amann, Who Committed Suicide When Criticised, Held Blameless.

Arlington, N. J., April 9.—Complete vindication has come too late for Adolph Amann, president of the board of trade, who committed suicide last Thursday because of criticisms directed at the Kearny board of assessors, of which he was a member.

The Hudson county board of taxation issued a statement clearing Amann absolutely of the charges that he had made illegal assessments. The statement said that his mistakes were only such as every assessor makes, were not serious and that his work had been excellent in the main.

ELEVATOR OPERATOR KILLED.

Found Lifeless With Head Crushed In Shaft of Newark Building.

Newark, N. J., April 9.—Chester Wheeler of 472 Bergen street, elevator operator in the Hilton building at 791 Broad street, was killed in the shaft. He was found lifeless with his head crushed and one arm caught between the inch space between the edge of the car floor and the sill of the first floor.

Miss Beatrice Young rang for the elevator at the fourth floor. She says the car came from above and passed her without stopping.

SO. PLAINFIELD TO THE FRONT.

South Plainfield may be, as the Public Service Corporation termed it in giving their reasons for not building a trolley line from this city to that place, "a small collection of houses surrounding the railroad station." That self-same corporation will find, however, before they get through with the members of the lively little Board of Trade which has been organized in that town, that the little fellows are the best fighters. When they heard that the Public Service would not build the line, for various and assorted reasons, the members of the civic body did not sit idly by, and twirl their thumbs. They started in to find out why their claim for service was not a just one, and they have taken the matter up with the Public Utility Commission. That body evidently thought there was some justice in the contention of the South Plainfielders, for they have set a date for a hearing at Newark.

The whole action on the part of the people of Plainfield's neighbor is commendable. The residents know that a trolley line would be a distinct benefit to the town, and they believe that they can show that it will pay. Here in Plainfield the advantages of having better communication between the two places is well known. The interests of both are so identical that South Plainfield and its people look to this city as their principal trading place. The Plainfield Board of Trade is going to do all it can to help matters along, and this city should be represented at that hearing by a committee of leading business men. Perhaps when the Public Service officials see that the South Plainfielders are such a lively group they'll wake up to the fact that their request for service is worth heeding.

CARRYING FIREARMS.

Carrying firearms is a practice which should never be encouraged, but there are instances where persons are justified in asking the privilege. A short time ago a driver of a public auto bus which makes trips until midnight, applied for a permit to carry a revolver for use in emergency and was refused the right. As a rule, he has in his possession considerable money and at times has encountered much trouble from rowdies who leave here on the last trip to South Plainfield.

A few weeks ago two enlisted men in the United States Navy boarded the bus in this city and created such a rumpus enroute to South Plainfield that other patrons were forced to leave the vehicle. These trouble makers could not be quelled and the driver was threatened with bodily harm if he did not take them to their destination without protest. He made a complaint in the police court the following morning but the men had made good their escape. In cases of this nature reputable persons should be granted the right to carry firearms for self-protection.

No one wishes to encourage "gunneting" in this or any other city, but certain concessions should be granted to insure safety of citizens and business men against rowdyism. Hundreds of weapons are confiscated annually by the local police. They include pistols, blackjacks, brass knuckles, razors and slingshots, but the pistol is the most dangerous of all and the police have to use discretion in granting such permits. To issue this right indiscriminately would place a menace on human life and the refusal of the demand of the auto bus driver was probably the result of a misunderstanding.

It is hard to understand why the people of two intelligent communities like Plainfield and North Plainfield stand for the present conditions which keep them in two separate municipalities. Mayor Clark, of the borough, who has made an exhaustive study of the subject of consolidation so clearly states the need of such action at the earliest possible moment, that he leaves not a leg for the opponents of the idea to stand on. He shows how every thing which boroughites do is for the benefit of the people of both communities, and he so evidently has the support of everyone but a few politicians in his own municipality that it seems a shame that action was not long ago taken to bring about the union. North Plainfield aids in supporting many local institutions and charities, and the people of that place have everything in common with the city residents. It is hoped that the movement which the borough mayor so ardently advocates will soon result in a "Greater Plainfield."

No doubt the residents in the neighborhood of the proposed new school on Evergreen avenue feel that the building should not be erected there, as indicated by their protest to the Board of Education. But it must be borne in mind that there has to be a new school somewhere, which is conveniently located for pupils within a given territory, and no matter where it goes someone will be justified in making a protest. Almost any project for the good of a considerable part of the people affects some adversely. The Board of Education has struggled with the question, and studied it from every angle, and they think that they have arrived at the only solution in their determination to build on Evergreen avenue.

Elizabeth people are complaining about the tiny platforms on the rear of the pay-as-you-enter trolley cars, which have caused so much trouble here. As a consolation for the kickers they were told that in Plainfield the platforms are even smaller than in the county seat. Fine evidence of the inconveniences which Plainfield people are willing to put up with. There's only one way to remedy a matter of this kind. That is to complain to the proper authority, the Public Utility Commission. No one ever heard of conditions being remedied by any utility corporation without a protest being made.

If anyone doubts the true democracy of Senator Martine's family, let him read the sign displayed on the Cedar Brook grounds. Facing Watchung avenue, it conveys the invitation in bold characters: "Trespass this property."

News item says a bomb was found in Race street and presented to the Elks. The donor probably wanted to convey a gentle hint that the lodge might join in the national uplift movement.

Another instance of the little ironies of life. Twice within the past week a local undertaker has acted as pall bearer at a funeral conducted by a business rival.

The contributed editorial for Saturday will be appropriate to the great day which is to be observed on Sunday. It has been written by a popular local clergyman.

POPCORN WAGONS ABOLISHED.

Washington, N. J., April 9—A feature of the good old summer time will be missed at the Square in Washington this summer. The popcorn wagons will not be allowed to stand in the street. Two of them had been licensed and given that privilege heretofore. Now it has been learned that the authorities exceded their authority and that the Mayor has no right to give permission to obstruct the streets and use them for market purposes. The two popcorn men each paid $5 a year license for the privilege, and William Vanover has paid for ten years.

CHICAGO WILL RECEIVE $3,299,000 FROM RAILWAYS

Chicago, Ill., April 9—The city of Chicago will receive $3,299,000 as its share of the net earnings for the last year of the surface street railways, according to the annual reports of the companies made public today. The traction fund which has accumulated since the franchise became effective, and which is now in the city treasury, amount to about $14,000,000.

BANK CLERKS WILL RECEIVE VACATION BONUS

If the bank clerks of New York city had their way they would be all employed today by the Corn Exchange Bank. There is a reason. The bank has become the regular calling place for Santa Claus, and not only will he make a stop there in wid-winter, but also in summer.

For each of the unmarried men and girls he will have $50 and for the married or those who have families he will have $100. The total amount will be about $36,000.

It was after consultation with the officers of the bank that Santa Claus decided upon this extraordinary variation of his age honored custom. Speaking of it today, Walter E. Frew, president of the bank, said:

"We have been considering a step of this kind for a long time. We believe it will be a good investment. By it we shall insure that all of the bank's employes will obtain the kind of vacation needed to refresh them after the year's work and renew their vigor and energy, to the benefit of the bank and of its customers.

"We have found sometimes that when vacation time arrived many of our employes had not saved sufficient money to enable them to take a really good holiday. In consequence they have remained in or about town, losing much of the beneficial effect vacations are intended to give."

FIANCEE RESTORES SON TO HIS DYING MOTHER

After an absence of seven years, during whih period his parents never heard from him and supposed him to be dead, Martin E. Livingston, who has been working in the West for years, is at the home of his parents, at No. 338 Fifteenth street, Newark, today, where his mother was supposed to be dying from constant worry over the absence of her son. The young man went back after his fiancee had seen an advertisement about his mother.

The father, Henry Livingston, began a search for his son several years ago, when he saw his wife's health failing. He sent circulars to many cities and advertised in many papers. Only recently, when a physician informed him that his mother soon would die unless her boy returned, he caused an advertisement to be inserted in a newspaper in Denver, Col.

The advertisement was seen by Miss Catherine Taylor, of Glenwood Springs, Col., who was engaged to be married to Martin Livingston and who had met him when he was there more than a year ago. She sent it to him where he was working on an irrigation dam at Elephant Butte, N. M. The advertisement stated that his mother was dying and praying to see him before the end.

Martin Livingston left his work and started for Newark on the first train. He entered the home in Newark unannounced last night. The feeble and emanciated mother leaped from her bed and her arms clung to his neck. His father, who was tall, erect and dark when he left, was now bent and white haired. The physician said the mother might recover.

Miss Edith Moffett will address the Do Good Society in New York this afternoon, to be held at the Do Good Society Hall at 3 o'clock.

RESUME OF THE FIRST TOURNAMENT HELD ON COLUMBUS CLUB'S NEW BOWLING ALLEYS

The Columbus Club Bowling Tournament, held on the club's alleys, closed last week and the Brandywine five, composed of F. T. McInerney, captain, James Strappe, John P. Kyle, Thomas F. Carty and William V. Sullivan, were returned the winners by taking eleven out of the fifteen games. The Brandywine heroes showed they were easily the class of the league by winning every series—taking two out of three from Gettysburg, Lexington, Yorktown, Bunker Hill and three straight from Germantown, and also by establishing the odd record of taking second high team average with 810.2, second high team score with 920, and their captain, F. T. McInerney captured second high individual average with 183.5 and second high individual score with 238. The Lexington five finished in second place with nine games won and six games lost and holding the high team score of 934. Third place resulted in a tie between Bunker Hill and Gettysburg with eight wins and seven losses, while Yorktown and Germantown finished fourth and fifth respectively.

The victorious Brandywine pinners will be awarded a handsome silver trophy with the names of the team inscribed thereon and same will be placed permanently in Columbus Club after presentation. This prize was greatly sought for by the different teams as it carried with it the signal honor of being the first trophy won on the club's new alleys.

The formal presentation of the trophy will be made some night next week and will be in charge of George F. Taylor, manager of the tournament, assisted by the house committee of Columbus Club. At the same time these following medals will be awarded:

High average, G. F. Taylor, gold medal, Gettysburg; second high average, F. T. McInerney, silver medal, Brandywine; third high average, C. A. Shannon, bronze medal, Bunker Hill; high score Edward Taylor, gold medal, Lexington; second high score, D. A. Mack, bronze medal, Germantown.

Although McInerney had second high individual score this prize goes to Mack, for one of the rules of the tournament was that no individual could claim two prizes.

The statistician of the tournament, Thomas F. Carty, has compiled the following averages of the different teams and individuals, from which it will be noted that four of the prize winners were captains:

ROD AND REEL

The freshets are fast disappearing in the northern section of the State, and they have entirely passed away in the south, so the angler can take his choice and get some fish. The State game wardens are putting out a great many trout of a large size so as to supply the anglers with fish above the legal limit of six inches. Warren, Morris and Hunterdon county streams received 5,000 large trout Monday, as well as a number of fingerlings.

The anglers' license bill, Senate 121, that passed both houses of the Legislature, has not been sent to the Governor for his signature, and therefore, is not a law, as many have been led to believe because of an article that appeared in a New York newspaper recently. Many anglers have applied for licenses at the city clerks' offices throughout the State, only to be informed that nothing was known of such a law. If the Governor does sign it, it won't become effective until January 1, 1915, as that is one of the special provisions in the bill.

The Senate stopped the further passage of a House bill Tuesday that proposed to protect female English pheasants for five years by giving it the "silent once over," which assured it a peaceful demise. The objections raised against the bill were several, one being that as long as there was almost $100,000 in the game fund it should be spent on new stock for distribution, and another reason was that it is almost impossible to distinguish between the male and the female when either flushes quickly and thus results in unlawful killing by a gunner who had no desire to violate the law. The greatest objection, however, was against protection of this sort while the fund created by the gunners' license is of such large proportions and could stand the expenditure of a large amount for a further supply of game. The Senators refused to vote one way or the other, and thus killed the bill.

Spearing eels and digging hard clams are two of the industries of the Shrewsbury River that are attracting attention now. The eels the baymen are getting are large, and everybody knows all about the Shrewsbury clam. Both show that the winter has passed for good, and the next we will hear is that weakfish are coming up the coast.

The Sheepshead Bay fishing boats are bringing in a few ling and blackfish. They are getting some very large ling at the Scotland Lightship, while the blackfish are biting best along the shore at the Stone Pile, off Manhattan Beach.

SOME HIGH SCORES BY WINNING CREW

Park Club First Team Triumphed in Three Matches at Expense of "Big Six."

Setting up some phenomenal scores during the evening of competition the Park Club pinners defeated the "Big Six" aggregation in three straight games, passing the thousand mark in capturing two of the verdicts. A score of 1015 swamped the consolidated five in the initial encounter, the first team winning by a margin of 12 5pins, or just about one player's contribution to the tally card.

The Park Club team fell thirteen pins below this record in the next contest and won by 130 counts. The final setto was the banner one of the evening and was a hair raiser taking all phases into consideration. The first team won, but had to go the limit to nose out the second string shooters. The final score was 991 to 990.

The teams lined up as follows:

PARK CLUB	BIG SIX
Barlow	Boice
Lyman	Benjamin
Long	Boff
Mulford	Strong
Ball	Berckley, Baurer

ORANGE TEAM WILL PLAY LOCALS AGAIN

"Mid-Summer" Basketball Game Scheduled to Be Contested on April 30.

Basketball followers in this section will be able to enjoy their favorite pastime for sometime to come if the plans of a certain group of promoters in this city materialize. Last week a colored basketball aggregation from Orange visited Saengerbund Hall and was defeated by a margin of one field goal by the Plainfield All-Star combination, but the latter team, convinced that it can turn the tables on the Plainfielders, has issued a second defy and this will be accepted by the local aggregation.

The contest will be staged on the Saengerbund Hall court and a dance will follow. Harry Moulton will manage the local team and will have two new men in the lineup to play the guard positions on this occasion. A local sport enthusiast has donated five silver medals to be awarded to the performers on the winning side and the presentations will be made immediately following the encounter.

The first meeting of these two rivals proved a monster success, several hundred spectators witnessing the game which was one of the best ever staged in this city or the borough. John J. Gates and Jack Hegeman, the promoters of the first match are arranging the details for the game April 30, and indications at present point to a repetition of the former treat. The Orange club will send its strongest lineup to Plainfield and this has been fast enough to put it over Howard University and several other notable opponents during the past season.

SUNDAY BASEBALL DEFEATED.

Boston, April 9—Advocates of Sunday baseball were again defeated in the House yesterday. The vote was 128 to 84 on a motion to kill the bill.

Sporting Editor:

Query—I would like to find out where the Colgate College is in New York State. To whom should I address a letter regarding a course I desire to take up? I know of a Plainfield boy who is there but I can't send him a letter because I do not know where he lives. By printing the answer in your columns you will be doing me a great favor.—C. A.

ANOTHER MAGNATE THINKS THE FEDERALS ARE A JOKE

"The statement that the Federal League is a major league is a joke," says Edward G. Barrow, of New York. Barrow is spending a few weeks at Mount Clemens taking the mineral baths and resting for the coming season. He is president, secretary and treasurer of the International League.

"About thirty-five of our players took the bait offered by the Federals, but we will not lose at the most more than twenty-four, and as the opening day approaches the prospects are that several other Internationals will come back and join their teams.

"We shall offer no bribes to get any of our men back, but we will take back all of our players who come to us before our opening date, April 21. After that time they will be penalized from two to five years.

"The International League will have Federal League opposition in Buffalo and Baltimore, but we are looking for this to be our best season and do not fear opposition from the kind of ball the Federals will be able to put up."

NOSE BROKEN BY SPECTATOR.

Arlie Britton, a pitcher for the Newark International League Club, had his nose broken during practice at Weidenmayer's Park yesterday. While Britton was delivering a ball to a teammate in batting practice a spectator batted a liner straight at the pitcher. The ball struck full in the face and floored him. Britton was taken to a physician's office nearby, where the break was set. He will be unable to play for several weeks.

WARDS SNARE SEATON.

Tom Seaton, the star of the Philadelphia Nationals last season, will pitch for the Brooklyn Federals after all. According to Business Manager John M. Ward of the independent club across the bridge, the recalcitrant pitcher was won over by Secretary Walter S. Ward in Gulfport, Miss., yesterday afternoon. The young official left the Mississippi town immediately with his capture. He headed direct for the Brooklyn training camp at Columbia, S. C.

NIPPED IN THE BUD BY "JUP" PLUVIUS

Leal School Baseball Schedule Started But Opening Game Was Never Completed.

Jupiter Pluvius appeared on the scene yesterday afternoon and stopped a good game of baseball in which the Leal School team and Westfield High School were the participants. Hardly had the games started when the downpour came and it kept up for four long innings before Umpire Mullin called it off. When the contest was brought to an end the visitors were in the lead by a 5 to 2 score.

The whole Leal team appeared to be nervous at the start of the game and three errors with two hits in the early part of the fray proved fatal.

Voorhees was wild at times and between wild throws and passed balls the Westfield boys netted a pair of tallies. They scored once in each of the first two innings and then landed a trio over the plate in the third. The locals were shut out by their opponents in the two opening innings and ran two across the pan in the third. The Gilmartin brothers were the main stickers for the visitors, each getting a two bagger, and the little second baseman singled the first time at bat. Rahb also poled out two singles. Voorhees, Stewart and Van Deventer did the hitting for Leal's. Faber did the backstop work and nabbed all that came his way.

WILL REORGANIZE OLD BELMONT BASEBALL CLUB

Johny Clough and Freddy Schiller, the two Elizabeth boys who wore Dunellen uniforms in the Central New Jersey League race last season, are out to reorganize the old Belmont baseball club now that the Elizabeth A. A. nine has decided not to stage Saturday afternoon games. Clough and Schiller are in back of a big revival movement to re-establish Saturday afternoon baseball in Elizabeth and it looks as though their idea would meet with popular approval from the fans of that municipality.

Many local fans well remember the old Belmonts who were one of the fastest set of performers in this county some years ago. The team played on the historic old Moxley Field, located at the foot of Geneva street. The nine was composed entirely of youngsters and took all comers. The "Bels" numbered among their victims semi-professional aggregations from this city and other parts of the State with the result that the team's fame spread throughout the Union county seat, bringing throngs to the "Frog Hollow" pasture weekly.

SHARKEY RECUPERATING.

Harold Sharkey, sporting editor of the Courier-News, is able to be out again, following an illness that has confined him to his bed since January. Sharkey is recovering from the long seige as well as can be expected, but will not be able to return to his former duties for another month at least.

A PRACTISE GAME.

The Saurer team, of last year's City League, and the First Baptist baseball nine, of the Sunday-school League, will oppose each other on the West End avenue field next Saturday afternoon. The game will be called at 2:30 sharp.

LAST PLEA FAILS; GUNMEN TO DIE

Governor Glynn Refuses Request of Ministers.

PATHETIC SCENE AT ALBANY

Executive Trembles as He Hears the Appeal of Clergy—Shakes With Emotion as He Again Tells Them That Gunmen Must Pay Death Penalty.

Albany, N. Y., April 9.—After an ordeal which left him weak and ill, Governor Glynn refused to reverse himself and grant a reprieve to the four gunmen under sentence to die in Sing Sing prison next week for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. In taking this stand the governor denied an impassioned and dramatic appeal made by five clergymen of New York, led by the Rev. Dr. Jacob Goldstein, Jewish chaplain of Sing Sing and also of the Tombs, who has spent much time with the convicted men. The gunmen now must die in the electric chair next Monday He said:

"I am sorry, but I can't go back of my decision, which was based upon the opinions of the judges of the court of appeals and the record in the case. My blood is just as red as yours, my heart just as soft and my sympathy just as warm, but I have done my duty as I see it before God. Nothing in my life ever racked me as the case of these four boys. For five nights and five days I have poured over the record of this case, and I would have given up all that I own if I could have avoided passing upon their appeals. If I could conscientiously have spoken the word that would have saved them from the chair."

Governor Glynn trembled and clinched his hands to avoid showing his feeling when Rabbi Goldstein, the Jewish chaplain at Sing Sing, pleaded for the lives of the four gunmen. It was this, the last appeal, that touched the governor, and he plainly showed that he was overcome. Backed into a corner of the executive chamber, with the eyes of about a hundred people fixed upon him watching his eye expression, the governor looked out across the room as he listened to the appeal of the Rev. Mr. Goldstein.

Dramatic Appeal.

"Governor, before God I declare it is my opinion these boys are innocent. Must I, knowing that they are innocent, lead each of them in turn from the cell to the death chair, leaving the dead body of one to bring the live body of another? Must I give God's sanction to a deed I know is unjustified and which the second Becker trial will certainly prove to have been unjustified?"

Governor Glynn tried to say something, but his voice failed him, and the Rev. Mr. Goldstein, who has been the spiritual adviser of the gunmen continued:

"Governor, I appeal to you to save Frank Cirofici, the only Christian of the four, from the chair. I know morally that the three other boys did not do the actual shooting, but of the absolute innocence of Cirofici I am positive.

"Standing before me and calling God to witness the truth of what they said, the three other boys declared that Cirofici was not at the Metropole hotel when Rosenthal was killed, that he had no part in the plan to spirit away Rosenthal, that he was elsewhere when the crime was done. Governor, can't you save him from going to his death?"

"All I have to act on," replied the governor, "is the record of the courts and the opinions of the judges, which hold the four guilty alike of the murder of Rosenthal."

Governor Glynn here pointed out that sixteen months had elapsed since the date of their conviction and that in that time nothing had been done to unearth new evidence upon which he could base any action tending to go behind the decisions and opinions of the courts.

Rev. Dr. Brachman told the governor that the day set for the execution was the commencement of the Jewish feast of the Passover, a period of rejoicing, and that their death at this time would tend to throw a pall on the festival. He pleaded for the postponement of the electrocution until after this festival.

Governor Glynn declared that if there was any reason for his changing his mind he would not be ashamed to do it. "But as I studied the record," continued the governor, "I learned that four men identified these men and swore they were at the scene with guns in their hands. What can I do with such evidence before me? Understand me—this has been a greater strain on me than on any one else, for it was my word that was final."

UNION COUNTY REPUBLICANS PREPARING FOR CAMPAIGN

Elizabeth, April 9.—There is much gossip among Republican leaders in Union county as to who will be the standard-bearer in the Congressional fight next November and also as to who the party opponents will be at the primaries. Friends of Charles N. Fowler, the former representative from this district, which now embraces Union and Morris counties, are quietly sounding sentiment in his behalf. Mr. Fowler, however, has not committed himself as to his candidacy and has no comment to make. That he is looked on with favor by the Progressives as well as the "regulars," is the assertion of his friends, and for this reason they say he is the strongest man that can be named.

Mr. Fowler is understood to have decided views on the recent bank reserve centre, appointment and currency legislation and was prepared to discuss the issues in the Congressional fight in Passaic county had the campaign there taken an oratorical and stump-speaking turn. He has also made a close study of the tariff situation as it affects the Singer factory here. He is said to have been more than pleased at his primary showing in the governorship fight.

Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield, former State Senator, has announced his candidacy, and the Republican fight may be narrowed down to these two. It is not thought likely that there will be any candidates from Morris county.

ANNUAL CHURCH MEETINS

in the Sunday-school. He told of the work of the Young Men's Association, which as a result of athletic games had been able to turn over to the church about $65 during the year, and described the activities of the Girls' Protective League, which has been formed to meet two nights a month, the first for a social gathering and the other to receive instruction in how to care for themselves, study the temptations which might come to them, and how to help others in the shop where they might be working, and also how to surround themselves with the proper sanitary conditions.

The same method of selecting a nominating committee for the elders and deacons was adopted as that decided upon for trustees.

After the business meeting there was a social hour in the Sunday-school room, at which refreshments were served. Wives of the elders, including Mrs. John F. Harman, Mrs. Augustus V. Heely, Mrs. William D. Murray, Mrs. Henry Cochran and Mrs. G. Herbert Condict acted as hostesses. Mrs. H. L. DeForest and Mrs. Joseph W. Sandford poured coffee and Mrs. Samuel T. Carter, Jr., and Mrs. Leslie R. Fort had charge of the lemonade. They were assisted in serving by Miss Eva Brown, the the Misses Leal, Miss Helen Hyde, Miss Ruth VanVliet and Miss Helen Harman.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The annual meeting of the church and congregation of the First Presbyterian church was held in the church parlors last night with a very large attendance. The meeting of the church was first called to order with Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring as moderator. The minutes of the last meeing of April 9, 1913, were read and accepted. The pastor's report of the work in the church and the parish for the past year was very satisfactory and showed a large increase in membership. He called the attention of those present of the great need of a new Sunday school room and asked for the hearty cooperation of the church and congregation in the campaign that is about to be started for this purpose.

Dr. Herring also suggested that the social work of the church among newcomers in this city be extended. The clerk's report showed that the benevolent contributions to the church including the Italian missions amounted to over $3,000, a large increase over last year. Reports of the various organizations of the church all showed a healthy condition and the work under their charge making good progress.

One of the most interesting reports that was read was that of the Italian Mission which is the home missionary field of the church. The report was given by the superintendent of the mission, Rev. Lewis Bond. The work of the mission is progressing rapidly, but is at the present time greatly handicapped by the resignation of the pastor, Rev. Theodore Boretti, who has been called back to his home in Italy. Mr. Boretti has done a fine work while connected with this mission and his loss will be keenly felt.

The election of three elders for a three year term to succeed the three outgoing elders resulted in the choice of Dr. Norman W. Currie, A. V. Searing, Jr., and Harry Williams, who were all unanimously elected. There were seven candidates nominated. The auditing committee which is composed of E. D. George, George B. Wean and F. O. Dunning was re-elected for the coming year.

At the close of the church meeting the congregation was called to order by F. F. Dickerson, who acted as chairman and E. P. Morris was the secretary. The report of W. H. Shotwell, treasurer, showed that the receipts and disbursements totalled evenly, so there was no deficit for the last year and still a small amount due to the treasury. The report of the auditing committee certified the correctness of the book and reports of the treasurer of the Board of Trustees. The resignation of the auditing committee was read and accepted. The nomination committee presented the names of W. H. Shotwell, J. H. Manning and R. H. Radford as trustees for three years. They were all unanimously elected and will succeed Dr. Currie, Harry William and A. V. Searing, Jr. The election of two deacons for three years resulted in the unanimous re-election of E. D. George, Sr., and John H. Johnson. Fred C. Lounsbury and F. O. Dunning were the appointed tellers.

CREEDE ASKS MARTINE TO VOTE FOR TOLLS REPEALER

Thomas H. Creede, of East Orange, has sent a telegram to Senator Martine asking that to support President Wilson's canal tolls policy. Mr. Creede's wire informs the Senator that the sentiment of the business men throughout the West and South is at variance with Mr. Martine's attitude on the tolls question.

"I am one of your constituents residing in East Orange," the telegram reads, "and I take the liberty of informing you that I have traveled over twenty different States in the West and South during the last thirty days and have found the merchants without exception in favor of repealing the toll bill. I have talked with probably 500 travelers from all sections of the country, and the general opinion is that you gentlemen should back up the President at this time. I certinly hope for the honor of dear old New Jersey you will vote for the repeal."

In a letter to the press dated Roanoke, Va., and enclosing a copy of the Martine telegram, Mr. Creede adds:

"The various travelers I met in Pullman cars, day coaches and in the hotels, seemed to be of one mind, and that was the honor of the country was at stake, and the Senators if they wish to represent the great majority of the people from every State, regardless of political parties, should vote for repeal and do so at once."

If the man who says, "I can't afford to advertise" will look over the list of big concerns that were LITTLE concerns before they started to advertise, he will be more likely to say:

"I can't afford NOT to advertise.

NEEDLEWORK

CONVENTIONAL ROSE DESIGN FOR EMBROIDERY OR STENCIL.

Pillows for the living-room or veranda may be made of inexpensive materials such as linen, cotton poplin, craft's canvas or Shantung silk. They should be embroidered or stenciled in colors harmonious with the covers and draperies used.

This design may be developed in one or more colors. It is 3¼ inches wide and is suitable for use on pillows, table-covers, runners or bags. Developed in embroidery on net, this makes an attractive trimming for dresses.

When using this design as a stencil, transfer only a section to the stencilboard and cut out the design with a sharp knife. Lay your material on a smooth board with blotting paper under, to catch the superfluous paint, then fasten the stencil in place with thumb tacks. Use a flat, stiff bristle brush and artists' oil paints. Mix the paints to the consistency of cream with gasoline, and rub the brush almost dry before using.

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern number 14181, will be supplied to readers for 10 cents.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SERVING BEETS.

EASTER TEA MENU.
Mock Turtle Soup.
Veal Curry. Rice.
Lima Beans.
Chilled Bananas.
Beet and Potato Salad.
Apple and Tapioca Pudding.
Coffee.

BEETS make excellent salads and are useful as a garnish for other vegetables.

A Substantial Custard.

Beet Custard.—Boil two beets, remove the skin and cut them into thin slices. Slice two large onions and fry them white in two ounces of butter. Take a tablespoonful of flour and stir it into half a pint of milk with two tablespoonfuls each of sugar and vinegar and a dash of pepper and salt. Let this boil for five minutes, stirring it all the time. Add the sliced beets and stew for half an hour.

Baked Beets.—Take well grown beets and bake them instead of boiling them. Remove the hard outside and you will be agreeably surprised with the sweetness of the beet. Slice into a heated vegetable dish and pour over them two tablespoonfuls of melted butter mixed with the juice of half a lemon, half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper.

Two Delicious Salads.

Beet and Endive Salad.—Peel a cooked beet and cut it into very thin slices. Place in a shallow dish and cover them with a plain salad dressing. About an hour before the salad is to be served cut some crisp endive into small pieces and put into cold water, to which a little lemon juice or vinegar has been added to prevent it discoloring. Arrange the beet in a salad bowl or suitable dish. Pour the dressing over it with the endive.

Beet and Potato Salad.—Slice a small cooked beet and leave the slices in a shallow dish covered with a plain salad dressing for an hour before the salad is required. Select some cooked potatoes, cut them into slices and arrange alternately with the beet in a salad bowl and sprinkle some chopped parsley over the top. Dip some pieces of watercress into the dressing in which the beet has been steeped and arrange them round the edge of the bowl. Then carefully pour the dressing under the sliced potatoes and beet.

The Brownies Sent Out Invitations.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Brownies' Bonfire Party For the Fairies.

THE fairies had really been very busy, but Jack and Evelyn had not heard about them for a long time.

"Can't you tell us a story about the fairies tonight?" asked Evelyn.

"Please do!" chimed in Jack.

"Yes, indeed!" answered daddy. "I could really tell you lots of stories about them, for they have been having all sorts of good times these nice spring days. But the other evening they had a nice party that was given just for them.

"The brownies, you know, love lots of excitement and lots going on all the time. They're never happy unless they can be jumping about enjoying life. So they sent out an invitation to the fairies which read:

"'The brownies of Brownieland request the pleasure of the company of every one of the fairies of Fairyland to a bonfire party on Thursday evening. The brownies expect no replies, as they expect every fairy will just come.'

"The fairies were much excited when they received this invitation. The brownies' parties were always such fun, and a bonfire party—well, that was wonderful! The fairies hadn't thought of bonfires somehow for a long time.

"Now, the fairy queen said that they'd have to arrive at the brownies' party in some unusual manner, as that would please the brownies. She suggested that they should engage some hopping toads to pull their chariots to the party.

"The fairies thought that was a splendid idea, and they engaged the hopping toads. The hopping toads were much honored at being chosen to take the fairies to the brownies' party.

"When the great big bonfire was lighted the brownies entertained the fairies by doing a lot of fancy dances around the bonfire. The hopping toads were allowed to stay and watch the bonfire too. It was the most beautiful blaze, and how the fairies did love seeing it! But of course they were very careful not to go too near the fire.

"After it had died down and only the red embers remained the brownies sang jingles, and the fairies joined in the chorus. And then, to the huge amusement of all, what should the hopping toads do but get up and do a special dance of their own! They wanted to feel that they were a part of the party too.

"It was all the fairies could do to say 'Good night' when it came time to leave, for they had had the most glorious time at the brownies' bonfire party, and they thought the brownies were the most wonderful party givers that ever lived. The brownies were delighted that the fairies had had such a good time and were so pleased, for they thought that it was all a brownie could ask for to please a fairy."

Again we call your attention to the announcement of The International Congress on The Welfare of the Child, at Washington, D. C., April 22-27, 1914. Headquarters, Hotel Raleigh.

Perhaps some may not understand the great significance of this convention, but when we consider that almost every civilized nation is agitating the child-welfare question, we begin to realize that this is a world-wide movement.

The Department of State of the United States Government, co-operated by sending the invitations to every nation to be represented, and many have accepted. Dr. Elizabeth Sloan Chesser, of Great Britain; Miss Mary Ledyard, of Foo Chow, China; Mme. de Ortiz Coffigney, Havana, Cuba; Mrs. Abel Renard, Buenos Aires, Argentine Republic; Madame Ali Kuli Kahn, of Persia, and Mrs. D. N. Furnajieff, of Sofia, Bulgaria, are among the delegates.

Among the topics to be discussed at this Congress will be: "Home and Child Welfare," April 24; "School and Child Welfare," April 25; "Church and Child Welfare," April 26; "State and Child Welfare," April 27. There will be ample opportunity for delegates and guests to visit Mount Vernon, Georgetown, Fort Meyer, and other interesting places. Among the social events in connection with the convention will be a reception given by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, at the White House, at 2 o'clock, April 23.

Under the topic, "The Home and Child Welfare," there will be conferences on Education for Home-making, Personal Hygiene; Domestic Sanitation; Chemistry of Foods; Adjustment of Expenses to Income; Furnishing the Home; Relation of the Home to the Community. Other topics for conference will be, "The School's Responsibility for Healthful Conditions," Co-operation of Parents in School Housekeeping, School Credit for Home Work, The School's Responsibility for Truancy, The School's Treatment of Wayward Children, Correlation of School Work With Lives of Children, Should Children Take Home Their School Work? Vocational Training for Boys and Girls, The Kindergarten a Part of the School System, Development of Individual Initiative by Montessori System, What Cities Do For Immigrant Children, Married Women As Teachers, Equal Need of Men and Women in School Administration, The School and the Working Child. Under the subject of "Erring Children" will be discussed, Police Department and Arrests of Children, Juvenile Courts and Probation Systems, Institutions for Reformation, Treatment of Truancy by State—Efficient or Otherwise, Youth in Prison. Under the topic, "Defective Children," are the sub-heads: Care Provided for Feebleminded Children, Care Provided for Blind Children, Laws Governing Prevention of Blindness, Education of Deaf Infants in Speech, Home Education of Deaf Infants Versus Institution Care.

Those who attended the Lenten luncheon last Monday, given under the auspices of the Plainfield Association of Mothers, were thoroughly convinced of the value of the "penny lunch" plan which has been well-tested at the Bryant School during the present school year. Mrs. H. E. Parker gave a concise and interesting account of the project.

"The Pathfinder," published at Washington, has an editorial which I wish every man and woman might read. This is the subject, "Wanted: Trained Men and Women." If space permits, here are some extracts. "A social investigator has discovered that there are at least 1,500 college-educated young men in New York city alone. A Princeton graduate was found sweeping the streets there the other day. The Chicago Tribune speaks of the case of a graduate of one of the leading universities of the country who went to Chicago recently and who was unable to get work of any sort. He found that there was an over-supply of educated people, and he lacked the practical experience and training which would fit him for taking the jobs that were open. The Pathfinder has always done all it could to emphasize the fact that our education of today, both in colleges and schools, runs altogether too much to the intellectual and not enough to the practical. Our educational institutions for the most part are at least half a century behind the age so far as fulfilling their mission is concerned. Our schools are still turning out literary products, instead of the practically trained young men and women that the world needs. The result is that there is a vast over-plus of these educated classes, so-called, while there is a perpetual and insistant cry for willing hands to take up the real work of the world. What the world wants and is pleading for is more young men and women who can do things, and whose ideals are not based on the exploded New England culturism of several generations ago. It wants young men and women who believe in productive work and know how to go about it."

But this criticism does not apply to our local schools. For example one day this week Dr. Van Horn called upon the Plainfield High School to furnish a stenographer who was capable of taking an address he was to make at the Washington School Wednesday afternoon. There was an immediate response, for the pupils have had practical training, and "know how to go about it."

We have education enough, Heaven knows, but the fault is that it is misapplied. There are numerous university graduates in the government service at Washington who hardly know enough to come in when it rains.

Precious months are spent in schools in studying out-of-date writers, but how many students know how the Concord grape originated, or how to bud a peach seedling? How many boys are taught to fix a door that will not shut properly, or how many girls to prepare an economical and wholesome meal? Many a pupil has been marked down in school because he didn't give the right answer to the absurd question, "How many continents are there?" But in how many schools are like pains taken to teach boys to do plumbing, or painting, or concrete work, or the numerous other things that the world wants?" To get the full force of the argument, send to Washington and get the April 4th issue of the Pathfinder, read it, ponder it, digest it, and get the idea that all honest work is honorable. A man or a woman may work with his or her hands, and still be the embodiment of grace and culture, symmetry and polish.

WHY SENATOR OPPOSES ISSUE

James E. Martine Makes Interesting Reply to J. W. Harrison.

TWO-SIDED QUESTION

Believes Votes for Women Prejudicial to Best Interests of Women and the Country—Praise Woman's Sacrifice.

United States Senator James E. Martine is opposed to "votes for women," and the reasons he gives for the position he has taken on the question are interesting. Recently, J. W. Harrison, who favors the movement for woman suffrage, wrote to Senator Martine for his views. The latter in his characteristic manner says that he is not unmindful of the splendid capabilities and sacrifices made by the women throughout the land, and, is always ready to defend the rights of woman, but thinks it would be prejudicial to the best interest of woman to give her the vote. Mr. Harrison's letter to Senator Martine and the latter's reply follows:

"My dear Senator:—When you were running as a candidate for Senatorial office, an ex-Senator said in his newspaper (The Star), that you were 'not brilliant enough' for the position you were running for. In a speech I made in your favor, at a meeting held in Reform Hall, Plainfield, I replied to that ex-Senator, and 'sugar-trust share-buyer' while on a Senatorial committee of inquiry, by saying that you, James E. Martine 'was not brilliant because you were too honest to stoop to the low level of the ex-Senator's standard of brilliancy,' so for that reason, your honesty, I worked very hard to place you in the honorable position I am so proud to see you in today. Long may you live to be so honored by your fellow citizens of New Jersey.

"If it were not for the great faith I have in your integrity, I would not waste my time in thus writing to you on a question upon which we differ and on which I honestly believe you were honestly mistaken when you cast your vote in the Senate against what is known as 'votes for women.'

"Now I am not in favor of giving votes to women because they are women, any more than I am in favor of giving votes to men, because they are men, but, because they both are citizens of a free country, and as such are both entitled to a voice in the affairs of their family, their homes and their country, and because I aim to be a Democrat in its true sense, though I am not a Democratic party man, because at times they are not democratic, only in name.

"Now, Dear Martine, I want to ask you, in all honesty to cast off all preconceived ideas you may have formed regarding an extension of the franchise to about one-half of our citizens of this free country, who at present have not the franchise, and have borne with so great patience the denial of birth rights, by the other half of our citizens, including yourself, which claim to vote is no more just than the claim they so persistently deny to the other citizens.

"You will admit, I am sure, the great injustice it would be to the male portion of our citizens, if the female citizens already had the vote and the male citizens had not the vote; if the female voters denied citizen's rights to the male citizens, not on the ground of want of intelligence or citizenship, but on the ground of sex only, I am sure you will see and disapprove such injustice.

"You as a man, as a free man, and citizen would feel yourself most harshly treated by a class who were unjustly exercising their tyrannical power as so many male voters are now denying the right to vote to others. 'Might does not make right, now, Senator, honestly does it? I cannot help but believe that those who refuse citizen's rights to other citizens do so because they fail to fully understand the principles of true democracy.

"My dear brother Democrat, just think of the present state of things, and then after you have slept over and thought over this matter, I ask, is it fair, is it just, is it honest, is it wise, is it in accordance with true democracy that any sort of a man can have a vote, but no sort of woman, however intelligent, can have a vote; not even a Joan of Arc, a Florence Nightingale or even your own mother?

"'Who ran to lift you when you fell, and kissed the place to make it well, your mother.' I feel sure you will take these words from me in all honesty and good faith, for I write in the spirit of love on a just cause, feeling sure you will reconsider this whole question of justice with all your big heart, for I know it is your wish to be right, do right truthfully and with justice to all."

Senator Martine's reply is as follows:

"My dear Mr. Harrison:—Your's of 24th inst. at hand. I regret the press of business has made it impossible for me to reply sooner. As with every other big question of the day there are two sides to the woman's suffrage problem. I think it would be prejudicial and detrimental to the best interest of woman and the best interests of the country should they be granted the right of suffrage. I have no other motive in my opposition. I need not to be told of the merits or splendid capabilities and sacrifices made by women throughout the land. I am as earnest in defending the rights of our women as any man can be. I do not criticise your views for I know that like my own, they are the product of earnest conviction, although in opposite directions."

"SIN IS NOT IN BEING TEMPTED, BUT YIELDING"

A large audience greeted R. M. Honeyman at the revival service at Hope chapel, last night, despite the inclement weather. Mr. Honeyman took his text from Proverbs 1:10: "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not." The speaker brought out the thought that all are tempted, whether Christian or otherwise, and that the sin is not in the being tempted, but rather in the yielding to the temptation.

"Many men," he said, "yield to temptation, without considering the end of that sin. If the vision of their end could be seen, there would be less yielding to those things which tend to tear down." This afternoon at 4 o'clock, a meeting will be held for elderly people who otherwise might not be able to attend the services.

"THE SECOND COMING OF THE LORD," SERMON THEME

The revival services at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, was largely attended despite the storm and proved to be one of the best in the series. Prob. B. P. Stout opened the service with singing "The Voice of the Bridegroom," telling a story of ten virgins. This was followed by another song, "The Meeting in the Air," picturing the second coming of Christ, when those who are dead in Christ shall rise and the living shall be caught up with Him. Another song, "Christ Returning," was impressive.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire then preached a strong sermon on "The Second Coming of the Lord," in which he pleaded with the people to be prepared to meet Him. There was one conversion as a result of the appeal.

Preceding the sermon, sixteen people testified that they had found Christ through the revival services and wished to be baptized. They will unite with the Park Avenue Baptist church on profession of their faith, in addition to two others who will unite with the church by letter. The services will continue this evening with sermon and song and tomorrow night Prof. Stout will have entire charge of the meeting, giving in song the full story of "The Passion Play."

Knowing the wants of an over-exacting public, The Mozart Music Co., Inc., are presenting Matthew Ott's musical comedy, "The Movie Girl," with Billy Carlton and a well selected cast and chorus. HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

"FROM THE MANGER TO THE CROSS" IN PICTURES

The Kalem Company's wonderful motion pictures entitled "From the Manger to the Cross," depicting the great events in the life of Christ, will be shown in Y. M. C. A. Hall, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. These films furnish a reverent portrayal of the life of the Savior from His birth in the manger at Bethlehem to His crucifixion on Calvary. They embody the results of the very highest skill in the execution of animated photography.

The great production was made in Palestine in authentic locations. It required eight months of artistic industry, the services of a great number of eminent specialists in authoritative research, a great company of actors and involved an expenditure of $65,000. In every way, it is in keeping with the dignity of the subject.

For the reason that careful attention has been paid to the most minute detail in the unfolding of the story, these films afford a most effective method of instruction and religious culture. Appropriate descriptive sacred music will be rendered during the exhibition of the picture.

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose, equipped to meet every emergency, to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent, unaffected by the hazards of human life.

FAREWELL TEA FOR MRS. MEAD

Delightful Social Function Given at Home of Mrs. F. deL. Hyde.

Y. W. C. A. SPEAKERS

National Officers and Workers in Recent Association Campaign Among the Guests—Miss Margaret Mead Gives a Luncheon.

Mrs. Francis deLacey Hyde, of Mountain avenue, the borough, entertained at her home yesterday afternoon the workers who were engaged in the recent Y. W. C. A. campaign, together with several members of the national board of the association, in connection with which she gave a farewell tea in honor of Mrs Frederick G. Mead, who with her daughters, the Misses Margaret and Frederica Mead, will leave April 21 for a trip around the world.

Among the guests from out of town were Miss Helen Davis, Miss Harriet Taylor, of the national board of the Y. W. C. A., and Miss Dow, head of the Association Training School in New York. They gave most interesting talks on "National Issues of the Y. W. C. A.," explaining concisely what is being done along these lines. As a result it was decided to start a Bible study class next fall, and a number of the one hundred and twenty-five guests present gave Mrs. Percy H. Stewart their names for enrollment.

Following the addresses there was a tea. Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers and Mrs. Charles Livingston Hyde poured and among those who assisted were Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. Louis K. Hyde, Miss Helen Hyde, Miss Margaret Mead and Miss Frederica Mead. During this social hour all present took occasion to say good-bye to Mrs. Mead and her daughters and express the wish that they have a pleasant trip.

Earlier in the afternoon Miss Margaret Mead gave a farewell luncheon at her home, "Sunnyside," for fourteen young women friends. This was a delightful social function. Afterward the young people went to the home of Mrs. Francis deLacey Hyde and enjoyed the tea and reception being given there.

Mrs. Mead and her daughters will leave here April 21 for San Francisco, from which place they will take a steamer for their round-the-world tour. They plan to spend the summer in China, where Mrs. Mead's son, Lawrence Mead, is engaged in mission work. They have set no definite time for their return home, the trip being planed to suit the convenience of the family.

NEWTON B. SMALLEY NAMED AS RIPARIAN COMMISSIONER

Trenton, April 10.—Among the nominations sent to the Senate yesterday afternoon by Governor Fielder, and confirmed, was that of Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, to be a member of the Riparian Commission, to succeed Joseph A. Birkholz. Isaac T. Nichols, of Cumberland county, was appointed to succeed John H. Capstick as a member of the State Board of Health. The appointment of Mr. Smalley comes as a surprise for it was not known that he was a candidate for the place or that his name had even been considered.

ROGERS AND STILLMANS HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Rogers, of Myrtle avenue, the borough, who have been in Florida all winter, returned to town last night, and have opened their house here. They have been at Florence Villa, Florida, having left there last Saturday to go to Daytona, where they spent a few days with former Corporation Counsel and Mrs. William M. Stillman. Accompanied by the Stillmans they left Daytona on Wednesday, and all came to Plainfield together. Mr. Rogers' son, Herbert, has purchased an orange grove at Florence Villa, and will make his permanent home in that place. His engagement to a young woman of that town was recently announced.

MARGARET STRAPP'S FUNERAL.

The funeral services of Margaret Strapp, the young daughter of John Strapp, of Monroe avenue, were held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. Father B. M. Bogan, of St. Mary's R. C. church, officiating. Interment was made at St. Mary's cemetery.

DANIEL R. PAGE KILLS HIMSELF

Former Plainfielder Ends His Life in Harrisburg, Pa., by Self-inflicted Bullet.

HAD BEEN DESPONDENT

Committed Deed in a Cemetery—Family Lived Here For Many Years—Prominent in Work at Hope Chapel in Early Days.

The following article taken from the Harrisburg, Pa., News, of yesterday, conveys the information to many local friends of the death by suicide of a former well known Plainfielder:

"While on his way to dig a grave early this morning, William Meckley, employed as a laborer at the Harrisburg cemetery, found the bocy of a dead man, propped against a stone marker on the Calder family plot.

"At the side of the body was a pool of blood and in the right hand was a 32-calibre revolver. Marks on the sod indicated that the man had stood up when he took his life and had fallen to the sitting position. The body was identified as that of Daniel R. Page, a molder, of 226 North Fifteenth street.

"Page, who is survived by his wife and a son, Harry, left nothing telling why he killed himself. Page had been despondent and in poor health lately. He was employed at Steelton and his work has been irregular.

"Members of the family refused to give any information regarding the suicide's history today. Coroner Jacob Eckinger said it was a plain case of suicide. He said members of the family told him that Mr. Page had been worrying lately over lack of work and protracted illness.

"At the office of the Harrisburg Cemetery Association it was stated that between 7 and 8 o'clock last evening someone had heard a shot, but that no attention was given the matter.

"Page had shot himself through the right temple. The police department was notified and on instructions from Coroner Eckinger, the body was delivered to Rudolph K. Spicer, undertaker.

"Daniel R. Page and his wife resided with their son, Harry Page, who is an electrician. The son was unable to tell positively the age of his father and refused to say whether his father had been ill or despondent. He gave no explanation as to why the father went to the cemetery to take his life. He said his father was never connected with any member of the Calder family."

Mr. Page and his family resided in this city for fifteen years, living most of the time on Elmwood place and at Lee place and West Third street. He was employed at the Pond Tool Works until his removal back to Harrisburg in 1901. Both he and his family were prominent in the work at Hope chapel during its early days, where his daughter, the late Mrs. George E. Firstbrook, was organist for a long time. The latter died as the result of the fall in Harrisburg in 1904. The departure of the family from Plainfield was keenly regretted by the hosts of local friends.

Beside his wife and son mentioned, Mr. Page is survived by one grandson, G. Harold Firstbrook, of East Second street. The funeral will be held at the late residence in Harrisburg tomorrow afternoon, and burial will be in that city.

ANNA GABUNKIN GETS OFF WITH SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Anna Gabunkin, who was charged with the larceny of jewelry and wearing apparel from the home of her employer in this city, was given a suspended sentence when arraigned before Judge James C. Connolly in the Court of Quarter Sessions, in Elizabeth, yesterday, following her conviction last Friday. The accused was arrested in this city by Detective-Sergeant John Flyan after she had taken jewelry and wearing apparel from the family by whom she was employed. Most of the loot was found in her room.

Prosecutor Albert A. Stein entered a plea of leniency in her behalf yesterday, referring to the "spirit of the season." The prisoner has been in this country for five months and speaks poor English. When arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court she was held in $300 bail for the Grand Jury.

Ten Year Old Edward Hannigan Removed to Hospital This Morning.

An automobile driven by Christopher Mobus, struck and severly injured ten-year-old Edward Hannigan as the latter was crossing West Third street near Liberty, this morning. Mobus picked the injured youth up and took him in his car to the office of Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, who upon examination found that his leg had been fractured. He was later removed to Muhlenberg Hospital and is now resting comfortably.

The boy was going on an errand for his parents who live at 437 West Third street when the accident happened and the front of the machine hit the youngster with force enough to knock him several feet from the car. Following the accident, the driver of the vehicle, who is employed by Harry Huff, gave himself up to the police. He was released in Huff's custody to await the outcome of the boys' injuries.

ITALIANS ARRESTED FOR STEALING CROSS ARMS

Charged with stealing new cross arms used for stringing wire by the city, Ralph Croat and Tony Commanto, of 1,115 North avenue, were arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning, and after a reprimand had been administered by the court were allowed to go on a suspended sentence. The men were brough to the police station on complaint of Fire Chief Doane who was informed of the case by Lineman Edward Dooley, who was doing the work for the city.

For a long time past Italians in the East End of the city have been storing up old cross arms cast away by the Western Union Telegraph Company following the storm and the two defendants began taking the new cross arms when the old supply became exhausted. The stolen goods were located on the premises of 1,115 North avenue.

BURGLARS TOOK $4,000 IN LOOT

Mrs. Charles Hyde's Home Entered at An Early Hour This Morning.

POLICE HAVE NO CLUE

Stolen Goods Consisted of Silver Service—Deed Discovered by Servants at 6 o'Clock—Police Are Looking for Crooks.

Burglars entered the home of Mrs. Charles Hyde, of 605 East Front street, sometime during the early hours of this morning and got away with loot estimated to be worth $4,000. The stolen goods consist of silver knives, forks, spoons, pitchers and napkin rings and articles valued at $10,000 were overlooked by the crooks in their haste to escape detection.

Mrs. Charles Hyde, who was the only member of the family at home last night, was awakened shortly after 1 o'clock by unusual sounds coming from the first floor. She arose and turned on the lights, but after a hurried investigation concluded that the noise was probably made on the outside and retired again. When the servants entered the dining-room at 6 o'clock this morning the robbery was discovered and the police notified.. Police Chief Kiely and Detective Sergeant J. J. Flynn went to the Hyde home this morning and are now working on the case.

The burglars entered through a kitchen window which was left unfastened and which was found open by the servants this morning. There are no evidences of prying on the window sashes and it is the supposition of the police that the intruders entered through the window and left by way of the kitchen door. The deed was probably committed between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock this morning and the burglars were frightened away by Mrs. Hyde moving about in the room above before they had an opportunity to make a thorough search of the house. They confined their work to one room exclusively and carried the loot away in a table cloth.

The Hyde home is one of the handsomest in the East End of the city and sets in from the street about 150 feet. The burglars selected a window in the rear of the house facing on the brook as a means of entrance and their actions were thus concealed from pedestrians who might have passed the house at that hour.

Conditions that presented themselves following the discovery of the robbery this morning indicate that the job was done hurriedly and that the culprits were frightened away before they had concluded their work. The clues on which the police are working are meager ones. The men had full five hours to get away from the scene between the time they left and the time the robbery was discovered and the consensus of opinion is that they left in a vehicle of some kind as the loot was too great in bulk to carry.

The Hyde home has undergone a painting during the last few days, but the burglars left no marks by which their identity could be established in the soft coating.

RUNAWAY HORSE CAUSES EXCITEMENT IN EAST END

Damages to two wagons and the bruising of one horse was the result of a mix-up which occurred this morning at East Front and Washington streets. A horse belonging to A. M. Griffen started the trouble by running away, the wagon to which it was attached side swiping a horse and cart belonging to Gus Utzinger. The later joined in, turning into Washington street, where the excitement was increased by a horse belonging to Percy A. McVoy, which was standing on the side of the street.

At this juncture, the cart overturned, taking Utzinger's horse to the ground with it, the animal being bruised considerably by the sudden contact. Both the cart and Mr. McVoy's wagon were damaged to some extent, while the Griffen rig, the source of the entire trouble, escaped with but a few scratches when it butted into the Utzinger conveyance. Fortunately, no one among the drivers, nor any of the children who make a habit of utilizing the street at this point for a playground, were injured.

The bearers were Charles Keller, John Hickey, Frank Trayner, William Neal, Louis Meller and M. A. Boehm.

SAY EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM IS BEST POSSIBLE IN REPLY TO JEFFERY

Figures Submitted by School Governing Body Prove That Standard Has Been Raised in This City in Seven Years to High Point of Efficiency.

Answering in full all of the questions which were put to it by President Jeffery of the Board of Trade, the Board of Education today made the most comprehensive statement about conditions in the local public schools that has ever been presented for the consideration of the public. The board maintains that the Plainfield educational system is an excellent one, and that everything about the present facilities afforded to the pupils is thoroughly in keeping with that of any town in the State. Comparisons on one subject are made with Boston, long famous as an educational centre, and it is said that in Plainfield the pupils are superior to those in that city on comparative tests in arithmetic. It is also shown that the standard of education has steadily increased, that more pupils are taking advantage of the High School training every year, and that by taking pupils from out-of-town schools in the High School, the cost of education per pupil is $11 less per year, than if the out-of-town scholars were not accepted.

Every question is answered in such a way that no doubt is left that the Board of Education is confident that its work has been of the best and that no unreasonable requests are made for the maintenance of the schools. The questions and answers are as follows:

Yes. We might submit our own proof of this, but we prefer to take that offered by the Board of Trade itself. Mr. Jeffery advertised for a clerk in the local newspapers and received 36 letters in reply. Of these letters 23 were from boys and girls who had not graduated from the Plainfield Grammar Schools, but were from other schools not in any way connected with the Plainfield system. Of the remaining 13, one boy had been in school only a year. The other 12 were marked by the committee of the Board of Trade, "Good," "Fair," or "Poor," in respect to composition, writing and spelling. Only one of the 12 was graded "Poor" in spelling and all were marked either "Good" or "Fair" in composition.

The committee of the Board of Trade also wrote letters to various business men, asking their experience with boys and girls from the public schools, in the matter of reading, writing, spelling and arithmetic. Eleven replies were received. Only one declared them poor. Two others declared them 50% poor in three subjects and another poor in two subjects. Three declared them either fair or good, while four declared them very satisfactory. One says they are 99% in reading and 98% in spelling, and good in writing. Another says, "On a somewhat further inquiry to ascertain the fitness of the pupils from High School for general employment in business, we would say that we consider them as well fitted as any boys and girls can be." As to arithmetic, it may be said that the Courtis Standard Arithmetic Tests were given our grammar grades last December, and the results from identically the same tests given the Boston schools show that the work of the Plainfield pupils is superior.

2. Total number of pupils in the public schools in 1906 and 1913:

	1905-6	1913
Kindergarten	328	450
Primary	1578	1764
Grammar	831	1203
High School	288	600

It is interesting to note that while the number of pupils in the grammar grades was only 58% of the number in the primary grades in 1906, it was 70% last year. While the High School pupils in 1906 were not quite 34% of those in the Grammar School, last year there were 50%. This means that the children are being promoted more rapidly and are staying in school much better than they were seven years ago, and indicates gratifying improvement in efficiency.

3. What proportion of the primary pupils go through the Grammar School?

In 1913, 218 pupils finished the grammar grades. This class numbered 654 when it entered the primary, eight years ago; i. e., 33% of that class passed through the Grammar School.

4. What proportion of the grammar pupils attend the High School?

About 76% of the eighth grade.

5. What percentage of the pupils entering the High School graduate?

In 1906, we graduated 40%. Last year, we graduated 60%. Note the increase.

6. As to the percentage of graduates from St. Mary's Parochial School, we cannot answer. The num-

"AN EVENING WITH THE STARS" ENJOYED BY MANY

R. B. Baumgardt, of California, presented "An Evening With the Stars" before an interested audience in the Washington School auditorium, last night, in connection with the public lecture course. He exhibited many illustrations from celestial negatives taken with the latest giant telescopes and accompanied the views with a description of each.

The lecture was of an instructive nature and gave the audience numerous points on celestial photography, a science that Mr. Baumgardt has had for his hobby and in which he is thoroughly acquainted. All of his statements were based on scientific investigations conducted by the speaker and were presented in a manner that held the attention of the listeners from start to finish. One of the features of his address was his poetic interpretation of what are as a rule termed dry points by the ordinary person.

LIQUOR BILL IS DEFEATED IN SENATE AFTER DEBATE

Trenton, April 10—Assemblyman Brackner's liquor bill, providing that the delivery elsewhere in the State, than in the locality mentioned in the license shall not be in violation of the law, was beaten in the Senate yesterday after a spirited debate.

Senator Pierce, of Union county, and Senator Rathbun, of Morris county, were strong in their opposition to the measure, maintaining that it would be unfair to those licensed dealers in the districts invaded, and that it would also tend to promote the return of the "beer arks" only recently eliminated. Senators Egan and McGinnis were equally earnest in the advocacy of the measure which was beaten by a vote of 6 to 10.

Before a Federal Court in Newark, yesterday, William S. Richards, for fourteen years postmaster at Nolan's Pont, Lake Hopatcong, admitted that he had embezzled $3,031.23 of the Government's money. He mortgaged his property at the lake and put up the amount of the shortage. He was placed under $1,000 bail to await Federal Grand Jury action. Mr. Richards is very well known in Plainfield.

Elizabeth, April 10—Sidney Judson, of Plainfield, was found guilty of wife desertion after a trial before Judge James C. Connolly in the Court of Quarter Sessions yesterday. He was tried without a jury. He will be sentenced Friday. He was indicted by the January Grand Jury and brought back from New York.

STANHOPE W. NIXON IN COURT ON ASSAULT CHARGE

New Haven, Conn., April 10.—Stanhope W. Nixon, son of Lewis Nixon, the well known shipbuilder and Democratic politician, was arraigned in court here today to stand trial on a charge of assaulting Edward H. Everitt, chief engineer of the Southern New England Telephone Company.

The alleged assault occurred late one night last October. Mr. Everitt was walking from the railway station to his home when he was knocked unconscious by a blow from behind. He suffered concussion of the brain and lay dangerously ill for weeks.

At first there seemed to be no clue to the identity of the assailant. Detectives who were put to work on the case finally learned that on the night of the assault a number of students of the Sheffield Scientific School had engaged in a wild celebration. Earlier in the evening the students had given a banquet at a local hotel in honor of Gertrude Hoffman, the dancer, who had been filling an engagement at one of the theatres.

After leaving the banquet the students proceeded home in a very boisterous condition. On their way they found several very heavy bolts used in building construction. Some of these bolts were hurled through windows and doors by the riotous students and it is said that one of them, nearly a foot in length, was used in the attack of Everitt.

The detectives finally learned enough of the affair to face young Nixon with the charge. Nixon, according to the detectives, frankly admitted his share in the attack.

THE OPEN AIR SCHOOL

Plainfield has won a reputation which extends far beyond its borders for the support of its local charities. There is never a worthy cause, which, when properly presented, does not receive liberal help from the people of the city and borough. As a result excellent work is being done in a dozen different ways for the betterment of the community.

Of all the deserving causes, there is none which should receive more liberal support than the open air school, which is conducted as a branch of the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis League. Because of an impending lack of funds there is now a possibility that the work will have to be discontinued, and the League is making an appeal for support. It is possible that a way will be devised by which everyone in the city can aid the school without feeling that they are making a sacrifice, but pending that plan the energetic men and women who are giving of their time and money to keep the school up have made a public appeal for the cause. Every dollar will help in this all-important work.

It is hoped that the Board of Education will eventually take over the school, but the expense of the regular work makes it almost impossible for that body to help any this year or to take the responsibility of asking for a cent more than is absolutely needed for the fast growing demands of the regular schools. We urge everyone of our readers who can possibly contribute even in the smallest amount, to do so. The school has already put forty children on the road to health, and those forty are going out to teach parents and relatives how to avoid the dreaded white plague. Contributions may be sent to the League headquarters in the Babcock building

Although several counties in the State are working under the small board of freeholder plan, and others have voted for it, but have been deprived of the method because of a flaw in the law which invalidated the act, the Legislature has failed to pass a new bill making the establishment of such boards in all counties mandatory. The Union county assemblymen fought for its passage, and it had the urgent support of Governor Fielder, but the best that could be secured was one making provision for referendum elections on the question. Where the small boards have been tried they have been generally successful, and a large majority of the people of the counties that have voted on the proposition have registered their preference for that method of county government. Now if Union county wants that form it will be necessary to go to the expense of another election on the subject, although the people of the county some years ago registered themselves as decisively in favor of the plan.

Governor Fielder's appointment of former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, as a member of the Riparian Commission is in keeping with the other excellent selections which he has made during the present legislative term. The work of the members of this commission is such that knowledge of realty values is greatly to be desired, and no one disputes that Mr. Smalley knows something about such matters. His many years in public office has brought him a ripe experience which will make him a valuable State official. In his appointments the Governor has done very well by the Plainfields. Dr. Hughes was renamed on the Board of Managers of the State Tuberculosis Sanitarium, William L. Saunders was placed on the newly created Harbor Commission, former Judge William A. Coddington is on the County Tax Board, and former Mayor Smalley's appointment completes the list.

There is one thing which the people seem to lose sight of whenever a salesman from an out of town house calls on them. That is the all-important fact that the concern which that man represents pays no taxes for the support of the city and its schools, pays no rent locally, or in any other way contributes a cent toward the support of Plainfield's government. There is not even a license required of the man who goes about canvassing for orders, and his only interest in Plainfield is to get local money to pay for goods offered by out of town people. The Business Men's Association is doing splendid work educating the people to the advantages of buying at home, but there are a lot who remain unconvinced.

The term of Postmaster Elias H Bird is nearly over, and yet all of the fifty-seven candidates for his place are in the dark as to which one will get it. As Mr. Bird holds office until his successor is selected we suspect that his favorite motto just now is, "I should worry."

Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who has contributed some of the most interesting editorials that have appeared on Saturdays in the Daily Press has prepared the one for tomorrow and it will be appropriate to Easter Sunday.

If William A. Coddington is chosen as the head of the Union County Tax Board, that body will be greatly strengthened. His wide knowledge of real estate values, and broad legal experience would make him invaluable in the place.

With Easter soon past the "play ball" cry will be the next important event for the people of the country.

REPLY TO JEFFERY

per we receive from that school is very small, and separate records are not kept for them.

7. What percentage of scholars from outside of Plainfield are admitted to the High School?

In the class which entered the High School last fall, 23% were tuition pupils, for whom were receive $55 each from their Boards of Education and an allowance of about $52 from the State in the apportionment of school money, or a total of about $82 per pupil.

8. Number of teachers?

1906	80
1913	129

9. Salaries?

1906	$ 61,000
1913	121,455

In the seven years the number of teachers increased 60%. This would have increased the amount of salaries to $97,696. The difference between this amount and $121,455 represents increase in the salary rate which is about 24%, although living expenses have gone up about 60% in that period.

10. Cost of High School education per pupil?

Including salaries, janitor service, coal, books, and supplies, the cost is about $66. If the tuition pupils were withdrawn, we could probably reduce the force of teachers by 4, but the cost for heat, janitors, etc., would be the same, and the per capita cost would then rise to about $77 per pupil.

11 and 12. What proportion of pupils' time in school is devoted to spelling, reading, writing and arithmetic, geography, history, other things

It is impossible to give an exact answer to so general a question, because the amount varies according to the age of the child. No answer can be given for the High School, because the pupils have a wide choice of subjects.

For the grades the per cent. is about as follows:

Primary—Reading, 11 per cent.; spelling, 8 per cent.; writing, 6 per cent.; arithmetic, 20 per cent.; geography, 13 per cent.; others, 42 per cent.

Grammar—Reading, 13 per cent.; spelling, 7 per cent.; writing, 6 per cent.; arithmetic, 15 per cent.; geography, 15 per cent.; history, 8 per cent.; others, 36 per cent.

13. What are the other things?

Mainly English languages, composition and grammar, also "opening exercises" of a general nature, algebra in higher grades, nature study in the lower grades, civics, physical training, music, drawing, manual training, cooking and sewing. Not all of these to the same child, however, and not every day except in composition and study of English language, which is given every pupil every day from kindergarten to High School graduation.

14 and 15. As to requirements of State Board and county superintendent for annual examinations.

There are no requirements from the county superintendent. The State board issues uniform examinations at the end of the year in English, spelling, penmanship, history, geography, arithmetic, for the tighth grade pupils studying those subjects.

16.—What is the composition of the night school classes as to race, nationality, age and residence?

Nationality of race—Dane, 23; Swedish, 17; Polish, 37; French, 1; Austrian, 11; German, 27; Finnish, 2; Norwegian, 2; Scotch, 1; Italian, 81; Dutch, 2; Jewish, 42; South American, 1; American, 9; African, 3; Irish, 2; Hungarian, 4; Slovak, 2; Canadian, 3; Greek, 2; Cuban, 2; Moravian, 1; Slav, 1; Swiss, 2.

Age—Under 20, 104; 20-30, 157; 30-40; 42; over 40, 25.

All residents of Plainfield, unless a few have come in from out of town unknown to us.

17. What are they taught?

Chiefly reading and writing the English language, but with those that can speak English somewhat, we teach also arithmetic, United States history, and things that go to make good citizens.

18. What is the necessity for summer schools?

They serve three purposes:

1. In all classes there are some pupils that, in spite of everything the teacher can do, fail to reach the standard for promotion in one or more subjects. The summer school is to give these pupils a chance to study for six weeks, focusing their efforts on the particular subject in which they have failed. In many cases, it enables them to go on with their class in the fall, when if there were no summer school, they would have to go into a lower class and lose a year's time.

2. It gives opportunity for children who have moved into the city to get acquainted with our work and so start square with their classes in the fall.

3. It gives opportunity to some of the brighter pupils who wish to do extra work and gain a year's time. It includes pupils from the fifth grade through the High School. Pupils lower than fifth grade should not be encouraged to do ordinary school work in the summer time. They would better spend their time on the playground and become strong and healthy.

19. Are there subjects that can be eliminated or curtailed in favor of spelling, reading, writing and arithmetic?

We know of none. We include nothing that is not required by the best schools, nothing which does not have a value in making better and more valuable men and women of our boys and girls. It is a mistake to suppose that doubling the time given spelling, reading, etc., would double the profit. It has been proven by wide experiment that a child can devote profitably just so much time to a given subject and any time beyond that amount spent on the subject does not produce adequate returns. The results in the old-time schools, when the children did nothing but spelling, reading, writing and arithmetic, were not nearly so good in these subjects as the result produced by the modern school spending part of its time on other subjects. We are constantly striving to focus the work more closely in the time we give each subject, so as to produce better results.

20. Has the State too much power and authority over school districts, thereby compelling unnecessary expenditure of money?

No. In some cases the application of the rules of the State board may be too rigid, but as a rule the authority it possesses is what it should be to make the best citizens out of our boys and girls.

21. What percentage of space is set apart for auditoriums?

1 per cent. of the floor area of our school buildings, above the basement, is devoted for this purpose. These auditoriums are used for morning assemblage of the pupils and general exercises of various kinds, also for the general singing exercises of the school, for meetings of parens, entertainments, etc. They are an essential to the best management of the schools where there are children above the primary grades. Their usefulness can easily be doubled by making them a center of the social life of the neighborhood.

22. Why did you employ a clerk outside of Plainfield without giving the Plainfield people a chance to apply?

While previous residence or nonresidence is not a material qualification for appointment by the board of its employes; the man finally selected is a former resident of Plainfield. The board considered carefully a number of applications both of local men and non-residents for the vacant position, and made a careful canvass for suitable candidates in Plainfield and elsewhere.

In speaking about the answers this morning, Mr. Jeffery said: "I have looked over the answers to the questions sent and I am not in a position to make a definite statement, but I appreciate the fact that the Board of Education submitted the answers so quickly and exhaustively and that the people will now be given an opportunity, especially those who had lots of fault to find, to discover where the errors lie. I am very much pleased."

THE FORUM.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

With reference to your editorial in yesterday's Press, "that the Board of Education thinks that they have arrived at the only solution in their determination to build on Evergreen avenue," I want to be absolutely fair and above board in the matter, and speaking for myself, I believe that the board is right.

My conclusion is based not on hearsay, but upon the evidence furnished by the Board of Education.

I also believe that many of our people, if they call upon the Board of Education and go over the details with them, will come to the same conclusion.

Righ is right. There is undoubtedly something fundamentally wrong in that the essentials are not sufficiently grasped by the children. I cannot stand by and acquiesce in what seems to me to be unjust criticism of the board in this matter, of providing for additional grammar schools.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

A great many may form the impression that "The Movie Girl" is a feature motion picture and to dispel this idea in the minds of theatregoers, who are ardent admirers of good music, funny comedians and pretty girls, we suggest that they secure seats well in advance for the engagement here at the Plainfield Theatre, Monday afternoon and evening. "The Movie Girl" is an up-to-date musical comedy by Matthew Ott who has written no end of successes, his most recent one being "Seven Hours in New York." The principal comedy is in the efficient hands of Billy Carlton who has signed a long term contract with the producers, The Mozart Music Company, Inc., who had to make many concessions to get his signature to a contract.

MARTINE LIVENS UP DULL DEBATE OVER FREE TOLLS

Washington, April 10.—In the desultory discussion of the tolls question that cropped up Tuesday afternoon in the Senate, Senator Martine, of New Jersey, let the eagle scream in a bit of by-play with Senator Lippitt, of Rhode Island. Mr. Martine, of course, spoke against tolls repeal.

Senator Lippitt, speaking for repeal, emphasized the point that the United States should be generous in interpreting its treaty obligations—that this country could not afford to choose a narrow and mean interpretation of a treaty entered into upon the national honor.

"I should like to ask the Senator from Rhode Island" said Martine, "if he does not think it would be better for the representatives of the people, that this great body first should be just to the people of this country before it is generous to the English people?"

"It may be," replied Lippitt, "that being generous would at the same time be the best way of beng just—"

"I would rather reverse the proposition," interrupted Martine, and there the incident ended.

UNITED C. E. SOCIETY STARTS SYSTEMATIC CAMPAIGN

An urgent appeal has been made by the United Society of Christian Endeavor, for the organization of a systematic campaign by every district, county and local Christian Endeavor Union, for the purpose of securing by November 1 of this year, the remaining $150,000 necessary to erect the proposed Christian Endeavor headquarters building at Boston. Karl Lehmann, inter-State field secretary, who has been apointed manager of this special campaign, was the guest of the executive committee of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, at the recent meeting held in the Newark Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Lehmann explained the methods by which the balance of this fund is to be raised, and the State union pledged their co-operation, the following committee having been appointed by State President Sproull to work up the plan throughout the State: the three vice-presidents, A. Harry Moore, of Jersey City; W. Egbert Thomas, of Milford, and Rev. George D. Jones, of Atlantic City, together with Walter O. Anderson, of Elizabeth, and W. W. Anderson, of Trenton.

LOOKS LIKE SNOOP IS GOING TO MAKE GOOD

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Baseball and basketball are on the sport program for tomorrow. Several local nines are scheduled to get into action on local diamonds in the afternoon and in the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night one of the best basketball contests of the season is called for when the Scotch Plains and Y. M. C. A. quintets meet in their second game of a three game series. In the event of a victory for the Plains team the championship will go to that faction while a win for the Association youths will mean a tie-up in the series. We have heretofore heard of football and basketball on the same day but the basketball and baseball menu will no doubt set a precedent in sporting circles hereabouts. Wonder how the two sports will mix in this climate?

Now that we have been accorded an opportunity to give the North Plainfield High School and Leal School nines the "once over" we await the Plainfield High School opening tomorrow afternoon. The boroughites looked pretty good in their opening contests while the Leal School athletes displayed some good form between the spasms of rain and ball tossing on Crescent Oval Wednesday afternoon. Haven't heard of anyone picking a winner for the runner up position in the Interscholastic League race this year. 'Smatter pop?

We see no reason why those Battin High School girls should not make just as great a success of baseball as the feminine athletes do with basketball. Considerable comment has been going the rounds following the decision of the Battin girls to form a baseball team, but it is understood that they are receiving some boosting from the male camp. We admit that baseball calls for quick thinkers and that Tilly Merkles are not wanted, but there is a quantity of fairly good material lying around these parts just at present. Games wanted, apply by phone.

North Plainfield started that feminine baseball rumpus in 1912, but after searching the sporting goods stores for masks that would fit and right and left hand gloves that would look something like mates the girls finally gave the project up as a bad job.

Jupiter Pluvius was right on the job Wednesday afternoon to welcome that Leal School nine into 1914 baseball. All that North Plainfield got when the curtain rose was a rip shattering breeze.

Present conditions indicate that the present basketball season will have no ending. April 30 is the latest date set for the fadaway.

Final returns from that Columbus Club bowling tournament show some pretty fine scores for the entrants in the race that ended with the Brandywine team in the front. This sort of competition is going a long way toward turning out a banner team for 1915.

Another sign of spring—The Saurer baseball team has been heard from. Now where's that City League?

Wanted—the name of a good Democrat who has baseball gloves to sell. Notify manager Jefferson Democratic Club baseball team.

A pitching phenom has been unearthed in the West End and the promise of a rich political plum has induced him to sign a contract with the Jefferson aggregation.

OUIMET AND LOCKWOOD WIN.

But Travers and Herreshoff Lose In English Golf Matches.

Sandwich, England, April 10.—Francis Ouimet, the American open golf champion, and Arthur G. Lockwood defeated the Marquis of Linlithgow and his brother, Lord Charles Hope, in a foursome over the Sandwich links. Lockwood is the former amateur champion of Massachusetts.

The Americans won by a score of 5 up and 4 to go. A high wind prevailed, but Ouimet played an 83—40 out and 43 in.

London, April 10.—Jerome D. Travers and Fred Herreshoff were beaten in a four ball match on the Royal North Devon club's links at Westward Ho by the Hon. Denys Scott and Captain Hinde. The Englishmen won by 4 up and 3 to play.

TEXAS LEAGUE SEASON OPENS.

Houston, Texas, April 10.—The Texas baseball league opened its twelfth season yesterday, with Beaumont playing at Galveston, Fort Worth at Austin, Dallas at Waco and San Antonio lining up against last year's champions in this city. The league has undergone a thorough renovation since the close of last season and never before has it begun a pennant race under conditions that rendered the outcome so uncertain. The circuit is the same as last year, but every team is in charge of a new manager and has an unusually large number of new men in the line-up. Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio and Beaumont appear, on paper, to have the strongest aggregations, but it would cause no surprise if all the present calculations and predictions of the critics would go upset before the season is a month old.

N. P. H. S. ERRORS LOST THE GAME

New Brunswick School Boys Ran Away From Boroughites on Home Field.

PITCHER A PUZZLER

Final Score 11 to 7—"Canadians" Poor Fielding Cause of Defeat—Opening Game for Brunswick—Smalley Out of Lineup.

Ragged fielding and poor hitting by the North Plainfield High School baseball team was the chief cause of its defeat at the hands of the New Brunswick High School nine at that place yesterday afternoon. The final score was 11 to 7. The game was featured by many costly errors made by the local boys, especially in the fifth inning, when the home team scored four runs and took the lead that was never overcome. The home team supported its pitcher in fine style and hit safely in tight pinches.

Stahl started for the boroughites and after the first inning settled down and pitched good ball. The Brunswick boys scored twice in the initial period but were blanked in the next three. In the third inning the "Canadians" took the lead on four singles and two errors that netted a total of five runs. All of the local batters faced the pitcher in this inning. Things went fine for the visitors until the unlucky fifth, when the home team hit Stahl hard and, aided by a few misplays, scored four times. Two hits to left, one to right and one to center were made before Denny was sent in to stop the bombardment. He stopped it and fanned the first man that faced him, retiring the side.

North Plainfield was blanked for three innings straight and made one run in the last two times at bat. Five runs were credited to the homs boys in the seventh and with a lead of six runs they played airtight ball up to the end. This was the first game for the winners. Dienzer was effective at all times and led his team at the bat with two singles and a double. VanMater smashed one for a two bagger and also hit for a single. Marsh was behind the bat in the absence of Captain Smalley and played a good game considering his inexperience.

The trip was made by automobile through the kindness of W. L. Smalley, Alexander Milne and C. D. Rice, who gave their cars and their services.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Why do fish bite better on a cloudy day than on a bright day?—T. T.

Answer—Probably they see the flies resting on the top of the water better than in the glare of the sunlight. Suckers will bite on any kind of a day, you know.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will you kindly tell me in your columns the reason a baseball curves? Has the use of the fingers anything to do with it?—J. F.

Answer—The force of gravitation makes a baseball curve. The manner in which it is delivered from the fingers governs its course through the air.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Please tell me which Congressional district we are in?—D. T. O.

Answer—The Fifth Congressional District.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Why do travelers lose a day going from America to China?—G. T. E.

Answer—If we travel eastward around the world, meeting sunrise a little earlier each day, in going entirely around the world we lost a day. The reverse is true in traveling westward.

Sporting Editor:

Query—When rails are laid for railroad tracks a space is left between each. Why is this done?—C. C. B.

Answer—To allow for expansion.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there any doctor or druggist who could tell what to use to make a nice voice? I had an excellent voice at one time and lost it by reason of taking cold. V. C. N.

Answer—Any physician can give you remedies that will help to restore your voice, after he has examined your throat. If the physician you go to sees that your throat needs special treatment in addition to the remedies he gives you, he will tell you what specialist doctor to go to.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Please publish a daily exercise that could be taken to reduce one's weight. Will walking reduce a person's weight? What is the best exercise, along with dieting, that I can take to reduce one pound weekly?—C. F. L.

Answer—We cannot undertake to give advice in matters that may seriously affect the health. Consult your physician as to what, in your case, is desirable both as to diet and exercise.

BOUND BROOK HUNG TWO ON WESTFIELD BOWLERS

Bound Brook and Westfield engaged in a hot bowling match last night, at the former place, in which Bound Brook took the first and the last, the second going to the visitors. Both teams started poorly and the home team won the first game by eight points. Mack, of the visiting team, pinned for a high score of 220 in the second frame and his team easily won the match. The final round was a hot one and the Bound Brook rollers were just seven pins to the good at the finish.

The Eagle A. C., of Dunellen, was defeated by a score of 13 to 6 by the Young Giants on Taylor's Dunellen field, yesterday afternoon. Post carried off the hitting laurels of the contest, batting the ball over the centrefielder's head in one instance. He was also the chief run getter. Smith was the best hitter for the Young Giants.

SECOND BASKETBALL GAME IN LOCAL GYM

Y. M. C. A. and Scotch Plains Will Reopen the Series Tomorrow Night.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will be the scene of another post season basketball game tomorrow night, when the Scotch Plains Parish House quintet appears at that place for the second match of a three game series. The Plains boys won the initial encounter and the Y. M. C. A. youths are out to even up the series on this occasion.

The first game, played two weeks ago, was a hummer from start to finish, the visitors winning by a one goal margin after hostilities had been kept tied up during the greater part of the encounter. The initial combat was heralded as one of the most exciting ever played on the local court and the game tomorrow night gives promise of being a repetition of the opener.

Scotch Plains will come to Plainfield with the same lineup, Ricketts and Dallas playing forwards; Marsten, centre, and Smith and Naylor, guards. The Y. M. C. A. team will be minus the services of Joe Gavett, who will be out of town over the week-end. The balance of the team will be made up of the same players who took part in the first, Moulton and McNamee, forwards, and Glover and Ted Gavett, guards.

FORMER LOCAL PITCHER IN BRUNSWICK LEAGUE

Harry Jennings, pitcher for the Rutgers College baseball team, has signed up with the Interwoven-Kilbourne team of the New Brunswick Factory League, for the coming season. Jennings is known in this city as a fine slabman and he performed for the Plainfield team last season. He is at the present time doing a great work for the Rutgers team. Last Saturday he pitched an eleven contest against Princeton. He will accept a position with this company at the close of school and will be eligible for the team.

Manager Goodspeed expects to make a hot fight for the championship and is signing up a bunch of good men. Jake Deinzer, pitcher for the New Brunswick High School team will also play for this team. He pitched against the North Plainfield High School team yesterday and showed good speed and control.

RIFFERT MAKING GOOD.

In the game between Swarthmore and St. Joseph's College, yesterday, Jack Riffert, the ex-Plainfield High School boy played right field on the former team and made a single. He had no chances in the field. His team was defeated by the score of 6 to 5. Riffert lives at Bound Brook and while in High School played quarterback for two years ond the quarterback for two years on the field on two baseball teams. While in school he was one of the leading athletes along these lines.

DRISCOLL MAKING GOOD.

Dave Driscoll, for two years captain and first baseman of the Plainfield league team, is making good as the coach of the Seton Hall nine. His team has a fine lot of good material and have made a fine showing on their southern trip. They appeared to be in mid-season form due to Driscoll's fine leadership. He was manager of the New Brunswick team last season.

CARLSTROM HITTING POORLY.

"Allie" Carlstrom's position at first base on the Lawrence team of the New England League is uncertain because of his hitting this year. Along fielding lines he is there with the goods, but his hitting ability is a drawback to him. He played short stop on the Plainfield team last year and was then a poor slugger.

NELSON TURNS DOWN A LEAGUE CONTRACT

"Big Six" Will Probably Be Seen in Pet's Uniform Again This Season.

Walter Nelson, who has done the backstop work for the Plainfield baseball team for the past four years, has had an offer from the manager of the Worcester Club, of Worcester, Mass. Having a good position as civil engineer on the Central Railroad, he has decided not to accept the offer and will probably be seen in a Plainfield uniform again this year. Besides being one of the best catchers in these parts he is a fine batter and has won more than one game for the local team.

Nelson learned the game at Rutgers College, where he was the regular catcher for three years. He became connected with the local team at the time of the formation of the Central New Jersey League and has played with it ever since. He has a wing that has caught many base stealers asleep at the switch. In 1911 he was given a tryout with the Boston Nationals during his vacation but returned to his business. He lives with his parents in New Market.

STOUT PINNERS TOO FAST FOR THE BLATZ COHORTS

Chauncey Stout's pinners took two out of the three games rolled with the Frank Blatz aggregation in the Elks' Club bowling tourney, last night. The initial encounter was annexed by a margin of two pins and was the closest of the evening. Stout did the most consistent bowling.

DAVE DRISCOLL TO MANAGE HACKETTSTOWN BALL NINE

The Hackettstown Athletic Association has closed a contract with Dave Driscoll as manager of the team for the coming season. This club has always had a good team and plays the fastest aggregations of the State, so the new manager will have a good bunch to handle. Driscoll played with the Plainfield team in 1911 and 1912 and was captain of the team both years. He played first base and was very popular with local fans.

He was manager of the New Brunswick team last year and is well known as a player in Newark and New York. His team will open its season with High Bridge on May 23.

HOPE CHAPEL PRACTICE.

Hope Chapel baseball team will have its first practice tomorrow afternoon on the West End Avenue field and a large number have signified their intention of trying for the nine which will make a bid for the Sunday-school cup again this year. The battery has been practicing for some time in the gym and appear to be in fine shape. Dick Schott and Nathan Luthman will be in the points. George Leighs will manage the team and a leader will be chosen in the near future. Adam Schot will act as coach of the team. The rest of the aggregation will be practically the same as the one last year which finished second in the Sunday school League.

GAME CALLED OFF.

North Plainfield High School will be without a week-end baseball game on Saturday, because of the cancellation of the contest that was scheduled with the Rutgers Prep. nine. This action is due to the Easter vacation of the latter school as many of the ball players go home. Another date will be selected for the meeting of these rivals. Because of the poor showing that was made in the game yesterday there will be no other game booked and extra preparation will be made for the contest with Flemington next Monday afternoon.

P. H. S. NINE RAN UP TOP HEAVY SCORE

Bank Clerk's Only Count Came on Hummel's Three-bagger in the Seventh.

The Plainfield High School baseball team opened the season this morning on Crescent Oval, defeating the Bank Clerks in a slow and uninteresting game by the score of 13 to 1. Brick, who did the twirling for the school boys, was in fine form for the first game of the season and did not issue a pass.

The diamond was in poor condition. Apgar behind the bat for P. H. S. played a star game, holding Brick in fine form and going through the game without an error. Waller was on the mound for the Bank Clerks and pitched a good game, although at times he went up in the air and walked six men during the game.

The Bank Clerks got their only run when Harvey struck out and Waller scored on Hummel's three bagger. Adams went out on a foul ball. The game was called in the seventh inning.

ARGUE ON TOLLS.

Senator Norris (Top) and Senator Thomas Explain Position.

Hearings before the senate committee on interoceanic canals on the Panama tolls question has started. Senator Norris of Nebraska appeared before the committee to explain his resolution asserting full American rights to the control and operation of the Panama canal. Although opposed to the exemption clause under which American coastwise shipping was given free tolls through the canal, Senator Norris argued that in reversing itself on this proposition the United States should safeguard its interests in every way. Senator Thomas of Colorado also upheld Senator Norris and is among those Democrats opposed to the president on tolls legislation.

MOB HALTS TRAIN IN GEORGIA

Strike Sympathizers Are Blamed by Officials of Road.

Savannah, Ga., April 10.—A mob stopped a passenger train outside of St. Clair, on the Savannah and Northwestern railroad, formerly the Brinson, on which there is a strike involving all conductors on the system.

Officials of the road blame employees of the Georgia Florida, who are in sympathy with the striking conductors. The sheriff of Burke county was appealed to for aid.

A train from Savannah went out in charge of a local agent, and a freight train into Savannah was in charge of the roadmaster.

"OLIVET TO CALVARY" GIVEN BY HOLY CROSS CHOIR

The vested choir of Holy Cross Episcopal church, the borough, sang Maunder's cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," last night, the service being attended by a large congregation. The work of the choir under the direction of Organist Charles Davis was thoroughly enjoyed the various parts being rendered in a highly satisfactory and pleasing manner.

The soloists were W. J. R. Thiers, tenor, and William G. Smith, bass, and their work was especially commendable, both singers being in fine voice. The whole service was under the direction of Mr. Davis, and the work of the singers showed the results of his training.

TOLD STORY OF PAUL'S SHIPWRECK

Another Impressive Sermon by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire.

Another large congregation attended the revival service at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, conducted by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, assisted by Prof P. B. Stout, the gospel singer. The latter sang a number of selections including "I Shall be No Stranger There," "No Condemnation, no Separation," "There's Time Enough Yet," all of which deeply impressed the congregation.

Mr. Maguire preached on the subject, "Paul's Shipwreck," and the three lessons which he drew from the seary were, first, those who get us into trouble will not stay to help us out; second, it is dangerous to refuse advice of competent advisers, and third, Christians are always safe.

Professor Stout followed the sermon with a song, "It Must be Settled Tonight," after which both pastor and singer pleaded with the unconverted to turn to the Lord and several in the congregation expressed a desire to be remembered in prayer. Prof. Stout will have entire charge of the service tonight, when he will give "The Story of the Cross," a sermon in song. This story includes thirteen songs.

There will be no service at the church tomorrow evening. In place of this service, Mr. Maguire, Prof. Stout, William N. Runyon, George Place and George Hall, together with others will attend the meeting at the Eighth Avenue Mission, New York, and assist Miss Ray in the services there. Prof. Stout will assist at the session of the Bible school at the Park Avenue church Sunday and in the evening, following the sermon by Mr. Maguire there will be baptism. Prof. and Mrs. Stout will leave here Monday for Norristown, Pa., to conduct revival services.

"OLIVET TO CALVARY" GIVEN BY CHOIR

Lenten Musical Attracts Large Congregation to First Baptist Church.

The Lenten musical service given at the First Baptist church, last night, by the quartet and chorus choir was undoubtedly one of the best yet given by this well-known company of trained singers. The program included violin, harp and organ, and violin and harp selections, contralto solo and chorus, and J. H. Maunder's beautiful cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," with solos and chorus, accompanied by organ, violin and harp. Howard M. Case, organist and choirmaster, presided at the organ, Miss Mildred Dilling, of New York, was the harpist, and Miss Florence Wholfert the violinist.

The soloists were Miss Elizabeth St. Ives, soprano; Miss Leontine de Ahna, contralto; George Smith, tenor, and William Holmes, baritone. The service opened with a selection for violin, harp and organ, "Hymne a Sainte Cecile," Gounod, in which the sweet tones of the instruments blended in perfect harmony. Then followed the "Redemption Hymn," Parker, in which Miss de Ahna, contralto, sang the solo part, with chorus accompaniment. The soloist had an excellent opportunity to display the wide range and sweetness of her voice.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong gave the Scripture lesson, and after a beautiful selection, "Berceuse," Oberthur, by violin and harp, he offered prayer. Throughout the rendition of the cantata, which followed, the congregation sang several hymns, appropriate to the occasion.

The work of the soloists was of an unusually high order, while the chorus showed the result of careful training in the difficult rendition. Miss St. Ives, who has a voice of exceptional purity of tone and sweetness, sang her solo parts in a manner that deeply impressed the large congregation. This was also true of Miss de Ahna, while Mr. Holmes, who was unable to take part in this cantata two years ago, was never heard to better advantage. His expression was noteworthy. Mr. Smith's part was also taken in a faultless manner.

The music was made very impressive throughout by the accompaniment of harp and violin and in the solo numbers of the instruments the rendition was perfect by the artists, Miss Wohlfert and Miss Dilling.

GOV. FIELDER GLAD SESSION IS OVER

Hardest In All of His Legislative Experience.

APPOINTMENTS ARE MADE

Governor's Program Was Not Carried Out In Its Entirety—Expresses Regret at Failure of Some of the Legislation Which He Advocated—Little Important Work Marked Windup.

Trenton, N. J., April 10.—"Of all my nine years of legislative experience this has been the hardest, and I am glad that the session has adjourned and we can now sit down and take an account of stock."

This was the comment made by Governor Fielder after the one hundred and thirty-eighth session of the New Jersey legislature had been brought to a close, the governor having informed committees of the house and senate which had waited upon him that he had no further communications to send to the legislature. Constructively the final adjournment took place at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but actually it was two hours later when President Slocum of the senate declared the legislature adjourned sine die.

In the main the session has been a conservative one, remarkably so when compared with the three preceding sessions, while President Wilson occupied the position of chief executive of the state. There has been little legislation of a radical nature and none calculated to disturb the business interests of the state to any appreciable extent. In this respect the legislature followed closely the suggestion made by Governor Fielder that new legislation of the past few years should be given a trial before seeking other novelties in the line of lawmaking.

Senator Fielder's entire program, an important feature of which was the solution of the state's financial problem, was not carried out in its entirety, and the governor expressed regret at the failure of some of the legislation which he had advocated.

In the final list sent to the senate Assemblyman Charles A. Nutting of Essex was named to succeed Michael F. McLaughlin as a member of the riparian commission. Mr. Nutting had predicted his political finish when he broke away from James R. Nugent and voted for the bank stock tax bill, one of the measures most strongly advocated by Governor Fielder. The possible connection between the vote on the bank stock tax bill and the appointment as riparian commissioner did not escape comment. Newton B. Smalley of Somerset was nominated to succeed James L. Birkholz as a member of the riparian commission.

Despite some uncertainty as to the expiration of the term of John H. Capstick as president of the state board of health, the governor sent a statement to the senate, the secretary of state and the state board of health designating Dr. Richard Cole-Newton of Montclair to succeed Mr. Capstick as president upon the expiration of the latter's term of service. Former Senator Isaac T. Nichols of Cumberland was nominated to succeed Mr. Capstick as an associate member of the board.

Laurient J. Tonnele of Hudson county was nominated to succeed George F. Wright as a member of the state water supply commission. Edward H. Dutcher of Essex was reappointed to the geological survey from the Ninth district.

The windup of the session was marked by little important legislation, more bills being stranded in each house than received favorable consideration. The appropriation measures were passed without material change, but not until after a number of senators had criticised allowances made in the incidental bill providing for the expenses of the legislative session.

Assemblyman Agnew's measure providing for small boards of freeholders upon adoption by referendum was passed in the senate after a hard fight. The Republicans tried to have it amended to protect present county employees in office. The bill was compromised, the governor having several times urged a mandatory.

Jersey City, April 10.—As soon as General Francisco Villa, who is prominent in the army set at Torreon, Mexico, gets through with his fight with General Huerta he will be summoned as a witness in the case of James L. O'Neill against the Pennsylvania Railroad company and the Central Leather company. Other witnesses who are at present too busy with revolutions to bother with mere lawsuits will also be summoned, it is said.

Princeton, N. J., April 10.—Alfred Noyes, the English poet, was elected to the faculty of Princeton university by the board of trustees in the capacity of visiting professor.

He will lecture during one term of each year, the term being optional with Mr. Noyes. He will also be a lecturer in English before the senior class.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

Tiered skirts are very modish and are gaining in favor daily. Even in wash skirts the two and three tiered models are noted and the effect is very dressy when worn with one of the new short coats.

Plain and fancy serges, moire and taffeta silks and a number of self striped materials are used for these skirts. Among the cottons are Scotch plaids and fancy checks; to a degree these have the appearance of wool and may well be worn with jackets of cloth or silk.

No. 8268 is a three gored model with a slightly raised waistline and a circular trimming band which may be used or omitted as preferred.

To make this skirt in size 24, requires 2⅞ yards of 42 inch material.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes; 22 to 32

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to give correct size, passing the tape tightly around the smallest part of the waist and loosely around the widest part of the hips.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin, to the Pattern Department of this paper.

SPINACH is imported long before it appears in the kitchen garden and at a price that puts it within the means of the average housewife. It is very wholesome and easily digested. Dandelion greens, beet and radish tops all make good substitutes for spinach when it is unavailable.

Unique Methods.

Spinach Souffle.—Take a cupful of cold cooked chopped spinach and mix with the well beaten yolk of an egg, and stir over the fire until the egg is set. Cool, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Fill a buttered baking dish or individual souffle dishes and bake for ten or fifteen minutes. Serve at once.

Spinach Timbale.—Boil a peck of spinach in salted water, using as little liquid as possible; drain, cool and chop the spinach. Reheat the vegetable with a cupful of bechamel sauce, half a cupful of stock and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Cook and mix with three-fourths of a cupful of minced cooked veal, the yolks of two eggs and salt and pepper to season. Put into a buttered mold and bake in a pan of water for forty-five minutes. Turn out and serve with any preferred sauce.

A Favorite Soup.

Cream of Spinach Soup.—Take one-fourth of a cupful of butter, melt and add one-fourth of a cupful of flour. When thoroughly blended add two cupfuls of cold milk and cook until thick. Add two cupfuls of cooked chopped spinach, which has also been pressed through a sieve; season with salt and pepper, and if too thick dilute with boiling milk to the proper consistency. Serve with whipped cream.

Chartreuse of Spinach.—Take a mold, butter and line it with thin slices of hard boiled eggs. Fill with chopped cooked spinach well drained, pressing it firmly. Put into a pan of hot water and bake for a few moments. Turn out and serve hot with cream or drawn butter sauce or cold with vinaigrette sauce.

Spinach With Sauce.—After spinach has been boiled, drained and chopped fine, return to the saucepan, and to each pint of the vegetable add a tablespoonful of butter, salt and pepper. Stir over the fire and when the spinach is hot add the beaten yolk of an egg to which one-third of a cupful of cream has been added. Stir this and cook until the ingredients are thoroughly blended.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How the Limpets Move From Home to Home.

They Saw No Sign of a Limpet.

IT suddenly struck daddy that he'd never told Jack and Evelyn a story about the limpet family. As a child he had always great admired them.

"You know when I was a little boy," commenced daddy, "I used to spend a great deal of my time in a town by the sea. I used to play among the rocks and have beautiful games. But what always fascinated me more than anything else were the little limpets."

"I don't believe I know what a limpet is," said Jack.

"A limpet," said daddy, "is a little shellfish. They're very, very small, perhaps a shade smaller than a snail, and they cling to the rocks which are their homes. There are always hundreds of them fastened on the big rocks on the coast by the sea. They live on seaweed and the salt water.

"We used to play off a bank that was called 'Greenbank' because in the summer time this bank was always very green and kept green. Below this bank were countless big rocks. We could hide behind these rocks, and no one could see us. We loved that because it seemed so mysterious to hide like that. We could see the bank above us, and then, miles and miles, as far as we could see, was the water, nothing but water. The rocks were covered with seaweed, and they used to be very slippery. Sometimes we would play hide and seek back of these rocks.

"The rocks that were half in the water would be covered with the limpets. One big rock had great numbers of them on it, and we always called the rock 'Limpet rock.'

"One Saturday about six of us had taken a big basketful of lunch and had gone down to Greenbank to spend the day. There had been a terrific storm the night before. We looked for our Limpet rock the first thing, but we saw not a sign of a limpet. How funny, we thought; that surely is the rock! What could have become of the limpets? They were quite used to storms, and surely they couldn't have been hurt by the storm of the night before! Suddenly we spied them.

"There they all were, looking very unhappy and clinging to little pebbles and rocks in the low water. Before the day was over, though, the limpets had attached themselves to another big rock. So we called this rock the 'New Limpet rock.' Once the limpets had fastened themselves to the new rock, they were just as happy as before, for they can change homes more easily than any other creatures and be happy.

"So I think we should admire the limpets because they are so brave and cheerful when they are driven from one home and with practically no fuss they set about and get a new home right away."

ELY'S CREAM BALM OPENS CLOGGED NOSTRILS AND HEAD---CATARRH GOES

Instantly Clears Air Passages; You Breathe Freely, Nasty Discharge Stops, Head Colds and Dull Headache Vanish.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.—Adv.

SENATOR LODGE.

He Would Repeal Exemption Clause of the Canal Act.

Senator Lodge, ranking Republican member of the foreign relations committee, addressed the senate in support of President Wilson's Panama canal tolls policy. He maintained vigorously the legal right of the United States to exempt its shipping, foreign as well as coastwise, from tolls, but declared that "a decent respect to the opinions of mankind" and the "distrust and in some cases dislike" with which the United States is regarded abroad demanded prompt repeal of the exemption clause of the canal act.

LODGE PLEADS FOR TOLLS REPEAL BILL

He Ridicules Cry of Subserviency to England.

Washington, April 10.—Before a crowded senate and thronging galleries Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts delivered his long promised address upon the question of repeal of the "free tolls" provision of the Panama canal act of 1912.

The ground taken by Senator Lodge was purely that of the economic inutility of remission of tolls to American coastwise shipping. Frankly he refused to hide behind any treaty obligations as compelling motives for the enforcement of equal tolls to all ships regardless of the flag they may fly. The problem, according to Senator Lodge, is an economic one pure and simple.

The Massachusetts senator was complimented with remarkable attention on the part of his senatorial colleagues on both sides of the chamber. No speech of the prospective series of oratory on the subject nearest the public attention at the present moment is regarded as more important than these views of Senator Lodge. He is accepted as the spokesman for the entire group of Republicans favoring repeal of the section of the existing law now in controversy.

Senator Lodge prefaced his speech with a request that he be not interrupted and the suggestion that he would be glad to answer such interrogatories as the senators might wish to propound when he had finished his argument.

"Upon the terms of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, which have of late years been so much discussed," said Senator Lodge, "it is not necessary to enter in any detail. The essential proposition was that the governments of the United States and Great Britain agreed that neither one nor the other would ever obtain or maintain for itself any exclusive control over the isthmian ship canal, and they also agreed to invite every other state with which they had friendly intercourse to enter into similar stipulations."

MILITANT RUINS EXHIBITS.

Smashes Cases With Hatchet and Destroys Ancient Sets.

London, April 10.—Historic exhibits, which it will be impossible to replace, were damaged in the British museum by a militant suffragette armed with a hatchet.

The woman entered the Asiatic room of the museum, smashed numerous cases and scattered the valuable exhibits they contained.

Before attendants could reach her she had done considerable damage. She fought off the first men who approached her, but was finally overpowered and arrested.

She had succeeded in smashing eleven big cases containing exhibits. Some of the most valuable porcelain cups, saucers and plates in the museum were destroyed, ruining the sets to which they belonged.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

U. S. 'PHONE EXTENSION LEADS

Comparative Development as a Phase of Ownership Agitation.

STATISTICS QUOTED

A. B. Wilson, Local Manager of Telephone Company, Discusses Value of Private Ownership of Business.

"Whenever the statement is made that the government could extend our telephone service more widely than private enterprise does, I wonder where support is found for such a claim. To the casual hearer, such a declaration seems based upon results in countries where ownership and operation of telephone lines is a government proposition. But I have seen the telephone statistics of the world, and I cannot find any ground for the assertion."

A. B. Wilson, local commercial manager of the New York Telephone Company, yesterday, made this statement in discussing comparative telephone development as a phase of the ownership agitation. "On January 1, 1911," continued Mr. Wilson, "the records showed that European countries averaged one telephone for every 148 inhabitants, while the United States averaged one telephone to every twelve inhabitants.

"According to statistics for 1911, Austria has 4 telephones for 1,000 peoples; Belgium 6, Denmark 35, France 6, Germany 16, Great Britain 14, Hungary 2, Italy 2, the Netherlands 11, Russia 1, Spain 1, Sweden 21 and the United States 81.

"Does this comparison indicate that private enterprise has been less successful than government ownership in extending the use of the telephone? On January 1, 1914, there were 13,816,000 telephones in the world, and of this total approximately 66% were in the United States, or, in round numbers, 9,000,000 stations. Europe had only 27%, or approximately 4,000,000 telephones.

"These figures are particularly significant in view of the relative population of the United States and Europe, as compared with the total population of the world. In 1912, the population of the world was 1,623,300,000. The population of the United States was 94,800,000 and that of Europe 400,000. This means that with less than 6% of the population of the world, this country has nearly 66% of all the telephones.

"New York city alone has more telephones than there are in Belgium, Hungary, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway and Switzerland put together. Chicago has more telephones than France, and Philadelphia more than Austria.

"The Bell system, which aims to enable 'every one in every place to reach every one in every other place,' since 1890 has increased its telephones from 200,000 to nearly 9,000,000. The goal of universal service has not yet been attained, but private enterprise is bending every effort to reach it. The course has been surveyed and staked out by telephone specialists who believe that the continued confidence of the public will justify them. They feel that so long as efficient and comprehensive service is maintained at reasonable rates, the public will continue to support the work of the private telephone organization. And that means that the public is assured that the service will continue to be extended and improved and made more broadly useful.

"It was the public confidence back of the privately managed system that caused the attempt which has proved successful, to make it possible to telephone from New York to Denver; and this same assurance is urging the further extension to establish telephone communication between New York and San Francisco. The success of this engineering problem too, seems assured.

"On the other hand, advocates of government ownership claim we are behind other countries in extending our lines, and that the government would do better for the people. They propose to turn over this gigantic task of operating and extending the telephone lines to the Postoffice Department—to take from trained hands the advancement of this most exacting public service.

"There is grave doubt of the capacity and ability of the government to even prevent the service from losing its present efficiency, should it assume ownership. No government in the world has been able to operate telephone lines as well as private enterprise has operated the system in the United States, although they are far ahead in other national undertakings. The government roads in France are vastly superior to our best State roads. London taught us how to handle street traffic. We have no harbors like those of Belgium and Germany, and no cities as well planned and managed as those in Germany. And yet all of these countries have failed to provide efficient telephone service. They have been unable to extend the service, build for the future, and maintain reliable and speedy wire communication at all times as has been the case in this country.

"Lacking a single example of a government owned system that shows superiority to our privately managed system, is there not reason for considering carefully, before adopting a nationalistic scheme that is backed by nothing stronger than promises?"

Keep Your Telephone Door Wide Open

IT is just as important that you keep your telephone door wide open as it is that your store door should be open to customers. Frequent reports that your telephone is "busy" indicate that you should provide greater telephone facilities to care for your increasing telephone trade.

Are your telephone facilities adequate to meet all your needs? Is your telephone door always wide open?

Our nearest Commercial Office will gladly advise you as to the equipment necessary to give you complete telephone service. Just telephone, write or call.

VAST WILD FOWL FLOCKS GATHER AT LAKE HOPATCONG

Lake Hopatcong, April 10.—Vast flocks of wild geese and the different varieties of wild duck have been resting in coves and sheltered spots of the lake for the last two days.

Life-long residents of the section declare that they have never seen any flights like them, and the clamor of the birds can be heard a long distance from the lake.

William McGregor Littell, commodore of the New Jersey Volunteer Life-Saving Corps, who lives at the lake, said yesterday that the flights to the lake are increasing and that at daylight yesterday morning there was one flock of Canada geese that extended a great distance along the shore and that from one end of the lake to the other huge flocks of ducks and geese swarm about, apparently not at all disturbed by the presence of human beings.

The geese have done considerable damage to the winter wheat, an army of about 1,000 of them having cleaned out an entire field on the Littell property Tuesday.

The presence of the fowl is regarded as showing that, with the abolition of the spring shooting, the water wild fowl will return, and, according to old hunters, many of the birds now on the lake act as though they intended to stay there to raise their young.

TAMPICO FIGHT COSTS MILLIONS

Battle Is Still Raging In Streets of City.

GUNBOATS FIRE SHELLS.

Many of These Set Oil Tanks Ablaze. Foreigners Taken Aboard United States Warships—Vessels of Five Nations Ready to Protect Property of Nationals.

Vera Cruz, April 10.—According to wireless dispatches received here the situation at Tampico is extremely serious.

The rebels made desperate attacks and succeeded in gaining ground several times, only to be driven back from the city itself by the fire of the federal gunboats Vera Cruz and Zaragoza, stationed in the Panuco river.

The shells from the gunboats have set fire to many oil tanks, and the oil is flowing into the river.

Several large warehouses of the Aguila Oil company, the Pearson firm, have been burned, and many tanks of the Waters-Pierce company have also been set on fire by the shells. The losses of these two companies combined are estimated at millions of dollars.

Shells from the federal gunboats have exploded near the American warships in the river.

Rear Admiral Mayo's last report says that the fighting continues and that all noncombatants in the city have been taken aboard the foreign warships.

The federal gunboat Bravo is being prepared here for a hurry trip with a large supply of arms to Tampico.

Admiral Mayo's fleet at the oil port already includes the battleships Connecticut and Minnesota, the cruisers Des Moines and Chester, the gunboat Dolphin and the mine ship San Francisco. The Spanish cruiser Carlos V. and the British battleship Essex, with Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock, are en route to Tampico. A French and a German cruiser are also there.

Tampico Situation Grave.

Washington, April 10.—As the result of developments at Tampico the United States is again confronted with a serious problem involving its obligations to insure the protection of American and other foreign property in Mexico. Reports received showed that already the fighting has resulted in extensive property damage to foreign interests. Warehouses of the Agencia Commercial, a German firm, have been burned, with a loss of $500,000, and fear is expressed for the entire property of the Waters-Pierce Oil company because it is occupied by rebels whose position is under fire from the federal gunboat.

Every effort is being made by the state department to insure the protection of the foreign properties at Tampico. Communications are being entered into with the federal and rebel commanders with the view of setting up a delimitation of the fighting zone which will afford a reasonable degree of protection to foreign interests.

These communications probably will be made through Admiral Mayo, commanding the American squadron at Tampico. There is grave danger of serious complications in the event that the requests of the United States are disregarded by either side. That each commander will lay the blame for the destruction of foreign property on his opponent is more than half expected, with the result that each will refuse to alter his course unless the other pursues different tactics. There would then arise the question of how far the American naval commander will go in insisting on a compliance with the requests of the United States government.

A further complication is feared in the event of the opposing commanders not proving amenable to suggestion from Admiral Mayo through the presence at Tampico of British, German and Spanish admirals, all of whom are charged with the protection of the very substantial interests of their countrymen at Tampico.

SEWER IRRIGATION IN NEW JERSEY

A profitable means of disposing of sewage from institutions and small communities in districts where no general system of sewage disposal is available is disclosed by a report of experiments carried on by the Department of Agriculture at the New Jersey Training School located at Vineland.

In the past the sewage from this institution, which has a summer population of about 600 individuals has been a nuisance, ruining considerable land and creating a breeding place for mosquitoes unless kept well covered with oil. In 1913 this sewage was spread over about twice as much ground as formerly, and this land, instead of being injured, was made to produce heavy crops of alfalfa and silage corn, thus doing away with the nuisance and securing a valuable crop at the same time.

It was possible to run this sewage over a part of an alfalfa field planted previously and compare the yields from the irrigated and unirrigated tracts. The part of the field on which the sewage was run yielded at the rate of 5 tons per acre for the season, while the part of the field, receiving no sewage yielded at the rate of but 3 tons per acre.

The yields of corn were not determined, but the yield on the land on which the sewage water was run was so much larger than that on the land not watered that the directors of the school are putting in the equipment necessary to spread the sewage over still larger areas in 1914.

WHY BURDEN A FRIEND?

The average individual is no more fitted to handle an estate than he is to conduct a law suit or cure a disease. You hire a lawyer to do the one and a doctor to do the other.

Then why burden a friend, a business associate or a member of your family, with the responsibility of being your executor and trustee? Few men are familiar with the duties of trusteeship or with the investment of trust funds.

Name this trust company instead; it is organized for the purpose; equipped to meet every emergency, to transact any business which may arise in connection with trust service; and it is permanent, unaffected by the hazards of human life.

'ANTIS' ARE NOT TO BE OUTDONE

Will Edit Supplement to Daily Press, Following Vote Advocates Lead.

PROMINENT WRITERS

May 23 is Date Selected for Spreading Wide the Arguments Against Votes for Women—Miss R. A. Lawrence Editress-in-chief.

Not to be outdone by their friends on the "other side," the Plainfield Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, will publish a special supplement to the Daily Press on Saturday, May 23, at which time the story of those women who do not wish the vote will be told. Co-incident with the announcement made a week ago in the Daily Press that the suffragists would attend to the issuing of the Daily Press, Saturday, May 2, the publishers tendered the use of the paper to the anti-suffragists, at some subsequent date. The matter was thoroughly discussed at a meeting of the league which was held Tuesday morning, and Miss R. A. Lawrence, who has had charge of most of the publicity for the organization, not only here, but in a national way, was made chairman of a committee to arrange for the publication.

The anti-suffragists will devote their supplement to presenting their cause to the people of Plainfield and vicinity, while the suffragists will take entire charge of the paper on the day which has been given to them, providing reporters, editors, advertisements in their addition, but will not endeavor to do the regular work of the staff employed by the newspaper.

Miss Lawrence has selected as her chief aids in the work of preparing the edition, Miss Laura Osgood, Miss Florence Tweedy and Mrs. John Constable Moore, who will probably have help from other local anti-suffragists. There will also be contributions by Mrs. Charles E. Sykes, who has at times edited the anti-suffrage column which appears every Saturday in the Daily Press; Mrs. Grace Duffield Goodwin, of Westfield; Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, president of the local league; Miss Minnie Bronson, field secretary of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage; Miss Marjorie Dorman, secretary of the Wage Earners Anti-Suffrage League; Mrs. O. D. Oliphant, of Trenton, field secretary of the New Jersey league, and Edward P. Wheeler, a prominent New York lawyer.

In the special edition the anti-suffragists will devote much space to replying to the arguments which are presented from time to time in favor of votes for women, and will present new reasons as to why they think the vote should not be forced upon them.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE PLANNING FOR EXHIBITION

The Equal Surage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield is making elaborate plans for the observance of "suffrage week," April 27, 28, 29 and30, when a demonstration and exhibition of suffrage matters will be given at some local store. Various committees will be in charge and on April 30 the men's league will provide an entertainment, probably motion pictures.

This suffrage campaign will lead up to the nation suffrage day on May 2, at which time members of the local league will get out the edition of the Daily Press for that day. The details for this undertaking are now well underway.

Six Hundred Thousand Homes

in the United States are being paid for through Building and Loan Associations. The Union Building and Loan Association, office, 146 Park avenue, will open its 83d series on Monday night. This Association is over 16 years old and has never lost a penny. The earnings last year were 8½ per cent. Over $60,000.00 has recently been paid to members in matured shares. They have now loaned out to members to buy or build homes $132,000.00. For money savers or home seekers there is no safer or better proposition offered. 10 shares cost $5.00 a month and will yield $1,000.00 in a little over 11 years.—Adv. ***
